MORE THAN A SUCCESS
A TRIUMPH.
The verdict of the large audience that witnessed on Monday night, Dec. 21, at the PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE, GRIMSBY,
THE PRODUCTION OF A CONFLICT OF SEX, THE EYES OF THE WORLD
By CHARLES DARRELL.
Return Holiday Date Booked First Week—Easter, 1910.
Prince of Wales's Theatre,
Great Grimsby,
Dec. 24, 1908.
Dear Miss Van Praagh,—I am delighted with your new play, "The Eyes of the World." It is excellent in every particular, and, in my opinion, by far the best thing Mr. Darrell has done yet. I certainly think you have a play that will make money in any theatre in the country. Your own part fits you like the proverbial glove, and if you will permit me to say so, I consider it the best piece of work you have ever done.
I have much pleasure in enclosing you a return contract for my first holiday date, viz., Easter, 1910.—With kind regards, yours faithfully,
J. H. CURRY.

"HER FATAL MARRIAGE."

Play, in Four Acts, by C. Brunette and A. Hinton, produced at the Theatre Royal, Aston, on Monday, Dec. 28.

Zaco Malletto, alias Captain Vigo ..... MR. ARTHUR HINTON
Wilfred Grey ..... MR. VICTOR MILLWARD
Colonel Crichton ..... MR. PERCY MORTON WRIGHT
Jim Rogers ..... MR. FRED HEWITSON
Paul ..... MR. GERALD BYRNE
Detective Smart ..... MR. HENRY EMMERSON
Peter Pimple ..... MR. FRANK BRUNELL
Sergeant Wiggins ..... MR. LAURENCE GROVE

Lily ..... MISS LYDIA AUDRE
Dolly Dimple ..... MISS LAURA WRIGHT
Myra Malletto ..... MISS RUTH ZILLWOOD

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The significance of Her Fatal Marriage hinges on the unhappy union of a beautiful and sympathetic woman with a scoundrel and a brute. When the play opens, at Captain Vigo's den, murder, most foul, has been committed, and the perpetrators, Captain Vigo and Jim Rogers, are quarrelling over the proceeds, the latter threatening to betray the former for the sake of the reward which is already offered for the capture of the murderer. The victim was the night watchman of a bank, who was found dead near the bank safe, which is found to be rifled of its contents. Rogers, besides threatening Vigo with the present, astounds him with his knowledge of the past, in which it transpires that Vigo had a wife, whom he beat and left well-nigh dead. All this and a previous murder Rogers reminds him of, also telling him that two years ago he wrote to his (Vigo's) wife falsely informing her that her husband was dead. Consequently the wife deems she is free to marry again, and not having heard of him for ten years is really entitled to do so. This Rogers tauntingly reminds Vigo of, and, conceiving the dangerous nature and power of his confederate, Vigo temporises, gives him a full share of the plunder, and, as he is leaving the den, shoots him down from behind. So, with all knowledge of the past dead and with all the plunder in his possession, the villain departs, exclaiming as he disappears "Captain Vigo is dead! To-morrow I am Zaco Malletto." Then a brilliant light from the window pierces the gloom, and Detective Smart, who has heard the cries of the victim, forces his way through the window, and is just in time to get the dying man's description of the murderer, and his confession of his share in robbing the bank. Vigo, having got clear with the plunder, seeks his wife, whom he persecutes at every turn, and seeks to draw from her the identity of their son, of whose existence he has been apprised by the murdered Rogers. This takes place at the Crichton Hotel, near Corwen, and the scene of the previous murder by Vigo mentioned by Rogers. It is the eve of Wilfred Grey's marriage to Lily, the adopted of Myra Malletto, Vigo's wife. Wilfred Grey is the son in question, but has been brought up as a curate in ignorance of his parentage, it being his mother's plan to keep the son from the unholy influence of such a father. One Colonel Crichton has been accepted by Myra, the mother, for her second husband, and he is of the wedding party. His wedding present to young Grey is two £50 bank notes, &c., which, for a moment, Grey leaves on the table; and these, with a pocket-book, which the Colonel has forgotten to return to his pocket, Vigo secures. The bank notes he uses to further wad the charge in Grey's gun, which has been left on the garden seat, and with which he, concealed from behind a wall, shoots the Colonel, thus murder No. 3 is already added to the villain's list of crimes. The Colonel, mistaking his assailant, denounces the curate, and the gun being conclusively his, Grey is taken, and the Colonel dies. It appears that in the murder ten years ago at the Crichton Hotel the story goes that the assassin took the guise of a skeleton, which disappears on the victim's alarm, Vigo starting up in its stead. Thus he appears in the Blue Room of the Crichton Hotel, whither he has decoyed Lily in pretence of being her sweetheart, who is, of course, in prison. His base design, however, is defeated by Myra, who surprises the villain at the psychological moment, and at the point of her revolver extracts a written confession of his crimes. By cunning subterfuge he turns the tables on her, and is still on the point of succeeding with his victim Lily when a half-witted fellow, Paul, who has played a conspicuous part throughout, appears and throws himself on the villain, completely overpowering him. The wad of bank notes which the villain used is found, and it needs only to discover the possessor of the missing pocket-book to find the murderer of the Colonel; and Detective Smart, who has all along been on his track, has no doubt in fixing the previous crimes on Vigo, and that very clearly to the audience, but how need not be described here. The search for the missing pocket-book continues, and it is discovered to have been secured by the half-witted Paul, who has hidden it in a rook's nest, from whence he places it in the hands of Lily, who, despite the villain's desperate attempt to regain it, conveys it to the proper hands. Thus the crime is brought home to him, and a final attempt to murder Myra is frustrated by Paul, who strangles the villain with his kerchief. Wilfred Grey is cleared of the charge of murder, and finds a mother in Myra as well as a bride in Lily.

Peter Pimple and Dolly Dimple are played to advantage by Mr. Frank Brunell (whose agility and contortions are ludicrous) and Miss Laura Wright, whose impersonation of a country wench is excellent; Mr. Arthur Hinton dominates the play with his strenuous acting as Captain Vigo, keeping things at a high tension throughout. Miss Ruth Zillwood as the unhappy Myra showed a proud, imperious manner, from under which the heroine's sweet and innate sympathy from time to time shed a very softening influence. Mr. Victor Millward as Wilfred Grey showed the manner of the curate with all the resolution of the man; Mr. Percy Morton Wright displayed soldierly dignity as Colonel Crichton; Mr. Fred Hewitson availed himself of his brief chance as Jim Rogers finely; Mr. Gerald Byrne gave a picturesque and well-acted study of Paul; Mr. Henry Emmerson, though by no means the conventional detective, was very successful as Smart; as Lily Miss Lydia Audre acted with much emotion; and Mr. Laurence Grove played Sergeant Wiggins with fine humour. The play is excellently mounted.

A Long Wipe.

An audience assembled to exercise its risible faculties strongly objects, says the Manchester Evening Times, to having its feelings harrowed in the smallest degree. Some years ago, indeed, when a play was more than ordinarily mournful, a practical joker summoned twenty of his friends, and the happy band made the actors and manager even more mournful than the play. Seising seats in the front row of the gallery, the confederates waited until a very thrilling scene, whereupon one, burying his face in his handkerchief, sobbed piteously. It was not long, moreover, before the man on his right took hold of the handkerchief and began weeping too, and as each man on the line fell to weeping he seized the handkerchief, until the whole band was sobbing bitterly into a handkerchief that was fully twenty yards in length. Bravely did the low comedian endeavour to turn the tide in favour of the play, but the more he joked the more grevious was the lamentation aloft. Needless to say that, for that night at all events, the lachrymose drama was doomed to failure.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERAMAN.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Jackson Withers.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company appear with the utmost success in Leah Kleschna. Mr. Charles Barrett wins popularity by a vigorous and effective performance of Paul Sylvaine; Miss Bessie Reynold is an interesting Leah, her acting being very effective; Miss Emmie Wallace is good as Clare Berton; Mr. William Clayton's portrayal of Kleschna is cleverly conceived; Mr. Arthur Leigh is a successful Raoul Berton; Mr. Algernon J. Hicks a capital General Berton; Mr. Wm. Heilbron an effective Schram; and Miss Ethel Russell sustains the rôle of Madame Berton admirably.

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Aberdare Public Hall, Theatre, and Billposting Co., Ltd.; Manager, E. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—The Old Home is being presented here by Mr. Harding Thomas and company. Mr. Harding Thomas gave a fine rendering of Daddy Dean; Miss Elaine Verner makes the most of the part of Hazel Dean, playing with true delicacy and sympathy; Mr. Horace Denton presents a good study of the Rev. Eric Armstrong; and Mr. Roland Yorke does well in the part of Lord Avondale. Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite is a humorous Bridget; and Mr. Fred L. Connynghame a successful Sam Adams.

ABERDEEN.—H. M. THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The D'Oyly Carte company are here on a fortnight's engagement after an absence of two years. Gilbert and Sullivan opera still retains its full favour. The repertory for the present week includes The Gondoliers, Iolanthe, H.M.S. Pinafore, and The Mikado. The first-named piece was presented on Monday. Mr. Charles R. Walenn gave a first-class impersonation of the Duke of Plaza-Toro, and Mr. Fred Billington was as brilliantly successful as of old in the character of the Grand Inquisitor; Mr. Leicester Tunks was an admirable Giuseppe, and Mr. Sydney Granville makes a good Luiz; Miss Clara Dow and Miss Beatrice Meredith charmed the audience as Gianetta and Tessa; Miss Ethel Morrison was completely at home as the Duchess; and the part of Casilda was ably filled by Miss Mabel Graham.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—A really delightful pantomime, Mother Goose, was produced last week by Mr. Harry Roxbury and company. There is not a dull moment from start to finish in the piece, which is finely staged and admirably acted. Mr. Roxbury is irresistibly funny in the title-part, and he is exceedingly well supported by such an excellent comedian as Mr. J. W. Gallacher, in the character of her son, Jack; Miss Lily Palmer makes a winsome daughter; Miss Maud Prenton is quite a fascinating principal boy; Towyn Thomas's Royal Welsh Glee Singers are enthusiastically applauded; and the dancing of the Four Sydney Girls is likewise heartily appreciated. The Brothers Milton give a remarkably smart display of skating; Miss Marjorie Prenton looks and acts sweetly; and Messrs. George Castrey, Fred Hutchings, and Brian Henry are well worthy of appreciative mention. It should be added that the singing of Miss Maud Prenton and of Miss Lola Caris, the Fairy Queen, was a feature of the production, and that at the conclusion Mr. Roxbury received an ovation on being called before the curtain.

This week Mr. Harry Tate's No. 1 company gives a piscatorial burlesque, Fishing, and a powerful dramatic sketch, The Girl and the Tough, is presented by Mr. John G. Brandon. Mr. Brandon is admirably effective as the "Tough"; Miss Rosie Dane makes a pretty picture as the paralysed girl; and Mr. Leslie Tyler shows much skill as the detective. Sibb and Sibb contribute a sensational trapeze act; Mr. Almar Correze's juggling is heartily appreciated, and he is ably assisted by Droll Keith; Miss Gertrude Moore sings and dances attractively; Mr. Jack Binns is a highly versatile comedian; Mr. Arthur Woodville shows decided talent as a light comedian; and Miss Ella Lorraine is warmly applauded as a ballad vocalist.

EMPIRE.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—This capacious house was crowded nightly last week in every part by enthusiastically appreciative audiences. Miss Flo Dixie, comedienne and dancer, made a great hit, as did also Scotch Krisa, the humorist. All the other artists were heartily received, among others Miss Marie Rose, vocalist and dancer, whose cross turns with Mr. Archie Murray, coon comedian, prove most delightful; and Mr. Jack Marson, an admirable vocalist and raconteur. Mr. Alex. Calder's cinematograph display was particularly good.

The entertainment at the Empire Music Hall this week is well up to the usual standard of attractiveness. All the artists are excellent. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday the management are to give a spectacle, Peggy's Christmas Party, in which over a hundred local children will appear. As the scenic effects and other accessories are on a very liberal scale, the display will no doubt prove highly enjoyable.

Johnnie Trunley, the celebrated "fat boy of Peckham," is now on view for the Christmas and New Year week at Mr. Humber's Waxwork Saloon, Aberdeen. Johnnie, who now scales 17st. 4lb., proves a decided attraction.

ALHAMBRA MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. John Sinclair; General-Manager, Mr. George B. Lee.—Mr. Lee, the popular and able manager, took his benefit on Tuesday. The ordinary programme had been very greatly augmented for the occasion, and the house was packed at both entertainments. This was a gratifying testimony to the ability, tact, and geniality with which Mr. Lee manages this old-established house. Step by step he is elevating it to its former high position as a variety theatre. Mr. Lee, who is a Virginian by birth, has had a long experience both in the States and in this country as an actor, minstrel, stage-manager, and agent in advance.

Included in the company this week are some very capable artists, notably Miss Effie Saunders, a beautiful soprano; Mr. J. S. Chalmers, a fine tenor; Duggan and Dillon, popular burlesque comedians; and Mr. Ted Wilson, a promising comedian; Miss Saunders and Mr. Chalmers are the soloists to the illustrated songs.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—Dare-Devil Dorothy is presented by the powerful and talented company of Mr. Henry Swinerd. The title-rôle is taken by Miss Nellie Valentine in a manner which earned constant applause; Miss Nellie Harcourt is seen at her best as Judith, and gains the high appreciation of the house; and Ruth is capitally sustained by Miss Blanche Lynd; Mr. Will Brereton as Silas Crump is very amusing.

THE PAVILION.—Lessees, E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. R. Pryce.—Sapho was presented here for three nights by Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's powerful company. Jean Gaussin found a clever exponent in Ernest R. Abbott, who received high appreciation; the title-rôle was cleverly sustained by the charming actress, Miss Ada Abbott, who gave a fine impersonation; comedy was excellently supplied by Mr. Frank Stephens, who was seen to advantage as Uncle Ceasaire; and the part of Lucy was very naturally played by Miss Florence North; the minor parts were filled by talented artists. The same company present Lady Audley's Secret the latter end of the week.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. R. Barnes.—An excellent attraction is provided here for the holidays in Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in The Old Folks at Home. Miss Maud Warburton repeats her fine performance as Dorothy Robin, her acting being in perfect sympathy with the character; Mr. Frank Liston is conspicuous with a realistic interpretation of the villainous Lord Howard Kenilworth; Mr. H. E. Herbert admirably sustains the part of Andrew Ross; and Mr. T. G. Vane earns praiseworthy applause as Hugh Lovell. Mr. E. Santley, as on the previous visit, is seen in his original part of Christopher Robin, and his capital rendition of the rôle deserves special commendation; whilst Miss Clara Santley, as his better half Martha Robin, is entirely satisfactory. Mr. Frank Caffrey, as Ben Jolly, is very mirth-provoking, and is ably assisted by Miss Maudie Grayson as the vivacious maid Susan.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Accrington Hippodrome Company; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Mr. W. J. Churchill, the popular comedian, tops the bill here this week, and is accorded a big reception; Paul Vandy is an expert juggler, and was cordially applauded; Elliot and Kennedy, comedians, contribute a capital turn; Albert Sibber and company, in a dramatic episode, A Soldier's Honour, prove very entertaining; King Luis and partner are accomplished equilibrists; the Sages provide a capital comedy turn; Dora Kingsley achieves much success as a ballad vocalist; Dale and O'Brien, in song and dance, are well received; and the Hippodrome Biograph comprises an excellent series of films.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The story of Cinderella as produced by Mr. Arthur Carlton at this theatre this week forms the thread upon which is strung a series of lovely and charming pictures. The production is in eleven scenes, and both parts conclude with magnificent and gorgeous spectacles. The grand finale of the pantomime strikes a note of distinct novelty. Amidst thousands of fairy lights the principal and chorus go through the many catchy choruses of the piece. The comedians repeat their earlier successes, and the audience eagerly grasp the balls which are hurled from the stage, and just before the ringing down of the curtain the scene in the auditorium, with myriad flickering threads, gorgeous dresses, and sparkling lights is indeed charming. Miss Ella Willmer, a winsome and fascinating little lady, as Cinderella is a perfect picture of daintiness, who has won all hearts with her neat portrayal and graceful dancing. Miss Victoria Carmen imparts with her enactment of Prince Charming a vivacity an original style which go to make her rôle at once a huge success. She is, moreover, gifted with a sweet voice, which she uses with capital effect. Miss Ida Dorrie as Dandini renders her part with ability; and Miss Ray Fairfax is good as the Fairy. There is a quartet of laughter-makers. First there is Mr. H. A. Griffiths, who makes a splendid Baron; then there is Pimple, which as played by Mr Keane Harker is excellent. But the premier laughter-provokers are undoubtedly Messrs. Dan Harley and Fred Melton, the broker's men In patter the pair revel throughout the performance, and both contribute greatly to the success of the pantomime. Mr. Frank Lennard sings well as the Demon; as the two Ugly Sisters Miss Anna Beaumont and Miss Fanny Wallace are decidedly clever, and their comic get-up is remarkably good. The scenery is brilliant.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—First turn on the bill is the Scotch military sketch, Kilties' Camp, showing our brave Highland lads on the frontier. Much fun and interesting musical entertainment is introduced in songs, the playing of the pipes, and in dancing Scotch reels. Clifford Grey is a good singing comedian; the lady acrobats, the Recar Trio, are expert, daring, and graceful; Leslie and Player are refined comedy duettists and patterers; the Florodora Girls appear in musical comedy, entitled Two's Company, Three's None; Charters and Clare in a mock drama scena do some very clever business; Rizarelis performs a novel and sensational revolving trapeze act; Reilly and Templeton are good cross-talkers and amusement makers; Sullivan and Edwards also claim attention with song, patter, and expert dancing; Ben Harris and his nippers are seen in a novel boxing competition, prizes being given to amateur contestants. Bioscope pictures are also shown.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—An entirely new series of pictures is given. The chief among the films shown are Gaumont's pictures of the Scourging of Christ, and the procession and bearing of the cross to the place of Crucifixion, and the Resurrection. Other animated pictures include Jessica's First Prayer, Rover's Christmas, A Good Tip, A Teacher's Devotion, Education of the Blind, and some comic animated photographs. The vaudeville interludes are given by the Sisters Stuart, expert duettists and dancers; Dalton and Euston, comical singers, cross-talkers, heel and toe experts; and Edgar Forest and company in a laughable domestic sketch, Oh, My Mother!

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Manager, Mr. J. Marks.—The holiday week has brought large crowds to the Picturedrome. The subjects have been of the most varied and attractive kind, viz., When the Man in the Moon Seeks a Wife, The Chauffeur's Dream, the Virtuous Young Man, the Cripples and Bill-distributing, and the Terrible Floods in India (1905). The Cowboy's Elopement and Love Story is a striking set, and the Village Tragedy is very melodramatic. 'Twixt Duty and Revenge depicts the incidents of a young fireman and a faithless wife. The vaudeville artists are our old minstrel entertainer, Billy Richardson, the great stump speech artist, who has some new wheezes and up-to-date jokes, which cause great laughter. Mr. Harry Raynor, comedian, enacts the drunken swell in the orthodox style.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—An entire change of pictures embraces, amongst others, The Bank Burglars, Crazed by Telephone, The Island of St. Kilda, Police Women, The London Animal Hospital, The Bully and the Recruit, A Week in Russia, and The Villain. Mr. Charles Verner, in his popular chorus songs, receives lusty support from the audience.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—The capital holiday programme submitted here, to crowded houses, is headed by Mr. Charles M. Daly's company in the laughable comedy sketch I Must Have It, the parts being well taken by Mr. F. Hulme Sharpe (the Tramp), Mr. Val Gully (the lawyer), Mr. Guy Blythe (the Nephew), and Miss Dora Hilstrom (the Barmaid). The Days give a clever and bewildering "thought-reading" performance; Mr. Jimmie James is heartily applauded for his "one-man minstrel troupe"; a popular item is furnished by Mr. Jan Danbert, illusionist and smoke-painter; Sterling and Cashen (lady and gentleman) are good in a versatile comedy act; the Trevors are well received in a vocal scena, The Miner's Welcome Letter; plenty of fun is caused by Mr. Harry Friskey, comedy juggler; Mr. Sheldon Mills is a pleasing comedian and dancer; and Mr. Clayton's pictures, Off for the Holidays, cause hearty laughter.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—The fare at the Gaiety is most attractive, and is consequently being well patronised, despite the frost and snow. The piece is The Gay Gordons, and the combination playing it quite a new one. Miss Norrie West is responsible for the exacting part of Peggy Quainton, and does it ample justice; as Victoria Siddons Miss Mabel Dent is very charming; as Mary McLeod Miss Kathleen Dighton supplies a clever study; Mr. H. M. Johnson as Andrew Quainton is dignified and refined; Mr. Charles Childerston as Angus Græme provides a very fine bit of acting, and his singing is delightful; Mr. Edward Carlton as Nervy Natt makes a clever clown. The orchestra is augmented, and under the leadership of Mr. Leonard Leslie.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Miss Marie Dagmar's company is paying a welcome return visit with The Tyrant. Miss Marie Dagmar gave a capital impersonation of Tisbe; Mr. Roy Fortescue submitted a powerful portrayal of Angelo; Mr. Carthage Caldclaech was responsible for a well-studied piece of acting as Homode; and Mr. Edward E. Louis as Rudolph puts a wonderful amount of dramatic force into his interpretation. Pau was successfully played by Mr. T. Ashmore; Lieutenant Tasker was represented by Mr. John Turnbull in a capable manner; Mr. Frank Etheridge as Victor and Mr. Tom J. Taylor as Nobbo were responsible for much fun; Miss Margaret Frame won sympathy as Lady Katherine; Miss Lallah Shelton made a good impression as Eulie; Miss Nellie Freeman was a lively Reginella; and Miss Emmie Burns as Daphne made the most of a small part.

BARNSLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. Fred Granville opened here on Christmas Eve with his second grand pantomime, entitled Little Aladdin, and will continue this week. The book, by Mr. Joseph L. Barry, is well written, and the piece is produced with a wealth of dress and scenic effect. Miss Minnie D'Aubyn is very popular in the title-rôle; Miss Belle Brocade is successful as the Princess; Miss Ethel Dunville is a pleasing Prince Pekoe; Miss Gladys Wells scores as Radia; Miss Ella Dare does well as Saucee; and Miss Rose Lelar as Lumino and Miss Violet Lelar as Lardi Doo both find favour. As Widow Twankey Mr. Happy Attwood is throughout vastly amusing; Harley and Hardon as members of the Pekin Police keep the audience in roars of laughter with their smart business; Mr. Harry Kirk is an eccentric comedian of ability, and his performance of Abanazar proves enjoyable; Mr. Herbert Lewis is good as the Emperor; Mr. Harry Keeble is an amusing Wun Lung; and Mr. Harry Hutin a satisfactory Wishee Washee. Specialities are introduced in the Palace scene, including the Yorkshire Mill Lasses, the Sisters Dunville, and Harley and Hardon, eccentric comedians.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Barnsley Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Will Smithson.—Bert Wickham, styled "the world's champion all-round athlete," in a number of feats of strength, including his latest performance, Man v. Motor, was the chief attraction of last week's bill. A smart turn was contributed by the Falcons, comedy acrobats; the Faludy troupe of Austrian acrobatic experts were well received; the Four Netherlands are pleasing singers and dancers; and there were other turns by the Fitzroys (Fred and Lilian), society gymnasts; Clack and Clack, comedy acrobats and barrel jumpers; Gena Manon, vocalist and soubrette; the Lovelaces, American song illustrators; and the Palacescope.

With La Milo at the head of a capital programme, crowded houses are the rule this week. La Milo, in inimitable poses of most famous statues, is accorded a hearty welcome; Ralph and Nellie Howard are most successful in a comedy duo, entitled Military Mad; Mr. Walter Burnand shows great ability as a character impersonator; Theo. Boumeester and company are successful in a dramatic sketch, entitled Who is Guilty? Mr. Boumeester's impersonation of seven of the characters is remarkably clever. Other thoroughly enjoyable turns are supplied by the Primrose Quartette, harmonising male vocalists, in song scena; Gladys, dainty singer and dancer; and Albert, a clever comedian; Alec B. Thorne, Scotch comedian; Chas. Cassell, vocal comedian; and the Palacescope.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. Edward Cheesman.—Mr. Jasper Redfern presented an attractive programme here last week, including Les Ados, the Roman gladiatorial athletes; Clark and Glenny, in a farcical sketch, The Christmas Ghost; Leolin, novelty juggler; Haig and Novel, in refined comedy; Harry Goodburn, comedian; John Shaw, blind musician; George Griffin, eccentric vocalist; the Seven Perezofs, in their great novelty juggling act, A Supper at Maxim's; and a number of animated pictures were also depicted.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in The Bondman is here this week. The piece is admirably staged and dressed. Mr. R. Scrope Quentin as Jason portrays the character in an imposing manner—a fine voice and a commanding stage appearance; the Michael Sunlocks of Mr W. H. Hargreaves is polished and dignified, and withal very impressive; Miss Georgina Wynter is charming as Greeba; full of spirit and feeling, she takes the part to perfection. Quite a clever piece of acting is given by Mr. W. H. Rotheram as Father Ferrati, the old Sicilian priest.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company is paying a return visit in With Edged Tools. The stage effects and dresses are beautiful, and the company is of all-round excellence. Special mention should be made of Mr. William Grant as Jack Meredith, who gives a really brilliant performance; Mr. Campbell Goldsmith as Victor Durnovo gives a very clever interpretation of the part; Miss Alice Belmore as Millicent Cheyne has a fine conception of the character, and Miss Marie Leonard as Jocelyn is perfection in the part. The incidental music, written by Messrs. Lalham and F. Buller, adds considerably to the effect of the play.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—The star item last week was supplied by Pitchel and Scales, who provided a clever acrobatic entertainment; Ryan and Hall created roars of laughter with their comicalities and wrestling bouts; Eric, comedian, sang some good songs; Edwards and Dacre were capital in a duologue; Tee and Tee gave an original musical turn; Lillian Lowe sang in a very pleasing manner; and Vernon's Bioscope concluded the programme with some good pictures.

An excellent array of talent is on the bill here this week. The Five Whiteleys are exceedingly clever acrobats and wire-walkers; Walls and Mackenzie, operatic singers, give a charming vocal scena, Christina of Sketra; Zenora gives a really clever exhibition of novelty hand-jumping and equilibrism; Jack Crawley is very good in a scena, Lights Out; Shirley and Ransome's vocal scena 'Arf a Quid had a splendid reception; and some fine pictures were shown by Vernon's Bioscope.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D. Fenton.—An up-to-date picture and variety programme is provided here this week. Cinderella, Santa Claus, and other seasonable pictures were much enjoyed, and C. H. Burns, in a versatile musical scena, was capital.

BARRY DOCK.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Mr. Harry Starr presents Otto the Outcast and Carl the Clockmaker here this week. In addition to Mr. Starr, the cast includes Messrs. Will Hee, Alvin Sawyer, E. Firth, A. Allen, and Misses Effie McIntosh, Kate Norris, Cissie Hastings, and Madge Blundell. All the parts are capably filled.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—For the Christmas attraction the management was fortunate in arranging with Mr. George Edwardes to start another tour of his principal company in The Merry Widow at Bath. The company includes several members who appeared locally upon the first visit, and the performance maintains all its gaiety and charm. Mr. Leonard Mackay is at hand to present his admirable portrayal of Prince Danilo, as also is Mr. Lionel Victor to repeat his righly-humorous study of Baron Popoff. Mr. Tom Redmond retains the character of Nisch, which is quite a masterpiece of quiet humour. Miss Octavia Barry still furnishes fine vocalism as Natalie, for which she is justly accorded much applause; Miss Nora Barry has succeeded to the title-rôle in place of Miss Louie Pounds, and the new-comer is to be congratulated upon achieving so personal a success; Mr. Haigh Jackson is heard to advantage in the tenor rôle of Jolidon. An innovation is the latest dancing sensation Les Apache, in which Mr. A. J. Majilton and Miss Dora Langham score an emphatic hit. The several minor parts are all exceedingly well played, the general tout ensemble being fully up to the high standard associated with Mr. Edwardes's productions. Mr. Harrison Frewin (so long with the Moody-Manners Co.) is the musical director, Mr. Somers Bellamy undertakes the stage management, and Mr. Douglas Millar and Mr. Chas. F. J. Watts are the general and advance managers respectively on the tour.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—A capital turn is given by Clown Barker with his wonderful performing animals, assisted by Miss Rozsika; the Five Bombays come in for an ovation for their plantation clog-dancing; Sergt. Brennan shows to what heights of skill diabolo can be played; as instrumentalists the Three Transfields give evident pleasure; the Forsyths, comedy artists, find favour in their interlude, The Tramp in the Nursery; Amos Howard exhibits great ability as a coon dancer, as does Colin Mail, a young light comedian; Norah Desmond, although billed, was unable to sing early in the week through indisposition, but the films illustrating her songs were shown, and the audience enjoyed singing the choruses; Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are both interesting and amusing.

THE Fun City, which opened on Christmas Eve at Bath, under the management of Messrs. Larcher and Carl Fredericks, has drawn thousands of patrons already to enjoy the feast of good things provided. Free vaudeville performances are given twice daily, those regularly appearing being Miss Della Fredericks, the Raleighs, Mlle. Leoville, and Æolia, all of whom give infinite pleasure to the crowds who witness their clever efforts.

BATLEY.—THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred A. Taylor.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company in The Great White Chief opened here to a crowded house on Monday night. The company includes several clever actors and actresses, and the show generally was much appreciated.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Cinderella commenced on Christmas Eve for fourteen nights and several matinées. The production is that of Mr. Graham Falcon, and the eleven scenes and a short harlequinade are got through exceedingly well and to the delight of large houses. The dresses of the ladies are well thought out and richly coloured, and Mrs Graham Falcon, who designed them, is to be heartily congratulated on her good taste. Miss Norah Neville is a dainty Cinderella, and plays her part in a vivacious manner; Miss Frankie Manners appears as Prince Elegant, and her singing and acting materially add to the success of the pantomime; Miss Dot Carey personates Dandini in a lively manner, and her singing is praiseworthy; Baron Stoney is played by Mr. Wentworth Fane; and the ugly sisters are portrayed by Mr. Albert Evremonde and Mr. Claude Morton, who keep the pot of fun boiling. Mr. Geo. Whillis, the Billy Buttons, is a good comedian and dancer; Miss Beatrice Maude appears as Margery, a dainty dairymaid; Mr. Ben Walters and Mr. Fred Wallace cause much fun as Slip and Slop, and take part in a very amusing turn with the Cat (Mr. Will Telford). The pantomime is produced by Mr. Albert Evremonde, under the personal direction of Mr. Graham Falcon, the incidental music being composed and arranged by Mr. H. Elphinstone Stone, the theatre band conductor.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—On Monday Mr. F. R. Benson and company opened a two-weeks' engagement in The Merchant of Venice, in which Mr. Benson's impersonation of Shylock was irreproachable, his fine acting gaining him loud recalls at the end of each act. Mr. Benson is, as usual, well supported by a competent cast. Miss Dorothy Green's charming interpretation of Portia reflected much credit on this capable actress; and praise is due to Mr. J. Moffatt Johnston, who at short notice undertook the rôle of Launcelot Gobbo; Mr. E. S. Warburton would, indeed, be difficult to excel in his able impersonation of the Prince of Morocco; Mr. G. Hannan Clark was entirely convincing as Antonio; and Mr. F. G. Worlock acquitted himself with distinction as Lorenzo; Miss Olive Noble capably represented Jessica; and Mr. W. Ribton Haines was all that could possibly be desired as the Duke of Venice. Other rôles were cleverly sustained by Miss Regina Lawrence, Miss S. P. Nicholson, Miss L. Hanman, and Messrs. Murray Carrington, H. O. Nicholson, J. P. Wilson, &c. During the week The Taming of the Shrew, Twelfth Night, and Hamlet have been performed, and to-night Macbeth will be produced.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Will Sley and Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—On Monday the pantomime Jack and Jill commenced the last six nights of its engagement here. During the holidays phenomenal crowds enjoyed the performance of such prime favourites as Miss Nellie Rodney, Miss Harriet Fawn, Messrs. Horace Jones, Bruce, Cotton, &c., who were accorded a tremendous reception. The Gathering of the Clans, in which about fifty performers take part, is loudly cheered nightly.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The star here is Gustave Fasola, whose Oriental feats have caused much amazement, and he has been thoroughly successful. Matthews and Cowper appear in their capital sketch When the Clock Went Wrong, written by Mr. E. C. Matthews, which is certainly most mirth-provoking, keeping the audience highly amused; Cull Pit, the droll deceiver, assisted by Mlle. Adele, appears to great advantage in his original and funny act; and Miss Bertha Winder, the champion lady clog and big-boot dancer, gains a terrific reception. Ross and Lewis appear in their humorous and unique dancing act, and Miss Dorothy Sephton is a capital comedienne. Also here are Mr. Harry Tompa, comedian, and the Bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Under the skilful direction of the courteous manager Mr. Will White, the following films have been exhibited:—Sunshine after Storm, Living Blackboard, His Wedding Morn, Four-Footed Hero, Heard on the 'Phone, &c. In addition, Clamp and Clancy, comedians and dancers, and Mr. Jack Hylton, comedian, appear with much success.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The success of this popular hall continues to be maintained, and during the week the following beautiful films have been shown:—Wanted, a Nice Young Man, Call me at Seven, Plumber and Lunatics, Motherless Child, &c. Mr. Charles Cardle, gipsy vocalist, is accorded a good reception nightly, and Mr. Dan Ellis is a capital humorist with good songs.

CLIFTONVILLE HALL.—General-Manager, Colonel Fredk. T. Cummins.—During the holidays enormous crowds visited this Rink to enjoy the unique novelties presented by the popular manager Col. Cummins. Roller skating is now all the rage in Belfast.

BILSTON.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Business-Manager, Mr. S. Hadaksis Dawson.—The Amateur Dramatic Company of the Wolverhampton Technical School gave two performances in aid of the Staffordshire General Hospital on Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 23 and 24. The pieces presented were A Rough Diamond, In the Eyes of the World, and Who's Who. As a Christmas attraction we have The Lighthouse Robbery, presented by Mr. E. H. Knight's company. The part of Tom Manly has a capable exponent in Mr. Geoffrey Broughton; Miss Hilda Baynton is sweet and sympathetic as Rose Prescott; Miss Lilian Bates makes a sprightly Ruth; and Mr. Arthur Beaufort is very amusing as Sam Kidder.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime Little Cinderella and the Glass Slipper inaugurated what promises to be a most successful season on Boxing Day. The book is written by Mr. Joseph L. Barry, who has followed the principal points of the familiar story. The elaborate and beautiful scenic effects are from the brush of Mr. James Greenhalgh, and the overture, incidental music, choruses, and songs have been arranged and selected by Mr. George Burton. The title-rôle is sustained with particular charm and grace by Miss Hettie Gale, who quickly instals herself a favourite, singing her allotted numbers with delightful finish. Mlle. de Rose gives a fine performance of Prince Perfect, displaying vocal powers of quite exceptional merit; and Miss Edie May as Dandini is seen to decided advantage. Much of the success attending the production is due to Mr. Joe Huda, a comedian of resource, whose untiring exertions in the part of Pimples, the page, are worthy of special commendation. The two quarrelsome sisters are represented with great verve by Mr. Harry Bliss and Mr. W. G. Wesley; the impecunious Baron is humorously impersonated by Mr. Leslie Hawkins; Mr. J. M. Hawtrey is thoroughly successful as Malicio, the Spirit of Mischief, introducing several songs with great effect; Miss Norah Riberio is an admirable Sunbeam, the fairy godmother; and prominent in the cast are Mr. William Verto, Miss Pollie Kiddie, Miss Ada Tyrrell, Miss Nellie Barrett, and Miss Hilda Clairemont. Specialities include some clever acrobatic feats by the Lisando Brothers. The evolutions of Mlle. Barrett and her clever troupe of lady dancers are greatly admired, and the magnificent costumes and accessories are worthy of the admiration they evoke. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. James A. Lowe, and a successful career may be safely predicted for the production when it goes on tour. Business here is simply immense.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—A capital holiday company includes Mr. Tom Edwards, the well-known and popular ventriloquist, and Harry Rogers and his able company in the dramatic episode Told in a Flat, who have made a hit. Prominent turns are also furnished by Boyd and Gilfain, burlesque operatic vocalists; the Channings, instrumentalists and vocalists; Doody and Wright, Australian comedians; Charles Coll, light comedian; Walter Emerson, comedian and dancer; Miss Gwennie Hasto, a talented comedienne; Miss Lorna Doone, vocalist and entertainer; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—George Hackenschmidt, in his exhibitions of wrestling, is the leading attraction here. A liberal programme is also contributed to by Lyster and Cooke, musical comedians; Stelling's performing dog; Les Rallis, acrobats; Jack Hayward, Scotch comedian; the Two Clares, comedians; Miss Daisy Hinks, comedienne; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BIRMINGHAM.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Mr. Melville's Christmas fare is On His Majesty's Service, wherein, under his nom de theatre of Andrew Emm, he appears as Bob Whittles, acting in the true spirit of comedy, and enjoying the utmost popularity with his patrons. Mrs. Melville (Miss Rose Ralph) as Madge has a part wherein she is able to display that sympathetic charm she indubitably possesses; Mr. Frank Beresford does admirably as Frank Fairway; Mr. Francis Everard's utility is palpable in the rôle of Will Rawson; Mr. Gerald Kennedy shows skill by making much of the part of Capt. Hedley; Mr. George Maxted scores as Ned Farley; and the rest act completely up to their parts.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. A. J. Robertson.—Her Fatal Marriage is serving the public here well, with Messrs. Hinton, Green, and Zillwood's company. The play is described elsewhere.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Her Marriage Vow has, with Messrs. Edward L. Garside and J. Forbes Knowles's company, proved very popular here with the holiday folk. Mr. Charles B. Bedells plays the heavy rôle, Gilbert Carlton, in a forceful manner, gaining general execrations with his well-simulated villainy; Mr. J. Forbes Knowles infuses great warmth and power into his part of Ned Benton, and is highly popular; Miss Lillian Herries carries the audience with her emotional powers as Kate Walters; Miss Nelly Shirley portrays her rôle as Hester Norton with great skill; the character of Daffy Dan shows many fine points in the acting of Mr. Vincent Wardle; Mr. Jno. W. Ryder forces applause as William Walters; and the comedy is excellent in the hands of Mr. H. Vernon, Miss Grace Garside, Miss Winifred Barton, and Mr. Wilford Bailey.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The excellent bill here is headed by Albert Chevalier, who, in Behind the Scenes, is loudly applauded. "The Globe of Life" is a sensational cycling feat presented by Wizard and Irene Stone; the singing of Luis Alvarez and Sybil St. Elmo is excellent; Phil and Nettie Peters, Enzer, Grant and Grant, and Lily Flexmore all do capital turns.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Morris Cronin and his clever troupe of jugglers are the "big turn" here, and well deserve the applause which greets them; the quaint patter of Mike S. Whallen can always keep the house in a roar of laughter; Mary Mayfield and company have a dramatic sketch, The Yellow Fang; and a bright comedy item is presented by Florence Smithers and company. The Sisters Jerome, Helen Trix, and Jack Smiles complete the company.

HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—Mme. Albani is here, and the huge building has been crowded, the great songstress being vociferously applauded. There is a good variety bill. The Bijou Juvenile Troupe appear in Pansy's Birthday; while Thorpe and Coe have a pleasing playlet. Honors and Le Prince are clever and humorous in their acrobatic act; some capital national dances are provided by the Ongars; and other prominent turns are Paulton and Doley, cycle comedians, and Russell Carr, ventriloquist.

GAIETY THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—May Clifton and her company, in the extravaganza, Jack in Japan, is proving a big attraction; and Mat Wilkinson's Merrymakers are responsible for plenty of fun. The Smart Set provide a bright musical and dancing entertainment; Tate and Tate, in their act, The Barmaid and the Customer, are most amusing; Rastus and Banks, coloured entertainers; Sisters Aindow, J. W. Ellison; and Clark's Nippers, make up an excellent bill.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton. — Harriet Vernon is the bright and popular star this week, her songs being loudly encored; Dulcie Milner and George Storey soon sing and dance themselves into favour; Dallas and Vardon have a smart little musical comedy act which is much appreciated; the Lavails are expert on self-revolving bars; while the Martelloni Family are acrobats of the first order. Leslie Race and Flake White complete the programme.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy —The pictures here are much appreciated, especially Blue Beard. The vaudeville programme includes Nesta Nixon and Jackson and Mart, whose songs and dances were much admired. In the same building, the Exhibition Hall, which holds about 450 people, was opened on Boxing Day by Messrs. Moore and Kennedy with a bustling minstrel entertainment, headed by Geo. Snow. The show is bright and amusing.

QUEEN'S HALL.—This beautiful building in Edward-street Parade was opened on Boxing Day by Messrs. Moore and Kennedy with a picture show, which proves attractive.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company occupies the boards here this week with The Worst Woman in London, and a crowded house was present on Monday. Mr. F. Vernon Travers as James Milford is a typical country gentleman, and Mr. Geo. Gaisford an excellent Jack Felton. Mr. H. W. Monte gives a capital portrayal of Hugh Drayton, and Mr. Willie Scott (Bob Goldfinch) and Miss Polly Marsh (Matilda Parker) keep the house in screams of laughter. Miss Dorothy Haigh is a charming and winning Ruth Milford, and Miss Edith Blande is admirable in the title-rôle.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone. — Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's company is reaping a rich harvest here this week with A Message From Mars. Mr. Wallace Widdicombe plays Horace Parker with true artistic skill; whilst Mr. William H. Brougham is successful as the Messenger, and Mr. Norman Clark presents an excellent study of the Tramp. A charming Minnie Templer is found in Miss Rose Helme; and other parts are also in efficient hands.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner, Mr. T. Sergenson; Responsible Tenant and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—A very suitable holiday programme was provided here last week. All the artists were well received, but probably Madge Gray, the Lancashire comedienne, got the lion's share of applause. Fred S. Peake and company found favour in a playlet entitled The Hypocrite; whilst Cliff Rock, a capable baritone vocalist; Dick Bradley, cyclist; Phillips and Merritt, comedians; Voldan Brothers, acrobats; the Langfords, singers and dancers; Mini and Mart, paper manipulators; and Morimura, a Japanese magician, were also included in the bill.

Le Diabelo, in a "looping" act, tops a varied bill here this week. Other turns are contributed by the Jackley Trio, in a drawing-room entertainment; the Markies, in a comedy sketch entitled From Pavement to Stage; Harry Blake, a very clever character-comedian; the Colonials, in a comedy scena; Sisters Draycott, vocalists; Stidder and Dunbar, in The Dancer's Dilemma; and Mabel Florence, a pleasing and dainty comedienne.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Nellie Wallace, the popular eccentric comedienne, topped a big bill here last week. Syd May, the mimic, is a tremendous favourite in Blackpool, and his efforts were loudly applauded; Tom Edwards, the amazing ventriloquist; Maude Marshall, character vocalist; Burns and Bentley, dancers; Sinclair and Parr, comedians and vocalists; Lalie Brooke, in a pleasing scena; Sinclair and Whiteford, in an amusing sketch; and McCann, with his performing dogs, were also appreciated in their respective turns.

Visitors here this week are highly delighted with the fare provided. Marie Jones, in a quick-change act, is a great favourite; Ted Karno and company evoke hilarity in their sketch, Dinner Hour; the Two Woodwards excel as cyclists; Lily Arthur sings and dances well; Les Aribos show their feats of strength; and Leslie's Comedy Cadets appear in a clever scena. Maudy Lordy's Dogs and Bostock's Baboons also appear.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. William Maclaren and Miss Lily C. Bandmann, on a welcome return visit, opened on Christmas Eve for eight nights with Claudian. Mr. Maclaren in his inimitable impersonation of the title-rôle aroused admiration; Miss Bandmann in the part of Almida was again a decided success.

THE EMPIRE (late the Theatre Royal).—Lessee, Mr. Arthur C. Moody; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lacey Lyne.—The programme submitted here was met with success. This week's company includes Rosie Dawn, a clever Scotch comedienne; Harry Walker, comedian; Three Musical Starlands; the Weimars, musical sketch artists; Will Hughes, the Eton Boy; and Hearn and Palmer, acrobatic comedians.

THE GAIETY. — Lessees, Messrs. Claggers. — The Surrey and Carlton company of six artists introduce a clever dramatic sketch, Two Little Soldier Boys, that went well; Rose Adams, Chas. Field, Billy Ankers, Eros, and Ella and Edwards rendered good turns.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Mr. Charles Constant's Christmas pantomime of Aladdin and His Lamp had a most successful send-off at its inaugural representation on Boxing Day, and is now attracting large audiences. The story (told in twelve scenes) allows abundant opportunity for a succession of brilliant sets and sprightly and humorous acting. The part of Aladdin is admirably filled by Miss Lillie Blythe, whose vivacity and charm are irresistible, her impersonation being thoroughly successful. Miss Dorothy Dempster deservedly shares the honours by a winsome rendering of Princess Badroulbadour. The part of Widow Twankey is taken with much humour by Mr. Victor Stevens; Mr. Tom J. Morton has a fund of humour of a quaint and original kind as Abanazar; Mr. Martin D. Pitts is imposing in the part of the Emperor; and Little Britton is successful as Wishee-Washee. Miss Margery Seymour sings herself into favour as Fairy Aurolia; the Brothers Hinson are highly amusing as Policemen of Pekin; and Miss Maggie Bowman (as Chee-Kee), Miss Louie Danby (as Pekoe), and Miss Florence Fortiscue (as Dan-dee) are also seen to advantage in their respective parts. Specialities are introduced with excellent effect by Bowman and Morton, Stuart and Stuart, the Three Brendas, Hinson Brothers, and the Panama Sextette; whilst Miss Maud May Murray is responsible for a capital display of aerial serpentine dancing. The latest vocal and instrumental items have been compiled by the musical director, Mr. W. Neale, and the entire production bids fair to excel any previous efforts.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A heavy holiday week here, including three matinées, is in progress. The programme comprises Botello and Virginia, daring aerial gymnasts; Fraser and French, hurricane wooden shoe marvels; A. E. Clifford, versatile vocalist; Bonnetti and Corri, eccentric jugglers; Cline and Clarke, black and white speciality dancers and comedy artists; Cortus, light-weight athlete; Brull and Helmsley, the dainty damsel and the dancing dude, in Fun in a Music Shop; Ted Saunders, mimic; Ada Parker, a merry and bright comedienne; a realistic scenic representation of the Johnstown Flood, U.S.A., in 1836; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—An old Bolton favourite in the person of J. W. Hall, comedian, is the principal turn here, and much support is accorded him by Cara Magda, Continental gymnast; A. Rinder, vocalist; Blanche and Powell, society entertainers; the Lovelaces, in illustrated songs; Amy Russell, soprano vocalist; Charles Lestree, juggler; Chard's Troupe of Trained Dogs; and the Empire Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Joint-Managing Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Clifford King.—A capital programme, presented this week before crowded houses, includes Joe Peterman and company with The Singing Servants; Mr. Chas. Miller's famous Elephant Trio give a strikingly intelligent performance; Harry Carsdale, the farmyard linguist, is famous; Onda and Artell perform a clever acrobatic and rope feat; George Grogie, the Sussex yokel, comes in for applause; Lena Leslie as comedienne and Lilian Rigby as instrumentalist and dancer also deserve mention. The Hippo pictures conclude the bill.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Mr. Mouillot's pantomime of Mother Goose, produced under the direction of Mr. F. Leslie Moreton, eclipsed previous Boxing Day productions. The audience, which filled every nook in the theatre on Saturday, got the best to be had in the way of crisp, up-to-date dialogue, sparkling and tuneful music, and beautiful mounting; and added to these they had the untiring efforts of a first-rate company under the stage-management of Mr. Howard Leslie. Miss Olive Eltone and Miss Florrie Saunders were both charming and well up to their respective parts as principal boy and girl; as Gretchen, a maid-of-all-work, Miss Dorothy Payn exhibited a vivacity well suited to the part; Mr. Edmond Russell as Mother Goose was excellent, and contrived whenever he was on the stage to evoke hearty laughter; Mr. Victor Kahn as Jack and Mr. Lawrence Hanray as Lord Overdrawn proved capital fun-producers, the former's whistling solo and the latter's songs (composed by himself) being vociferously encored. Some pretty dances were nicely executed by Sinclair's Four Parisian Girls; and the wrestling turn by the Miller Brothers was, perhaps, the most amusing turn in the whole pantomime. Great credit is due Mr. Jean Desormes, the musical conductor, and also to Mr. Hubert Dunbar, Mr. Mouillot's astute manager, whose anxiety to study the comfort of the audience is much appreciated by them.

BRADFORD. — THE EMPIRE. — Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Those delightful entertainers, Bella and Bijou, headed the bill here last week with The Suffragette, amongst their excellent and well-acted sketches. The Gaudsmidts, clown acrobats, with their trained French poodles, furnished an excellent turn; there was some capital clog-dancing by the Eight Lancashire Lads; Thora, a lady impersonator and ventriloquist, contributed a good entertainment; as a dandy comedienne, with immaculate "get up," Madge Osmond proved entertaining; the vocal contributions by the Crown Trio have a military flavour, and were well rendered; comedy and pathos were well blended in the capital little Cockney sketch, Me and 'Er, given by Duncan and Godfrey; Mina Denvil, a young comedienne, with an excellent voice, was also very well received; and some entertaining pictures were shown by the Bioscope.

A genuine success is scored here this week by the Original Gnikshank, whose funny patter and excellent songs, with accompaniments on 'cello and banjo, are particularly entertaining. Lottie Lennox quite wins her audience with her songs "Put on Your old Green Bonnet" and "There'll be no War"; in a miniature Sicilian drama, What Women Do for Men, F. W. Purcell's company are much appreciated; Rousby's company introduce some effective scenic spectacular effects in Greater London, which win applause; Bessie Slaughter is a versatile contralto vocalist whose songs are popular; a very clever comedy acrobatic entertainment by the Falcons is highly appreciated; an aeroplane burlesque by Verno and Voyce, The Fly-far Man, amuses the audience greatly; The Rag Doll, by the Martineks, is a novel act which is particularly diverting; Arthur Albert, comedian and actor-vocalist, submits a good turn; and there are some capital pictures shown by the Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—A remarkable performance was last week submitted by Minerva, a lady who not only defied the handcuffs and the strait-jacket, of regulation pattern, but freed herself from a padlocked barrel, which was filled with water. Flo Inman proved herself to be a dainty comedienne and dancer; Emmie Ames presented with success a pretty song-scena, "Emmie's Christmas Tree"; Julian Ross and Harry Bancroft were both good comedians with capital songs; a cleverly-acted protean sketch, An Anglo-American Alliance, won applause for Wilton Heriot and company; in A Tramp's Holiday the Beisons performed some clever trick cycling; Les Zelovas were smart as acrobatic equilibrists; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux concluded.

A striking and particularly artistic exhibition of Living Bronze Statuary by Mlle. Clasen and her four assistants wins marks of genuine appreciation here this week; Les Elgonas win applause, too, for a distinctly sensational gymnastic performance; J. H. Greener, the Singing Pit Lad, has a voice of exceptional quality; there is some good broad comedy in the turn by Marion Armitage, comedienne; the Della Sisters, The Ladies in Black, entertain with their vocalism; Walker and May, coloured singers and dancers, present a capital turn; Margaret Radcliffe, the Illustrated Songstress, is entertaining; a most diverting turn is the mélange of music, singing, and dancing submitted by Ross and Grayson; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are interesting.

BRIDLINGTON.—GRAND PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The Christmas attraction here was Mr. Herbert Ralland's company in that fine play of Mr. Pinero's His House in Order. Miss Elsie Roberts, in the character of Nina, gave a superb rendering, and was thoroughly deserving of the frequent calls she received; Hillary Jesson was in the capable hands of Mr. Herbert Beaumont, who gave a vigorous exposition of this very exacting part; Mr. J. Parish Robinson was an admirable Filmer Jesson; Mr. Langford Thomas was well suited as Sir Daniel Ridgeley; Mr. Dudley Stuart made the most of the character of Pryce Ridgeley; Mr. Richard Dalton was a breezy and cheery Dr. Dilnot; Mr. Randolfe Reade as Major Maurewarde and Mr. L. Seth Wallis as Harding lent valuable aid; and as Derek Jesson Miss Peggy Ray made a very smart and capable boy. Miss Avis Grahame as Lady Ridgeley Miss Victoria May as Geraldine, and Miss Kate Neville as Mlle. Thome were all admirably fitted; and a most effective rendering was given to this fine play. For the remainder of the week we have the New Bioscope Trading Company and a good variety show, including Sill and Silicott, the silent comedians, in their laughable absurdity Lively Luggage, and the Brothers Almo in a fine triple horizontal bar act.

SEA OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Timbridge.—A fine series of animated pictures was the great attraction here for the holidays, and some dramatic and humorous films were very effectively displayed.

THE PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Delmar.—The Delmar Picture Palace still keeps up its popularity, and the constant introduction of new films of up-to-date subjects meets with the full approval of the patrons of this popular resort. The ballroom, too, is open during the holidays, and adds to the attractions.

BRIGHTON.—ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith.—A very attractive programme is sustained here this week. Colin Bryce and company are highly successful in Are You a Socialist? the Hanlon troupe win hearty applause for their excellent aerial act; Bert Terrell, Dutch comedian, gives his songs in good style; Ernest Ball, actor-vocalist, is well received; Ethel Douna is a graceful vocalist and neat dancer; Barford and Carson are an amusing pair of comedians; Les Henris submit a skilful equilibrist act; Maggie Rimmer sings and dances herself into favour; the Sisters Du Cane are high-class vocalists and expert dancers; Charles Craston, a quaint comedian, is very popular; and the Alhambra Picturegraph proves interesting and amusing. During the week special daily matinées are given. The programmes submitted comprise exhibitions of Jury's Imperial Pictures and vocal selections by Mme. Edith Welling (soprano) and Mr. Ben Brammall (baritone). Prominent among the pictures are Aladdin and A Christmas Eve Dream.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. Brown.—An excellent company is engaged here this week. The Leslie Brothers, Australia's eccentric musical comedians, evoke the heartiest of laughter and applause with their original act Music Mad; Violet King, entertainer at the piano and accomplished violinist, is a great favourite; Wright and Lawson are a couple of very diverting eccentrics; Carl Lynn achieves distinct success as a wonderful mimic of animals; Lanos and Montes submit a good comedy acrobatic turn; the Serenaders are a pleasing "Old Venice" quartette of vocalists; Mike Nono, "the Irish cowboy," is a unique comedian and dancer; Dave Carter, tenor vocalist, sings tastefully; the Three Comerfords are capital comedy acrobats; and Carrie Laurie's miniature comedy company, in The Belles of the Kitchen, display admirable dancing and singing.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford.—The exhibitions of animated pictures here continue to attract crowded houses. The Count of Monte Cristo conveys a very stirring story, The Legend of the Stars is replete with pathetic incidents; The Reconciliation is a capital love story, and much fun is afforded by A Marvellous Escape, How the Artist Paid His Rent, and Behind the Scenes with the Marionettes. Two "real singing pictures"—A Christmas Carol and A Jolly Christmas Eve—are presented by the Cinephone with realistic effects. The Barrasford Sable Operatic Minstrels maintain their great popularity with their excellent singing and humorous jokes. Mr. Arthur W. Briggs merits warm commendation for his cleverly descriptive pianoforte accompaniments to the pictures.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—The entertainments provided here for the Christmas holidays are of a varied and interesting character. The Water Babies and Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves, with a very amusing harlequinade, are admirably submitted by King's Royal Bioscope. The fine set of films also includes Jim the Chimney Sweeper and The Harlequin's Story. In addition to these attractions Mr. J. E. Cowell's dramatic company submit the farce, The Kiss in the Dark, in which the characters are admirably sustained by Mr. J. E. Cowell (Mr. Pettibone), Miss Bertha Felsing (Mrs. Pettibone), Mr. R. Elsworth (Frank Fathom), and Miss Blakemore (Mary).

ARCADIA PICTURE PALACE.—Capital programmes are provided here for the Christmas holidays. Animated pictures give much-appreciated representations of the pantomime stories of Red Riding Hood and Bluebeard, and others are of a dramatic and humorous character. The pictures are varied by the renderings of vocal and instrumental selections.

BRISTOL. — PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Edward Crosland's "Melody Makers" head the programme with a successful musical and comedy entertainment, entitled The Burglar's Dream; Les François are smart acrobats, &c.; R. Cameron Matthews and company amuse with their farcical sketch, The Honeymoon Baby; Tiny Arnold sings and dances with much skill; The Claymores are competent vocalists, dancers, and jugglers; Spangles and Sawdust excel in a comedy stage aerial act; Arthur Stacey obtains applause for his comic songs and dancing; Harry Bold, raconteur, is successful; and the performance concludes with animated pictures.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Marie Kendall, the popular comedienne, heads the programme, her pleasing turn obtaining full appreciation; Dorothy Grimston and Company have an excellent dramatic sketch, The Money Spider; it is well played and obtains considerable applause. The Spanish Amio Trio do some smart rifle-swinging and acrobatic acts; Rose Cambry, Australian burlesque actress, does a pleasing turn; Cummin and Seaham do a good comedy acrobatic act; Cyril Dane, light comedian, is appreciated; Barney Ives, illusionist, is successful; Steve McCarthy, comedian and dancer, is well received; and The Xentrix sing and dance well in their scena The Garden of Terpsichore. New subjects projected by the bioscope conclude the entertainment.

COLSTON HALL.—The "Joseph" Poole's myriorama opened here on Christmas Eve to a packed house. Performances are given twice daily, and the season bids fair to be highly successful. The panoramas and dioramic effects are quite up to the usual high standard of "Poole's," if not still more effective; the animated pictures are very much up-to-date; there is a competent vaudeville company and an excellent band.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. Watson's benefit on the 23rd ult. drew an overflowing house, and a large number of variety turns were given by artists from the district and neighbouring towns. Among those were Messrs. Crade, Kaye, and Crathorne in Supper for Two; Bert Gibbons, comedian; W. Scott-Joint, bass; Beattie and Babs in song and dance scena, A Pavement Rehearsal; C. Edwards-Horobin, character comedian; Wee Ella Fields, comedienne and clever dancer; Little Miss Alexander, elocutionist; Little Bob Shillin, comic; Joseph B. Montague and Hilda Blanche in A Matter of Sport; T. Carlyle; Herbert Dickinson; Will Hay, comedian; Tom Taylor, comedian; Bros. Kauffman and Co., in A Brother's Sacrifice; and Ena Moore in Cleopatra dance. Boxing Day Robert Courtneidge's company commenced the new version of The Dairymaids. Mr. Johnny Osborne as Joe Mivens and Miss Gladys Silvana as Eliza kept the house in roars; Peggy is well played by Miss Empsie Bowman; Mr. Nelson Keys gives prominence to the character of Lieut. Sam Brudenell, dancing and singing well; Mr. J. Herbert Willis does well as Lieut. Frank Meredith; Mr. Percy Marshall is capital as Dr. O'Bryne; Miss Penelope Pyechase is well presented by Miss Lucy Edwin. The chorus is efficient under Mr. Albert Bartlett, and the scenery and staging are excellent.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Tom Jones, by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's capital company, is paying a welcome return visit here. Miss Florence Smithson as Sophia Western is a pretty personality, and her well-cultured singing brings forth repeated encores. Mr. Harry Welchman again gives a fine interpretation of Tom Jones, and Mr. Ambrose Manning is highly interesting as Squire Western; Mr. George Elton is a volatile Partridge, and the ever-laughing Gregory is, as before, represented by Mr. J. T. Macmillan; Miss Joan Ritz is a delightful Honour, and Lady Bellaston is haughtily depicted by Miss Alice Oppitz; Mr. John Morley displays an excellent bass voice as Mr. Allworthy; Mr. Deane Percival is good as Blifil; and Dobbin is a very funny character by Mr. Lionel Braham. The scenery and dresses are beautiful, and Edward German's delightful music is well rendered by principals and chorus.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—This place of amusement was well filled on Monday evening, when a varied programme was presented. In the musical farcical comedy entitled The Poor Beggar Mr. John Le Hay and Company scored a great success; the Five Kaytons, in their acrobatic pot pourri, won warm applause; and Pietro, the contortionist, gives a demonstration of wonderful suppleness and dexterity; Mr. Harry Briggs, for his imitation of a little girl, was loudly applauded; Mr. Percy Farrimond, now on another visit, was appreciatively received, especially for "In Dreamland"; M. H. Thiessen, with his acrobatic dogs, supplies an excellent turn; Fred and Lulu Camplin, in their musical comedy, A Dressing-room Interlude, introduce smart dances, &c.; and the four Sisters Netherland, singers and dancers, meet with hearty recognition for their Tale of the Stockings and bare-foot dance. The pictures are diverting.

The George Bonhair Troupe have a smart Risley act; Marcel and Boris, equilibrists, are well received; Rousby and Rene's Fine Feathers is capitally done; Vena Valma, the musical comedy maid, for her singing and dancing meets with generous acceptance; and the Bros. Lydamore, patterers and dancers, Wills and Mackenzie, in the vocal scena, Christina of Sketra, with its beautiful setting, and Mr. Fred Land, eccentric comedian, are other attractions.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Sammy Shields, Scotch comedian, proves very popular here; Elroy, the armless wonder, can do everything almost with his feet; Captain Devereux's Dogs are finely trained; the Four Pawels, lady and gentlemen acrobats, present graceful feats; the Ringling Trio, in a comedy speciality act, The Manager's Lunch, do some good acrobatic work; and Johnny Holland and Company present a capital sketch. Other artists are The Garricks, in a song scena, and Cherry Lass, comedienne and dancer.

A local attraction is provided this week in the appearance of the full Burnley Temperance Prize Band, which has a good record of successes, and which, under Mr. P. Fairhurst's lead, has improved considerably this year. Mlle. Clasen's living art bronzes are beautiful; Miss Carlotta Levey has two popular choruses in "Study those who study you" and "He was one of the boys"; Johnny Dwyer's more acceptable item was his home song; and Percival, the comedian at the piano, Ford and Barras, Rose and Wold, and Deans and Wilton are also on the bill.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Mr. Dudley Bennett and Mr. T. C. Wray's company is appearing here with the greatest success in Miss Hook of Holland. On Boxing Night hundreds had to be turned away, and Monday evinced a similar experience. In the name-part Miss Ethel James gives a lively and finished performance; Mr. Charles Maclagan as Mr. Hook fairly brings down the house with his drollery; Captain Adrian Paap, as presented by Mr. J. B. Fox, is a clever conception; Mr. Edward Floyd also does well as Bandmaster Van Vuyt; Mr. Fred Dark proves himself a good comedian as Simon Slinks; and Miss Muff Carew as Mina sings well and dances cleverly.

BURY (Lancs.). — ROYAL, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter. — Mr. Geo. D. Day's company opened here on Saturday last in The Prodigal Son, with Mr. Albert Ward again as Oscar Stephenson. It is a part particularly suited to him, and a powerful performance is the result. Mr. Jackson Hayes is decidedly good as Stephen Magnusson; and a careful study of Magnus Stephensson is submitted by Mr. J. Weldon Atherstone. Oscar Neilsen is capably portrayed by Mr. David Beattie; in the dual rôles of Thora and Elin Miss Doris Roberts proves herself an actress of ability; Helga Neilson is cleverly played by Miss Pearl Gardner; and Miss Florence Lovell is a sympathetic Anna Magnusson. A skilful character study is that of Miss Ina Rozant as Margaret Neilsen. The remaining parts are capitally portrayed by Messrs. J. E. Savery, A. J. Williams, R. C. Brooksmith, and Charles Seymour, who gives an excellent rendering of John Vidalin.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The Six Æolians are appearing as star turn this week, and give a refined and entertaining item. My Lancashire Wife, a sketch presented by Duncan and Brasque, meets with well-deserved approval. Beatie Allen, a local lady making her first appearance, shows distinct promise; she possesses a very good voice, and her turn is most refined and enjoyable. The Trentanovi Sisters submit a clever gymnastic act; a capital exhibition of juggling is presented by Rene, quite a young artist; the military poses of the Edmunds are much appreciated; Ray Renis (magician), Will Mitcham (musical comedian), and the Ottograph films are all good.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles F. Wilson.—In a Suffragette skit, Should Women Have Votes? Mr. Fred Maitland is most amusing; a Scottish romance, Pride of the Heather, is presented by Helen Kennedy and Clare Shirley, and the company acquit themselves very creditably; Jim Cheetham's imitations of birds are capital; Alfred Graham's Juveniles include some clever people, and their turn goes with a good swing; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde and their talking and singing shadows are well received; Lew Peterman (Hebrew comedian), Godfrey, Ltd. (illusionist), and the Biograph pictures complete the bill.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Penleve.—The attraction here for Boxing Night and the first three nights of the week was Mr. Charles Carey's company in After the Ball. Mr. Michael Naven was responsible for an excellent rendering of Jack Danby; other prominent rôles being sustained by Mr. Charles Carey, Mr. Fred Pollard, and Mr. Ted Clifton. Miss Marie Ault scored heavily as Mary Chovey; Miss George-Wallis made a pleasing Veda Downe; as Mrs. Downe and Ida Miss E. Patterson and Miss Carrie Wood made the most of their parts; and Miss Madge Lacey was successful as premier danseuse.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Nothing could have been better chosen for a holiday piece than The Diver's Luck, which attracted a big house on Monday night. Mr. Arthur Emm is responsible for the company. Mr. Harry Cullenford as the diver, Martin Faber, played with great judgment; Mr. Fred A. Marston as the good-hearted Barney Bawn was highly successful; Mr. William J. Miller gave a realistic representation of Tom Hall; Miss Dora Pass as Helen Wyngate made the part prominent; and Miss Pearl Noyle, Mr. Joe Rowland, and Miss Holly Haslewood were also good.

GUILDHALL.—Mr. Ernest Mansell, with his Graphic Life-motion Pictures and company, including Miss Maude Evelyn and Mr. George Ritter, opened on Monday and gave capital shows.

CARDIFF. — EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—L'Incognita, the unknown soprano, appeared for the first time in Cardiff last week, and secured a triumph; one of the best of Fred Karno's productions is The Mumming Birds, which made a return visit, and caused unceasing laughter; Bert Williams' smart gags and ventriloquism gained him much applause; Mabel Mavis rendered sweet music on the glasophone and pianoforte; a first-class comedietta entitled Semi-detached was presented with great ability by the Meymotts; Lionette Roberty and company are capital transformation dancers. The Bros. St. Clair, expert trick cyclists, the Grosvenors, vocalists, and a screaming film on the Bioscope completed a programme which delighted huge audiences.

At the head of a capital programme this week is the well-known actor-vocalist George Leyton, who once again appeals to large audiences with his veteran songs; "The Last Muster" is Mr. Leyton's latest success, which has taken very well here. The famous Craggs are great favourites in Cardiff, and their clever sketch, entitled Billy, is received with much appreciation. A very unusual turn is provided by Frederic Villiers, the renowned war correspondent, who proves most interesting in an illustrated lecture, "Fifteen Minutes on the Warpath"; a capital display of living statuary, originated and designed by Mr. Albert Toft, is given under the name of "Makers of History"; Nina Wood is an entertaining artist, and at the piano wins enviable applause; the Jackson Family supply a delightful musical act with all their usual skill and brilliancy; Spry and Monti keep the house amused with their hotch-potch of nonsense; Randolph King, "the one-man programme," Maude Vera, a dainty comedienne, Edie Endon, a capital sand-dancer, and the interesting Bioscope complete a fine bill of fare.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—Large audiences visited the Royal last week, the piece put forward, When it Was Dark, having aroused much interest on its former visit a few months ago. Mr. Haldane Dalton submitted a weird rendition of Constantine Schwabe, throwing considerable realism into the difficult part; Mr. Wilfred Lyndon filled the rôle of Basil Gortre with exceptional skill; Mr. Alfred Collingham acquitted himself of the responsibilities of Harold Spence with the ease of an experienced actor; as Sir Robert Llewellyn, Mr. Charles Brandon played the character to perfection; and the Rev. Mr. Byars was quite safely entrusted to the capabilities of Mr. Wm. H. Burton. Miss Ethel Griffies achieved an undoubted success as Gertrude Hunt, and could not well be improved upon; and Helena had, at the hands of Miss Marie Barrett, a sweet and unaffected impersonation. Mr. George Tawde as Charlie Gayfly and Miss Tessa Myers as Gracie Goldeye enlivened the piece with their wholesome and clever comedy.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—The sketch which topped last week's bill was Dr. Parker, excellently enacted by Sydney Mason and Theresa Moore. Second on the menu was clown Barker, with his refined comedy animal act; the Five Bombays, in harmony singing and plantation clog dancing, were another clever turn; and Rowe and Roe, cross-talk comedians; Bernardo, the idiotic juggler; and Earle and Godfrey, comedy artists and dancers, contributed successful work.

The appearance this week of Arthur Norton, the undefeated 9st. Graeco-Roman champion of the world, has caused a rush for seats; the nightly contests prove most exciting displays. Other competitions open to the public are provided by Ford and Barras, capital dancers. Maurice Hoffman and company have a sensational episode entitled Sorrows of Satan; the Babusio Bros. are remarkable head-balancers; the Gallimore Trio are amusing; Jamie Piper is a marvellous instrumentalist; and the Fordyces are skilful dancers and diverting comedy artists. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are to the fore with new films.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds's company in the sensational drama Women and Wine is a big attraction for the holiday week. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds appears as the hero, and gives a distinctly impressive and powerful rendering of a by no means easy character; Mrs. C. St. Elmo as Marcel Rajadont, the adventuress, acted with fine effect, her imposing appearance, too, fitted the character exactly, and her performance throughout met with well-deserved recognition; a nice character sketch of the blind father was contributed by Mr. J. Mitue-Taylor, and Mr. R. Foulis showed to advantage as a French bully. The heroine was excellently interpreted by Miss Violet Sims, a refined and clever artist. Mr. Harry Harrop was responsible for the comedy, and created much amusement. The minor parts were well filled, and the Lottie Stone troupe of dancers contributed an acceptable and well-applauded act in the Bal Masque scene.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company in a pantomime entitled The Babes in the Wood fills the bill this week. It is quite well written, and played with all the necessary amount of dash and go to ensure success. The Wicked Uncle of Mr. Charles May caused considerable merriment; Messrs. August and September as the Ruffians are in great form, and repeat their success of last year; Miss Millie Ealger as Robin Hood and Miss Winnie Usher as Little John are already big favourites; as the Lace Girl Miss Maude St. John's attractive appearance and effective style is much admired; and the Dame of Mr. Harry Ellison creates endless amusement and applause. The John Ridding quartette of dancers contribute, perhaps, the most appreciated turn in the performance, their dancing being particularly neat and clever. The minor parts are well filled, the chorus strong, the dresses and scenery pretty and effective, and the whole performance gave immense satisfaction to a large audience.

CARMARTHEN.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—Miss Inez Howard's powerful company appeared here on Tuesday evening in the romantic military drama The Midnight Wedding. Miss Ethel Savill impersonated the dual rôles of Princess Astrea and Second-Lieutenant Karl Helsburg excellently, both parts being taken with conspicuous ability; Mr. Frederick W. Freeman gave a fine and masterly interpretation to the part of Paul Valmar; Mr. W. H. Baker as the Crown Prince Leopold was most impressive; Mr. W. J. Rea as Lieutenant Eugene Von Strelsburg and Mr. Cyprian H. Matthews as Captain Rudolph Von Scarsbruck gave powerful and effective delineations to their respective parts; Rozel was in the capable hands of Miss Ruth Wingrove; Miss Elsie Dene was a winsome and captivating Kathie; Mr. Will Glaze as Private Bobo was intensely amusing; Mr. Will Charlton as Sergeant Max and Mr. Alfred Richards as Corporal Otto were very successful; while Father Gerard found a splendid exponent in Mr. James Winter. The minor parts were most capably interpreted. The piece was elaborately mounted and enthusiastically received.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—On Monday a packed audience assembled at early doors to witness Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's new military drama, The King and the Unknown Woman. Of the performance, although only on its second week on tour, there can be little else than praise. There is strength in the plot, and many scenes are written with power. The staging is really excellent, and the uniforms are gorgeous. Miss F. Conyers Radcliffe deserves high praise for her careful, unaffected, and convincing portrayal of the unknown woman, Zora; Mr. Stephen Scanlan acts with much determination and dramatic power as the cowardly and villainous Prince Menski; Miss Muriel Inglis plays with admirable spirit and vigour, and quite realises the vindictive character of Countess Melveitch; Miss Cissie Podmore is a pert and sprightly Schnapps, and her quaint antics keep the house amused; much diverting fun is also introduced by Mr. Wm. E. Passmore as Corporal Stack; General Platz finds an earnest and able exponent in Mr. W. R. Winning; Mr. Cyril Harrison displays much tact in his handling of the part of Captain Gara; Miss Morna Dunayne gives an interesting performance as Elsie; while Little Elsie Clark ably and intelligently sustains Cæsar.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—The chief item here is Shirey, Liggins, and company (including Miss Ella Murlone), in a scena, An Alabama Farmyard. With harmonious ditties and humorous sayings they win loud applause. Another turn which finds well-merited applause is that of the Cattania Trio, who give a refined muscular act on the trapeze; Clifford and Yorke appear with great success as the Weary Wanderers, and loud applause greets their efforts; Great Scott is an expert juggler and ladder balancer; Bert Rayburn is a quaint comedian of distinction and personality; Lydia Rale as a banjo and mandoline song illustrator is thoroughly appreciated; Winona is an extra turn, and her clever rifle shooting from a trapeze in the auditorium finds well-merited favour; Chas. Woodward also appears as a comedian; and Baroux and Bion are named "comedy concoctors." Some excellent films, projected by the Loyal Dominion Co., close an enjoyable evening's performance.

CHATHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is making a first appearance in The Prince and the Beggar Maid. The bulk of the work falls upon Messrs. Alfred Brandon, Melville Bickford, and Ernest Cox, as the three Princes of Sylvania. They are excellent in their respective rôles, and are freely applauded throughout. Mr. H. Burton puts a lot of expression into the part of Nathan, a dumb servant; Mr. Kenneth Black makes a natural Bishop of Illyria; and Mr. Robert Noble a fine Captain Hector. Miss Ethel Bracewell gains the sympathy of the audience as Monica; Miss Gertrude Branscombe makes a most attractive Camiola; and Miss Jessica Black is a lively Viola.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis.—E. Chimes scores here as the crazy musical butcher; the hit of the evening is made by the Gothams; the Three Orros give an artistic display of strength; Marie Wilton proves a pleasing serio; one Billy Farrell spins some capital yarns in a telling manner; Maud Weildon, comedienne, and Bernard Corke, in sketches at the pianoforte, also appear; while the Edisonograph has new and interesting films.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have the Three Royal Dreadnoughts, whose expert rifle-shooting act is much admired; Coverdale creates unbounded merriment by his original comedy turn; loose-limbed Ray Maskell pleases all with her dancing; the Victas score as barrel jumpers; The Sleepwalker is an amusing sketch, ably produced by Walter Ellis and company; Lacey's Erascope has a seasonable film, entitled How a Slum Waif Met Father Christmas; Harry Simms, with chorus songs, and Rose Gaston, comedienne, complete the company.

CHESTER.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—On Boxing Day George Brydon-Phillips's pantomime Puss in Boots, written by Victor Stevens, opened here for a three weeks' run. It is the quintessence of humour, picturesqueness, and refinement. Mr. Geo. Beyerley, under whose able stage direction it was produced, deserves unstinted praise. The cast attained an all-round excellence, the Dame being played with great effect by Tom Ashby. The principal boy, Jack, found a dashing and charming exponent in Ethel Dunbar; Bernard and Weston, the lazy brothers, Bill and Sid, kept the house in a roar of merriment from start to finish; Richard Lomas impersonated the Cat in a manner worthy of a Lauri; and H. A. Langlois as the Terrible Ogre ably acted his gigantic part. Leslie Digby as King Koko is worthy of praise, and the Amaranda of Maggie Allwood is good; Kitty Vivian as Prince Ferdinand scored a deserved success, and so, too, did Alec Wylie as the Notary. The part of Princess Pansy was sustained with great power, charm, and vivacity by the principal girl, Mavis Hope, whose songs, rendered with perfect sweetness and expression, captivated the hearts of the audience. In the "immortal line," H. Hodgkins as Mephisto excellently portrayed the Scarlet Devil, and the Fairy Hymen of Jeannie Langlois was the personification of grace and beauty. The minor parts were well acted, and the chorus ladies sang and danced in excellent tune and time. The specialities were in the capable hands of the Sisters Milburn and Cane, and Eugene and Willie. The scenery painted by E. G. Banks is pretty, and the staging effective. Mr. William T. Gliddon arranged the excellent music, which is rendered by the orchestra under his skilful direction. Judging by this week's audiences, the business should be good.

CHORLEY (Lancs.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Mr. C. W. Mill's company occupies this house this week with the excellent drama, A Warning to Women. Mr. H. C. Robinson gives a fine exposition of Dr. Marcus Dread; Mr. William Vane plays capitally as Shaun; Mr. Henry Rutland presents an admirable portrayal of Squire Kennion; Mr. W. Palliser Acock being conspicuous as Ferdinand de Joules. Lord Eversleigh is cleverly undertaken by Mr. Leicester Jackson; and Mr. C. O'Connor is good as Fergus M'Naughton; Moira Kennion being rendered with emotional power by Miss Blanche St. Albans.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Company, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—Mr. John Leopold and company occupy the boards here this week on a return visit with New Frivolity, and on Monday evening the house was well filled. Mr. Watson Hume capably enacts Oliver Buckwheat; Mr. John Leopold, jun., makes an excellent Daniel Teething; Mr. James Harding gives a forcible rendering of Jules Vermiglio; and Professor Fumble is safe in the hands of Mr. Tom Leopold. Miss Cathleen Cavanagh is suited to the rôle of Mme. Cobweb; Miss Amy Hall is very successful as Lucy Buckwheat; and Vinnie Moore is cleverly undertaken by Miss Gertie Winter.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Walter Melville's production of The Girl Who Wrecked His Home commenced an eight-days' visit here on Boxing Night. Mr. Fred Goddard was admirably suited to the part of Jack Marshall; Miss Louise Hampton made a charming and pathetic Bertha; Miss Winifred Whyte imparted plenty of dash to the part of the adventuress; Leonard Kenyon and Josh Crockett were depicted with the necessary "devil" by Mr. Walter Gregory and Mr. Geo. A. Lester respectively; and comedy was capitally introduced by Mr. Alfred Richards as William Stevenson and Mr. Francis Hope as Tommy Biffin.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—The Great Roland occupies the top position on the bill this week, and in conjunction with Miss Marjorie Russell, presents quite a shoal of really artistic mysteries; Kelway and company, in the sketch The Post of the People, introduce a novelty of undoubted merit; Les Almas give a fine exhibition of equilibristic possibilities and lightning-like tumbling; Harry Bent amuses vastly with his mimicries; Mitchell and Mace as twin dancers excel; Carlotta Lunn bounds into popularity with her appealing songs; and the Gaumont films are keenly appreciated.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—This week Mr. John Gerant and company are here with At Duty's Call. Mr. John Gerant as Harold Allison plays with force and cleverness; and as Captain Geo. Allison Mr. Chas. Calvert is very smart. Mr. E. St. John skilfully portrays General Gordon; whilst Mr. John Kollen gives a good account of himself as Hassan. Miss Beatrice Western is a charming Dora Drummond; and as Salema Miss Ada Roscoe plays with ease and effect. The comedy parts are well sustained by Mr. Harry Pues and Miss Eva Belle.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. H. Bell.—Mr. Seymour Hicks's company opened a week's engagement here on Boxing night in the Gay Gordons. The play was seen here for the first time, and was a great success, the houses on Monday and following nights being packed, and the principals recalled several times. Miss Maie Ash, who impersonates Peggy, is a bright and clever actress; she sings some catchy airs and was accorded a hearty reception. Mr. Stanley Brett as Angus filled the part effectively, and his drolleries kept the house in a continual titter; Miss Connie St. Claire as Mary McLeod sings a number of songs in good style; Miss Ida Mann as Janet and Miss Lily Maxwell as Victoria are both excellent; Mr. E. Stoatham as Nervy Nat is capital, and the part of his wife Charlotte is well filled by Miss Nellie Dade; Ernest Torrence as Andrew Quainton is also good.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The Elster Grime Opera Company opened a week's engagement here on Boxing Day in the Bohemian Girl, and got a good reception. The different numbers were admirably rendered and the play was well staged. Mr. Gilbert King as Aunt Arnheim sang and acted well; the Thaddeus of Mr. Albert Kewley was capital; Mr. Percy Martin as Florestein pleased; Mr. J. Kneall Campbell as Devilshoof created much laughter; the other parts which were well filled are Captain of the Guards, Mr. J. Holden; Queen of the Gypsies, Miss Agnes Mann; Buda, Miss Madge Quilliam; and Arlino, Miss E. Lynham. Maritana, Faust, Lily of Killarney, Rigoletto, Il Trovatore, and Rose of Castile are in the répertoire. Large audiences are attracted at each performance.

COVENTRY.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Barwell.—When Knights Were Bold is being presented at the above house this week, and is drawing crowded houses. The company is a capable one, under the direction of Mr. James Welch, and includes Mr. Henry J. Ford, who makes a huge success of the part of Sir Guy de Vere, and is ably supported by a cast which includes Mr. V. Sansbury, Mr. Cecil Clayton, Mr. Guy Lane, Mr. H. A. Lyons, Miss Ethel St. John, Miss M. O'Hea, Miss Ruth Bower, Miss M. Ryder, and Miss Bessie Walters. The piece is preceded by a duologue, The Wrong Side of the Road.

HIPPODROME THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome.—Crowded audiences visit this place nightly this week. The popular comedy artist, Nellie Wallace, is a very great favourite in Coventry, and gives three songs at each performance; Sid Cotterill, the popular comedian, and company, make a hit in The Substitute; the Three Bounding Navvies, Wild, Willie, and West, create endless fun with their extraordinary acrobatic feats; the Sisters Gladwin introduce their latest sensation in dances, including "La Danse des Apaches"; the Five Vernons, xylophone specialists, give a very fine turn; and other artists are Elsie Steadman and Bert Lytton. Bioscope Pictures finish the evening's entertainment.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—A capital programme is attracting large audiences at the above house. Carl Wilbur and company appear in an American comedy sketch, 61, Prospect Street, which is well acted; the Bros. Wills are a couple of clever and refined acrobats; A. Prince's Mascots are pleasing comedians and vocalists; Brent and Brand are a couple of vocalists with a great range of voice; Arthur Rose is an actor mimic, and presents The Actor's Last Call; Grey and Welford give an amusing comedy boxing act; Fred Clements, comedian, and Mabel Hind, comedienne, also contribute capably; the Bioscope Pictures concluding.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—The Woman Who Sinned, presented by Mr. Edward Vivian and company, holds the boards here. Miss Augusta Tullock undertakes the part of Judith Sardoris in a style peculiarly her own, winning constant applause; Mr. James Musgrove plays Jack Carrington in a masterly manner; Mr. Wm. Delacy as Percy Hogg, and Rosie Watson as Maude Riggs are responsible for the comedy; Mr. Edward Vivian gives a careful presentment of Silas Norris; Mr. Lionel Yeomans as Eugene Darville gets constant recalls; Mr. Blake Thornton makes a first-rate Sergeant Jones; Miss Dorothy Seamons deserves special mention for her Lady Munro; Miss Dorothy Vivian is good as Blind Meg; Miss Eva Coleridge does good work as Hester Norris; Will Kirk as Jack Scamp is well chosen; as also are the other three characters.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—J. W. Turner's opera company played Maritana here on Monday. Mr. Turner appeared as Don Cæsar de Bazan successfully, and was accorded a hearty reception; Mr. Tom Griffiths, in excellent voice, was well suited to the rôle of Don José; Mr. Frank Clarke's portrayal of King Charles was excellent; and Mr. George Ridding as Captain of the Guard sang with earnestness. Mr. R. Cummings as Marquis de Montefiore, made a good impression; and Mr. P. Newton was a commendable Alcade. Miss Jeanne Jeune as Maritana acted cleverly, and sang with sweetness and charm; Miss Maud Esdale was suitably placed as the Marchioness; and Miss Jessie Dennis was an effective Lazarillo. Il Trovatore, Martha, Bohemian Girl, and Faust completed the week's programme.

CROYDON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Harry Osmond.—The Bioscope pictures and illustrated songs are the attraction here, and are well received.

PUBLIC HALL.—Mr. Ernest Mansell's splendid series of animated pictures are drawing large audiences here, and giving great satisfaction. The subjects are varied, amusing, and interesting.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barraaford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—The programme here is exceptionally good. Alice Hollander, Australian contralto, gives a pleasing turn; Russell Brandon is a smart American coloured dancing comedian; Cora Corina is a neat comedienne; G. Charley, French protean artist, is a great success; the O'Gorman Bros. submit a clog-dancing turn; Wilson Hallet's imitations of children are praiseworthy; Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is up to the mark; and a turn which is keenly relished is Lew Lake's company, including Bob Morris, in the invigorating sketch Five Years Later.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—The seasonable fare here last week took the shape of pantomime. Aladdin was the subject chosen, and Miss Edith St. Clare had arranged a first-class company, which did justice to it. Miss Edith St. Clare played the title-rôle, supported by Miss Lily Lonsdale as the Princess. Mr. Ernie Myers as Abanazar, Mr. Frank A. Wood as the Emperor, the Brothers Brooks as the Emperor's faithful henchmen, the Sisters Brand as the second boy and girl, Miss Mabel Roberts as the Fairy, Mr. Fred W. Graham in his old part of Widow Twankey, and Mr. Geo. Parry as the Vizier, constituted the principals. There are other minor parts, and a very strong chorus under the leadership of Mr. Landor. As specialities, the Canton Troupe of dancers and the Krakes and the Brothers Brooks were engaged. The music is written by Walter McMillan, and the book is by Jas. J. Hewson. The scenery by H. O. Richardson and dresses and costumes by Mrs. Howarth are entirely new for this pantomime, and the whole production is in the capable hands of Mr. Fred W. Graham. Mr. B. Haldane is Miss St. Clare's general-manager.

Miss Edith St. Clair and company's Aladdin, which was produced here on Christmas Eve, is a big success, and is playing to full houses. Miss St. Clair as Aladdin is a sprightly youth, and sings some catchy songs; Mr. Ernie Myers is a tireless worker, and he is exceedingly funny as Abanazar; Mr. Fred W. Graham is a capital Widow Twankey; Miss Lena Brand and Miss Edie Brand as Prince and Princess work well together, their singing and dancing being excellent; the Brothers Brooks are exceedingly droll as the Policemen; Miss Lily Lonsdale as Princess Badroulbadour has a lovely voice and sings with great power; Mr. Frank Wood as the Emperor gives a fine performance; Mr. George Parry as Wot-iz-it has been well chosen. There are several fine scenes, and the dresses are beautiful. The Krakes give a clever comic performance on the bars; and the Canton Girls gain applause for their acrobatic dance.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company, in pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, last week played to full houses twice nightly. Miss Millie Engler gave a fine performance as Robin Hood; Mr. Harry Elliston was the dame, Mrs. Gadabout, and caused roars of laughter; Messrs. August and September, as the Ruffians, were up-to-date with their gags and songs; the John Ridding Quartette were good; and the Kentucky Trio submitted a capital performance. Miss E. Parry was sweet as the Fairy; Miss Winnie Usher showed to advantage as Little John; and Mr. Charles May as the bad Baron was excellent. The Babes were prettily played by Miss Dolly McCalla and Miss Dorma Morgan. With a good chorus of ladies the pantomime went with a fine swing.

Joe Reichen's performing dogs are the chief attraction this week, and are extremely interesting. The Carpos Brothers are smart acrobats; Edwards and Dacre, in comedy duologue, entitled What a Life! score a success; My Lady Dainty, comedienne, is tuneful and pleasing; the Gregson Comedy Trio are funny in The Dummy; Alec Kennedy, actor-vocalist, is well appreciated; and the Pepiscope is showing some very fine pictures, the whole making a capital New Year's show.

DARWEN.—PICTURE PALACE AND THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—For the second week, under the new management, a capital bill is provided. In addition to the pictures, Soleni gives an entertaining turn of mystery and illusions; Miss Isabel Moss is a refined vocalist quite above the average; and Clive and Vera are amusing in their comedy duo.

PUBLIC HALL AND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Lewers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—The Two Le Bruns, in their novel vocal and juggling act, and Edie, the child juggler and singer, create a favourable impression; Fox and Melville, song illustrators, win applause; Mabel Martin, speciality instrumentalist, and the Percys, in a comedy duo, are much appreciated. The pictures are of a high-class character.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Mr. Arthur Carlton presented the Christmas pantomime Aladdin at this house on Boxing Day (two performances). The present version was originally produced at the London Hippodrome, whence it comes with all the attendant gorgeous scenery, sumptuous costumes, brilliant lighting effects, et hoc genus omni. The local stage-manager and producer is Mr. J. W. Hemming, who has been assisted by Mr. Geo. Mortimer Hancock, while the musical portion is in the hands of Mr. J. Morton Hutcheson, the general business-manager being Mr. Herbert Sidney. The name-part is filled with conspicuous success by Miss Lallah Davis, who sings and acts with a delightful dash and vivacity. Possessed of a charming voice and manner, she is heard with the greatest possible acceptation in the songs allotted to her, especially in the familiar "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" Indeed, her work throughout is such as to reflect upon her much credit. Mr. Fred Carey as Abanazar is another outstanding feature of the pantomime, his energy being only equalled by his ability in everything he does, and that is a lot, from the rise to the fall of the curtain. He is, indeed, screamingly funny, and his thousand and one eccentricities keep the audience in a perfect roar, while he remains at the last as thoroughly entertaining as he was at the beginning. Miss Hedda Hirlemann as the Princess combines with a dainty stage presence a sweetly pretty voice and a sympathetic delivery. The Harrison Brothers, eccentric comedians, as Sloppa and Koppa, the comic Chinese policemen, are provocative of much merrimene; and Mr. Fred Ramsdale, as the "Merry Widow" Twankey, plays the part with much humour, his impersonation being devoid of the vulgarity with which in years gone by it was mistakenly thought necessary to invest the rôle. As the Emperor Mr. Alf. Maynall is another hard-working and entirely competent entertainer; and Mr. Tony Freedman as Washee, the Chinese laundry boy, is also a deserving artist, the business introduced by both being of an original and diverting character. As the Geni of the Lamp Mr. Henry Maynard is in every way acceptable, his well-trained tenor voice being heard to advantage in everything he attempts, his rendering of the familiar old song, "I'll sing thee songs of Araby," being specially noticeable. The Sisters Hampell figure agreeably as Pekoe and Nicee, and give a special turn, which is well received. Miss Marie Louise makes a pleasing appearance as the Geni of the Ring; and other minor characters are in the hands of Misses Irene Stamford, Louie Desmond, Doris Grey, Carrie Young, Marie Adams, Olive Beavan, Cora Mezetti, Prudence Davies, Amy Williams, Grace Noble, &c. There is a large and powerful chorus, an augmented orchestra, and, altogether, the production is one of the best of its kind that has been seen in Derby for some years.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—A capital top-line turn this week is provided by Zarmo, a juggler, whose clever and amusing tricks win unstinted applause. Albert Damm and Page, equilibrists, may be commended for the remarkably neat way in which their daring feats are submitted; the Three Delaries in a scena, The Demon Grotto, give an excellent gymnastic display; Phillips and Merritt are pleasing vocalists and dancers; the Brothers Esdale are successful in song and patter; the Gilberts are responsible for some clever dancing; the Two Errolls, tumblers and leapers, are both clever and amusing; and E. H. Allen, comedian, has a fund of quiet humour which is duly appreciated. The Bioscope, with a laughable film, concludes a varied and up-to-date bill.

DEVONPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Last week the patrons of the theatre thoroughly enjoyed the performance of the drama Man to Man. Mr. Edward Lloyd as the hero, George Gordon, supplied an acceptable version of the part; Mr. Frank Adair as Richard Ellerton made a thoroughly despicable villain, and proved himself a clever actor; and Miss Louie Adair was a sympathetic and attractive heroine as Ethel Maythorne. Mr. H. Bruce Williams was praiseworthy as Samuel Plumtree; Mr. Clifford Bown was genuinely funny as the convict Bill Berkeley; Mr. Leonard Clapham excellent as the mad clergyman; and Mr. H. Holland a hardworking Matthew Ellerton.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The principal attraction last week was a bioscopic representation of the famous Gotch-Hackenschmidt wrestling match, the various films being followed with great excitement; Leo Stormont gave an enjoyable rendering of some of Kipling's ballads; Cameron Matthews and Co. created roars of laughter with their sketch The Honeymoon Baby; Fred Howard supplied some interesting caricatures; whilst Miss May Fairclough was successful with some excerpts from Shakespeare. The other artists were Wm. Gourlay (comedian) and Cash and Clair (novelty clog dancers).

This week, Chanti, billed as the modern Proteus, furnishes an entertainment in itself, his quick-change acting and dancing, assisted by mechanical effects, being very cleverly performed; Steve Bartle, instrumentalist, reaps much applause; Hicks and Hunter perform some graceful and accomplished evolutions on ice-skates; and Barrington Foote and company supply two sketches, one or which, The End of the Story, finds considerable favour. Tom Foy strikes out an original line; Bert and Dora are a smart comedy pair; and Edie Coolville excels as a dancer.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Second to None, which unfolds a story of the Royal Scots Greys, opened here on Monday. It was capitally staged. A soldierly bearing lent vraisemblance to Mr. C. W. Spencer's presentation of Sir Reginald Greystone, V.C., Colonel of the Royal Scots Greys; and Mr. Frederick F. Lloyd's Philip Mannering, with his energetic movements and facial contortions, proved him a master of this particular rôle; Mr. Leonard Williams as the hero gave an appreciative reading of Harry Wilding, and was well received; the comic element, with which the piece is well flavoured, came with great acceptance from Messrs. H. Macaulay and Eric Wilde, who negotiated with easy aplomb the parts of Privates Flutter and Bertie; Miss Ward's portrayal of Nell Greystone was a triumph, as was signalised by the warm and grateful applause bestowed upon her; Miss Grace Harlington played the rôle of Mary Greystone with a refined and intelligent appreciation; and honourable mention must be made of Miss Clarrie Yandell, who accounted delightfully for the housemaid, Norah.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The Moody-Manners Opera Co. commenced its annual season here on Boxing Day, when The Bohemian Girl was presented to a crowded house. The Arline of Miss Kate Anderson was a commendable performance, her singing being greatly admired, and Mr. Charles Manners displayed his accustomed ability in the rôle of Devilshoof. Mr. Lewys James successfully fulfilled the part of Count Arnheim; Miss Toni Selter acquitted herself effectively as the Gipsy Queen; Mr. F. Davis as Florestein made excellent use of a good voice; and the part of Thaddeus was capitally filled by Mr. Seth Hughes. In the evening, before a large and appreciative audience, Maritana was presented. Miss Rosa O'Farrell made her début in the title-rôle, and met with an enthusiastic reception; Mr. John Child as Don Cæsar de Bazan sang and acted with his accustomed refinement; and Miss Bessie Weir did particularly well as Lazarillo. The Don Jose of Mr. William Dover was a splendid performance, both vocally and histrionically; and Mr. Charles Manners was dignified as the King of Spain. On Monday night Faust was produced to a packed house, and was well received. Miss Rosa O'Farrell made a sweet and winsome Marguerite; Mr. Charles Manners acquitted himself, both vocally and histrionically, in artistic style as Mephistopheles; Miss J. McCarthy proved herself a capable actress in the rôle of Martha; Mr. Seth Hughes gave a masterly rendering of Faust; and Messrs. William Dever and D. Gulland and Miss Bessie Weir deserve praise as Valentine, Wagner, and Siebel. An imposing performance of Aida was given on Tuesday. Mme. de Vere Sapio acted in highly-finished style and sang to advantage in the title-rôle; Mr. Philip Brozel achieved a distinct success in the part of Ramides; Mr. Lewys James was creditable in the part of Amonasro; Ramphis was in the capable hands of Mr. Charles Manners; Miss Toni Seiter was admirable as Amneris; and Mr. Charles Magrath did full justice to the rôle of the King. The dresses and scenery were splendid, and the chorus and orchestra, under the conductorship of Signor Romnaldo Sapio, deserving of high praise. The répertoire for the week includes Il Trovatore, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, The Puritan's Daughter, The Meistersingers, Faust, and The Lily of Killarney.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. S. Pearce; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Hereford Jones.—This place of amusement, which has entered on the last two weeks here under the present management, is presenting a capital programme, which is being attended by full houses nightly. The pictures include a good spectacular pantomime, entitled Aladdin; or, The Wonderful Lamp, The Deathbed Marriage, The Chemist's Shop, The Rival Lovers, Invisible Fluid, A Famous Escape, The Robber Outwitted, and If Women were Policemen. In the variety entertainment the Ellerslies, who have been re-engaged, appear in a humorous sketch, Cross Purposes; or, a Matrimonial Muddle; Arthur Green is a smart patter comedian and dancer; and Bob Pearson acquits himself well as humorist and guide.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—A bright and attractive programme is submitted here, the top turn being Arthur Watson and Flo Stanley's company in a lively sketch, The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, which creates uproarious laughter. The old favourite W. J. Ashcroft is here again, and scores his usual big success; the clever and interesting dances executed by the Vera Troupe are deservedly applauded; the Mayvilles' liliputian act supplies an enjoyable turn; Deans and Wilton are highly diverting as comedy acrobats; Charles Vincent is most popular as a comedian; Violet Englefield, burlesque artist, has many admirers; Victor Travers, eccentric comedian, scores; Jenny Lynn, an excellent comedienne, is warmly received; and Films, Ltd., depict the drama of Shamus O'Brien.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—A good bill of fare at this popular house includes the Three American Pattersons in a clever high-bar trampolin act, which meets with approval; Fred Sinclair and company appear in a sketch entitled Poor Arthur, which causes no end of laughter; in a refined vocal and instrumental speciality the Three Brights are well received; as an illusionist and card expert Mons. de Lil would be hard to beat; Ronald Bayne and Miss Evelyn Hope acquit themselves well in the historical scena An Emperor's Divorce; Kitty Cameron is a chic comedienne and dancer; Valvero in his sketching scene, "A Naval Bombardment," makes a big hit; Hulbert is a smart and amusing ventriloquist; Joe Atkins does exceedingly well as a comedian; and the Bioscope concludes.

ROUND ROOM ROTUNDA.—The Irish Animated Photo Co., which has entered on its second week here, continues to draw full houses both at the afternoon and evening performances. The pictures shown are interesting and amusing. The pantomime of Puss in Boots, The Doings of a Sack of Coal, A Man of Many Falls, The Feats of the Italian Cavalry, The Railway and Motor Trips through the Continent, &c., are all heartily enjoyed. A capital variety programme is contributed to by Mr. Patrick O'Shea (tenor), Miss Agnes Meehan (contralto), and Mr. William Grant (baritone).

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The company here this week includes Professor Green and son with their Punch and Judy show; Jack Danby, society conjurer; Miss Vera Winston, ballad vocalist; and the Zingaras, comedy entertainers. The cinematograph depicts the pantomime of Beauty and the Beast.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—This house was packed from floor to ceiling on Monday by an appreciative audience to witness Mr. and Mrs. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's famous juvenile pantomime, The House that Jack Built. The company was an excellent all-round one, and included many clever juveniles with a bright future before them. Miss Florrie Taylor as Jack acted with a dash and verve that captured all hearts; while Jill was well placed in Miss Evelyn Major, as charming and dainty a principal girl as could be wished. The Fairy Queen, Miss Olive Purcell, has a good voice, and soon wins favour; the second boy (Colin), Miss Hetty Jones, and a little Dutch girl, Miss Jennie Marsden, are prettily-played parts; Wee McGregor is represented by little Gladys Wise, a genius of juvenile comedy; the well-known comedians, Doyle and Gibson, are immensely funny as Scragga and Scraggles; Will McNorton was very successful as Squire Bounce; Mr. Paddy Sloan is a good character comedian of musical methods; Messrs. Jefferson and Adamson and Master Fred Drummond excel in the animal parts. All the other artists vie with each other to make the pantomime an unqualified success.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Vaudeville gives way here to Mr. Harry Roxbury's great comic spectacular pantomime, Mother Goose. The scenery is really magnificent, and the music of the most tuneful description. Quite a galaxy of knockabouts and laughter-makers are included in the company. Mr. Harry Roxbury in the title-rôle is a host in himself; Miss Maud Prenton and Miss Lily Palmer, the principal boy and girl respectively, fairly captivate the audience with their fine singing and dancing; Miss Lois Caris as Fairy Content also makes a hit. Specialities are introduced by Towyn Thomas's Royal Welsh Entertainers, who provide an excellent musical turn; the Four Sydney Girls, who dance in graceful fashion; and the Miltons, clever skating comedians.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mrs. Lillie Williams's record pantomime success Dick Whittington is running along very merrily here, and at both houses there are always large and delighted audiences, who testify their appreciation of the seasonable fare in no half-hearted fashion. Miss Gertie Douglas (Dick) is a decided favourite, as is also Miss Hetty Lind (Alice), and both these clever artists are cheered to the echo nightly. Miss Cicely Kent (Fitzwarren's Cook) is also a huge favourite with all parts of the house; she works hard, and thoroughly deserves her success. Miss Osceola Martinek (Princess) has a large number of admirers, and also Misses Winifred Dagmar and Madge Goodall, the second boy and girl respectively, the latter of whom scores in a smart song and dance. Mr. Sam Thomson (Idle Jack) is the life and soul of the pantomime, being ably assisted in the fun-making by Messrs. Phil Conway, Harry Loftus, Henry Jones, and S. Jackson.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Quite a carnival of moving pictures is submitted here this week by the Prince Edward Picture Company. Among the films shown are The Burning of Rome in the Time of Nero, A Glimpse into Nature's Realm, Nick Carter, Detective, Duty v. Revenge, The Toy Soldiers, The Flying Machine, The Hanging Lamp, Patsy has a Dinner of Horsemeat, A Typical Father-in-Law, and a very laughable picture entitled My Uncle's Boots. A fine variety turn is provided by Hyam Long, a clever conjurer.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—Mr. Fred Newman's programme of pictures include An Indian's Honour, Rifle Bill, A Chieftain's Revenge, Wild Men of Borneo, The Fairy's Curse, The Christmas Turkey, &c. The variety items include Charles Cusley, a fine coon singer and clog dancer, and Little Mary Easson, a clever little singer.

KINNAIRD HALL.—Hamilton's Excursions are located here for the winter season. A large audience enjoyed the trip on Monday evening under the guidance of Mr. Claude Howell, who is now looked on as quite an institution in Dundee. In addition to the splendid dioramic pictures there is a variety entertainment of a high-class order. J. A. Wilson introduces a wonderfully clever dog into his act, "The Troubles of a Recruiting Sergeant"; the Brothers Lauri are very clever acrobats; and the St. Johns are cultured musicians. Jack Henri is a Scotch comedian of merit; and the entertainment is brought to a close by a hilarious sketch, The Haunted House.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—The grand Christmas pantomime Robinson Crusoe; or, Man Friday and the King of the Cannibal Islands, commenced a seven-nights' engagement, under the general management of Mr. F. Leslie Moreton, on Boxing Day. Miss Mina Green is a dashing representative of Robinson Crusoe, speedily making herself a firm favourite; her songs are particularly well rendered. The Polly of Miss Daisy May is a charmingly dainty assumption, full of excellent work throughout. The chief fun-provider is Mr. Oliver J. Round, whose Dame Crusoe evokes practically continuous laughter; and he is afforded excellent support in his congenial task by Messrs. Walter Rousby (Billy Crusoe), Ernest Sefton (Will Atkins, an especially humorous portrayal), and Mr. F. W. Bowes (Bumper). Miss Nellie Rousby suitably fills the smaller part of Jenny; Mr. Charles Resbi is an absolutely ideal representative of Friday, and he is responsible for a neat speciality in Komical Konjuring; Mr. George Macliver and Mr. Roland Stagg suitably present the respective parts of King Kachemalivo and Piccalilli, and Miss Mary Hope gives a charming representation of the Princess Moonshine, scoring a distinct success by her rendering of the tuneful "Red Wing"; Miss Dorothy Tempest (Coraline) and Mr. J. Knox Orde (Davy Jones) make the most of their opportunities, and Mr. Edgar Pleon completes the cast of principals with an amusing animal study. Mr. Michael Dwyer has his choral (a good-looking bevy of girls) and orchestral forces well under control, and Mr. J. Le Fane is responsible for the smart stage-management. The clever introductions of the Fedora Quartette of dancers are immensely popular, a remark applicable with equal truth to the work of the Viviana Troupe in The Animated Toy Shop.

PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. Hayes.—Cyril Gilbert's grand comic Christmas pantomime Red Riding Hood commenced a fourteen-nights' engagement on Christmas Eve. Miss C. Harlow is a satisfactory representative of Robin Hood, her many introductions, including a smart display of bâton swinging; Miss E. Schofield is cast as Red Riding Hood, and during the evening she has many opportunities of proving her skill as a dancer, her Umbrella dance being especially popular. Mr. Fred Walker is a very amusing Granny, his laughable "All through meeting a pal in the rain" item being one of the hits of the pantomime. Misses E. Victoria and Lena Selwyn are excellent as Jack and Jill respectively, and Miss Ruby Royal fills the small part of Fairy Bluebell. The villains of the pantomime are portrayed by Mr. Alfred Hicks (the Wicked Wolf), Reed Pinaud, jun. (characteristically sly as Lawyer Fox), Mr. E. J. Allnut (very amusing as Baron Baplot), and Messrs. Teddy Hood and Willie Hicks (Pen and Ink). The specialities are contributed by Reed Pinaud, jun., and his American Kandy Girls (three of whom are very clever dancers), Mr. E. J. Hicks and his famous Clerks in a Dutch quartette and dance (undoubtedly the best item in the pantomime), and Will Dale (tramp cyclist).

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. George Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—This week's capital bill is headed by Lyons and Cullum (American pot-pourri and speciality artists), the gentleman a remarkable mimic, and the lady a very dainty dancer. Mabel Thorne scores an immense success with three novel songs, and the Two Lillies contribute some particularly excellent Terpsichorean items, their Mirror dance being a very clever deception; Nat Travers's coster songs are a popular feature of the programme; Miss Rose Atherton and company evoke merriment in the well-played sketch Murphy's Affinity; Charles Pastor is a comedian of very original methods; Katie Weston contributes a catchy chorus song; and new pictures are added.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—The attraction is Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime company in Little Bo-Peep. Not the least feature of the show is the splendid way it is staged and dressed, and the swing that is maintained throughout. The title-rôle is ably rendered by Miss Lizzie Payne. Miss Ivy Gallard is successful as Boy Blue; Miss Elsie Peach depicts the Fairy wonderfully; the comic business is well placed in the hands of Mr. Harry Royde as Baron Hardup, Mr. J. W. Groves as Granny Brown, Messrs. Grapho and Jackson as Johnny Stout and Johnny Green, Mr. Willie Harris as Tommy Long, and Mr. Albert Kail Stern as Rastus Brown. Mr. W. H. Gatty's Demon is a capable impersonation. The sheep are admirably trained, and the living statuary tableaux is fine.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Messrs. Howard and Wyndham have with characteristic enterprise again secured a recent London success as the attraction for the Christmas and New Year holidays. Mr. George Edwardes's company began an engagement of several weeks' duration on Monday of last week with the bright musical play, Havana. Although it was the opening night of the tour, the members of the company played with a spirit and ease that displayed no lack of rehearsal, and the piece went with the greatest animation from first to last. Miss Gertrude Lester made an unmistakable hit as Consuelo, acting with passion and charm, and singing with much sweetness and expression. Her rendering of "I'm a Cuban girl" was encored with enthusiasm, and she had to repeat the other numbers of her part. Miss Luna Love acted vivaciously as Anita, sang with humour, and danced with great neatness. Her Apache dance with Mr. George Gregory, who was exceedingly amusing in a quiet style of humour as Nix, was a tremendous hit, and the artists had to respond again and again to the loud applause of the audience. Mr. W. H. Rawlins, droll as usual, played with immense vigour as Reginald Brown, and scored a success with his topical song; Mr. T. C. Maxwell was a manly Jackson Villiers, and sang well; Mr. Will Hindson was a brisk, lively Frank Charteris; and Mr. Frank Hector as Adolphe acted pleasantly and danced with grace and neatness. Miss Florence Phillips in a clever dance showed marked ability; and good work was done by Mr. Edward O'Neill as Diego, Mr. Campbell Bishop as Bombito, and Mr. Hugh Bevan as the Sentinel. The chorus, under the direction of Mr. Andrew McCunn, sang with admirable precision, and the piece had all the advantage of beautiful mounting.

The initial success of Havana has been followed by a brilliant record during the holiday week, when both the matinée and evening performances have attracted crowded houses. The singing and acting of Miss Gertrude Lester as Consuelo are pleasing features in the production; Miss Jessie Broughton's song in the second act stands foremost among the vocal numbers; and the energetic dancing of Miss Florence Phillips is spirited in the extreme. Mr. W. H. Rawlins and Mr. George Gregory, with their well-contrasted methods of humour, are increasingly happy in the diversion they create, and their topical songs provoke a brisk demand for encore verses.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—A compressed and attractive version of Aladdin, arranged to suit the two-houses-a-night system during the Christmas and New Year holidays, started here on Monday of last week. The author of this pantomime is Mr. A. E. Sidney Davis, and the company engaged in the production give a good account of themselves and their work. In the name-part Miss Minnie Olive makes a bright and pleasing principal boy; the Princess is charmingly represented by Miss Alice Digby; and to Miss Daphne Gelstone as the Slave of the Ring fall the chief vocal honours of the piece; while in a lighter vein Miss Gwen Clifford's laughing song, in the rôle of Scrubbee Tubbee, is vastly appreciated. The leading comedians, who combine successfully in keeping the fun alive, are Mr. Charles Adeson as the Widow Twankhurst, Mr. Bob Owen as the Emperor of China, Mr. Jack Harrington Weeks as the Grand Vizier, and Mr. Bert Danson as Abanazar. A well-trained chorus of fifty male and female voices does excellent service; and many fine costumes produce good colour effects in the more important scenes.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Mr. Frank A. Gotch, the champion wrestler, was here last week in a sketch entitled All About a Bout, in which he displays dexterity and strength in the exposition of wrestling; Miss Nellie Le Breton's illustrated song was given in a pleasing style; and Miss Millie Payne sang with humour and effect. The Misses Florence and Lilian contributed a delightful musical turn; and Miss Ida Kathrena's clever sketch, The Human Doll, was loudly applauded. Messrs. Fred Kitchen and Frank Lister were very dramatic in a scene, No. 99; and a realistic representation of the Johnstown Flood Catastrophe was shown by Mr. Syd Cook. Mr. Harry Bedford approved himself a capital comedian; and the Bioscope illustrated the wrestling match between Gotch and Hackenschmidt.

Special attractions, as well as extra performances, have been provided this past week, a capital holiday programme being headed by Herman Melot, whose deftness in conjuring easily places him among the chieftains of his art; Miss Marquis introduces a number of highly-trained horses, which are put through some singular exercises; the Strolling Players submit a pleasant musical turn; and operatic selections, contributed by Les Voces, are favourably received. An outstanding name on the bill is that of Victoria Monks, whose songs, whether new or old, are delightfully rendered; and other successful vocalists are found in Nance Elder and Austin Rudd; while Bob Hamilton is in great demand as a popular Scottish comedian. The Three Cape Girls prove themselves skilled dancers; and the Bioscope films, giving Peeps into Nature's Realm, are exceedingly interesting.

COOKE'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. C. Burns.—The special item of last week's bill was the production of Mr. Cooke's spectacular pantomime, entitled King Gold and the Lucky Little Lassie, in which over a hundred Edinburgh children take part. All the familiar characters of nursery tales, old and new, from "Dick Whittington" to "Peter Pan," are prettily presented; nor are such fighting forces as the Suffragettes and the Gordon Highlanders omitted from the list of juveniles who troop into the arena appropriately attired. Mr. Harry Dale makes a genial King Gold; and Miss Cora Irene a handsome Prince Sovereign. Miss Marie de Carteret is quite charming as a good fairy; and Miss Mary Kinnaird figures as the Lucky Little Lass; while Talberto and Douglas do double and treble duty as the King's bodyguard, the two cruel uncles, and other personages, whose cue is to promote merriment. The pantomime was preceded by a clever variety programme, in which horses and dogs, as well as human performers, took part. Interest was added to the proceedings on the opening night by the presence of the Earl of Haddington, who handed a handsome bouquet to Miss Ernestine Rosa Cooke, on the eve of her leaving Edinburgh for London.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—A crowded house welcomed Cinderella on Boxing night. The book is by Mr. F. Leslie Moreton, and closely follows the thread of the old story. Miss Violet Hollom made a winsome Cinderella, acting, dancing, and singing well, and was encored for her song in the Palace scene. Miss Edith Housley as Prince Charming was excellent, playing and singing with plenty of spirit. She was recalled for her rendering of "A White Man," whilst the duet "A tiny seed of love," in which she joins Cinderella was redemanded. As Dandini Miss Minnie Love was responsible for good acting and singing. The chief success at the opening performance was, however, scored by Mr. Kennedy Allen as Baron Blighter. Throughout he kept the house in roars of laughter. Miss Kathleen Flynn made the best of the part of Baroness Blighter; Messrs. Frank Weir and Frederick Park are good comedians as the Ugly Sisters; while the diminutive Mr. Willie Atom made a "hit" as Buttons. Miss Elsie James sang well as the Fairy; and Miss Kitty Allen was a vivacious Martha. The specialities are the Berlin Belles and the Three Martinettes. Mr. F. Chevalier Le Grand ably conducted. The production was in the hands of Mr. Guyton Heath.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fredreick Sandy.—Large houses are the order this week, and the management are to be congratulated on the entertainment given. At the top of the bill are Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney, in sketch Peg Woffington, and, needless to say, they play worthily up to their reputation, and are enthusiastically applauded for their fine efforts. The other characters were well portrayed. The Burnells, in their musical and comedy act, Playmates, cause roars of laughter; Horace White gives a smart ventriloquial performance at the piano; Bert Woodward does some clever tricks on a bicycle; Wilson and Waring are amusing in their comedy American duo; A. G. Una proves himself an eccentric comedian; Jennie Reeve is a dainty comedienne; and the Hippodrome pictures complete.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—A return to the legitimate last week came as a refreshing change after a run of variety business. Mr. John Clyde and company presented the ever-green Scottish drama, Jeanie Deans, of which a very capable and intelligent presentation was given. Mr. Clyde himself took a double rôle, those of John, Duke of Argyle, and the Counsel for the Defence in the well-known trial scene, and gave an excellent portrayal of both parts; Miss Lena Levenstone played Jeanie Deans, and of this character gave an artistic and sympathetic interpretation; the other notable parts are those of Effie Deans, by Miss Ella Sennett, Madge Wildfire, by Miss Belle Cecil, and Dumbiedykes, by Mr. Wm. Geo. Robb.

Fred Darcy's company on Monday opened a fortnight's engagement here with the pantomime The Forty Thieves. The piece is well staged, and many novel features are introduced, forming a really entertaining evening. Ali is represented by Mr. Wal Croft, who is rich and prodigal in "business" of the orthodox order, and sings a number of quaintly appropriate songs; Mr. Reg Ewen takes the part of Cozia Baba, Ali's wife, and is a worthy helpmeet in the mirth-provoking line; while Mr. Ted Wooten as Cassim sings a series of songs in good style; Miss Isa Bell makes a dainty and attractive Captain of the Forty Thieves; while Miss Mary Poulton as Ganem and Mlle. Carita as Morgiana both sing with much sweetness; Messrs. Sandy and Carl contribute liberally to the fun of the pantomime. Specialities include the Five X-Rays, expert and comedy acrobats; the Cavalotte Brothers, all-round instrumentalists; and the Esmeralda Girls, dancers.

FOLKESTONE. — PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Roland.—That ever-popular musical comedy, The Gay Gordons, is presented here this week by one of Mr. Seymour Hicks' touring companies, under Mr. W. A. Seymour's capable management. Miss Nell Carter in the rôle of Peggy Quainton, the millionaire's daughter, delighted everyone; Mr. Frank Lincoln as Angus Graeme gave a spirited rendering; Mr. Tom Graves as Nervy Nat was irresistibly humorous; Mr. Edward Nainby did well as Edmund Siddons; Miss Josie de Florac as Mary McLeod was delightful; Miss Mabel Dent also gave a pretty study of Victoria Siddons; and Miss Ida Laurie as Charlotte Siddons was at all times amusing. Miss Emily Mellon as Janet McLeod gave a sympathetic portrayal.

GAINSBOROUGH. — KING'S THEATRE. — This theatre reopened on Boxing Night to a crowded house, under the management of Mr. Fred Leighton (late of the Palace, Manchester), who is the managing-director of the Gainsborough Theatre Co., the new proprietors. Mr. W. Graham Arthur's company presented The Mockery of Marriage. Miss Mabel Liston gave a good rendering of Alva Kenyon; Mr. Arthurs being successful as Jack Stanley. Mr. Geo. Tempest brought out the villainies of Sir Montague Jephson effectively; the comedy element was well played by Miss Muriel Monteath; and Mr. Frank Masters, Mr. Ralph Armfield submitted a strong character sketch of Seth Pearse. Every Inch a Man was played the latter part of this week.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Gainsborough Empire Syndicate.—Tom Bassett, comedian, paid a return visit here last week, when the company also included Saville Bradley's pantomime company, in Ructions; Four Hull Newsboys, vocalists; Victor Champion, baritone; and some good pictures.

This week we have The Stowaway, condensed so as to play twice nightly, and it is well interpreted by Mr. Victor du Cane, Miss Winifred Maude, and full company. Varieties are supplied by Tom Bassett (comedian) and Pictures. The above place of amusement, after having served that purpose under various titles for many years, finishes its career this week, the building having been purchased by the War Office for the use of the Territorials.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—John Clempert in his exhibition of breaking from various bonds is starring here this week; Miss Ethel Pender-Cudlip and Mr. Claude Anderson appear together in a scene from Il Trovatore, and bring down the house; Geo. C. Doughty and company, in Captain Cupid, are amusing; the Sisters Lee are very entertaining vocalists, dancers, and acrobats. Harry Morris, comedian; Harry Vardon, ventriloquist; and the usual pictures are also in the bill.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company in A Sailor's Wedding proved a sound attraction here.

GLASGOW.—GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Macklachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—The pantomime Cinderella is now in full swing and drawing good houses. Miss Queenie Finnis is charmingly refined in the title-rôle; and the lively capers of Mr. Barry Lupino furnishes continuous amusement. The domineering Baroness, by Mr. Tom Conway, and the diminutive Baron of Mr. George French, have proved great favourites; while Mr. Whit Cunliffe as the accomplished Dandini adds greatly to the success of the pantomime. The Fairy Godmother of Miss Olive Tempest is delightful from beginning to end; Miss Kate Walbron and Miss Nelly Cozens do not make the sisters of the heroine so much "ugly" as forward and presumptuous, which is an improvement; the Salomé song and dance is tuneful and graceful in a marked degree; Mr. French's Scotch song, "In the kilt," is a lively bit of singing, while the accompaniment is a perfect mosaic of Scotch music. On Monday evening Miss Violet Halls was unable to appear, owing to indisposition, but Miss Nellie Wigley proved an excellent understudy in the part of Prince Cassimir.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Crowded houses are a nightly occurrence, and Diccory Dok is shaping in a way that will quite equal past south-side successes. The principals work in the greatest harmony, and hearty applause greet their efforts. Miss Ella Retford is singing and dancing as sprightly as ever; and Peter Bermingham's quaint sayings are thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Maggie Fraser and Miss Edith Haley contribute several good songs, and are special favourites; Mr. Syd Walker, in conjunction with Mr. Cliff Lake, are very funny as the Travelling Physicians; able support is given throughout by Messrs. Harry A. Gribben and Ainslie Burton, Miss Flora Cromer, and the Sisters Bartholomew.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's powerful drama, Married to the Wrong Man, continues to draw good houses here, attracted by the effective acting of Miss Gertrude Boswell as the girl struck dumb, and Mr. Oswald Cray as Jack Gladwin.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—A good house extended a most hearty welcome to Mr. Robert Macdonald's company, in The Dairymaids, on the first visit of this lively musical play to Govan, and it is certain to prove an excellent attraction during the New Year holidays. Miss Isa Bowman acts with sprightly vivacity and sings well as Peggy, being specially well suited in the part, and she caught the fancy of the audience from her first entrance; Miss Kathleen Severing as Winnie is possessed of a sweet, but somewhat light, voice, and rendered her various numbers in artistic style; Mr. Dan Agar as Joe Mivens proves a great favourite, and the fun was fast and furious all the time he was on the stage; Mr. Richard Telford as Lieut. Brudenell and Mr. Horace Manger as Lieut. Meredith, were a smart couple of young officers, and sang, danced, and acted all through with infinite enjoyment; Mr. Frank Barclay is well suited as Dr. O'Bryne, and his love scenes with Lady Brudenell (cleverly played by Miss Babs Christopher), were extremely good. Miss Edie Martin proved herself a clever comedienne as Eliza, Miss Doris Dickens was a charming Helen, and the severe aspect of Miss Pyechase was amusingly portrayed by Miss Kitty Kirwan. Mr. H. H. Shaw conducted the augmented orchestra. The play was splendidly staged, the set in Act 2, Miss Pyechase's Academy, being the actual scene used in the original production at the Apollo.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Manners.—George Auger and company, in their humorous playlet, Jack the Giant Killer, take the leading place, and prove decidedly funny; No. 99, an American dramatic sketch, played by Kitchen and Lister's company, is both thrilling and appealing; one of the cleverest Japanese combinations travelling is the Andos Troupe, whose work is decidedly clever, their daring acts of balancing and rope-walking calling forth hearty plaudits; another turn responsible for much of the evening's enjoyment is that provided by Cornalla and Eddie, whose juggling and general eccentricities are thoroughly appreciated; Nellie Falco and S. K. Eida give a most interesting exhibition of ju-jitsu, depicting numerous overpowering grips and holds; Bennie Barrow sings a couple of baritone songs with great taste; Harry Bedford pays a return visit, and is as popular as ever; Millie Payne is a quaint comedienne of more than average ability, and is well received; Blanche Vincent keeps well up to date; and the films shown on the Bioscope are of the usual high standard.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—The New York Comedy Four head this week's bill with vocal and comedy efforts, which are most enjoyable; the Royal Tokio Troupe give a daring and sensational Oriental display, their three-ladder act being well worth seeing; Reg. Bolton's comedy scena, The Editor's Imp, has a decidedly original flavour; Ryan and Hall give an exceedingly laughable show; the Society Quartette as singers and dancers score a success; the Pichel Troupe give a show of graceful acrobatics in a most attractive style; W. E. Hilton, a ventriloquist of talent, with the assistance of "Jock," supplies good fun; and also on the programme are Jimson's "Pets at Home," a fine exhibition of animal training, and Miss Nellie Lawrence, who sings and dances well. The Bioscope concludes.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—A varied and attractive bill has been arranged for the holiday crowds, the star turn being Herbert Lloyd, in the best of his old business, on which he has grafted a lot of new and very funny items; Madge Gray is a smart and clever comedienne, whose dialect songs and patter take very well; V. L Granville gives a smart protean sketch, entitled 'Twixt Dawn and Daylight, in which he plays half a dozen characters; Harry Brown, the eccentric coloured comedian and dancer, is responsible for many hearty laughs; Mr. C, who sings and talks, takes equally well in both items; and another similar turn is that of Maude Courtney, the American girl. Daisy James is well received, especially for her "picture hat" song; Mike Cray is an amusing juggler of the eccentric order, and has a well-trained dog assisting him; the Maningos, neat equilibrists; Rosina Gordon, a smart dancer; and Rubie and Elsie Redfern, in a drawing-room act, complete a varied programme.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Carl Hertz, the famous illusionist, heads the bill here, and by his magic arts beguiles the house for a good quarter of an hour; the original protean lady, Addie Dorina, successfully impersonates six characters in Dr. Spot's Patients, in which she is assisted by Frank Weathercroft; Marcel and Boris give a wonderful exhibition of hand-balancing; Carney Brothers possess decided vocal talent, as is seen in their scena, Brothers; the eccentric comedy line has an able exponent in Mark Cowan; Raie Walters proves an attractive comedienne; and Jack Neil, a popular local comedian, gets some hearty laughs.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The star attraction this week is Frank A. Gotch, in the highly-interesting sketch, All About a Bout, in which the champion's skill as wrestler and actor are fully demonstrated, while his famous match with Hackenschmidt is also shown on the Bioscope. Campbell and Barber appear in their comedy cycle act, and provoke a deal of merriment; the refined entertainment of Albert Whelan is always popular here; another pleasing performance being the instrumental mélange of Florence and Lillian. Mabel Bright displays versatile talent in portraying various pantomime characters; Scotch song and dance is worthily represented by George S. Melvin; Clarke and Hayden's musical duologue, By Appointment, deserves praise; "the dolly girl," Ida Kathrena, is clever and original; and Nellie Le Breton's illustrated Dutch song goes well.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Signor Bandoni is the principal attraction, and his illustration of a one-man orchestra is exceedingly clever; another good turn is that by Marshall and Wright, eccentric comedians and dancers; Mattie Carson, comedienne and big boot dancer, and Nellie Elaine, comedienne, complete the variety part of the entertainment. The Bioscope Pictures are always in great demand here, and form a speciality.

GLOSSOP. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—An attractive entertainment is provided here this week by Mr. Sydney Spenser's own company in the musical play Frits. Mr. Geo. M. Newall makes the most of his opportunities as the villainous Colonel Crafton; Mr. Sydney Spenser himself gives a characteristic interpretation of Bowery Bill; Mr. J. B. Stewart in the title-rôle of Fritz is successfully in evidence; Mr. Julien Mitchell earns frequent applause for his manly portrayal of Jack Armstrong; Mr. Ed. Jenner as Gregory Graham makes a typical lawyer; Mr. Walter A. Hilton as Gussy Graham treats the character effectively; and Mr. Arthur Gribbin as Sambo Squash, a nigger, gives a humorous impersonation; and Miss Lizzie Hall (Mrs. Sydney Spenser) captivates with her vivacious Katrina, Miss Hetty Senior giving an attractive rendering of Florence.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—Vonetta, illusionist and protean artist, is appearing here with success this week; the Sisters Gerette, on the double trapeze, do a clever and graceful performance; Fred Curran, parody singer and comedian, goes well, as does Oakdene, nautical ventriloquist, Eva Lumley and company in comedy skit are applauded, and Bowers and Bardell in refined comedy performance find favour; Jim Topping, comedian, is a lively comic singer; and Lazern, magician, also appears. The Palacescope concludes.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Another capital programme of animated pictures is put on this week to good houses.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale. — Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company, in Mr. Popple, is the Christmas attraction here. In the title-rôle, Mr. Charles Macdona is irresistibly funny; Miss Nellie Hodson sings and dances well as La Bolero; Mr. Tom May is a humorous Platt, his singing and dancing, in conjunction with Miss Nellie Lomas, a vivacious Louise, being much appreciated; Mrs. Hennay and Mrs. Doring have clever exponents in Miss Lilian Last and Miss G. Aylward; Mr. Edgar Ward is a good Jacques Kenyon; Mr. Lauri Lisle a funny George Hennay; and the same remark applies to Mr. James Stephenson as Doring. Miss Marjory Grey is a charming Violet Brinton and Mr. Willie Hartell a clever head waiter at the Blitz.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Gilbert.—Excellent turns fill the Christmas bill at this popular establishment. A smart sporting novelty, entitled France v. England, illustrating the art of self-defence, is very popular; the Robertys appear in an exceptionally clever balancing act; the Royal Ohmys are repeating their success as equestriennes; Daisy Palmer executes a clever dance; the Musical Palmers are first-rate musicians; the Aeroplanes, are daring gymnasts; Jessie Ward, the juvenile soprano, has an excellent voice; R. C. Note sings good chorus songs; and the Matreseos and Master Claude complete the bill.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The New East Lynne was performed here last week by Mr. W. W. Kelly's company. Miss Marion Lind submitted a pathetic and impressive portrayal of the dual rôle of Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine, and had capital support from Mr. Frederick Harker, a capable exponent of Archibald Carlyle, and from Mr. W. H. Garbois as Francis Levison, Mr. Richard Nugent as Murty O'Flynn, Mr. Byron Pedley as Mr. Dill, Miss Sophy Shenton as Cornelia Carlyle, Miss Josephine Gwinne as Barbara Hare, and Miss Guinevere Shilton in the dual rôle of Afy and Joyce Hallijohn.

Messrs. John Clyde and company provide an excellent attraction for the holidays in the historical drama, Rob Roy. Mr. Clyde excels in his powerful portrayal of the bold outlaw; Mr. J. W. Bowie fills the rôle of Francis Osbaldiston with credit, singing his numbers capitally; as Bailie Nicol Jarvie Mr. Wm. G. Robb scores a distinct success; and Mr. George Hunter makes an excellent Dougal Cratur. Miss Joan Keddie, by her graceful acting and cultured singing, makes a hit as Diana Vernon; and Miss Clare Cowper appears successfully as Helen Macgregor.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—An attractive company was headed last week by Ritter and Foster, an American comedy duo, who were accorded well-merited applause; Bains and Reed, in their unique act, Humsti-Bumpsti, were also warmly greeted; whilst Prof. Norton, conjurer, Ada Gatley, a clever slack-wire artist, the Violas, in a second sight entertainment, and Car-

The Journalist.

Amongst the men who make up the millions of users of Waterman's Ideal, are thousands of journalists. And hundreds of journalists write to say they did not know what pen ease, pen comfort meant until they developed the Waterman's Ideal habit. Many journalists have tried all the fountain pens and settled down to the use of one—Waterman's Ideal.

Experience teaches them it is best, as it teaches every man who has to do a big day's work at the desk. There's satisfaction in handling a pen which needs no inkstand; has not to be given a preliminary shaking to set it to work; is always ready just when you want it, and will give its best work at once. Try a Waterman's Ideal against any other and see for yourself.

ney Bros., character duettists, were all much appreciated. The pictures displayed by the Bioscope were good.

Heading the bill here this week is Dave Samuels, the well-known Hebrew comedian, whose comic versatility and catchy songs are highly appreciated; the Five Tritons appear in a musical scena to great advantage; Bob Nicol is highly successful as a mimic of popular music-hall artists; Lozelle presents a smart gymnastic act; and Mlle. Leoville, lady conjurer and jester, Kate Gourlay, Scottish character comedienne, Charles Fraser, descriptive vocalist, and the Bioscope are other attractions.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—Messrs. J. G. Brandon and company provided last week's star attraction with their American dramatic sketch, The Girl and the Tough; the Pichel Troupe aroused enthusiasm by their remarkably clever Risley performance; V. L. Granville contributed excellent impersonations of various characters; David Stewart, tenor vocalist, obtained considerable applause; and Harry Arnold, comedian, was good. On the Dramoscope the pantomime Cinderella was portrayed.

At the head here is Mlle. Lumiere, the great danseuse, who wins favour for her exceptionally clever turn, which is enhanced by some pretty electrical effects. At the bottom, that comical trio, the Kurios, appear, and their lively comedy business arouses great merriment; Slippere, the blind musician, meets with an enthusiastic reception; the Brooklands, duettists and dancers, are well received; George Prince is an amusing comedian; and Al and Lal, novelty musicians, are popular; while the Dromoscope shows a series of amusing pictures.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The romantic drama, The Midnight Wedding, is repeating its former success here. Mr. Alfred Paumier is again responsible for its presentation, and gives a vigorous portrayal of the interesting character of the sword-master, Paul Valmar; Miss Yvonne Orchardson invests the part of the Princess Astrea with pleasing charm, and is especially good in the emotional scenes; Mr. E. Booth Conway suitably marks the villainy of Captain Rudolf von Scarsbruck; as his accomplice, Lieut. Eugene von Strelsburg, Mr. E. Winnington Barnes is satisfactory; Mr. John Nesbit acts with dignity as the Crown Prince; the amusing parts of the Three Troopers are capitally played by Mr. James E. Page as Sergeant Max, Mr. Harry Richardson as Corporal Otto, and Mr. Algie Spalding as Private Bobbo; Miss Gwladys Faunce acts daintily as Kathie.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Last week Miss Ella's daring performance with her magnificent lions was a popular attraction, and the animals showed evidence of remarkable training; Marie Collins is a comedienne whose style proved highly pleasing; Miss Ethel Stephenson, a local contralto vocalist, who is embracing the variety profession, last week made her début on the variety stage; the Marvellous Woodwards combined clever cycling with equilibristic feats; and other good turns were contributed by Harry Zetter, comedian and eccentric dancer; Charlie Deane, with a fund of entertaining business; and Mamie Fenton, Scottish comedienne.

Sam Mayo's return this week is very popular with the admirers of this quaint comedian. His lackadaisical style adds greatly to the humour of his eccentric ditties. Mlle. Renee is a skilled performer on the ocarina, post horn, cornet, saxophone, &c.; the Royal Delomes give a clever exposition of clog-dancing, their speciality, "The Phantom Clogs," being particularly good; Morrin and Cardiff also contribute a capital dancing act, and combine with it an abundance of humorous dialogue; King and Derwin create amusement with their burlesque, The Rival's Arrival; Gordon Kingston is a successful actor-vocalist; and George Ridgwell, a vocalist and cornet soloist, gives a pleasing turn.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN'S.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Vaudeville was resumed here last week. Eddie Coolville is a good comedienne; Ethel Scheffer is always successful in illustrated songs; Fyne and Fane are a smart pair; and the Arntees, a coloured couple, made a decided hit. Miss Lilly Pearl and company gave a couple of clever items in The Dream that Came True and The Way Out; Pallister's Bioscope was also to the front.

On Boxing Night the building was simply packed to witness the interpretation of The Coal King, by Mr. A. Clifton Alderson and his company. The drama is of intense interest, and contains soul-stirring incidents. Mr. F. M. Dalton is excellent as Dick Shirley; Mr. A. C. Alderson plays Tom Roberts with earnestness and power; Sir Reginald has an able exponent in Mr. Ulick Burke; the rascally Walter Hartford is realistically depicted by Mr. Escott Robson; Jim Williams (Mr. Sam Roberts) and Araminta Green (Miss Max Hinton) are responsible for the comic element, and an amusing pair they are; Miss Joan Wellman does well in the arduous rôle of Mad Ann; and Miss Winifred Love is an altogether charming Grace Shirley.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning is here this week. F. Ronald Adair makes a typical breezy sailor as Willie Mason; Mr. Sidney Sarl's Bill Slater is a good charater well played; Mr. F. B. Robertson is successful as Jack Fenton; Mr. Frank Denis makes a dignified successful city man as Richard Fenton; Mr. R. Wood makes a gentlemanly villain as James Harcourt; Miss Jessie Belmore is easy and natural as Sophie Coventry, and is a decided success; Miss Zoe Davis is well placed as Lucy Coventry; and Miss Nannie Meade makes the most of the thankless part of Vestale Clere.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The Auto Heroine and other good pictures are being shown at the Grand. Chas. Bowker, tenor vocalist, proves popular, and the Fitzroys (society acrobats) give a graceful and clever turn.

THE PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—Lyons Trio, pantomimists and dancers, give a clever and acceptable turn in dumb show; Avon and Crest are two comedy artists who are warmly appreciated for their smart work; Wilton Heriot and company appear in a well-dressed and well-played protean sketch; Kirk and Saraski provide an aquatic turn which is accorded hearty applause; Rapoli, the Herculean juggler, is as clever and popular as ever; Venturini provides a conjuring turn and introduces a clever illusion Daos; Harry Luck, comedian, and Ray Royal, descriptive vocalist, also appear.

VICTORIA HALL.—The Carl Rosa Opera company opened at this hall on Boxing Day with Il Trovatore (matinée) and The Bohemian Girl (evening), Faust (Monday), Cavalleria Rusticana (Tuesday), in which Mme. Marie Alexander as Santuzza and Mr. Edward Davies as Turiddu shone conspicuously, ably supported by Mr. Dillon Shallard as Alfio, Miss Annie Walker as Lola, and Miss Douglas Wilson as Lucia, followed by Pagliacci. The famous Prologue was finely sung by Mr. Charles Victor, whose work throughout was an artistic success. Mr. Hanns Robert created a good impression as Canio. Mr. Hebden Foster (Silvio) possesses a voice of excellent operatic quality. Miss Beatrice Miranda sings and acts well as Nedda. The Marriage of Figaro, Carmen, Esmeralda, Tannhäuser, and The Merry Wives of Windsor have also been played.

HANLEY.—GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—A capital programme here includes Miss May Audrey, a charmingly-dressed comedienne, with catchy songs; Emerson and Baldwin star in an original juggling act; Miss Ella's lions show magnificent training; Shrillo is recalled for his clever whistling; the Lukushima Troupe of Japanese entertainers are a big hit; Will Dalton is a good comedian; and Harry Letter is very quaint and creates much laughter The Grand pictures show very clearly The Chauffeur's Dream, and a fine burlesque detective film. David and Marriott also appear in a musical scena.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—The Red Indian and the Child is a magnificent picture, and is the talk of the town; Waterproof Willie, Banana Skins, Mysterious Thief, The Locket, and The Duellists, among others, evoke loud plaudits. Cinderella is much enjoyed, and the film is excellent. Mr. T. E. Johnstone makes a great hit in topical ditties.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Fielding-Smith.—King Pantomime holds sway at the above theatre this week, and a very excellent rendering of Red Riding Hood is provided by Mr. John Tiller's company. Miss Decima Brooke appears in the title-rôle, and her songs and dances were appreciated by crowded houses. Miss Maisie Jerrard as Prince Charming is all that can be desired. The comedy part of the programme is well looked after by Mr. F. Russell (the Baron), Mr. Howard Ward (Dame Crump), and Johnny Stout and Johnny Green are smartly exploited by Messrs. Will Lytton and Walter Watson. The Poppy Quartette and Excelsior Troupe of children add charming specialities.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Mathams.—The splendid selection of films shown by the Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope was last week supplemented by Dot Demayo, whose songs were capitally rendered and prettily illustrated, and Will Smith, a comedian who added to the laurels previously gained here.

This week an excellent display of films by the Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is being thoroughly enjoyed by audiences who well fill the place twice nightly. Especial mention may be made of the pictures Fisheries of Astrachan, Beginning of the Serpentine, and the Dog's Revenge, which are particularly interesting. The list of pictures shown is an extensive one, and is supplemented by a gramophone competition and a speciality act by the Three Rabys, which takes very well

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—Consul has arrived, and is taking the town by storm. Packed houses are filled with wonderment twice nightly at his almost human performance. The novel song-scena A Scottish Exile's Dream is a vehicle for introducing some favourite Scottish songs, which are capitally rendered by John Donald; Frank Leon is an expert dancer, whose skill has many times been enjoyed here; Feo Inman is neat and pretty in song and dance; a musical comedietta, Mam'selle Pom-Pom, proves amusing as rendered by H. C. Lovell and company; a unique performance is given by the Sovereigns, one-legged equilibrists and chair-jumpers; and Will McIvor, comedian, and Clarice Clarke, vocalist, add pleasing turns to the list, which concludes with some interesting pictures by Raymond's Bioscope.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company began its spring tour here on Boxing Day with Brewster's Millions, giving two performances to enthusiastic and crowded audiences, and the same excellent results have been experienced throughout the present week. The new effects introduced into the third act have elicited loud expressions of astonishment. Mr. Percy Hutchison gives a forceful and clever exposition of the embarrassments and perplexities of Monty Brewster; Miss Cicely Stuckey is winsome and graceful as Peggy; and Miss Lilias Earle is very pleasing as Mrs. Dan de Mille; Mr. Cyril Rawdon acts with much feeling as Charlie Harrison; Mr. Frank Hill attracts notice by his quaint mannerisms as Rawles, the butler; Mr. Robert Forsyth is an impressive Mr. Grant; and valuable assistance is rendered by Mesdames Sybil Walsh, Eva Stuart, Frances Davie, Mary Seton, and Messrs. A. Andrews, Henry Hampson, Aubrey Mather, Charles Esdale, Otho Hazlewood, Douglas Greet, U. S. Haye, G. Salver, and A. P. Kaye.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Vivian Fisher.—The funniosities of Wal Owen, the silent comedian, are absurdly comic; Mlle. Zelda plays very prettily on some novel instruments; clever and effective films are shown by the Bio-photoscope; Dunning, the popular ventriloquist, thoroughly amuses his audience; an original episode, entitled Her Devonshire Dad, is delightfully acted by Mr. Victor Widdicome and company; Kahn and Kahn are skilful illusionists, their display of second-sight being quite remarkable; a dainty and graceful dancer is seen in Mabelle May, who excels equally as a vocalist; Austin Lenton and Agnes Lane, who are resourceful artists, contrive to extract a great amount of fun from a comedy concoction, Unconsidered Trifles.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. J. D. Hunter's thirtieth annual pantomime is a great success and is filling the Pavilion. Defoe's imaginary tale has been moulded for the purpose by Mr. Ernest Carpenter, and Mr. Surtees Corne has supplied the music, and Robinson Crusoe is depicted surrounded by brilliance and beauty. The scenic effects are charming, and the artists enter into the mirthful entertainment with much spirit. Miss Cynthia Luping is admirable in the title-rôle; Miss Lallah Melrose as Polly is lively and winsome; Miss Rita Emson as Captain Lanyard and Miss Kitty Emson in the part of Nancy Lee easily win their way to favour. Genuine fun is introduced by Mr. Matt Melrose as Mrs. Crusoe, who is assisted in plenty of excellent fooling by Arthur Lenville, George Luping, and George Lorraine. During the various scenes bevies of pretty girls, with dresses of delicate tints, crowd the stage and form a ballet of exceptional beauty. Many pleasing and up-to-date songs are introduced, and the drolleries and whimsicalities are plentiful. Altogether a more joyous pantomime it would be difficult to find.

PUBLIC HALL.—Sub-Lessees, The People's Picture Palace Company; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Local Manager, Mr. Harry W. James.—Large audiences were attracted here for Boxing Day, and the excellent selection of pictures was much enjoyed.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. P. Barnsley.—A first visit is being paid by Mr. Charles M. Bestic's company in the musical comedy The Flower Girl, and the house was packed on Monday by an enthusiastic audience. Miss Lilian Drake, who plays throughout with a natural air, is capital as Lizette, speaking her lines with fluency, and using her voice with effect in the musical numbers; delightfully chic is Miss Kitty Hyde, who sings and dances cleverly in the rôle of Lily; the part of Joe Wheeler is admirably undertaken by Mr. John T. MacCullum, who keeps the house in loud laughter; much animated and mirth-provoking business is done by Mr. Louis Du Cane as Reggy Rackit; Mr. Robert Cranny is responsible for some good work as Billy Greenhill; and Mr. Henry Adnes is excellent as Alphonse.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessees, the Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—Mr. Frank J. Pitt's £1,000 Reward was the attraction last week. Miss Kathryne Eckhart gave an artistic representation of Mme. Sansom, the repentant victim of Gilbert Lisle; Mr. F. J. Pitt's portrayal of the astute detective, Vincent Rainsford, was a masterly one; Gilbert Lisle's villainy was thoroughly exploited by Mr. J. Wilton; Fred Ingleford is well sustained by Mr. Fred G. Kay; and the son by Mr. Wilson Roberts. Mr. Joe English revelled in the part of Dick Springthorpe, and danced himself into the affections of the audience; Arthur Merton as Fighting Jepps was excellent; Mr. Frank Dallas played the bombastic old school detective, Inspector Gilbert, in grand style; Meg was prettily rendered by Miss Nellie Navarro; Miss Minnie Goepel played Kitty, Dick's sister, with the greatest success; and the bibulous landlady, Mrs. McCarthy, had an ideal representative in Miss Alice Clarke. The minor characters were in capable hands.

Despite the severe weather a large audience gave Mr. Geo. Cremen's company a hearty welcome on Monday in The World's Verdict. Sir Geoffrey Woodleigh, the old Squire, is well represented by Mr. William Forde; Mr. Frank Wheatley paints Jasper Woodleigh in lurid colours; Mr. Llewellyn C. Hughes's representation of Geo. Ashford is manly; Sammy Carrot gives Mr. R. A. Earl plenty of scope for uproarious comedy; Mr. H. P. Warburton plays powerfully as Nathan Black, the maniac inventor; Miss Cicely Clutterbuck gives an interesting impersonation of Florence; Miss Dora Warburton plays Nellie Ashford with feeling; and Miss Kitty Macpherson is a typical Cockney lass, Miss Molly St. George, in the rôle of Cora, is forcible.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The principal item in the holiday bill is the new production of Howard and Collinson and company entitled A Little Piece of Dresden China, a laughter-raising medley. Others appearing are Tee and Tee, musical grotesques; Elly Adair, Irish comedienne, the McConnell Trio in a brightly-written and capably-presented operatic burlesque; Harry Lawson, comedian; the Three Langfords in a smart dancing speciality; Chas. Dixon and company in a sketch entitled Uncle Obadiah; and Kioto and Esa, a pair of Japanese equilibrists of special cleverness. New pictures are presented on the Bioscope.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—A White Man has been the Christmas attraction at this house, and the way it has been received gives endorsement to the views before expressed as to the merits of this striking play. The mounting is very pleasing, and the audiences have followed with an absorbed interest the doings of the White Man. Mr. F. E. Petley, who plays the part of Jim Carstairs, has thereby established himself a favourite here; the Nat-u-ritch of Miss Margaret Fairleigh has been acknowledged on all sides as a beautiful performance; Mr. R. A. Brandon played the part of Big Bill with cleverness; completely successful was Mr. Eric Hudson as the Indian Chief; and the Countess Kerhill was pleasingly played by Miss Eleanor May.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—An abnormal house even for this very popular place of entertainment awaited the coming on Monday of Mr. Walter Melville's company in The Beggar Girl's Wedding, this latest success of Mr. Melville meeting with the reception it deserved. Every incident was followed with enthusiasm by the vast audience, and the doings of the beggar-girl bride met with full approval. Miss Vashti Wynne played the part of the beggar girl with sympathy, and Jack needed no better exponent than Mr. Otto Minster; the adventuress at the hands of Miss Olive Warne was a clever study; the comic relief was well provided by Mr. Herbert Lloyd and Miss Eva Dare; and full praise is bestowed on Miss Anita Playfair as the servant girl.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—The Ten Loonies top the bill in their eccentric musical act; Mlle. Sylvesto is a contortionist of much ability; and Adah Payne, vocalist, has a host of admirers. Other turns include Edwin Austin, Burns and Bentley, J. H. Ellis, Florence Raymond, and Ethel Stephenson.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Marguerite Ismay and her coons appear in a very pretty vocal scena. Other artists completing a good company include Mamie Morris, D. W. Watson, Beau and Belle, J. F. Franklin, Venola Bros., and George Bernard.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—An entirely new set of animated pictures is being shown.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The Prodigal Parson was last week presented here by Northway and Garrod's company. Mr. Logan Darra as the Rev. Tom Godley displayed good acting ability; Miss Violet Hammersley gave an interesting impersonation of Fern Godley; and Miss Madge Gillard very pleasingly took the rôle of Myrtle, their blind child. Miss Alice Buckland was good as Gretchen Van Crans; and Mr. Owen Remonde was very amusing as Phil Drive. The Ben Jaggins of Mr. Charles Ashwell was a praiseworthy performance; Mr. Roland A. Bridge was aptly chosen for George Markley, a detective; and the villainy of Enoch Jaggins was well carried out by Mr. Alfred Northway.

Good houses are this week witnessing Mr. J. P. Moore's pantomime Dick Whittington. Miss Bessie Willow makes a good principal boy; Miss Madge Locke as the principal girl sings herself into favour; Miss Garibaldi as Fairy Queen is much applauded; the Cat is cleverly represented by Mons. Pauletti; Mr. Percy Victor scores as Fitzwarren, whilst Mr. Willie Oswald gains well-earned applause for his Idle Jack; Mr. Fred May as Betsy Mary Ann works well; Messrs. Doyle and Massey add to the amusement as Shuffle and Shirk; and Mr. E. Ellmore and Miss Ena May respectively as the Emperor of Morocco and Princess Charming are praiseworthy. During the evening the following artists appear:—Pauletti, in a bicycle act; Serpentino, contortionist; Victor Brothers, Olympian athletes; Oswald and Locke, comedy couple; Doyle and Massey, in a boxing act; Street and Round, duettists; Victor's dogs, and the Palace troupe of dancers.

ILKLEY.—KING'S HALL.—Proprietors, the Ilkley Urban District Council; Licensee, Mr. Frank Hall.—Mr. Allan Wilkie's Shakespearean company opened a seven nights' engagement on Saturday, when there was a crowded house. The Merchant of Venice was played on the opening night. Mr. Wilkie as Shylock gave a very clever impersonation; Mr. Alexander Marsh took Bassanio in his very best style; Mr. Frank Royde as Gratiano made a good impression; the Portia of Miss Haidee Gunn, a praiseworthy effort, deserved the appreciation it received. On Monday night Hamlet drew a large audience. Mr. Wilkie took the title-rôle in an excellent manner; while Mr. Alexander Marsh played the Ghost. Miss Haidee Gunn represented Ophelia in her usual finished style. For Tuesday night Othello was played, Mr. Wilkie again taking the title-rôle, with Mr. Marsh as Iago and Miss Gunn as Desdemona. For Wednesday night Romeo and Juliet was selected.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Cameron Burgess.—The Lady of Ostend was presented last week to highly-appreciative audiences by Mr. Lawrence Brough and his excellent company. Dick Whortles was amusingly acted by Mr. Aubrey Cheshire, and his friend, Le Baron de Longueville, was inimitably given by Mr. Lawrence Brough; as Joseph Carbury Mr. Tom Mowbray was excellent, and so was his wife Miss Bessie Harrison; Miss Betty Park was suited in every way to the part of Dorothy Whortles; Millie Grace was charmingly personated by Miss Alice Leigh; Miss Edith Adeson was good as Jane; Toby Krockitt was very well done by Mr. Watkin Wynne, and his wife, The Lady of Ostend, was effectively presented by Miss Maud Buchanan. James by Mr. Harry Collier, and Thomson by Mr. W. Mayne Lynton, were well done.

Mr. Lawrence Brough and his talented company gave a fine representation of The Saucy Sally on Monday night. In the leading part Mr. Brough as Herbert Jocelyn does excellent work; Mr. W. Mayne Lynton ably presents the part of Captain Jocelyn, and as Percival Chudleigh Mr. Harry Collier is good. Mr. Tom Mowbray makes a capital Jack Buncome, and a very clever impersonation of the waiter Perkins is submitted by Mr. Aubrey Cheshire. Miss Olga Esme is a charming Rosie; Miss Bessie Harrison as the Mother-in-Law and Miss Maud Buchanan as Cecile both do well, and all the other parts are well filled. Prior to the farce Mr. Aubrey Cheshire gave clever musical sketches, for which he was heartily applauded.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in Mrs. Dot opened on Boxing night. Miss Decima Moore as Mrs. Worthly (otherwise Mrs. Dot) is an attraction not to be missed by Ipswich playgoers; Miss Emma Hutchison impersonates Lady Sellinger to the life; and Miss Ethel Grahame is a graceful Nellie Sellinger, Miss Celia Gordon being an admirable Eliza MacGregor. In the difficult part of James Blenkinsoff Mr. Frank Lacy gives a masterly interpretation, the transition from the cynic to the passionate wooer being very cleverly done; Mr. Philip Leslie as Freddy Perkins, and Mr. James Gelderd as Gerald Halstane, are wholly satisfactory.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—An excellent bill last week was headed by Mr. George D'Albert, whose genuinely funny efforts and excellent songs were greatly appreciated. The Cowboy Millionaire, by Mr. Harry Roxbury and company, was extremely popular; Herbert La Martine is a very clever clog-dancer; and La Belle Greta is also a skilful exponent of terpsichore. Gladys and Alber are diverting comedy duettists; Harry Ray and Lillie Calden have a very amusing turn; and Harry Hallam and Josephine Stanton have a breezy sketch, entitled A Broken Journey. Harry Briggs is a clever vocalist, and imitates children to the life.

A strong company is playing this week to crowded houses. Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery had a hearty welcome back with their clever skit Would-be Actors Rehearsing a Drama; Max Gruber and Miss Adelina are also on a return visit with their clever elephant, horse, and pony; the Cattaneo troupe of acrobats are particularly smart and humorous; the Lannons are agile dancers; Charles Russell has a song-scena entitled "The Veterans, or 1854," in which he is assisted by several local warriors; Leonie Dixon is a skilful dancer and tuneful singer; Harry Taft has talent as a siffleur; Charles Tempest is an amusing comedian; and the Bioscope concludes.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Locke.—The Girl Who Lost Her Character company is well received here this week. Mr. E. McLean as the Rev. Robert Everton supplies an excellent performance; and Mr. Harold Macartney is well placed as Jack England. Mr. G. Mitchell looks and plays the part of James Sutton to the letter; Mr. G. H. Asquin causes much amusement as Dick Punch; and Captain Geoffrey Caversham is ably handled by Mr. R. Ferris. Miss Lydia Mannington as (the mystery) Marian Franklin gives an excellent portrayal; Miss Cecilia Dare as Molly Vernon is quite at home in the part; and as Rose Seymour Miss Greatwick is simply charming. The scenery and dresses are excellent.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson and company opened here on Monday in The Coal King. As Tom Roberts Mr. A. Clifton Alderson keeps up his reputation as a finished actor, and, having a big local reputation, was warmly received; Mr. Escott Robson gave an effective rendering of the rôle of Walter Hartford; Miss Winifred Love was a charming Grace Shirley; Miss Joan Wellman was excellent as Mad Ann; Miss Max Hinton caused much amusement as Araminta Green; and was ably supported by Mr. Sahm Roberts as Tim Williams. The numerous other characters were in safe hands.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Carson.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company in The Great White Chief proved an attraction last week. Mr. Mansell Fane appeared as Le Stanley, and his songs were encored; Mr. Hugh Brady made a hit as Reindeer; Mr. George Butler scored as Hartley Deane; and Mr. J. Dobson Clyde played in an excellent manner the part of Sparrowhawk. Comedy was supplied in an able manner by Mr. Millar Wilson and Miss Amy Ross Clyde; Miss Pollie Denville was successful as Latika.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Mr. Harry Joseph successfully produced on Boxing Night his pantomime of Aladdin, which, judging from the opening performances, should have a long and prosperous career. The title-rôle is admirably maintained by Miss Janet Lawton, and Miss Kitty Avey is a charming Princess. The comic element is very strong. Mr. Will Terry as Abanazar, Mr. Harry Harcourt as the Widow, and the Brothers Shephard as What Oh and What Hi keep the audience in roars of laughter. Clever specialities are introduced by Herman and Evelyn, the Four Sisters Sligo, Casselly, the Gibson Girls, and the Sabot Trio. Mr. F. G. Hime is an efficient musical director.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Managers, Messrs. Alf Bailey and Co.—The Christmas attraction here is Miss Inez Howard's company in The Soldier's Wedding. Mr. Chas. Baker is a manly hero, Mr. Frank V. Fenn a successful Charles Courtney, and Mr. Alexander Williams and Little Johnnie as Tommy Sprat and Teddy Munroe respectively contribute some admirable comedy. Miss Jean Wigney gives a sympathetic performance as Nancy Lee, and Miss May Rosine is pleasing as Lizzie Walker.

KIRKCALDY.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. W. Walker.—Dr. Walford Bodie remains another week, and continues to attract record crowds; Will Candlish, negro comedian, is a favourite with a clever turn; Maddison and Webb present a very funny sketch; and a really smart contribution is given by Musical Silvo; the Zeenas give a wonderful display of acrobatic work; and equally successful gymnasts are the Mars Trio. Others who are good are Little Dolly Robson, George Hyatt (comedy juggler), Nannie Shaw (Scotch vocalist and dancer), Ryde and Beenan (sketch artists), and Mr. Tweed Andrews (comedian). The pictures are good.

PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. W. Walker.—We are favoured with a visit from Mr. Leoni Clarke, whose performing animals are causing quite a sensation; a neat turn is that by Miss Nettie Hawthorn, a smart comedian and dancer; Mr. Jack Allison, negro comedian and dancer, has a warm reception; and Mr. Wallace Muirhead, tenor vocalist, who is on his third week, still scores. The pictures are excellent.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's company with The Cingalee has proved a big holiday attraction; Mr. Jack Crichton is well suited to the part of the lawyer; Mr. Walter Wardroper is capital as Harry Vereker, and Sir Peter Loftus is cleverly depicted by Mr. F. W. Ford; the part of Bobby Warren could not be in better hands than those of Mr. Scott Cullen, and Mr. Douglas Munroe is good as Boobhambar; Miss Pauline Hague's portrayal of Lady Patricia Vane is all that could be desired; Miss Margaret Pitts and Miss Mercy June appear successfully as Angy Loftus and Synoura Ossett respectively; and Miss Mollie Wolstenhulme is a pleasing Nahoya. The dresses and scenery are very nice.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—A first-rate entertainment is arranged here, and capital business has been done. Pasquali Brothers are the cleverest acrobats seen for some time, and they are recalled nightly; Fatmah Diard is a vocalist of no mean order; and the gymnastic display of Natalia and Diana is excellent; the Dandies, five in number, sing well; Goggin and Davis, comedians, are smart; Rose Brayton, comedienne, is well received; and Harry Harris has some good patter. The Hippograph completes.

LEAMINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George G. Ridley.—Mr. Edward Compton is always a most welcome visitor here, and the engagement of this talented comedian, together with his celebrated comedy company, for the Christmas holidays is highly appreciated. There was a crowded house on Boxing Night when the company opened with the ever-popular Davy Garrick. Mr. Compton appeared for the 1486th time in the title-rôle, and his performance showed no falling away from the high standard to which he has attained in previous years. Mr. Henry Crocker was a dignified Gresham, and Mr. Henry Worrall excellent as Tallyhaut, Garrick's rival. Miss Kathleen Leigh was also a pleasing Violet. The humour of Gresham's guests was well maintained by Mr. Philip Gordon, Mr. W. Johnston, Mr. Ivan Leslie, Miss Marie Hassell, and Miss Constance Merton. On Monday evening an excellent representation of Sheridan's immortal comedy The School for Scandal was given. Mr. Edward Compton won fresh laurels as Charles Surface; Miss Viola Compton was delightfully refreshing as Lady Teazle, and Mr. Henry Crocker admirably played Sir Peter Teazle. The other characters were sustained with distinct merit. The plays included:—The Rivals (Tuesday), Davy Garrick (Wednesday), She Stoops to Conquer (Thursday), The Scarlet Coat (Friday), The School for Scandal and A Reformed Rake (Saturday). Friday evening was devoted to a benefit for Mr. Edward Compton.

LEEDS.—EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. G. Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—The Boissett Troupe are the big feature of this week's bill, their ever-popular sketch The Bricklayers being provocative of great merriment; Lydia Yeamans makes a big success of her vocal and mimicry turn; Mabel Bardine and company provide an interesting sketch which is well liked, the comedy side being well represented by Jack Lane, Fred Wilkinson, and Tom Parker; Carney and Armstrong get a big reception for their clever novelty; and Leo Tell is distinctly successful.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—That accomplished actor-musician Jan Rudenyi, with a capable company, presents a capital dramatic sketch which is high in favour; the Three Romas in classic posings are an interesting turn; Jennie Alexander is a very clever juvenile artist; a new comedienne, Mamie Fenton, is having a big week, whilst of the rest Rell and Butt and Phern and Phern in different phases of comedy entertainment are prominent.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—A varied bill is topped by the Alexandra Operatic company, who present a scene from Faust in accomplished style. There is a prodigality of humour in Mooney and Holbein's turn; Gus Garrick is a popular comedian; Dale and O'Malley are high in favour; and the Havanna Troupe include much acceptable comedy in their clever turn. Serious acrobatics are indulged in by the Krags Trio and the Hectors, and a successful appearance is made by Frivola and Deep and Dora Brooklyn.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—The Australian Twin Andersons lead the bill here, their vocal and dancing turn being particularly well done. Another popular pair are Sinclair and Parr, who disport in an entertaining scena; a clever sketch is presented by Cosgrove and Burns; the Three Bordellas score a success; Fred Dunstone is a popular comedian; and there are good turns by Victor Courtney and Jeanette Hall.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Chums Till Death, a most interesting and well-acted playlet, is the chief attraction in this week's programme, being presented in a style leaving nothing to be desired by Mr. Albert Marsh's company. It has also the merit of being excellently staged. Mr. Albert Marsh is exceedingly good as Joe Saunders; Miss Gracie Mortimer as Mary Brandon plays admirably; Mr. Frank Tennant is a thorough success as Ned Singleton; and Mr. Harry Buss as Billy, Mr. William Brandon as Josiah Venables, and Mr. A. Paris as Bob are others who render good service. The Cumberlands made a hit in a really smart cycle act, in which they introduce many clever acrobatic feats; J. W. Rowley is as good as ever, and retains his great popularity; Arthur Aldridge renders a couple of songs in a manner that earns for him the highest praise and applause; Larry Lewis is a droll comedian who compels hearty laughter; Mabel Fairchild scores a well-deserved success in her delightful dancing scena A Belfry Dream; Violet Stockelle is a charming and well-costumed comedienne; Baker and Balfe are very clever xylophone players; Naughton and Gold are entertaining comedians and expert dancers. Interest is centred in the exclusive bioscope film of the wrestling match Gotch v. Hackenschmidt.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—The principal item in this week's bill is the really mirth-provoking sketch entitled Dingle's Double, which proves very popular. Miss Edie Dawson as Mrs. Dingle, Mr. Helier Le Maistre as James Dingle, Mr. Phil Lester as Archie Framland, and Mr. George Brentwood as Jim Stent are to be singled out for portrayals of special merit. Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Hayes are responsible for hearty laughter in their screaming duologue The Other Mrs. Brown; Charles Banks, a very funny comedian, introduces his clever dog Woof, and is well received; Johnny and Willie Downs are a couple of smart young coon acrobats who deputise with great success for the Three Royal Temples; Hilda Mascot (burlesque actress), Bertha Norwood (comedienne), and Vera Violet (comedienne) are other artists who give entertaining turns. A special feature is Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, which admirably depicts Rover's Christmas, The Blind Foundling, and Beautiful Scandinavia, films of rare merit and interest.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—A delightful programme of animated pictures here this week includes, among a host of others, both comic, serious, and coloured, such gems as:—Love at First Sight, The Greed of Gold, The Cracksman and the Black Diamonds, Little Mother, and Sold by His Parents. Bert Bowden, a quaint and popular comedian, and Millie Neil, an admirable vocalist, are also appearing with success.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaum

Miss Madge Douglas as Rosie Newton, Miss Irene Carrington as Bella Newton, Miss Marie Pemberton as Maria Bella, Miss Phyllis Elton as Annitta, Mr. Fred Gresham as Pat O'Brien, Mr. Charles D. Pitt as Colonel Bruce, Mr. Fred Newland as Lord Newton, and Mr. J. W. Boyling were all conspicuous with embodiments calling for praise. The romantic comedy-drama One Woman's Wickedness was staged on the last three nights.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. George Stanyon.—Mr. Waller Jeffs' select programme of pictures, under the management of Mr. Fred Jeffrey, are the holiday attraction here. The films, which are of great variety, include Faust (in fifteen coloured tableaux), Quaint Holland, Animated postage Stamps of the World, Raised from the Ranks, The Children's Circus, The Wizard, &c. Miss Leah Pinnick, in new illustrated songs, and Mr. Walter Roselle, in "Masks and Faces," provide entertainment of a refined and popular nature, which is accorded a full meed of appreciation.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. W. Heath.—Miss Ellen Snow and company are this week paying a return visit here with Why Men Love Women. Mr. Lionel Gadsden impersonates with telling effect the part of Captain Staniloff; Lieut. Tommy Fitzherbert is cleverly portrayed by Mr. N. Carter Slaughter; Mr. Oliver Rogers submits a fine performance of the persecuted Gerald Fielding; Mr. Ernest Griffin deserves praise as the Maharajah; Miss Ellen Snow, a prepossessing heroine, acts with considerable restraint and finish; and Miss Florence Nelson is successful as Muriel Zoluski. The comedy is well looked after by Mr. Harwood Roberts as Orlando Figgins and Misses Nita Owen and Queenie Lytton.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Leigh Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Benson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Woolstencroft.—The leading item here is a smart comedy sketch entitled An Airship Elopement; Miss Zadia Slack gives entire satisfaction with her flight of pigeons; Messrs. Lennard and Verreker appear successfully in illustrated songs; Yorkshire Tom is a clever mimic, Carrie Bowles a dainty comedienne, and Mr. Leo Carle a clever and original entertainer; the Brothers Durant, society acrobats, are amusing; and the Attilas, gymnasts and equilibrists, provide a smart turn, as does also Pongorilla, "The Man of the Woods"; Billy Dewey, comedian, is also good, and the Bioscope pictures finish.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Walker; Manager, Mr. J. Frank Walker.—The Sovereign animated pictures continue to be highly popular here.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—One of Mr. Fred Karno's companies has occupied this theatre during the New Year holiday week with the musical farce His Majesty's Guests. Mr. George Hester as Sergt. Lightning takes the leading comedy rôle with lively energy; the universal provider Mr. Miffin is well represented by Mr. Charles Usher; Mr. E. Freshwater and Miss Aggie Morris figure prominently as Flash Jack and his shoplifting accomplice; Miss Edith Ager as Dolly Miffin, with Mr. Sid Kearns as Minks, helps things along; and some good songs, besides a plentiful seasoning of diverting business, are successfully supplied in the course of three brisk acts.

LIMERICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. George Victor Fogerty.—Boxing Night and the week following saw us with the Horace Wheatley combination variety company, the turns of the clever members eliciting well-merited applause. Mr. Wheatley as an Irish comedian is a clever vocalist and actor, and the well-trained baritone voice of Mr. James Moran was much appreciated. Mr. Thomas Finglass as the whole-hearted coon was very clever, and Miss Gracie Persèe was a capital vocalist and graceful dancer. The Bioscope was an additional attraction, and the short sketches were much appreciated.

LINCOLN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Pope.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company created the best of impressions with Sunday, two immense audiences packing the house on Boxing Day. Mr. William Gilford as Brinthorpe and Miss Janet Lind in the title-rôle won high favour, but Mr. James Hussey as Lively scored heavily, and Mr. R. F. Symons, Mr. A. C. Holmes, and Mr. G. Marriott, jun., gained encomiums. His House in Order was to open on Thursday.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Miller.—Cissie Walmer has returned to the scene of many former triumphs, and creates a great hit again with song and dance; The Last Halt, a Siberian episode, is effectively presented by Mr. W. H. Benson, with Miss Mabel Wynn finely playing the part of the Jewess, and other turns are well given by Sergt. Mumford, Earle and Godfrey, Chas. Lewis, Cissie Esdaile, and the Menzies.

LIVERPOOL.—ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—On Saturday last Mr. Sam Duckworth's company commenced a seven nights' engagement here with Her Nameless Child, which has proved popular. In the rôle of Anthony Ford, Mr. J. W. Evelyn distinguished himself, playing with good effect; Mr. Sydney C. Cranston worthily represented Arthur Ford; Mr. Arthur E. Pringle was well placed as Lord Woodville; Mr. F. Thompson made an efficient Mong role; Miss Pattie Hastings pleased greatly with her Phyllis Ford; Miss Mona Gray acquitted herself well as Lady Woodville; Miss Renie Douglas proved an exceedingly humorous Bessie Brooks; and Mr. Larry Clements was good in the character of Tom Rivers.

STAR THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr Harris Fineberg.—Capital business continues to be done here with Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime Babes in the Wood. Mr. Fineberg's patrons evidently know a good thing when they see it.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Foremost here this week was Van Biene, whose reception for his playlet The Master Musician was extremely flattering; Fred Lindsay gave a clever and interesting turn with the long whip; the Dauntons-Shaw Troupe of trick cyclists were greeted with rounds of applause; The Magic Carpet proved an illusion that bewildered the audience, the characters in it being held by Messrs. John Warren, F. Morton, H. J. Collis, F. G. Fenn, and Miss Mollie Wynter; Harry Freeman brought some new songs; Brix and Annie had a funny trifle, In a Barber's Shop; the Brothers Bright showed much ability as athletes; and others who appeared were Cissie Thompson, comedienne, and Bell Davis with her Pick-Chick actors.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville. After a short spell of pantomime, the management here has gone back to drama, presenting this week one of a domestic type, entitled The Better Land. The interesting work is from the pen of Miss Dorothy Granville, and among the principals are Miss Nina Blake Adams, who presents the pathetic rôle of Doris in most capable fashion, and Mr. Leonard Andale (Philip).

LYRIC. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Heading the bill here this week was Mr. Mat Montgomery's company, with the new humorous sketch Lady Lanigan, Laundress, a notice of which appears in another column. The Three Stewarts gave a clever acrobatic act; Henri Bekker, assisted by Mlle. Mai, offered a smart conjuring act, with comedy; a neat vocal scena came from the Eight College Girls; Dan Filmer had some funny songs; Marlo showed himself to be an expert juggler; as a comedienne and dancer, Ivy Adelaide afforded satisfaction; and Ossi Souplessi, the anatomical wonder, and W. B. Raby, comedian, also appeared.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Principal here this week was the lively sketch The Cowboy Millionaire, presented by Mr. Harry Roxbury's company, which included the able comedian Tubby Edlin. Fred Russell pleased as much as ever with his ventriloquial turn; the Denwertz Troupe of acrobats earned loud applause; a smart gymnastic act was submitted by Ariel and Astarte; My Fancy delighted everyone with her sand dancing; the operatic vocalists St. Ruth and Conyers pleased immensely; The Strike was a dramatic episode, in which the able French actor Edouard José played with power; Andrews and Thompson afforded much pleasure with their trifle, The Rube and the Romany, singing with taste; La Belle Greta gained a cordial greeting for her Spanish songs and dances; and Mayme Cannon, comedienne, contributed several well-received numbers.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The stock company here this week gave The Green Bushes, the principal parts in which were taken by Messrs. David G. Noble (Connor), Sydney Grant (George), E. D. Allen (Wild Murtough), Tom H. Solly (Grinnidge), Cecil Ravenswood (Jack Gong), Leo Montgomery (Captain Dartois and Paddy Kelly), R. Seath Innes (Darby Donovan and Dennis), Miss Florence Palmer (Miami), and Miss Lilian Radbourne (Geraldine). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed the latest films.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—The Volcano remained here a second week, and played to big audiences. An able equestrian act was presented by Karl Reinsch and Miss Lucie; the concertina playing by Percy Honri gained for that accomplished artist loud applause; Harry Grey gave a most amusing turn; Frank Hartley, for a boy, showed great talent in the juggling line; May Brilliant pleased much with her singing and dancing; Hamilton Hill, possessed of a capital baritone voice, gave some of his latest songs; C. H. Charlton presented a clever conjuring turn; and Olive Armidale, vocalist, afforded satisfaction.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Crowded houses have been the rule here this week to listen to Miss Marie Loftus, who had a big reception; her burlesques of music-hall styles proved exceedingly droll. Pichel and Scale, a smart couple of comedy acrobats, caused shouts of laughter; a neat little comedy, St. Valentine's Day, came from the Wyffs; Lalie Brook amused greatly with her scena Girls, Past and Present; the Three Alskarnos did well as Risley comedians; Ted Waite proved himself a most diverting comedian; Jack Truman sang several popular songs to everyone's satisfaction; E. Morrisey had a novel equilibristic musical act; and acceptable items also came from Mi Narom, comedienne, and Cyril Jephson, comedian.

GRAND TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—This new venture, where Bioscope pictures and vaudeville are given, promises to be successful. The Park Palace, under the same management, is also doing well with a similar style of entertainment.

ROSCOMMON. — Acting-Manager, Mr. J. M. Crewdson.—Here this week the stock company gave When Rogues Fall Out. Mr. Percy Boucher, an old Liverpool favourite, played his original part of Billy Faggles, which created much laughter; Mr. Butler Stanhope was seen to great advantage as Sir Henry Lorriemore; Mr. A. Wilson Rae did well as Jack Burton; Miss Flo Russell acted with sound judgment as Madge Lorriemore; and other parts well presented were Jack Lorriemore (Mr. Fred Roden), Stephen Ralston (Mr. Geoffrey Sutherland), and Bill Jenkins (Mr. Harry Lemar).

NEW CENTURY PICTURE HALL.—Proprietors, The New Century Animated Picture Company, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter H. Hook.—An admirable show of pictures is given twice nightly at the newly-acquired hall in Mount Pleasant, and public support has proved very encouraging. During the week the films presented included A Broken Heart; Funny Guests; The Quack, or Every Picture Tells a Story; Lost at Sea; The Rocking Chair; and Grandfather's Birthday. We note that special precautions against fire have been taken at this hall by the lantern being in a recess outside the building, so that should an accident occur to a film the recess can at once be shut off from the auditorium.

LLANDUDNO.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—Jack and the Beanstalk opened here on Boxing Night. Jack is well portrayed by Miss Isa Bernard; Phyllis is daintily played by Miss Rena Rees, and her song, "If I plant a tiny little seed," was vociferously encored; Mr. Bert Allen as Simple Simon is a unique character; Mr. Harry May as Dame Trot is most amusing, his Welsh accent finding favour; the Godfrey Girls dance well; Miss Isa Davis is a good mimic; and Will Belasco is an instrumentalist of more than ordinary ability.

LONGTON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Longton Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. H. Sherriff Howard.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson is playing to excellent business here this week with the romantic play, Who is She? Mr. Hill-Mitchelson as Prince Bora has a part eminently suited to his incisive style, and gives a most telling and finished performance; Mr. Graham Woods as Prince Vladimir appears with conspicuous success; Miss Alice Barber plays with delicious naïveté as Countess Ladori, and is ably seconded by Mr. Sinclair Holden as Captain Arthur Gower. The title-rôle has an admirable exponent in Miss Violet Carlyle; and the remainder of an excellent company are adequate in their respective parts.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident-Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—The special attraction here for Boxing Day was Mr. George Robertson's company in A Message from Mars. Mr. Gordon Starkey as Horace Parker, played with commendable zeal; Mr. Lionel Yaldwyn as the Messenger treated the house to a fine piece of acting; Mr. Percy Tyler played the Tramp to perfection; Arthur Dicey was safe in the capable hands of Mr. Burton W. Yaldwyn; Miss Edith King's Minnie Templar was charming; Miss Nora Kingsley did well as Miss Parker; Miss Dorothy Cecil as Bella was most fascinating.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Drama is once more in evidence here, Mr. Walter Melville's company appearing this week in A Girl's Cross Roads. Miss Hilda Beverley appears successfully as Barbara Wade, and Messrs. Chas. Franmore, W. J. Butler, and Norman B. Cannon also add to the general success in the more important characters.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Frank Elliston's company in Aunt Matilda head the bill this week. Others appearing include Francis's Royal Midgets, the Four Scoreys, Wragg and Wragg, and Roseltha. The British Biograph company are presenting a grand pantomime film, Puss in Boots, in addition to other interesting subjects.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Morton Powell's company opened to a crowded house here on Saturday in The Woman Who Gambles. As Count Otto Steinbach Mr. Clifford Rean preserves a dignified and manly demeanour throughout; Mr. Norman A. Overton displays an ample sense of villainy in the rôle of Baron Cratzlaw; Mr. Reginald Fox depicts the heroic character of Lieut. Karl Ctzartoriski in masterly style; Mr. Raymond scores as the Hon. Bertie Bray; a capital portrayal of the somewhat trying rôle of Countess Natalie Steinbach was given by Miss Laura Walker; as Cora Gouldhart, Miss E. Conway did well; the Lanette of Miss Brenda May deserves much praise; whilst Miss L. Rignold as Mlle. Lila Leyelda and Miss Lily Malvern as Stella Malakoff gave excellent portrayals.

MAIDSTONE. — PALACE. — Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—A capital bill is headed by the Courtiers, under the direction of Paul Mill, who gives an act full of good music and dainty humour; the Zenory Brothers are novel acrobats with some new feats; a comedy sketch, The Extra Turn, is received with hearty laughter; Ferris and May, in Two's Company, submit a smart musical duologue; Major and Mack are funny patter comedians; Johnny Gilmore does well as a comedian; and other items of the bill are Bert Erroll, vocalist, and the Palace pictures.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Manager, Mr. J. Beslee.—The holiday attraction here is the pantomime Dick Whittington, produced on Boxing Day by Mr. Ernest Adrim's company. The pantomime follows the old story on familiar lines, and goes with a swing. The scenery and costumes are well above the average, and the pantomime is full of good jokes, bright music, and funny business. The company work hard to support Mr. Nevill Graham, who, besides playing the part of the Emperor, is responsible for the production. Mr. Will Daniells as Alderman Fitzwarren bears the brunt of the fun on his shoulders, and comes through the ordeal with flying colours; Mr. Bert Warner makes a lifelike Cat; as Dick, Miss Violet Oram sings well, and is responsible for some tuneful duets with Alice (Miss Madge Carew), who acts and sings throughout in a very charming manner. The production should have a successful run.

MANCHESTER.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—A capital programme here this week is headed by the Merrions, vocal and instrumental comedy entertainers; while the animal circus presented by Carl and Mary Ohm is a prominent feature of the evening; A Be-be's picture post-card album is a novelty, very prettily shown; and other entertaining items are The Master Card, a clever sketch speciality; Will Sullivan, a smart comedian; Smith and Johnson, the society coloured duo; Playfair and Vera, in a paper speciality; Frank E. Golby, child mimic and comedian; Jim Cunliffe, a local comedian of merit; Bennett and Stirling, comedy duo; and Tom Morris, whistler.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Mr. C. Watson Mill and a talented company are playing here this week the successful romantic play For Love and the King, which is drawing good houses. Mr. C. Watson Mill has a good part as Farval, the young heroic soldier of fortune, and Miss Rosalind Tate as the Princess of Athene plays well up to requirements; Mr. Henry Earlesmere is excellent as Vladimir Obrenovic; and other essential rôles are cleverly exploited by Mr. John Barton, Mr. A. H. Leslie, and Miss Frances Tierney; while Mr. Geoffrey Chate and Mr. Jim K. Woods provide the necessary humour.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The principal attraction here this week is Fred Karno's company in The Bailiff, a rôle played with marked success by Albert Bruno, supported by a capable cast; Bellew and Stock's company in An Outside Chance includes the clever boy actor, Edward Garratt, who is well received; and other smart items given are: Fred Earle, the "Seaweed" comedian; Walter Aubrey, speciality dancer; Werds Bros., clever comedy acrobats; the Musical Jees, in their smithy act; Bertha Stuart, Scotch character vocalist; and Nellie Farrel, a neat Irish comedienne.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The Sands of Dee remains the chief attraction here; Mme. Alice Esty, the celebrated prima donna, gives several selections from her répertoire, and meets with a big reception; the Gems are excellent in a brisk entertaining speciality of song and dance; the Hartley wonders do some marvellous jumping; Tom Haig and Millie Novel are exceedingly smart, the tumbling of the former being something out of the ordinary; Billy is a well-trained horse; Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire singing mill girl, has a good voice, and is well received; George Rae, Scotch comedian, scores with some eccentric dancing; and Mazie Hibbs dances nicely. Up-to-date pictures are shown on the American Bioscope.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Messrs. Charles Fletcher and John Tiller's company are playing here with success for a second week their capital version of Little Red Riding Hood.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. R. Trippett.—A King for a Day, a vastly amusing pocket musical comedy, excellently presented, by Sidney Dooley and Charles Seymour's company is the star attraction here this week; Diano Hope, ably assisted by Monte Bayley and Charles Levey, is seen to advantage in a society episode, Her Good Name; Clifford Stuart, a capital eccentric comedian, makes a big hit; Herbert and Linden are particularly good dancers; and Dix, the necromancer, is entertaining; other enjoyable items are offered by George Acre, character vocalist; the Wedburns, popular comedians; Dewars Brothers, juvenile hand equilibrists and acrobats of ability; and Mark Merry, comedian. The Wrong Lottery Ticket, the Bioscope film, is good.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—A good programme here this week is headed by Lily Burnand, who is as lively and taking as ever; F. V. St. Clair, with up-to-date verses, is highly popular; and Lulu Evans, a very pleasing comedienne, makes a decided hit; Mlle. Yetta is exceedingly clever on the wire; the Northcotes, refined duettists, are excellent singers; Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene, nicely assisted by Miss Eileen Dartrey, play well in that capital comedy episode My Lady's Chamber; whilst other enjoyable and smart turns are given by Bonny and Smartt as the dresser and the call boy; Cliff and Kean, clever dancers; and Clapham and Riskit in neat comedy parallel bar act. Ruffell's excellent pictures complete.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—James and Jenny Lee top the bill here this week, and go through a remarkably clever performance; the Spanish Juanitos are exceptionally smart acrobats; Allsopp and Bekwith, a popular comedy duo, are entertaining; Primavesi juggles in a first-rate manner; Mark Olive, assisted by Daisy Baldry, is good in his whistling scena, The Candy Store; Will and Alicia Frohman give a pleasing instrumental act; Stacey and Williams have some amusing cross-talk; Wynne Darrell, comedienne, dances neatly; and Forrest and King are good acrobatic dancers. A deputy turn for Jack Franklyn by two amusing comedians was greatly appreciated. The 10.40 Express is the subject of the Bioscope.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baker.—Riano and his band are to the front here this week, and meet with a deservedly good reception; the Wartana Trio are clever lady jugglers, and are well received; Bradley, the cycling Jew, gives a good performance; Corman's juveniles are entertaining; Will Walton, quaint comedian, causes much laughter; Mint and Mart are paper manipulators extraordinary; the Roxbys take well in their speciality; and other enjoyable items are Elleze and Henri De Lyle, assisted by juvenile quartette; A. H. Drinkwater; and A Mother's Fault on the Bioscope.

MANSFIELD. — GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Capt. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Captain Clayton's pantomime, Cinderella, was produced here on Boxing Day, and is now running smoothly to packed houses. In the title-rôle Miss Nita Dunville is charming, and easily succeeds in gaining the appreciation of the audience. Her style is bright and refined, and her songs are rendered in capital style. Miss Amy Allnutt as the Prince is very attractive, and plays the part in a graceful manner; and Dandini secures a talented exponent in Miss Lottie Mellor. Mr. Clarence Turner and Mr. Gus Granville as the Broker's Men are extremely funny, and keep the audience in a continuous roar. Another diverting performance is that of Mr. Jerrold Manville as Baron Hardup; Lily and Gertie are in the capable hands of Messrs. Gilbert and Woodward; Mrs. Cecil Clayton sings her numbers sweetly as the good Fairy Sunshine; and Mr. Gus Berridge does well as the Demon. Mr. Fred Dunville as Buttons is very comical; and the remaining parts are well filled by Miss Linda May, Miss Mollie Revell, Miss Preston, and Miss Gladys Hawthorn.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Kenne.—Under Two Flags, presented by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company, has provided the Christmas attraction, opening on Saturday, with a matinée on Monday afternoon, and playing the three succeeding evenings. Miss Molesworth sustains the leading rôle of Cigarette with charming vivacity. The change from the light-hearted vivandière to the loving and lovable woman is wonderfully good, the acting being natural and well sustained. The Bertie Royellieu of Mr. Mark Blow is worthy of high commendation, and the remainder of the company sustain their respective parts with effectiveness, Mr. R. Harley-West as Barklie Cecil Royellieu, Mr. Charles Brooke as Lord Royellieu, Miss Mayne Hope as Princess Venetia Corona, Miss Joan Sterne in the rôle of Countess Olga, Miss Lucy Greame as Lady Guinevere, and Miss Kitty Fitzgerald as Lavina sharing largely in the success of the production. For the remainder of the week At Roaring Camp was to be played by the same company.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree. — Heading the programme last week were D'Artagnan, a lion of large proportions, but of great gentleness and docility, and his little playmate Chocolat. Among other things the forest king rides a horse. Presented by M. and Mlle. Gaillard, the turn has been much enjoyed. The Flying Hanlon troupe of gymnasts gave a good show; and other contributors included George Grogie, the Sussex yokel; Sid Penna, in a comedy musical act; Elmer Spyglass, baritone; Bert Woodward, cycling coon; and Marie Wilton, comedienne.

Miss Beaumont Collins has been presenting this week the dramatic playlet The House of Terror, in which, as Meg Harding, she is supported by a very capable company. Mme. Dalmere's cleverly trained animals (cats, rabbits, rats, &c.) provide a most entertaining turn, and the other contributors to an enjoyable programme include Winnie Travers, comedienne; Gravetta and Parr, in a smart pot-pourri; La Belle Margo, trapeze and rope specialist, and Albert Hall, comedian, in addition to which there are two sets of interesting pictures.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—In Holy Russia is being presented by Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company this week. Renee Rubinoff is capably portrayed by Mrs. Cassidy and Micky Nolan has an amusing representative in Mr. Cassidy.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Picitt and Lizette, illusionists and pantomimists, head an attractive programme, and their magical extravaganza The Crazy Cook receives appreciation. The Three Lloyds contribute a clever turn. Others appearing with success are Renob, newsboy mimic; Selby and Myers, comedians and dancers; Three Pirmans in a pot-pourri act; Fanny Robina, burlesque actress and vocalist; Harry Bland, comedian; Florry Cooper, vocalist; and the Biograph with new films.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. J. Burnett.—The programme last week was a varied and attractive one. The Danas, in a sketch, On the Honeymoon, were responsible for much laughter; Jack Allison scored as a negro comedian and sand-dancer; the Zeenas were good in a gymnastic act; and other popular items by Bros. Garvey, dancers, Francis J. Mack, Irish vocalist, Miller and Brogden, with some clever patter, and Sisters Terry, comediennes and dancers, completed the bill. The Gaietyscope showed a series of up-to-date films.

Mr. Carson's company is this week presenting a new military drama, A Fight for a Throne. Mr. Jerrold Reed as Nicolai I. gives an excellent interpretation; Mr. Charles E. Linney is well suited as Otto, Prince of Weimar; Mr. John Millward represents Captain Jack Fortescue in creditable style; Mr. Patrick Evans acts with sincerity and strength as Lieut. the Hon. Percy Fitzmaurice; Miss Dora Hammersley is realistic as Princess Esmee of Viazma; Lady Pat, Maid of Honour to the Princess, has an able exponent in Miss Emmaline B. Louis; Miss Madge Clayton is good as Sister Agatha; and Miss Margarette Tueskie is very satisfactory as Countess Valeska Lorenski; the other characters in a long cast being all well played. The drama is staged and costumed in high-class style.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is here this week in The Power of the Cross. Mr. Geo. A. de Gray submits a clever study of the mysterious Baron Curzola; Mr. A. J. Haviland is a manly Dr. Fairfax; while the vacillating Gerald Fairfax is faithfully portrayed by Mr. Robt. Hall. Mr. T. Bowson ably typifies the shady lawyer, Benjamin Hawke; Miss Annie Hylton interprets with sympathy and natural grace the character of Margaret Seaton; the adventuress, Rita Lascelles, is played with much skill by Miss Stella Carmichael; Miss Ella Turner is a capital Dolly Gray; Miss Phyllis Vaughan is a pleasing Blanche Kingsley. Rich Hibernian humour is put into the character of Timothy O'Dowd by Mr. Tyrone Power.

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—The list of pictures this week is a most excellent one in every respect, and includes some up-to-date dramatic and comic films.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Crowded houses are greeting with rapturous delight the performances of Mr. Geo. Dance's company in the musical play Miss Hook of Holland. From beginning to end there is not a dull moment, and the happy blending of mirth and music has hit the popular fancy to a nicety. As Sallie Miss Ella Stanley is delightful, her natural grace and dainty presence winning the admiration of all. The drolleries of Mr. A. Wellesley as Mr. Hook, her father, are provocative of much amusement, and Mr. Walter Balfour, Mr. Sam Robinson, Mr. Frank Crimp, as Captain Paap, Lieutenant Coop, and Bandmaster Voyt respectively, are exceedingly good. Miss Cissy Sefton is well suited to the part of Mina, and Miss Tattie Leonard is good as Gretchen. Mr. Geo. Mundie, jun., is excellent as Ludwig Schnapps, and Mr. Geo. Faby does well as Hans Mass. The piece is staged most artistically.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. Rembges.—The comedy-drama The Fighting Parson, which Messrs. Geo. Gray and company are producing, proves a great success. The New York Nippers, in a new novelty dancing act, provide an interesting turn, and Ugo Nap presents a burlesque scena that excites a great deal of laughter; the Brothers Idento are clever jugglers; and Wyze and Adna are excellent society entertainers. Andy Fagan, comedian and dancer, and Nellie Martell, comedienne, are very pleasing.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Miss Vesta Tilley, who should have appeared here this week, was unable to do so owing to indisposition, but the management succeeded in obtaining an admirable substitute. The screamingly funny absurdity entitled Black Diamonds, presented by Messrs. Brown, Le Clerq, and company was well received, and heartily applauded. Mason and Bont created a great impression with their clever gymnastic feats, and Estrella proved a smart barefooted dancer. Leslie Clark and company were very amusing in a sketch entitled Wanted, a Wife.

MORECAMBE.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. C. M. Julian.—On Boxing Night Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company opened to a crowded house with Two Little Vagabonds, and the piece went splendidly from start to finish. Miss May Hart and Miss Josie Beltram are respectively Dick and Wally, and very excellent impersonations they give of those well-known characters in the ever-popular play. Miss Leonora Castelle is admirable as Marion Thornton, and Miss Gertrude Marion is capital as Barbara Scarth. Mr. Geo. Denham is always a manly Thornton, and comedy is abundantly provided by Miss Dorothy Hart, Messrs. Herbert Russell, Leo St. Clair, and Fred Archer. The business management is in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur E. Melbourne.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglass.—This week Bonsanquet with his wonderful violins is a great attraction here. Mme. Ghita Corri, the well known vocalist, is also making a pronounced success with her character types. Mr. Ernest Lord's company, the Excelsiors, consisting of Miss Gertrude Grant, Miss Alice Singleton, Mr. Harker Holt, Mr. Frank M. Quinn, and Mr. Ernest Lord, present songs, duets, monologues, and concerted items in a really clever and artistic style, and gain loud laughter and applause. The Dutch Lovers, as rendered by Mike and Lena, give every satisfaction, and the gentleman is a capital dancer. The Winter Gardens is famous for the animated pictures they manage to exhibit, and this week there are again some of the best procurable, all of which are delightful.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Mr. Frederick Melville's well-known drama The Ugliest Woman on Earth was the attraction here last week. The delineation of the difficult title-rôle was undertaken by that talented actress Miss Beatrice Homer, who succeeds in holding the attention of the audience throughout the piece by her powerful acting. Other leading rôles were ably taken by Mr. Phillip Darien, Mr. Leyton Cancellor, Mr. Leonard Thackeray, Miss Gertrude Harrison, Miss Nellie Jackson, and Miss Violet Macaree.

A welcome return visit is being paid this week of Mr. Walter Melville's striking drama A Soldier's Wedding. As on the previous occasion, crowded houses are the order, and the greatest appreciation is shown of the many thrilling incidents in the play. The company is well balanced and capable.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. H. G. Elliott.—Mr. Lingford's company, in A Fight for a Throne, drew good houses here last week, the principal characters being all capably sustained.

The Love that Women Desire is attracting large audiences here this week. Mr. Herbert Pearson gives a fine performance as Philip Carnaby, and Miss Maud Hastings as Sybil Thorburn acts with much ability and charm. Other leading characters are ably presented.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Always a favourite with Tynesiders, Mr. Albert Chevalier added yet more to his popularity last week, when he appeared in a sketch entitled Behind the Scenes. He played the part of Achille Talma Dupard, an old French actor, and his delightful performance fairly brought down the house. Another noteworthy turn on an altogether enjoyable programme was that of Fred Ginnett and company, in Hunting Morn; Ike and Will Scott were again to the front in their amusing turn; and Harry Leyburne, a really clever impersonator and mimic, met with a hearty reception. Other capital turns were contributed by Les Voces, Eight of Hearts, Chas. Coverdale, and E. J. Sheldon, the Bioscope completing.

The chief feature of this week's programme is Ye Colonial Septette, a company of talented vocalists and musicians, who give a charming entertainment. In the sketch Neighbours the Albert and Edmunds comedy troupe contribute an amusing turn, and the Four Jumels present a very pleasing musical act. Another clever item is that of the Rawsons, a couple of youthful entertainers. The character impersonations of Victor Newman show great ability, and the Coloured Meisters are four darkies with particularly good voices. Ernest Clifford and Cliff Ryland are diverting comedians, and the Four Figaros give songs and dances of different nations with grace and skill. The Bioscope completes a varied programme.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—The pantomime Forty Thieves was last week's chief attraction at this popular house, and among the many clever artists in the cast mention may be made of Mr. Bob Selvidge, Miss Bertha Clifton, and Miss Cecilia Gold.

The chief attraction of a good holiday programme here is provided by Haley's Juveniles in a carnival scena. Other well-known artists appearing are the Columbia Trio, Dorothy L. Clark, Robbie Roy, Hersler Bros., Radford Duo, Four Athos, and Fred Edwards's company.

SKATING RINK, EXHIBITION BUILDINGS.—Manager, Mr. F. B. Crowe.—The popularity of rinking seems ever on the increase, and during the holidays every session has seen the floor crowded with enthusiastic skaters. The management are providing many special attractions, including races for local amateurs, which prove exceedingly popular.

NORTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Messrs. Jazon and Nightingale's pantomime Aladdin was produced here on Christmas night before a large audience, and was favourably received. The book is from the pen of Mr. E. C. Jazon. As Aladdin Miss Edna Latonne meets with appreciation; Miss Luna Lisle proves an attractive Princess Badroulbadour; the Sisters Brenton as Pekoe and Caramel come in for hearty receptions; and the Sisters Darnton as Genii of the Ring and Slave of the Lamp are cordially greeted. As the Emperor of China Mr. Clifton Hall is worthy of praise; Mr. Walter Bishop appears successfully as Abanazar; Mr. Percy Curry makes a hit as Widow Twankey; and Messrs. Rex and Ford are funny as Ping and Pong. Specialities are successfully introduced by the Sisters Darnton, popular vocalists; the Sisters Brenton, excellent dancers; Kavados, the wondrous cannon ball juggler; and Messrs. Rex and Ford, comedians.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The holiday programme here is headed by Mr. Adam Tomlinson, PROVINCIAL PANTOMIMES.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

Mr. Charles Revill's pantomime, Dick Whittington, was produced on Christmas Eve, Mr. Herbert W. Harwood, under the direction of Messrs. Dottridge and Longden, being the producer. The book has been written by Mr. J. J. Hewson. The action is divided into eleven scenes, which are a mixture of song and dance and all sorts of extravagant fun. The spectacular portion is gorgeous, and a distinct advance in scenic staging upon what we have had beforetime. A brisk and diverting version of the story is provided, and one finds that Dick Whittington emerges in the end into affluence and a Lord Mayorship, with a pretty bride in Alice. Miss Florrie Gallimore is seen to advantage in the title-part. She acts with animation, and sings a number of serio-comic ditties, including "My girl is a Yorkshire girl" and the popular "Oh, oh, Antonio," meeting with much approval. Miss Josie Delaine is a neat and trim little Alice. She sings sweetly, and accentuates her dialogue with clearness; she is very light of foot, and extremely graceful and neat in action. Miss Rose Alderman as Fairy Sunshine merits commendation for vocal talent, and wins admiration by her gracious presence and engaging style. Other noteworthy ladies in the cast are Miss Rose Tilley as Viscount Piccadilly, Miss Dolly Victor as Molly, Miss May Mackenzie and Miss Lizzie Shelmerdine as Ralph and Polly, and the bevy of pretty girls who appear as fairies, market girls, guards of honour, and chorus singers. The comedians form a strong body. Mr. H. O. Wills stands at their head as Jack Idle, and he keeps the house well amused all the time he is on the stage, and that is almost continuously. His comic ditties and his smart gags take immensely. His efforts are cleverly seconded by Mr. Jack Mackenzie, a quaint and masculine Sarah, the cook to Fitzwarren. Mr. Leo King as King Rat has the Mephistophelian manner and dress, and works with great energy. He sings well, and is applauded heartily for his rendering of "Asleep in the deep." Alderman Fitzwarren has a good representative in Mr. Jimmy Wood; Mr. Tod E. Fields is an amusing chief officer Tarpaulin; and Mr. Alf Clegg does good feline imitations as the Cat. The Herald Comedy Four, a clever quartette, represent respectively the Emperor, the Empress, and the Princess Amarynth of Morocco, and a fourth a Jack Tar. They sing part-songs in a very eccentric but very pleasing and artistic way. Some of the old ballads, "Sally in our alley," and other familiar and ever-popular ditties, are thus harmonised, and applauded to the echo. Their dress is a special feature, and wins great admiration. The pantomime is a very good one and is bound to attract.

"JACK AND JILL" AT BELFAST.

On Christmas Eve Mr. Fred W. Warden produced his annual Christmas pantomime, and judging from the reception accorded by a crowded house, Mr. Warden has added another success to the many gained under his régime. Jack and Jill is the title of this year's production, and the book, by Mr. J. Hickory Wood, is quite coherent, the plot being clearly worked out. The locals, by "S.A.P.," are but few, but doubtless many more will be introduced during the run of the pantomime. The music, which is certainly bright and tuneful, has been arranged, selected, and composed by the clever local musical director, Mr. Samuel P. Swanton, and he must be congratulated thereon. Among the song hits may be mentioned "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" "Hang out the front door key," "What a terrible thing it would be," and "She's my best girl," and these will soon be sung and whistled all over the city. The scenery is really gorgeous, and the scenic artists, Messrs. George Jackson, Bruce Smith, and G. Jansen have certainly provided us with some of the most artistic sets ever produced anywhere. What could be more beautiful than Scene 6, The Magic Hill, with novel mechanical effects, or The Palace of Jewels, with its glittering precious gems? The scenes presented are The Entrance to the Magic Well, The Baron's Cornfield, The Office of the Baron's Solicitor, House of the Widow Cobble, Interior of the Shoe, The Magic Hill, Happy Land, The Fairy Fountains, The Rival Wells, Exterior of Prince's Palace, The Palace of Jewels. The costumes, by Comelli, executed by Anges Scott and assistants, and Alias, of London and Paris, are strikingly rich, and must indeed have cost a fortune. The ballets and incidental dances have been arranged by Elena Estelle, and they are undoubtedly a feature. Regarding the cast, Mr. Warden has, as usual, secured a particularly strong and talented company, including such notable Belfast favourites as Mr. George Lashwood, Mr. John A. Warden, and Miss Dorothy Ward. Chief honours are due Mr. George Lashwood, who on Thursday must have made the hit of his career, judging from the ovations accorded the genial George. He appeared as Prince Opulent, and carried himself with a dash and spirit that was most infectious. His host of Belfast admirers would hardly be satisfied, even with triple encores. Mr. Lashwood rendered "Hang out the front door key," "Penelope," "She's my best girl" (in the latter being assisted by a chorus of eight and a tiny mite of some five summers), and many other songs, and his success, which was in every way complete, must have been most gratifying. Miss Dorothy Ward (who made herself such a great favourite last year) renews her acquaintance with many admirers. She appears as Jack, and again achieved a notable success. She sang "Bombardier," "A tiny seed of love," "My girl's a Yorkshire girl," "Miss Carnation," &c., in the latter being assisted by a local boy with a wonderful soprano voice. Miss Ward, who gained quite a triumph, was not permitted to leave the stage until she was presented with no fewer than nine floral offerings. Miss Ethel Fink, who at practically the last minute was called upon to fill the part of principal girl, Jill, must be congratulated on her sweet and charming interpretation. She sang "Saturday afternoon," "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" and the catchy choruses were quickly taken up by the vast audience. Mr. John A. Warden, brother of the managing-director (Mr. Fred W. Warden), appeared as Baron Bounce, and his exceedingly droll impersonation was only what might be expected from an artist of Mr. Warden's high reputation. He sang "What a terrible thing that would be," with many topical verses, which was frequently encored. It is doubtful, indeed, if the rôle of the Widow Cobble could have been in better hands than that of Mr. George Miller. His unctuous humour, which was never forced, and sparkling witticisms, kept the house in roars of laughter, and unquestionably Mr. Miller was thoroughly and deservedly successful. Miss Stella De Marney, with a handsome stage presence, was cast for Margery, and her dainty and fascinating impersonation was especially commendable. She rendered "Come, be my rainbow," with beautiful stage effects, in which the cinematograph played an important part, and her graceful dancing gained her a good reception. As Gleam (a fairy), Miss May Rawlinson could hardly be excelled, her tuneful rendering of "Sweetheart days" affording infinite pleasure. In the small part of Jack Straw, Mr. Fred Conquest ...e the most of his opportunities; and Mr. Harry ...on as Glum, the demon, was admirable. MacMahon, who is also responsible for ...uties of stage-management, appears the Baron's solicitor; and Miss ... seen to advantage as Zoe, Queen of Happy Land. Among the specialities may be mentioned the Tiller Superba Troupe, who, during the course of the pantomime, execute some capital dances with great effect. It only remains to be added that the initial performance went without the slightest hitch, which is certainly most creditable to Mr. Warden and all concerned. It is safe to predict that Jack and Jill will enjoy a most prosperous run, and on its noteworthy success Mr. Fred W. Warden, who has worked so assiduously, deserves the heartiest congratulations.

"BOY BLUE" AT BIRMINGHAM.

Boy Blue is Mr. J. F. Graham's eleventh annual at the Prince of Wales's, and without any mincing of words he has eclipsed himself, both in his production and his cast. On Christmas Eve, the night of production, applause rained thick from the conclusion of the overture to the finale, which was appropriately enough "A White Man," for Mr. Graham certainly is a "white man every time" in the matter and manner of his Christmas pantomimes.

The story opens at the Village of Whare, an exquisite rural scene by R. C. Oldham. The Baron Brag (Mr. Tom E. Murray) has incontinently dismissed his housekeeper, Martha (Mr. Horace Mills), who is bent on reprisals. Howbeit, Martha coming in for much moneys, she is taken back to the Baron's hearth and heart to boot, the said Martha being in happy ignorance of her sudden accession to wealth. Here, a wandering Princess arrives (Miss Gladys Ivery). Gloria is her name. She encounters Boy Blue (Miss Hetty King), and it is plain they are "meant for one another." But the Princess, who is attended by Chocolate (Mr. G. H. Elliott), has perforce to sing "to the villagers" for her supper, "Antonio" being her selection, which she delivers with a charming air, and during which the peccant lover Antonio is sequestered by the police. In this scene Miss Hetty King also gives her admirers a taste of her vocal and acting talents in "Those saucy seaside girls." Scene 2, The Baron's Kitchen, is noticeable for Mr. Jay Laurier's first song, "I don't care if there's a girl there." Mr. Laurier plays the Baron's servant, Jiggory, and looks like being a bigger favourite even than he was here last year. Scene 3, The Wedding Reception, is where Mr. Tom E. Murray as the Baron comes out with special unction, and with Mr. Mills as his bride, Martha, keeps the audience rocking with laughter. A pretty duet for Margory (Miss Connie Emerald), the Baron's daughter, and Prince Opulent (Miss Rita Everard), is a distinguishing feature of Scene 4. It is entitled "Take your hands away." This is The Harvest Field, where we find Boy Blue, who, in the previous scene, has had to bid his uncle, the Baron, farewell, on account of Martha's machinations. Here Miss King, with a true ring of pathos, sings "Good-bye to dear old London town," the effect being very fine. Here enters Martha, who is on "a separation" bent. She (Mr. Mills) sings here with great success and style "All he left me was the old cracked basin that we strain the taters in," and the way he danced round on one leg was intensely droll. Here also, Mr. G. H. Elliott (Chocolate) takes his chance well, singing, with some clever juvenile support, "My pal Bill," and the audience almost rose to him so delighted they were. The Lyric Quartette opened this scene with a well-rendered glee. Scene 5 is the Solicitor's Office, where the Baron and Martha are arranging for the "separation," which does not "come off." Scene 6 is The Path of Roses, which the good fairy Roseleaf (Miss Olive Adair) causes Boy Blue to tread. This leads up to a beautiful transformation scene, culminating in Roseland, with a background of most exquisite colour. Here Miss Rose Tyrell's talent is reflected in the admirable work of the ballet. The dresses, too, are a poem in harmony, and have never been equalled here, neither in taste nor gorgeousness.

Part two opens Up the River, where the Eight Stella Girls at once "took" with an exceedingly pretty and effective "swing" song and dance. Then arrives Boy Blue, dressed appropriately in immaculate cerulean, having been rehabilitated by the Good Fairy. She here sings Lashwood's song, "Hang out the front-door key" with much distinction. Here, also, Mr. G. H. Elliott as Chocolate sings, with the admirable help of twenty-four very cleverly-trained girls, "Sue, Sue," and he also gained vociferous applause. Meanwhile, the comedians leave not a dull moment, their admirable humour percolating intermittently. Scene 9, The Ante-Chamber in the Palace, is where Miss Rita Everard as Prince Opulent sings "A tiny seed of love" in charming style; and a pretty love scene ensues 'twixt "him" and Margory, also with Boy Blue and the Princess, who has returned to "her people," whither Boy Blue has followed her. This closes to "Esau, take me on the see-saw" and "Mandy's wedding." Next we see the Baron and Martha ensconced in the Diving Bell to escape the creditors, and a very clever and funny scene it transpires, with the marriage amenities and "music at home." Next we are In the Heart of the Forest, where a ballet of autumn leaves and song-birds takes place. Then comes Boy Blue, who, proves the rightful heir to the "moneys" aforesaid, singing with popular illustrations, "He's a white man every time," and with enormous success it should be added. Anon, Mr. Horace Mills as Martha gives a rich "Salome" burlesque, in which the audience revelled; and Miss Gladys Ivery as the Princess scored a hit with "The Taxicab." A topical duet, "They always do," by Miss King and Mr. Laurier, also "took" well. Another irresistibly funny scene was that of Scene 12, The Billiard Room. Here, the comedians made full use of their opportunities. Scene 13 was no unlucky number, for here Mr. G. H. Elliott sang another song, "I want you to see my girl," to wit, and the audience roared its approval in volumes. The final scene is The Carnival and Ball Masque, where the lovers are united, and this is a veritable blaze of colour, with the Stella Girls to the fore, and the effect on the audience was electrical. Mr. Graham was summoned to the front, and when the curtain was down, the company itself burst into cheers of admiration for their chief. Miss Hetty King as Boy Blue makes a very pretty and charming "boy"; she looks the part, and is very nice and dainty in all she does. The dresses she wore on Christmas Eve were very fetching, like herself, and she may well be written a success. Miss Gladys Ivery is a principal girl of high distinction, and as the Princess Gloria made herself a first-class favourite. Miss Rita Everard, a princely Prince Opulent, possesses a graceful, willowy figure and excellent powers of vocalisation, and her value in the show must be immense. Miss Connie Emerald appears successfully as Margery, and her acting and singing is all that could be desired; and Miss Olive Adair acts well, if briefly, as the Good Fairy.

Mr. Tom Murray's humour proves as rich and potent as when it was first broached in Birmingham some twelve years ago. Whether he is talking, singing, or dancing, there is humour in it, and his Baron will surely become one of Birmingham's biggest favourites. A capital contrast to Mr. Murray's oily and imperturbable manner is Mr. Horace Mill's character of Martha. Full of the humour of his part he keeps the house rocking with laughter in all that he does. Mr. G. H. Elliott invests the genus coon with a handsome, elegant, and quite debonnair style and manner, and, moreover, his success is legitimate, in that he is original. Mr. Jay Laurier is another comedian of great unction as Jiggory. He is never at a loss, meeting one sally with another, till the audience roars with laughter. Mr. J. Alexander is the Solictior; and Mr. K. F. Graham makes up and acts with remarkable fidelity both as Bovril, the bull, and Teddy, the bear.

The music, from the overture to the finale, shows Mr. W. Southworth at his most musicianly and very best. The scenery quite surpasses anything of the past, and for this Messrs. R. C. Oldham, H. Emden, D. G. Hall, and J. McLennan are to be credited. The special fancy ball costumes are by Clarkson, and with the specially ornate scene, with its tiers of "boxes," furnish a brilliantly variegated scene. Mr. John Alexander acts as stage-manager, deriving much assistance from the experience of Mr. A. W. Peers, assistant stage-manager. Mr. Henry Johnston's work in front of the house should this season be very heavy. The book is by J. Hickory Wood, and is thoroughly up to date and full of good things.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT BIRMINGHAM.

The Theatre Royal, in deciding to produce its own pantomime this year, is to be congratulated fully and heartily, for its courage has been rewarded with very big success. From the time of the rising of the curtain on Boxing Day there was no doubting the success of Dick Whittington. The overture and music, to commence with, is on a special, though not obtrusive, scale, being composed by the chef d'orchestre here, Mr. Guy Jones, and it is all very admirable. Scene 1 is the Belfry of Bow Church, ushered in by the overture in consonance with the bells. Passing on from the "Rats Party," where Dick's welfare is threatened, we find ourselves in Scene 2, Fitzwarren's Universal Stores, where the proprietor shows a remarkably rich and varied stock-in-trade as painted by that eminent scenic artist Mr. W. R. Young. A very animated scene is passing here, with customers and attendants joining in the opening chorus, dressed in all the colours of the rainbow and just as harmoniously blended. Here Fitzwarren (Mr. John Power) introduces himself in song, and proves a very admirable alderman indeed, and a merchant of energy to boot. Calling for Alice, she appears in the engaging presence of Miss Aimee Grey, who sings in a pleasant musical voice "The moon he loves a coon." Now comes Dick Whittington (Miss Sybil Arundale, looking like one of Dickens's heroes stepped out of the pages), and, the coast being clear, he and Alice fall to love-making, encouraged and abetted by Tabby (Mr. Fred Whittaker), the intelligent and necessary Cat. A duet for Dick and Alice ensues, "See-saw," and then the Cook, Constance (Mr. Arthur Reynolds) warbles "Girls, study your cookery books." But now we are getting to the "zoological" moment, as Idle Jack (Mr. Tom Foy) puts it. Dick is accused of common theft, and the coins being found in his wallet, in accordance with a deep-laid plot of the Cook and Idle Jack, Dick is driven forth, friendless. Scene 2 is Fitzwarren's Wine Cellars, where Bottles, the office boy (Lupino Lane), sings in a very sprightly manner "What's the use of a girl?" also dancing in a most approved of style. Miss Clara Reid (Marjory) sings and dances excellently well in "I'm not going away with you"; and then Highgate Hill (Mr. R. C. McCleery) appears to view, with its miles of woodland scenery and real sheep and shepherdesses. Here Dick, who arrives weary and travel-stained, sings a special number composed by Mr. Guy Jones, "More than all the world to you." In this Miss Arundale sang with real feeling, showing, moreover, a remarkable range of voice. After some amusing play from the Cat, while Dick is asleep, the Spirit of the Chimes (Miss Violet Baynton) summons her fairy forces, a happy-faced and elegantly-dressed throng, this being followed by the leit-motif of the music, which inspires Dick to return to London.

In Scene 5, the Jolly Sailors, Miss Aimee Grey's fine voice is heard again in "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" which is followed by the unconventional entry of Captain Barnacle and his Mate (Messrs. Drew and Alders) from aloft in a barrel, which bursts its timbers and discloses the amusing pair. This is followed by Idle Jack's heroic, but of course immensely funny, finish for the Marathon Race. Mr. Foy (Idle Jack), whose success throughout is beyond question, here sings "My girl's promised to marry me when I've got a hundred pounds." Next, Dick seeks the Captain, and signs on; likewise the Cat "signs on." And then we see Old London Docks, with the good ship Pitch and Toss lying at anchor and the handsomely-dressed crowds on holiday bent. Drew and Alders here give a quarter of an hour's capital entertainment with their speciality, and Bottles, arrayed as a naval officer, leaps into still greater popularity than before in the song "There's a locket in your pocket." Dick's farewell to Alice on the Embankment finishes the first half. Here the curtain is raised again, and a very pretty effect was gained by showing the ship in the distance at night, lights up, with Alice standing on the quay looking wistfully at the speeding bark.

Scene 7, the Palace of the Emperor of Morocco (Mr. W. R. Young), is one of exceeding and quite barbaric splendour, the music also partaking of the barbaric, and the throng of langorous beauties and singing girls helps up the picture. Here the Emperor (Mr. Eric Campbell, of splendid physique and voice) appears with his daughter, Princess Rosydawn (Miss Ethel Negretti), who is endowed with all the graces of beauty, voice, and Terpsichore. Here arrive the shipwrecked crew, whom the Emperor threatens to throw to "the mad footballers" unless they rid him of the rats which vex his soul and deplete his larder. This is done, and Dick is rewarded with a ship's cargo of gold. In this scene the Princess makes violent love to Idle Jack, afterwards singing "A tiny seed of love" in a fine, ringing voice. Here also Lupino Lane's (Bottles) eccentric dance, eke Wee Wallace's (Kazrac) clever steps, won the audience; indeed, the latter dances with the ability of one thrice his age. Dick (Miss Arundale) here sings "A waltz, waltz, waltz!" cleverly and humorously worked up, and gracefully withal. Next we are en route for England with the Emperor and his suite, and after a song, "Boodleum," from the Cook, Messrs. Drew and Alders while away the moments as burlesque conjurers. Next, Wee Wallace shows his marvellous ability in "Carolina Brown," supported handsomely by Mr. Bert Coote's Marigny Troupe, a charming and clever bevy of lady dancers. Miss Violet Baynton, the Fairy, also won applause with "My pretty piece of Dresden china," and then we are back at the Fitzwarrens', who are in penury, and whom Dick has come to surprise with his weath and position as Lord Mayor. "Michael McGininity" is another vocal success here for Miss Arundale. This scene is enlivened by Pussy's excursion around the ledge of the private boxes and dress circle, and Mr. Whittaker, the personator, for his temerity was admired not only by the children but everybody else for the diversion it caused. Another song from Mr. Reynolds, the Cook, entitled "Goodbye, Mr. Teddy Bear," and we are in a Quiet Corner (Scene 10) laughing uproariously at Mr. Tom Foy as a juggiery assistant, in which rôle he "makes good" for the crockery trade. The last scene of all is the Guildhall, and most brilliant it is with its procession of ancient trade guilds of London, presenting all the glories of an historical pageant. Here Dick is united to his Alice, and all ends "happy and glorious."

Mr. Tom Foy's Idle Jack is an unqualified success, the audience taking to him and his peculiar form of humour instantly. Miss Sybil Arundale possesses all the attributes of a successful Dick, and her histrionic ability, singing, and dancing won the highest admiration. Mr. John Power as Fitzwarren never lets things flag for a moment while he is on the stage. Mr. Arthur Reynolds is very successful as the Cook, doing a large amount of work well. Mr. Fred Whittaker, most excellent of tabbies, is the joy of the children. He more than gets into the skin of the part, he gets into the very heart of it. Lupino Lane is a youthful performer whose promise is unbounded. His success as Bottles is already assured and his popularity great. Mr. Harry Lupino makes a formidable King Rat, and Wee Wallace is another young artist who promises well. Needless to say, he is a big favourité now. Miss Ethel Negretti (the Princess) is an artist of great charm, her graceful gestures, lovely voice, and good looks making her a most "desirable parti" with the audience. Miss Ada Whittaker is admired for her graceful carriage as Tommy Tapes, the dandy; and Mr. Ted Foy, Mr. John Foy, Mr. E. Delfosse, and Mr. W. E. Gulson's Bow Bells Quartet shine in addition to those mentioned in the description above. The pantomime is produced by Mr. Herbert Cottesmore, and that a pantomime so elaborate and gorgeous should be produced in such a state of perfection and without a single hitch is its own testimonial. The "book" is by Mr. Philip Rodway, the Royal acting-manager, and Mr. Douglas Buchanan, who have collaborated to good purpose. The costumes are by Wilhelm and Crafter, and executed by an eminent firm in Paris, and Obronski and Co., of London.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT BIRMINGHAM.

There is no need to feign admiration of Mr. Lester Collingwood's sixth annual pantomime at the Alexandra. Little Red Riding Hood is distinctly the best he has yet produced for his Birmingham friends. Scene 1, The Village of Sweedledale, which is full of the wolf and his depredations, is a splendid rural setting. The villagers, in their gay costumes, sing a rousing opening chorus led by the Tivoli Girls, who do a smart skipping-rope dance. Prince Roseleaf (Miss Ivey Roze) and Margery Daw (Miss Joyce Stevens), the second lovers, join in a duet, "If your hair was not so curly," and prove themselves capital vocalists and dancers. Then comes Colin (Miss Ellaline Thorne) singing "Have you got another girl like Mary?" with decided distinction. Simple Simon (Mr. George Penn), whom the Baron retains for his "fell work," next appears, causing great diversion, followed by Little Red Riding Hood (little Maudie Olmar), who at once pleased with her pretty little speech. Next Jimmy Green and Peter Piper (Messrs. Stephens and Rennior) entered, and at once sent the audience into paroxysms of mirth. The Baron (Mr. Frank Blythe) now enters, bent on securing some "papers," which Dame Durden (Mr. Albert Schafer) possesses. To this end he is in league with the Wolf (Mr. Frank Bolger), who is intent on the death of both the Dame and Red Riding Hood. The Baron sings "Put me on an island where there are no girls," whereon he is "evil entreated" through suffragists, and great is the diversion thereof. A trio for the Baron and Jimmy Green and Peter Piper follows, entitled "Of course not! Very well then"; and then Greeba (Miss Winifred Norman) sings "Under the linden tree," with all the volubility and high spirits of the Dutch girl character now so popular. The Baron calls to his aid Simon, Peter, and Jimmy to evict the Dame, but she proves one too many. Scene 2, The Corridor in the Castle, enables Mr. Geo. Penn to utilise his gifts as a raconteur, which are very considerable, and he also sings "Go to sleep" with very amusing effect. Here enters Roseleaf (Miss Ivey Roze) singing "Every fellow's in love with a girl" with a nice agreeable voice and a capital swing. Messrs. Stevens and Rennior vouchsafed a duet, "He said all right, I'll do it," which made a great hit. Scene 3, The Market-place of Sweedledale, is another highly pleasing set, and is marked by the arrival of the Dame, marketing bent. She sings "My troubles," which is replete with entertaining experience. A duet, "Star of my life," for Margery (Miss Joyce Stevens) and the Wolf (Mr. Frank Bolger) followed, in which the rich full voices of both came out with effect. "Won't you waltz the Merry Widow waltz?" in which singing and dancing vied in excellence, brought Colin (Miss Ellaline Thorne) and Miss Muffit (Miss Dolly Denton) more applause and floral tributes to boot. An exceedingly pretty gipsy dance was done by the Tivoli Girls, and Little Red Riding Hood (Maudie Olmar) sang "Baby Bunting," when it was at once seen that the little lady, who is but eleven, had been trained and coached to the point of perfection, her singing and dancing evoking quite a demonstration of approval. Nevertheless, she is snatched up by the Wolf and carried off. "The old French bonnet," by the Baron (Mr. Frank Blythe) proved a pretty song, pleasantly sung, and was eminently popular. Meanwhile the pursuit of the Wolf grows hot, relieved by the clever playing of Mr. Geo. Penn (Simon) on a pair of common or fire bellows, plus some clever imitations on the violin, interspersed with smart jokes. The Wolf's Lair is quite a desirable spot of rustic beauty as depicted by the artist, and here Colin and his friends come to seek the little maid, Red Riding Hood. Here Miss Thorne's distinctly mellifluous voice came out again splendidly in "A tiny seed of love," and Red Riding Hood being discovered, she, out of her gratitude, naturally gave another clever song and dance, which met with clamorous applause. The good fairy Brightstar (Miss Daisy Clements) added to the harmony of the situation with "Master Cupid," which was followed by a butterfly dance from the graceful Tivoli Girls, with the chorus arrayed as birds of gorgeous plumage. But, alas, Red Riding Hood has again fallen into the clutches of the Wolf, though nothing can detract from the gaiety of the scene. In scene 6, Outside Dame Durden's Cottage, Miss Muffit (Miss Dollie Denton), the principal girl, who has ere this made several hits during the night, notably in "Waiting," has a pretty song, entitled "Love light," which brings her many ardent advances from the audience. Then the Wolf (Mr. Frank Bolger) sang "Revenge" in a voice of rare power and quality. He is joined by the Baron, who to aid him in his quest for "the papers," seeks to secure the volatile Greeba, who at once sings of "Mr. Schmidt" with true Dutch humour. In scene 7, Inside Dame Durden's Cottage, the Musical Schafers give their renowned speciality act, and Miss Ellaline Thorne sings "Don't put your umbrella up till it rains" in a strikingly pretty dress, coming out strongly as a dancer. The Dame retires to rest but is disturbed by the marauders, Peter and Jimmy, in search of "the papers." Anon, the Wolf appears, and the Dame disappears, to reappear later on, Red Riding Hood being saved from the Wolf's maw. Scene 8, The Reception Lobby, is occupied with the Baron's amorous but rejected advances to Miss Muffit, and the song, "I was lonely," which Miss Ivey Roze, as the Prince Roseleaf, sings with her usual happy expression; while Messrs. Stephens and Rennior show more of their prowess as dancing and knockabout comedians. The final scene, The Great Reception Room, is a veritable marble hall of rare beauty, with its variegated lights, rich colouring, enhanced by the gay dresses of the chorus and principals. The speciality here is that of the Molasso Troupe, who with their truly terrific whirlwind dances and evolutions raise a hurricane of huzzas.

There is no need to recapitulate after the above, though Mr. Frank Blythe as the Baron is to be commended as a pleasing innovation. He is not the conventional Baron, but a fine singer, with a "musical comedy" appearance. The book is well written by Mr. Frank Ayrton; the scenic effects must enhance the fame of that clever artist, Mr. Edward Hall; Mr. Herbert Barnes' part is also incalculable, he, as conductor, carried the pantomime safely through, and his overture and orchestration is good.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT BRADFORD.

None of Mr. Laidler's praiseworthy efforts in the way of pantomime has held out greater promise of success or started more auspiciously than Red Riding Hood, which was presented to a crowded audience at the Prince's on Christmas Eve. Mr. Arthur W. Field, the author of the "book," has supplied a genuine fairy story, which is compact, distinctly original in its treatment, and the dialogue is brimful of screamingly funny puns and local allusions. The striking and very effective scenery is the work of Messrs. E. Egerton, Elkan Bros., and Obronski; Mr. Harry Rushworth has put together a lot of popular airs, and has also composed some effective music for the production, which opens with The Lair of the Wolves. King Wolf is an outlaw, and a price is set upon his head; he wants a dainty dish, and on a vision of Red Riding Hood appearing, he vows to eat her. He is cautioned, however, by Fairy Truelove to beware, and war to the knife is declared between the two. The scene changes to Merryvale Hall, a very fine bit of painting. There is revelry here, and the pastoral surroundings are pretty and gay. After some funny business with Mother Hubbard, who owes her rent to the Baron and Baroness, the thread of the story is resumed by Red Riding Hood entering. She has been frightened by the Wolf, but she finds a protector in Prince Alluria, who falls in love with her. The Wolf is in league with the Baron and Baroness, and we are taken to The Baron's Picture Gallery, where there is more plotting against Red Riding Hood, who has been furnished with a magic brooch by the Fairy to protect her against harm. On her way to the Dame's cottage she gets lost in The Frozen Wood, and is sought for in vain by the Prince and his retinue. Fairy Truelove changes the scene to The Fairies' Glade, and a brilliant Floral Ballet ends the first act. Act 2 opens with a pretty and effective scene, The Market-place of Merryvale. A reward is offered by the Prince for the head of the Wolf, who is following Red Riding Hood to Granny's cottage, where the nursery tale is told in the orthodox way, the culminating point being the killing of the Wolf by the Prince, who is united to Red Riding Hood, all ending happily in The Royal Palace of Alluria, a very gorgeous scene of great beauty and brilliance.

Mr. Harry T. Butler, who has stage-managed the production, has done his work well, for the initial performance went without a hitch. Miss Lottie Stone's Six Parisienne Belles dance charmingly, and amongst the many specialities introduced, a children's Maypole Dance is pretty, a Ballet of Floral Fays is very charming, a children's scena "Policemen and Cooks" is a quaint conception. The Grand March of the Knights of Alluria is very effectively arranged. The Brothers Elvio's act is very funny, and a coon act by the children, "Mandy's Wedding," is capitally done. The costumes are very effective. Miss Florrie Forde makes a striking figure as the Prince, and wears some pretty and costly "creations"; her songs are popular, "Oh! oh! Antonio," "Is everybody happy here," and "Only a dream" are amongst her best efforts. Miss Susie Belmore is a charming and graceful Red Riding Hood, who is already an established favourite with her audience. Mr. J. A. Wilson fills the part of King Wolf with intense dramatic power; Miss May Harriss is a very pretty Fairy Truelove. There is considerable humour in the Baron Wrumlotte of Mr. Allan Carruthers, and Miss Marie West is effective as the Baroness. Mr. Bert Byrne is an old favourite, and his Mother Hubbard is delightfully quaint and original. Mr. James Ross Elvio as Jimmy Green and Mr. Harry Elvio as Johnny Stout contribute most diverting comedy. Mr. Will Lindsay, with his Yorkshire dialect and quaint mannerisms, is particularly amusing. Mr. Walter Buxton's voice is heard to advantage in the part of Simon the Cellarer. As Martha Ann Miggs Miss Victoria Cross is remarkably quaint. Miss Grace Elvo is an imposing figure as the Equerry, the Hon. Bertie Blueblud. Miss Lily Beagle is a pretty Margery Daw, and Mr. C. H. B. Churton's impersonation of the Dog and Mr. Frank Robinson's Bear add considerably to the fun of the pantomime, for which a long run is predicted.

"JACK AND JILL" AT BRADFORD.

Jack and Jill is this year the subject of Mr. John Hart's annual pantomime, which was most successfully produced at the Theatre Royal on Christmas Eve. Mr. T. F. Doyle is again the author of the book, and he has displayed excellent taste and much originality in his treatment of the legend. The story is compact, and the dialogue teems with humour. In the abode of the Demon Gloom we learn that nineteen years ago King Pomposo's son was carried off by Sir Randolph de Homer, in revenge for a fancied slight, and that the child was left on the doorstep of Dame Horner, his deserted wife. Gloom saw the transaction, and as he hated the King, he took from the neck of the infant a lucky sixpence (which had been placed there by the Fairies on the night of his birth), and placed it round the neck of the infant son of a fool of the village, Silly Billy, who afterwards becomes a servant in the King's palace, along with the hero of the story. The King, who has sought his lost child in vain, is told in a dream that his heir is a scullion in the Royal kitchen, and, on inquiry, he finds that Billy is in possession of the lucky sixpence, and he at once acknowledges him as his heir. Billy persecutes Dame Horner's daughter Jill with his attentions, although he is engaged to a kitchen-maid, Mary-Mary; he is also jealous of Little Jack Horner, the supposed son of the Dame, and he persuades the King to dismiss him, and also to turn the Dame and Jill out of their cottage, and by these means he hopes to persuade Jill, when she is homeless, to marry him; but Jill is faithful to Jack, and Billy is defied. Sir Randolph reappears in the disguise of The Unknown, and he recognises Jack as the child he left at the door of the wife he deserted. He tells the Dame of the true parentage of her adopted child, although he can't explain how it is that Billy possesses the lucky sixpence. Jack finds a friend in Fairy Sunshine, who tells him that he will find a golden plum in his Christmas pie, and that by its aid he can reach the Magic Well on the hill in Poppyland, from which he is to bring a pail of water and present it to the King as a sure remedy for the gout, from which His Majesty suffers. Jack is anxious to do all the good he can, and along with Jill the journey to the well is made. On the way, Billy and his myrmidons rob Jack of the plum; but he and Jill climb the hill, and secure the magic water. In the descent, however, they come tumbling down, Jack's crown is hurt, and the water is lost, at which the Demon rejoices, and the hill and well vanish. Sunshine, however, promises Jack further help, and the first act closes with a charming Ballet of Sunflowers and a Tableau of Phœbus in his magnificent car, attended by Dawn and Morning, a climax of great beauty and brilliance.

In the second act we find that Jill has been carried off by Billy, and she is a prisoner in the Palace. The King is appealed to by Jack and the Dame, to no purpose; but he makes it known that Jill shall marry the man who first succeeds in procuring the water from the well, and that he shall succeed to the throne. Billy seeks the Demon's aid; he is furnished with an enchanted pail, and told how to find the well. Jack follows him, and Billy and his men threaten Jack; but the Unknown turns up in time, and Billy is compelled to give up the pail of water, the lucky sixpence, and the plum. Billy then accuses Jack of robbery, and he is put in prison, but he is released by Sunshine. The Unknown now reveals himself, and the King orders his execution during a fit of the gout, when Jack enters with the magic water. A drink restores the King to health, Jack's story is told by the Unknown and the Dame, he is acknowledged as the rightful heir, and he and Jill are united.

A great feature of the production is the beautiful scenery. The opening scene, The Abode of Gloom, by Mr. D. G. Hall, the resident artist, is an Egyptian interior, copied from the Muemnonium, and is a fine, vigorous bit of work. The second scene, The Royal Kitchen, by Mr. George Jackson, of Bristol, is a bold, telling example of scenic art. Mr. Hall's Sylvan Glade is a bit of lovely pastoral scenery; and his Dame's Kitchen is a quaint conception. The Way to the Well is prettily painted by Mr. Jackson. Scene 6 consists of three distinct pictures, which are artistically treated by Mr. R. C. Oldham, viz., Poppyland, Hill and Well (Night), The Lily Dell (Dawn), and The Sunflower Glade (Morning). The final tableaux of the first act are marvels of effective colouring and grouping by Mr. Jackson, and the electric lighting is dazzling; and amongst other fine specimens of artistic skill particularly striking in the second act are The Racecourse, The Reception Room in the Palace, The Fairy Forest, and The Hall of Knights, by Messrs. Hall and Oldham, who have surpassed themselves in the solidity and fidelity of their work. We have nothing but praise for the costumes, which are in perfect taste, gorgeous in colour, and very charming in their multiplicity and design. Mme. Royce, who has this year arranged the ballets, groupings, and children's entertainments, has accomplished her difficult task with skill. Mr. C. W. Chambers, the conductor of the orchestra, has selected and arranged some charming music and catchy melodies. There is fun galore, and Mr. Doyle, who is mainly responsible for the production, may be congratulated on the success of the initial representation. Mr. Charles Norton as King Pomposo quickly won favour with his excellent racecourse sketch, his clever imitations of music hall celebrities and his song, "After you with the girl." As Augustus Count Caramel, Miss Edie Rivers is sprightly, and her song, "Sue, Sue, Sue," goes well. There is originality in Mr. Jack Cromo's style as Dame Horner; he is very funny. His song, "I will, I won't," is a capital number; he is irresistible in his "Directoire Dress" skit and his Suffragette speech. Miss Vera Vere is a charming Jill, and her song, "Humpty Dumpty," is a bright effort. As Little Jack Horner Miss Vera Vere is vivacious and sprightly, and her song, "Over the garden wall," is amongst her best efforts. Mr. Albert Le Fre, who is the Unknown, alias Sir Randolph de Horner, is a host in himself, and his resources are endless; his "Scare-crow" song and dance is clever, he has some screamingly funny business with a jug, and his character sketches are very mirth-provoking—in fact, it is a laugh all the time he is on the stage. Mr. Josh Dixon is a quaint Yorkshire dialect comedian, who is funny as Billy Badlot, with two capital songs, "The Yorkshire Girl" and "Well, well, well." As Mary-Mary Miss Minna Merry is quaint and grotesque. The Haytors (Arthur and Frank), as Snivel and Drivel, are remarkable exponents of the leg-mania style of dancing. Miss Winnie Haytor acceptably filling the part of Marjory Daw. Mr. Albert Chapman renders the rôle of Gloom with power, and his voice is heard to advantage in the song, "Cigarette." "The tiny seed of love" is the best vocal effort of Miss Winifred Wyndham, who is the charming Fairy Sunshine.

"ALADDIN" AT GRAND THEATRE, BRIGHTON.

So many pantomime successes have been achieved at the Grand Theatre, Brighton, that it is not surprising the production of Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp at that popular house on Christmas Eve was another distinct triumph; it evoked great enthusiasm, and Aladdin is undoubtedly one of the best of the pantomimes which have been seen upon the local boards during a long series of years. Written and invented by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carpenter, the pantomime presented the leading features of the well-worn story; it was produced by Mr. Charles Lake, under the personal supervision of the acting-manager, Mr. Ben Court; the new and elaborate scenery was painted by Messrs. D. B. Young and H. L. Lee; the sparkling and melodious music was composed and arranged by Signor G. D. La Camera; the children were trained and the ballets arranged by Mme. Lottie Stone; the costumes were by Miss A. Clarence and her assistants; the mechanical effects were by Mr. W. Blades; the properties by Messrs. E. Frape and Darby; and the electrical effects by Messrs. Hammond and Morley. The pantomime, which ran brightly and smoothly from start to finish, possesses those elements which are necessary to ensure complete success. The songs—humorous and sentimental—and the duets were admirable; the fun afforded by the leading comedians was of a healthy and mirth-provoking character; the dancing was graceful and exhilarating; the dresses handsome; and the spectacular displays, in conjunction with the splendid scenery, were marked by artistic finish that could scarcely have been improved. The first scene to claim special attention was The Market-place, Pekin, an elaborately-arranged set, replete with rich colouring, which harmonised with the blending hues of the pretty costumes. The Cave, a veritable store-house of brilliant gems, was rendered additionally attractive by the charmingly dressed ballet of bats; while The Gardens of the Emperor's Palace was associated with a beautiful "feast of lanterns," in which pretty dances were again prominent. The final scene, Aladdin's Palace, carried off the palm for gorgeous colouring, beautiful dresses, artistic groupings of handsome chorus girls, and cleverly executed electrical effects—a fitting close to a most enjoyable evening. The representations of the various characters merit unstinted praise. Miss Aimée Roberts as Aladdin makes a dashing and vivacious principal boy. She looked the part to perfection, and, though apparently suffering from a cold, gave evidence of the possession of a pleasing and well-trained soprano voice. She was highly effective in the song "Make yourself at home," but won her greatest success in "The soft wind sighs among the trees," one of Signor G. D. La Camera's choice compositions. Miss Blanche Marion made a graceful and refined Princess Badroulbadour, and gave very tasteful rendering of her songs, being especially effective in "Come be my Rainbow"; while her dainty and nimble dancing evoked frequent and cordial applause. The love duets of Aladdin and the Princess were also much admired. Mr. Leo Sterling as the Emperor of China was a host in himself, and, with Miss Addie Love, the Slave of the Lamp, contributed musical specialities, which were among the most pleasing features of the pantomime. Mr. Sterling, an expert executant of solos on the one stringed violin, cornet, bugle, and post-horn, won well-deserved applause; while Miss Addie Love whose artistic vocalisation was not surpassed during the pantomime, was particularly brilliant in "My Bombardier." Mr. Edwin Garth scored heavily as the voluble Widow Twankey, whose merry laugh elicited responsive laughter among the audience. He pattered in very humorous style and was highly amusing in his songs "Study your cookery book" and "We've lost our happy little home." Messrs. Bennett and Martell as Tip Pi and Wot Toe respectively, were responsible for some of the most entertaining fun of the evening. They might reasonably be termed, from their physical proportions, "the long and the short of it." The taller one is a clever high-kicker and contortionist, and the shorter one is droll in voice and gesture. They made a great hit in their burlesque sailor speciality, and while they occupied the boards the house rippled with laughter. Miss Jennie Albert as Pekoe and Miss Rosie Albert as Pitti Sing contributed some pleasing duets and dances; and Miss Cassie Clare was an attractive Slave of the Ring.

Mr. Frank Dunlop merits warm praise for his impersonation of Abanazar: he was full of life, and found great favour with the audience by his capital rendering of the comic song "Daring deeds." Much pleasure was afforded by the Lottie Stone quartet of dancers, who were seen at their best in their quick-change act, which included characteristic songs and dances. The choruses were grandly sung, the evolutions were marked by precision, and the members of the orchestra, under the tactful conductorship of Signor G. D. La Camera, acquitted themselves admirably. It may confidently be anticipated that Aladdin will have a long and prosperous run.

"SYLVIA IN SUNLAND" AT BRIGHTON.

A very hearty reception was given to the musical fairy play, Sylvia in Sunland, by the large audience in the Brighton West Pier Theatre on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 24, when it was produced under the direction of Mr. Trevor Lowe, with Mr. Walter Cross as stage-manager, and the performance, although denominated a "public dress rehearsal," ran so smoothly and with such a graceful swing that the play will, doubtless, enjoy a long and prosperous career. Written by Norman Page, the libretto is smart, and conveys a charming story, while the music, by Bernard Page, who is also responsible for the verses, is melodious and refined. The special electric lighting effects and properties are by Messrs. G. Sheppard and C. Robins, and the new and original costumes by Mme. Markwick and Messrs. B. and H. Drury. Especial praise must be given to the scenery. The set descriptive of a Sussex Cornfield, with its busily-working windmill, is a delightful stage-picture; while others deserving praiseworthy notice are Among the Suns and The Palace of the Golden Cloud. After a short prologue we are introduced to a country scene, where a number of mischievous youngsters are enjoying themselves, thanks to the Fresh Air Fund, but at the same time are exciting the anger of Farmer Jerry and his man, Josher. Chivvy, a London street Arab, meets Sylvia, the farmer's daughter, and the pair, who quickly become friends, make up their minds to endeavour to brighten the lives of slum children. They are aided by the Spirit of Kindness, and set out on a journey to the fairy land ruled by King Never-Come-to-the-Point, to secure the flowers of happiness. The Imp of Mischief, Scratch-Jahr, dogs their footsteps, and does his utmost to thwart them. They, however, pass successfully through Sleepy Hollow, Nodland, The Lair of the Lizzard (where Chivvy kills King Lizzard), and The Land of Cockles and Mussels, and, reaching the Foot of the Sunbeam Ladder, gain access to the Palace of the Golden Cloud, where Chivvy and Sylvia become King and Queen, and impart happiness to myriads of poor children. Mr. Trevor Lowe and his well-selected company acquit themselves to the complete enjoyment of the audience. Miss Gladys Storey gives a charming and delightful impersonation of Sylvia, and displays very tasteful vocalisation. She is sure to become a great favourite owing to her bright and winsome personality. Mr. Donald Calthrop submits an earnest and convincing enactment of Chivvy; while Mr. George Howard as Farmer Jerry and Mr. Edmund Baker as the farm labourer, Josher, are well suited, and evoke many a hearty laugh with their drolleries and quaint patter. Mr. Trevor Lowe, who may be warmly and deservedly congratulated upon the success of the production, is responsible for an excellent portrayal of the lazy King Never-Come-to-the-Point; Mrs. A. B. Tapping achieves great success as Lady Huntworth and Queen Snore; and Mr. J. Edward Pearce makes the most of his opportunities as the Rev. Canon Colchester and the Lord Chamberlain. Miss Alys Rees is graceful and sympathetic as the Spirit of Kindness; Miss Clara Earle is a lively and attractive Scratch-Jahr; and commendable support is rendered by Mr. Thomas Lind (King Kangaroo), Mr. Penn Hamilton (Jack-o-Lantern), Miss Verner Dean (Tom), and Miss Dorothy Mason (Effie).

"ALADDIN" AT BRISTOL.

There was a large attendance at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, on Christmas Eve, when Mr. J. M. Chute produced the forty-second pantomime at this theatre, and as a coincidence it may be remarked that the title of the first pantomime produced here, in 1867-68, was also Aladdin. The "book" is the joint work of Messrs. R. Courtneidge and A. M. Thompson, and the lyrics are by Messrs. Charles Taylor and Dudley Smith. The well-known story of Aladdin is worked out in eleven scenes:—The Tombs, Egypt, Street in Chang Li Hang, Exterior of Palace, Interior of Palace, Outside the Cave, The Cave, Shop of Widow Twankey, Gardens of Aladdin's Palace, Emperor's Palace, Court of Justice, and Chrysanthemum Fête, all excellent work by Mr. George Jackson and Mr. Conrad Tritschler. The charming costumes are designed by Wilhelm, and executed by Miss Shapcott, Mrs. Bristowe, and assistants, and Miss Fisher, London. The music has been arranged, selected, and composed by Mr. G. R. Chapman. The ballets and incidental dances are arranged by Miss Kate Brandon; the machinery and mechanical effects by Mr. H. Wilson; the elaborate properties and paraphernalia by Mr. H. Momber; and the electric lighting and dioramic effects are by Mr. Arthur Bawn. The harmony of colour in the various groups and the stage management generally reflects much credit upon Mr. Henry Tromer, the producer of the pantomime, who was assisted by Mr. David Fisher, jun.; and the entire production has been under the personal supervision of Mr. James Macready Chute. With his usual good fortune Mr. Chute has got together an excellent company; they all work hard and so successfully that the opening performance went without a hitch. Miss Ouida Macdermott, as Aladdin, makes a handsome and graceful principal boy; she acts with much dramatic skill, and with such earnestness that now and again one is induced to forget for the moment that it is "only pantomime." Miss Macdermott speaks her lines admirably, she sings her songs in a pleasing and artistic manner, and in all respects plays the part for "all it is worth." Miss Deborah Volar is pleasing as the Princess En-Chan-Ting; she acts sufficiently for the part, has a very pleasing singing voice, which she uses in refined and artistic style in all her songs. Miss Topsy Sinden is cast for Yu-Bu-Tee, Daughter of the Moon, and, though the part is not of vast importance, her dainty style and pleasing appearance makes it interesting. Miss Sinden executes several dances in her well-known graceful manner; these are all appreciated, but a highly dramatic veil dance, in the Cave scene, "brought down the house" on Christmas Eve. Miss Daisy Lloyd Wood has a smart comedy part in Our Mary Ann (from London). She has a chic and attractive style, she sings her songs with expression, and dances prettily. Mr. W. H. Powell as Widow Twankey keeps the audience amused, and, while avoiding being "too funny," is always entertaining. In the second part of the pantomime Mr. Powell has a burlesque Salome dance, which took immensely. Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe makes the most of Pekoe. He has several good songs, which he sings well. Mr. Alfred Clark plays the Emperor of China in the usual broad comedy style; he is evidently a merry monarch if somewhat avaricious. Mr. Bransby Williams impersonates Abanazar in quaint dramatic style, if on unconventional lines. His Magician is a fine performance, with a touch of weirdness about it, but it would be much more effective in Oriental costume. Mr. Williams also successfully introduces imitations of popular actors, and also some character sketches. Miss Florence Foster is smart and taking as Ah-Sing, both singing and dancing acceptably. Miss Flora Gordon is a stately Slave of the Lamp; Mr. Jocelyn Hope as the Genie of the Ring speaks his lines well, and has an effective dramatic style quite in keeping with the part, which is somewhat prominent in this pantomime; Mr. Walter Fairbrother and Mr. Herbert Uzielli are capable exponents of Amenophis and Zoroaster; and Miss Nellie Palmer and Miss Sabina Guiver look stately and attractive as Love and Power in the Cave scene.

The chorus has been considerably strengthened in this pantomime; evidently some of the voices are exceptionally good, and they do their work effectively. Very appropriate incidental music has been composed by Mr. G. R. Chapman in his best style, much of it being far superior to what is usually expected in pantomime, and his very capable orchestra did full justice to his compositions on the opening night. The costumes are superb, being rich in material, tasteful in design, and most effective in the way of blending of colours. High commendation is deserved for the scenery, consisting in the main of heavy and complicated sets, the Oriental style always affording scope both for the picturesque and imposing when in the hands of such competent scenic artists as Mr. George Jackson and Mr. Conrad Tritschler. In the Cave scene exceptionally effective tableaux of Wealth, Power, Fame, Glory, and Pleasure are introduced, the object being the temptation of Aladdin, and it would be very hard to go "one better" than these tableaux in the way of chasteness of design, perfection of posing, and harmony of colour. The concluding scene, Chrysanthemum Fête, is one blaze of electric light at the finish, the effect being most grand and imposing, the principals, ballet, extra ladies, &c., being all dressed most magnificently. Mr. Chute had an enthusiastic call at the close of the pantomime, his hearty reception being very gratifying.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD" AT BRISTOL.

This pantomime was produced at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, on Christmas Eve, the first performance going very smoothly. The pantomime is written and arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carpenter; the medley overture and incidental music are composed, selected, and arranged by Mr. Edwin Jacobs; the costumes are designed by Miss Clarence and Miss Douglas, mechanical effects by Mr. Harry Blake, properties by Mr. S. Miller, and electrical effects by Mr. George Brummell. The entire pantomime was produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Ernest Carpenter, and it is effectively stage-managed by Mr. Ivor Harvey. The company is evidently a hard-working one, and full justice was done to the respective parts on the opening night. Miss Ethel Hall is pleasing as Boy Blue, she both singing and dancing well; Miss Marie Free acts in excellent style as Margery Daw; and Miss Daisy Dennis acts remarkably well as Red Riding Hood. She has some pretty songs and dances, which are much appreciated. Miss Violet Gillis and Miss Gertie Hall both do excellently in their respective parts of Jack Horner and Miss Muffit; Mr. Frank Hemming displays considerable ability as Baron Baddelot; Messrs. Crosby and Walker are amusing as Johnny Stout and Jimmy Green; Mr. K. Scott-Barrie makes a good part of Dame Trot—he is always amusing, though not too boisterous; Mr. Frank Victor impersonates the Wolf in good style, his singing being much applauded; Master Thomas Johnson causes considerable fun as the Teddy-bear; Miss Rose Challis and Miss Nellie Danvers are successful as Tommy Tucker and Peter Piper; and Miss Margaret Webster looks imposing as the Rose Queen. The Silvan Quartette (the Misses Maggie Davis, Ethel Morgan, Marie Lind, and Ethel Hodgson) execute difficult dances effectively; and clever speciality dances are given by the Misses Lee and Clifton. The scenery is excellent, reflecting much credit upon Mr. W. J. Cox, the resident scenic artist. They are entitled The Witches' Cave, Village of Heydowndery, Buttercup Dell, The Wood, Red Riding Hood's Nursery, Fairy Land, Glade in the Wood, Dame Trot's Kitchen, Outside Dame Trot's Cottage, and Palace of Delight. The costumes are tasteful, and in the final scene of the pantomime both rich and elegant. Numerous pretty specialities of song and dance are introduced by the principals, and obtain full appreciation.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT CARDIFF.

There was a packed Bank Holiday audience on Saturday afternoon, when Mr. Balmain opened his first pantomime season in Cardiff. The subject chosen is Babes in the Wood, presented by Mr. Charles Chard. The book has been specially written for this theatre by Mr. J. L. Barry, who deserves more than a word of praise for placing before Cardiffians a neat and concise version of the well-known adventures of the two babes. The management have spared no trouble or expense to make the performance a success, and a very pretty show indeed has been put on. It is full of fun, gaiety, and good humour, and is in the hands of a really clever and capable set of artists, who make the very best of the parts assigned to them. The scenery of this production is very striking. The Enchanted Glade in the Heart of the Forest has a most pleasing effect, being not too gorgeously set up, but sufficiently coloured to be artistic. The Banqueting Hall is also realistically portrayed. The costumes are of a high order; the taste displayed in this direction is certainly worthy of note. The romantic part of Robin Hood is undertaken by Miss Marie Burdell with a dash and convincing style quite acceptable, and it is safe to say she will soon establish herself as a prime favourite. Her song "Antonio" is her best, and, although her numbers generally are rendered in too quiet a manner, this will, no doubt, improve as the pantomime progresses. A success from start to finish is Miss Nellie Lunelle, the principal girl, Maid Marian, her sprightliness and breezy interpretation of the part calling forth well-merited applause. Her songs are extremely well sung, "Drummer Boy," a catchy ditty, being rendered with much spirit and military dash. The sisters Jessie and Lily St. Julian, as Little John and Merry Mavis, are artists of ability, their dancing being first class and the duet, "Sue, Sue," sung in an excellent manner. Miss Ivy Sinclair as Will Scarlet makes the most of her opportunities; and a captivating rendition of Lavinia is tastefully given by Miss Linda Dunlo. Miss Marion Hood as Allan-a-Dale and Miss Dora Phillips as Sylvania show much promise. The two Babes are represented by Miss Lily Belle (Harold) and Miss Violet Chard (Lucy). The latter is a talented young actress; her singing and dancing, of fine quality, are decidedly one of the successes of the piece. Miss Belle's bare-footed dance is noteworthy. A number of clever comedians are constantly causing fun and laughter, their songs, gags, and patter evoking hearty merriment. Chief of the comedians is Mr. Charles Chard, his impersonation of Razzle Dazzle being brimful of wholesome humour. Mr. Robert Williams as Sir Broker de Pawn is funny from start to finish; while Mr. Arthur Budd is much at home as Friar Tuck, his fine baritone voice gaining for him enviable applause. The ruthless villains, Burgling Bill and Gentle Georgie, put forward by Jerry Driscoll and James McGrath respectively, are cleverly expounded, the eccentric sham fight in the woods being irresistibly droll. Mr. Mac Norton as Arcnianta Koffcake is also very good. A pleasing item is that of the American Quartette of Lady Dancers (principal dancer, Miss Maude Clarke), and the Two Dominos (clown and donkey) contribute an amusing interlude. All-round, the production is an unqualified success, and Mr. Dick Lincoln, as general manager, and Mr. Chard are to be congratulated upon presenting one of the smartest pantomimes ever produced at the Theatre Royal.

"CINDERELLA" AT CARDIFF.

The production of the New Theatre pantomime on Boxing Day was an undoubted success, and Messrs. Robert Redford and Milton Bode must have been themselves surprised at the enthusiasm their show aroused in the holiday crowds which packed the building to its utmost capacity. The libretto of Cardiff's Cinderella has been specially written by Mr. George Rowlands, and a capital story this gentleman has succeeded in writing. The main idea of the popular fable is strictly adhered to, and the misfortunes of the fireside maid are kept well before the audience. In accord with the story is the scenery, and the several artists have proved more than equal to their responsibilities. The four outstanding sets are The Woodland Glade (S. King Alexander), The Fairy Toilet (J. A. Hicks), The Prince's Ballroom (Ernest Howard), and Cinderella's Wedding (J. A. Hicks). In each scene the blending of colours is perfect, and the admiration of the audience found vent in frequent exclamations of delight and surprise. The costumes were another source of pleasure, the taste displayed in the ballroom and wedding dresses being exquisite. The pantomime, moreover, is rich in artistic talent. Miss Moya Mannering is in the title-rôle, and achieved great success. She is an ideal Cinderella, and sings her numbers in bewitching style, her best songs being "Come round on Sunday" and "Shadowland." Miss Ida Strattam is particularly gifted for the rôle of principal boy, with a handsome figure and commanding personality. Miss Strattam combines a convincing style and dashing manner. She has, of course, several songs, but her most popular is "I want you to see my girl," which she renders with exceptional spirit. The sisters of Cinderella are entrusted to ladies, a course which has been amply justified. Miss Jennie Rubie as Mehitable and Miss Nelly Lauraine as Melpomene are remarkably amusing. Miss Lucie Lever as the Fairy Godmother achieves a prominence in the production by her excellent singing. The comedians are a happy combination of talented fun-makers. The well-known Mr. T. W. Volt is the Baroness, and a remarkably clever impersonation this gentleman presents. His "get-up" is very droll, and his airy, quaint humour was the cause of endless laughter on Boxing Day. Mr. George Brooks is allotted the part of Whiffles, the baronial retainer, and his performance is one of the funniest in the whole production. He has a capital song, entitled "Happy Land," which brings him a hearty round of applause. As the Baron Mr. Tom Fancourt is provided with ample opportunities for the display of his versatility, his funniest piece of business is his wrestling bout, a clever and exceptional performance, which thoroughly merited the uproarious applause accorded. Dandini is entrusted to Mr. Charles Hanbury, and as portrayed by such a popular artist is an improvement on the old representations by a lady. As second boy and girl, Miss Felicia Firmin and Miss Victoria Sievers are excellently placed.

A word of praise is deserved by Mr. Henry W. May, who specially composed the music; while Mr. Ed. H. Whitehall is in charge of the orchestra and chorus. Mr. George Rowlands is responsible for the production, which, however, enjoyed the personal supervision of Mr. Milton Bode. Mr. Geo. McCloskie is the stage-manager, and all concerned are to be congratulated upon a production which is certain to bring them well-deserved reward.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT CROYDON.

Mr. Roland Daniel, the esteemed manager of the Grand Theatre, Croydon, produced on Boxing Day a version of Dick Whittington which does him every credit as a good, workable pantomime, full of life and colour. The book has been entrusted to Mr. William Wade, who has told the favourite story in a straightforward manner, the dialogue, smartly and interestingly written, having in many parts a quaint and refreshing style. The story commences in Cheapside, where we are introduced to all the principal characters. Dick arrives at Alderman Fitzwarren's, footsore and weary, in search of a fortune in London. Alice takes a fancy to the homeless boy, but Idle Jack is jealous of Dick's popularity, and plots against him. Dick is accused of theft and driven from Fitzwarren's house. He makes his way to Highgate Hill, where he rests with his cat. The message of the bells induces him to turn back to London, and he is persuaded to seek his fortune in foreign parts. He lands, with his faithful cat, on the coast of Morocco, puss rids the kingdom of its plague of rats, and Dick reaps a rich reward. Returning to his native land he is in time to rescue Alice and her father from poverty. The lovers are united and their happiness complete when we leave them in all their glory at the Guildhall. Lively and tuneful music has been introduced by Mr. Fritz Hart, and this feature of the pantomime has not been neglected in the slightest degree. Melodies pleasing to the ear run throughout the piece and are admirably rendered by the augmented orchestra under Mr. Hart's bâton. The scenery is bright and artistic, and in this department Mr. A. R. Lingham may be specially commended for his really beautiful sets—Old Cheapside, Fitzwarren's Store, Highgate Hill, the Emperor's Palace, and the Guildhall. The dresses are rich and brilliant, and a fascinating chorus of pretty girls set them off to perfection. The ballets and dances, arranged by Miss Lottie Stone, deserve special mention. Miss Stone's troupe of dancers, with Miss Maud Marinelli as solo dancer, are unflagging in their Terpsichorean wonders. We can also freely compliment the stage-manager, Mr. Walter L. Rignold, and his assistant, Mr. Fred Chesham, upon their share in the success of the production.

The company has been well selected, and they work together. Miss Georgina Delmar electrifies her audience by her vigour in the title-rôle, and just touches the right note. An artist of approved talent, she is tremendously popular, whilst she has ample opportunities of displaying her attractive singing powers in such numbers as "Sue, Sue, Sue," "My dream girl," and "A tiny seed of love." Miss Ethel Lawson has a persuasive manner, and shows incessant animation as Alice Fitzwarren, winning an easy victory over her attentive listeners. Her songs, "Maidie and her little Teddy bear," "Dearest Gretchen," and "Pretty bird" are much enjoyed, and she renders them with all the necessary "go." Miss Gladys Warren's free and easy style fits the rôle of Tommy Turner to perfection, and a welcome is given to her ditties, "I don't care if there's a girl there" and "I want you to see my girl." Miss Rhoda Ray plays with grace and vivacity as the Princess of Morocco, and deserves a warm tribute of praise. Her song, "My pretty piece of Dresden china" is encored. Miss Lily Laughton enacts the part of the Fairy Queen in highly finished style, and has a sweet singing voice, and Misses Bertha Lorraine and Mabel Courtney are pretty and dainty as Hafiz and Abdul. Mr. Percy Cahill proves himself a veritable tower of strength as Jack Idle, and his business, facial expression, and quaint and curious acting win him cordial greetings. He scores with songs, "That's how I do it" (with dance), "It wasn't long before it shifted," and his wheeze "You are like our Georgie" always hits the mark. Mr. Edgar Driver is a nimble and natural cat, and altogether his is a meritorious performance. Mr. Luke Forster makes a good impression and never fails to amuse as Alderman Fitzwarren. He is never at a loss, and can hold his own with any member of the hard-working company. Mr. Maitland Marler is a side-splitting Martha Mixitt, the cook, and does himself every credit. His whimsical efforts receive the highest recognition, and his duet on topics of the day with Idle Jack, "What a terrible thing," makes a big hit. Mr. Fred Dornan contributes his full quota as the Emperor of Morocco, and his voice gives capital effect to "The little maid of Monte Carlo." Mr. Fred Solo appears as Captain Taffrail in a breezy and humorous vein, and he keeps everything lively whilst he is about. His one song and dance create a perfect hurricane of laughter. Mr. J. R. Val is very diverting as Ben Bobstay, and compels the audience to recognise the value of genuine fun. Mr. Charles Pearce is suitable as the carrier, and Mr. Fred Chesham is adequate as the Vizier. A particularly amusing feature is the harlequinade (at matinées only), full justice being done by Mr. J. R. Val as clown, Mr. Fred Solo as Pantaloon, Miss Maud Marinelli as Columbine, and Miss Louise Maitland as Harlequin. Taken altogether on its merits Mr. Roland Daniel's first annual should have a prosperous career, and we tender that gentleman our warm congratulations.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT THE METROPOLE, DEVONPORT.

Mr. G. S. King has this year supplied his patrons with an excellent pantomime. The scenes are admirably painted, the sets presenting a perfect blaze of colour. Miss Florence Carlisle is Crusoe, and the management have made an excellent choice, her acting being smart and attractive. Her vocal numbers, particularly "Ida, of Devonshire," are taken up with great enthusiasm. Miss Gertrude Blanche as Crusoe's sweetheart is particularly fascinating, and is likely to become one of the most popular members of the company; Miss Foy Desmond is a charming Fairy Queen, her singing and graceful acting being much admired. Her rendering of "Il Bacio" is rapturously encored. The Misses Kitty and Nainer Geronde make a fascinating pair as Dolly Dimple and Billy Taylor, their duet, "A little bit of Dresden china," taking well. Their accomplished dancing is also an additional attraction. Mr. Will Sherlock is a first-rate Will Atkins; Mr. Henry Eglington is responsible for roars of laughter as Mrs. Crusoe; Mr. Monte Miller gives a dramatic representation of the Stormfiend; and Mr. Fred Anderson is diverting as Tommy Tickle, steward of the Saucy Sally. Mr. J. A. Thomson has written the book, and is to be congratulated on the success attendant on his efforts. The incidental music has been arranged by Messrs. Arthur Sheldrake and Claude Yearsley.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT DUBLIN.

The popular pantomime of Robinson Crusoe, produced by Mr. Harold L. Hilliard, was received with rapturous delight by a large and enthusiastic audience at the Gaiety Theatre on Boxing Day. The book is cleverly written and up-to-date and the plot well described by Mr. Jack Winyatt, and Mr. Sydney Shaw is responsible for the catchy music which he has composed and selected. The first scene opens with Davy Jones's Locker, where Will Atkins and Davy plot against Robinson, but are opposed by the Fairy Queen. The Port of Hull is a pretty and effective set, and here we meet Mr. Crusoe, Mrs. Crusoe, Polly Perkins, and Robinson, the scene finishing with the departure of the Saucy Spanker. Scene 3 is Mrs. Crusoe's Schoolhouse, where animated incidents take place. The Deck of the Saucy Spanker is a picturesque set, and the dance of middies is exceedingly well done. Capital comedy is here contributed by Will Atkins, Mrs. Crusoe, Bo'sum and Mate, and Mr. Crusoe. Scene 5, the Open Sea, ends with a tableau, The Raft. The first part concluded with the Coral Realms of Aphrodite, with an aerial ballet the members of which distribute flowers amongst the audience. The second part opens on the Island of Orchids, where a most effective chorus is rendered, concluding with a grand Ballet of Orchids. Scene 10 is the Sea Coast and Scene 11 depicts the Hut. Another part of the island is revealed in Scene 12, and the Garden of the Palace with the entrance of Amazonian warriors gives occasion for another spectacular ballet.

Miss Winifred Hare is a prepossessing and attractive Robinson Crusoe, and sings "Keep a-whistling," "Banish all sorrow," and "Bombardier," which are vivaciously rendered and warmly encored. Miss Kathleen Gray, who has been engaged for a special part, enacts Jack Rattlins, and her songs were quickly taken up by the audience; "Antonio" and "A tiny seed of love" will soon be heard all over Dublin. Miss Elsie Molloy plays Polly Perkins in a captivating manner, and her songs and dances are greatly appreciated. Miss Gladys Whyte is Princess Saccrina, and her song, "Sue, Sue," is warmly encored. Miss Marie Jones (the Fairy of the Sea) has a beautiful voice, her rendering of "Star of the earth" being very fine. Amongst the comedians special mention must be made of Mr. J. J. Dallas, the well-known Gaiety favourite. His impersonation of Mrs. Crusoe is the cause of much hearty laughter, the singing of "Cookery book" and "What I suffered" being especially droll. Mr. Barney Armstrong's conception of Will Atkins is richly comic, and his business with his Secretary (Mr. Jimmy Steel) is the cause of much mirth. His songs are "Eva," "Put me upon an island," and "Harrigan." Mr. Harry Lappo impersonates Mr. William Crusoe in capital style; and Mr. Walter Barrett, who enacts Davy Jones and also the Cannibal King, proves his possession of a capital voice, his song "Revenge" being admirably sung. Keith and Rigby, the Bo'sum and Mate, exhibit some very smart knockabout work. Praise must be given to Mr. Frank Gala as Man Friday, together with his skating speciality; and the Carlyles won rounds of applause for their "Whirlwind" dance. The staging and scenic effects were excellently carried out and the choruses were admirably sung, the gorgeous dresses being attractively displayed. The pantomime was produced in a most efficient manner, and great credit is due to Mr. Harold L. Hilliard and Mr. H. Leighton Rooke, under whose management the production has proved so successful.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT DUNDEE.

A big audience gave an enthusiastic welcome to Mr. Robert Arthur's fairy pantomime Robinson Crusoe, which was produced by Mr. Milton Bode at Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, on Monday evening last. The theme, which is handled by Mr. J. Hickory Wood in his best style, enables the scenic artist and costumier to revel in a lavish display of scenery and dresses, which has been taken full advantage of. The nine scenes in which the pantomime is played comprise The Port of Hull, Between Decks, The Main Deck, The Wreck, In the Jungle, The Palm Grove, Crusoe's Island Hut, On the Way to the Palace, and The Palace of the Empress. The magnificent scenery which has been designed and executed by Messrs. Arthur Betts and J. J. Markwell Davis is all in the very best taste, The Port of Hull, In the Jungle, and the Palace of the Empress being conspicuous examples of beautiful stagecraft. A most judicious selection of songs has been made from the cream of the latest popular melodies by Mr. Frank Seddon and Mr. Knight Pearce, who are responsible for the music. The handsome dresses are by Messrs. J. A. Harrison, Ltd., and attracted much attention, especially from the fair members of the audience. The company, a large one, includes quite a galaxy of ming; and Miss Jennie Lynwood makes a d[illegible]ntal pictures. Robinson; she has a lithe, hap[illegible] is well equipped with a particularly pleasing singing voice. She made quite a hit with her first song "Oh, oh, Antonio!" In this song she is assisted by a large chorus and the inevitable ice-cream man and his barrow. She was also conspicuously successful in "I don't care if there's a girl there," for which she was heartily encored. Miss Lucy Coventry, a dainty little lady who sings prettily and dances with much animation, makes a delightful Polly Hopkins. She is much applauded for her taking song "Sue, Sue, Sue," and a pretty sentimental air entitled "I never reply." She followed up the latter with a very nimble dance, the audience recalling her several times. Miss Rosie Bartlett was a gallant Lieut. Bob, winning rounds of applause for her spirited rendering of "I want you to see my girl." She also scored a decided hit with "Saturday afternoon," which was sung with much effective force. Miss Luna Lyndon made an excellent Jennie Perkins, being much applauded for her rendering of "The Hottentot drum-major." The Empress of Jungalow had a capital exponent in Miss Rose Cabani, who sung "Laughing eyes" very happily, and gave a very tricky dance. Miss Muriel Wantace was altogether excellent as Roma, the Spirit of Adventure. The company is very strong in comedians, chief honours lying with Messrs. Keith and Merson, who kept the house in continuous fits of laughter. Their funniosities are original and up to date, while their business and gags are of the most mirthful description. Their burlesque wrestling bout was ludicrously funny, and in addition they displayed marvellous powers as contortionists. They also scored in a clever topical duet "If we were Members of Parliament," and infused a great deal of humour into their "Alphabet" song. The Mrs. Crusoe of Mr. Harry Ugar is also a very comical creation. He sings with much success a very amusing ditty entitled "I'm waiting," and creates much hilarity by his funny suffragette speech. Mr. Donal MacDougal is decidedly effective as a Doric-spoken Will Atkins, his song "I'm coortin' Jean M'Craw" winning a well-deserved encore. Mr. Percy Johnson made a droll Bill Crusoe; and the rôle of Friday gave Larola, a brilliant equilibrist and sleight-of-hand artist, plenty of scope to display his undoubted ability. The Six Lancashire Lasses danced with much animation, and were warm favourites throughout the evening. The Georgia troupe of three male vocalists introduced a medley of popular airs, for which they had a good reception. Altogether the piece went from start to finish with a completeness and harmony which speaks well for its probability as a draw. The stage-manager is Mr. W. H. Cecil Pierpoint, who deserves the greatest praise for the way the heavy scenery was worked on the opening night. The splendid orchestra was conducted very effectively by Mr. Knight Pearce. Robinson Crusoe is certainly worthy to be ranked among the best Mr. Robert Arthur has presented at this beautiful house, and his courteous and energetic acting-manager Mr. Louis Karpe is to be congratulated on having such a seasonable and attractive programme to offer to his patrons at this festive season.

"MOTHER GOOSE" AT HANLEY.

Messrs. C. G. Elphinstone and J. F. Elliston set out at the Theatre Royal on Boxing Day on their merry and successful career with Mother Goose, which will for weeks bring joy and laughter to many thousands in this densely populated district. The book is by Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and the familiar story is closely and cleverly followed. It is presented in ten scenes, several being of exquisite beauty, and all reflecting the greatest credit on the artists. Everything goes with wonderful smoothness, showing evidence of painstaking and thorough rehearsal. The pantomime is a brilliant show, with an abundance of comicality, tuneful, catchy songs and music, smart dances, gorgeous dresses, and remarkable stage effects. The principal boy (Colin) is Miss Margaret Ruby, who is as vivacious as she is sweet voiced, and renders her songs charmingly, "Antonio" and "Seed of Love" being her two chief numbers. She became an instantaneous favourite with the packed house. Miss Millie Doris makes a charming Jill, and her songs, of which "Sue, Sue, Sue," is favourite, are most successful. Miss Lola Patey wins warm approval as Gretchen; she is dainty and altogether delightful, acting charmingly and singing sweetly. Her great song hit is "Bubbles and Sunbeams." Rich and Rich have a lot of comedy work as Mother Goose and Jack, and a great measure of the success attained is due to this comical, yet clever, couple. Mr. Charles Homer is the Demon King, and his fine voice and business are greatly admired. Mr. J. C. Scatter scores in his dialect part of the Mayor of Tapham; the Brothers Smarte realise their name in deed; Mr. Fred. Barnes (Lord Pudsey) makes a hit, as does Mr. Leonard Maitland in a dude impersonation of the Hon. Urbsey Slack. The Fairy (Miss Beatrice Felsted) has a fine figure and sings sweetly; the Alexandre Dancers please with their clever efforts in terpsichore. The musical conductor is Mr. F. Seddon, to whom great praise is due. The stage management reflects great credit on Mr. Claude Agnew, and the show goes merrily along without a hitch. The lighting, so cleverly worked, is quite a feather in the cap of Mr. Gilbert, the resident electrician. Mother Goose may well be expected to lay "golden eggs" for both Mr. Ellison and Mr. Elphinstone.

"THE FAIR ONE WITH THE GOLDEN LOCKS" AT HULL.

A very enthusiastic audience welcomed Mr. Morton's pantomime, The Fair One with the Golden Locks, on Boxing Day, and from the reception accorded it it is safe to say that the whole of the five weeks it is destined to run will witness crowded houses. It is a comedians' pantomime, and one in which no great pretensions are put forward for spectacular display. There is naught in the pantomime to offend the most delicate ears. Its songs are catchy, and of course include "Oh, oh, Antonio." The book has much merit, which is understood, its author being Mr. Stanley Rogers. The foremost honours are easily carried off by Mr. Jas. Chippendale, who is really funny, and has the often lacking sense of humour. From the very first he has taken the taste of the public. As General Slop-off and Admiral Bunker Mr. C. Calvert and Mr. C. Harvey invest their work with originality, and are highly amusing. Another extremely clever turn is that of the knockabouts, Messrs. Green and Wood. These silent fun-makers are among the best in the pantomime. Amongst the ladies Miss Hersee, a daughter of the famous prima-donna, sings sweetly, and wins the good will of the house. Miss Madge Brownie is a vivacious principal girl, whilst the boy part is allotted to Miss Mimie Fisher, whose efforts are applauded. If freedom from vulgarity, witty, clever comedians, and a wholesome entertainment have their proper value, then the pantomime run should be very prosperous.

"ALADDIN" AT LEEDS.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten's annual pantomime at the Theatre Royal is Aladdin, and every sign of a long and successful run was given when the piece was produced on Christmas Eve. Following his usual rule, Mr. Macnaghten has left the production in the hands of Mr. John Tiller, by whom, together with Mr. Charles Fletcher, the book has been written. Great care and expense have been lavished on the scenery, the artists including Hawes Craven, Henry Emden, E. H. Ryan, and T. F. Dunn. A capable company is employed in the exploitation of the story, a particularly popular engagement being that of Miss Lillie Soutter as Aladdin. This lady has a good presence and an equally good voice, and was particularly well received at the opening performance. Miss Adela Crispin is a pleasing and attractive principal girl, and, possessing a fine voice, scored well in a vocal scena. The comedy element is very strong, a prominent part being taken by Mr. Will Bishop, whose Emperor is drawn on novel lines, and is always irresistibly funny. Mr. Martin Adeson as the Widow Twankey fairly revels in a generous part, and is throughout vastly entertaining. Mr. Tom Dunmore avails himself of his great opportunity for fun-making in the part of Abanazar, and in many encounters with his assistant—a part cleverly played by Mr. Chris Baker—the pair are very successful. The diminutive Barney Dixon has a roving commission, and is frequently very droll. As second boy and girl Miss Victoria Charlton and Miss Hilda Major fill their parts in pleasing style, and Miss Lizzie Hay is vigorously applauded for burlesque dancing specialities. The Brothers Lang are also popular, and attractive items are supplied by the Tiller troupe of dancers and the Twelve Manchester Mites.

"SINBAD THE SAILOR" AT LEEDS.

Mr. John Hart's annual grand pantomime, which is this year based on the story of Sinbad the Sailor, was produced on Wednesday, the 23rd, before an audience which crowded the theatre in every part, and with every appearance of success. The book is again from the prolific pen of Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and in it he has found plenty of work for all concerned, and also scope for some brilliant spectacular display. The two most notable sets are The Shipwreck, in the first act, and The Diamond Valley, a scene of glittering beauty, whose brilliance is enhanced by the evolutions of a well-trained ballet and chorus, gorgeously gowned. The management have been happy in their choice of principals, particularly so in the engagement of Miss Nell Emerald as Sinbad. Bright, graceful, and versatile to a degree, her acting is quite easy and unaffected, and nothing could have been more delightful than her performance on the first night, when she was repeatedly applauded for her vocal renderings, notable success being achieved with the ditty, "I want you to see my girl." Miss Daisy Dormer makes a dainty and pretty Ruby, of engaging manners, and she takes particularly well in the rendition of "My girl's a Yorkshire girl," with a bevy of beclogged factory girls as chorus. Mr. Rowland Hill is very droll as Mrs. Sinbad, affording the audience great enjoyment, and his catch-phrase, "You're asking for it," will soon be a byword. Mr. William Stephens is irrepressible as Hinbad. He has a hand in every bit of fun going, and allows no dull moment whilst he is on the stage. His song "I'm afraid to go home in the dark" takes immensely. Those excellent comedians Harrigan and Holt are fitted with sailors' parts, and are provocative of great hilarity on numerous occasions. Mr. Colin Coop as the Emperor and Mr. Lawrence Caird as the Envoy assist in much humorous business, and generally enhance their respective reputations. Radford and Valentine introduce their well-known comic jugglery performance in the second act, and get a big reception; Mr. E. W. Royce is weirdly interesting as the Old Man of the Sea; a graceful and accomplished vocalist, Miss Annie Schuberth, is the good fairy Roma; and Mr. Cyril Thompson, who is possessed of a powerful baritone voice, is well placed as the Storm Fiend. Miss Dorothy Frostick is in the cast as solo dancer, and is very successful; Mr. Henri Jaxon is partly responsible for the arrangement of the music, and under his bâton all goes off with a pleasing rhythm. The entire pantomime went with the utmost smoothness from first to last, and reflected the greatest credit upon Mr. Hart and his stage-manager, Mr. Fred Epitaux, under whose supervision the production had been rehearsed.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY" AT LIVERPOOL.

On the evening of Wednesday, 23rd ult., Mr Robert Arthur gave his patrons of the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, a glance at his thirteenth pantomime, which bears the title of Humpty Dumpty. Each succeeding year Mr. Arthur principally aims at spectacular effect, and his latest production certainly lacks naught in this respect; in fact, his scenic artists particularly, Messrs. Stafford Hall, G. E. W. McKie, and J. Fowler Hogg, have surpassed themselves. The story, which comes from the able pen of Mr. Frank Dix, is of a character to especially appeal to the little ones, and no doubt a large proportion of those who during the next two months may visit the Royal Court will be those of the younger generation. The curtain rises upon a nursery situated locally, where we find a mother endeavouring to explain to her questioning boy (a part neatly taken by Master Bobbie Andrews) the story of Humpty Dumpty's downfall. The lad drops asleep over his book, when the Queen of Humpty Land appears from the fireplace, and transports him, along with his two Gollywogs, who have become animated, to the realms of Fairydom. We there learn that Humpty, the son of the Old Woman Who Lives in a Shoe, has, for daring to make love to the King's daughter, been incarcerated in an egg, which is seen poised on a wall. Learning of Humpty's fate, the boy adventurer knocks down the egg, which breaks, thus releasing the hero, who, along with the Princess Curlylocks, hastens off to the Old Woman of the Shoe residence. In this scene we are introduced to all the well-known nursery characters so dear to the hearts of young folk. The enraged King and Queen follow in hot pursuit, whereupon a further journey is taken to Rainbow Land, which is reached by boat, and then on to the city of Benares, where the runaway couple find safety. Mars, by electrical railway, is next visited, and here they are married by Twinklestar, just prior to the arrival of the Royal pursuers. The curtain then comes down on the opening scene, where the boy is awakening from his dream. For a first night's production the pantomime ran with surprising smoothness, showing that the rehearsals had been carried out with great diligence and finish. This fact was particularly noticed by the delighted audience, who gave the whole of the artists and company rounds of applause at the end of the pretty and amusing story. Miss Lily Morris made a handsome and dashing Humpty, and immediately sprang into favour. Her song "A tiny seed of love." was joined in by her hearers, who demanded encores, while her other number, "I want you to see my girl," went with a swing that greatly tickled the ear. Miss Mabel Green was a charming principal girl, and in every way proved a success. She received a hearty greeting for her "Moonflower" song. A deal of the success of the pantomime will undoubtedly be due to the efforts of Mr. R. H. Douglass, who, in addition to holding the office of stage-manager, is the amusing King of Humpty Land. His quaint delivery and really funny antics kept everybody in shouts of laughter. An able assistant was Mr. Arthur Rigby (Queen), who gave us an uncommon kind of comic female, he succeeding in provoking merriment without the customary aid of a red nose. He was most amusing while acting as chairman at a children's dinner party, where he was interrupted by one of the little ones declaring herself to be a Suffragette. His song "Women, stick up for your rights," accompanied by some excellent patter, was a feature which found general acceptance. Mr. T. A. Shale deserved much praise for his good work as King Crumpet; Moon and Waters showed themselves particularly clever simultaneous dancers; Mr. Edward Thirlby did everything necessary as the Old Woman of the Shoe; Spot and Seth Whyte were a funny pair of Gollywogs; and Mr. G. W. Cockburn satisfactorily undertook the part of Twinklestar. As mentioned before, the scenery was superb. Mr. Stafford Hall has, in the course of many years, given to the stage some wonderful brush work, but on the present occasion he seems to have excelled himself. The picture of Rainbow Land presented a palace situated on a reflecting lake of golden brilliancy, while that depicting the city of Benares was perhaps the finest piece of work ever executed by the accomplished painter. With merely the assistance of two short side-cuts a lovely full stage view of a sunlit city sloping down to the Ganges was shown, and so realistically were the domes, temples, palaces, &c., put on the canvas, and so clearly did the 270 human figures stand out, many of them being grouped about a sacrificing ceremony, that one could almost believe he was looking down over a parapet upon a gorgeous Indian scene of real life. Mr. McKie is also to be complimented upon his picture of the "Shoe," which was tastefully surrounded by variegated foliage. Several specialities were introduced into the pantomime by the Victor Comedy Eight; the Eight Sunbeams danced gracefully; and Harding's electrical ballet called forth great applause. Mr. J. O. Shepherd (musical conductor) and Mr. Jullien H. Wilson supplied pretty and appropriate music. Mr. George Corney made some cunningly-constructed properties, his eggs particularly being works of art. That which was knocked off the wall parted into three portions, and from the yellow-coloured contents that poured in a most natural fashion upon the greensward emerged Humpty Dumpty; while another, which on opening revealed a couple of artists standing amidst scores of electric lights, fixed on the interior, was a fine sample of Mr. Corney's ingenuity. The costumes were designed by Edel, of Paris, and executed by Miss Hall, Mrs. Mitchell, and assistants at Mr. Robert Arthur's London depôt; the wigs came from Clarkson, London; armour by White and Co.; and mechanical effects by M. P. Sinnott and Harry Knott. In conclusion, Mr. Arthur Lawrence, the popular acting-manager of the theatre, deserves thanks for his assistance in placing the pantomime on such a complete and satisfactory footing.

"JACK AND THE BEANSTALK" AT LIVERPOOL.

Should the great success which attended last year's pantomime at the Liverpool Shakespeare be repeated this year, then all concerned will have no cause to complain. As far as can be judged from the initial production of Jack and the Beanstalk, submitted on Saturday afternoon last by Mr. B. Steyne for Mr. Tom B. Davis, who has a working arrangement with Mr. Wentworth Croke, there is every promise that public patronage will be as great as twelve months ago. The book follows the old story of Jack selling his mother's cow for a handful of beans, the growing of the wonderful stalk, and the hero's adventures in Giant Land. The opening scene represents the village of Arcadee, a brilliant piece of colouring, from the brush of Mr. Ernest Howard. Here the Dame (Mr. Dan Crawley) gets early to work, and makes his audience shriek with laughter by reason of his antics with the Cow (Griffiths Bros.). The noted comedian takes great liberties with the text, pouring in shoals of witticisms and patter, much to the improvement of the pantomime. He alone promises to make it "go." Jack (played with exquisite touch by Miss Ada Reeve) helps with the fun, which is also contributed to by Mr. Arthur Poole, a most humorous King. The next big scene is the Fairground, and Mr. Thomas Holmes, the resident artist, deserves great praise for this piece of work, the Giant's Kitchen being another worthy specimen of his efforts. At this juncture the Bros. Griffiths introduced a burlesque wrestling match that convulsed the audience, and after Jack had disposed of the cow, which takes the parting in a sorrowful manner, he is transported to the land where the beans, watered by fairy hands, are seen growing. The third scenic artist engaged on the pantomime, Mr. W. R. Young, here shows several picturesque cloths which redound to his credit. At the rear are the gates leading to Giant Land, and Jack, dressed in shining silvery armour, strikes these with his sword, whereupon they burst open, and are outlined with many electric lights. The effect is fascinating. Next comes the Giant's Library, where a pretty scene is shown as Jack, by means of a magic wand given to him by his guardian fairy, releases the giant's prisoners, who turn out to be the familiar nursery characters. This episode delighted the younger members of the audience. Jack then slays the giant, and the closing scene, where he and the Princess are reunited, is a charming interior from the brush of Mr. Stafford Hall. A striking and pretty finish to the pantomime is the lowering from the flies of an immense white horseshoe, bearing in electric lights the wish "Good luck for 1909." The three principal artists to whom reference has been made were well supported by others of lesser standing in the cast. Miss Florence Imeson looked pretty as the Princess, and received a warm welcome for her singing of "The old French bonnet," and her dainty dancing; Miss Jessie Lonnen as Jack's sister was graceful and bright; Mr. Edwin Adeler made the Duchess a really amusing character, and was well received for his song, "There's a sun still shining in the sky"; Mr. Bobbie Allandale pleased everybody with his Prince, his capital voice being heard to advantage in several numbers, particularly "A tiny seed of love" and "L.S.D."; Mr. Laurie De Frece made the most of the humorous Miffins, the major-domo; the minor rôle of the Giant was satisfactorily undertaken by Mr. Jack East; Griffin and Ardell came in very usefully as knockabouts; and Miss Marie Vere was an imposing Fairy Queen, while her allotted songs were rendered in good style. Miss Reeve wore some charming dresses, and her vivacity and winning grace gave infinite pleasure. Among her songs were "Goo Goo Land," "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" "Find the man," "I don't care if there's a girl there," and "When Richard the First was King." The able little artist came in for a rousing reception. Mr. Arthur Poole gave the "Alphabet" ditty with great gusto, and this number is likely to be a favourite with the children, who received it with evident pleasure. Special mention should be made of the really lovely dresses worn by the numerous companies of pretty girls, the blending of the colours being exceedingly delightful. Various specialities were brought into the pantomime. The Tiller Troupe of dancers, with clowns' faces behind, made an impression; Mr. Laurie de Frece and Miss Florence Lascelles gave the dance of the Apaches; and Griffin and Ardell went through some clever acrobatic tumbling. The dresses were provided by Llandoff and Co., Paris, Obronski and Co., and Elkan Bros., London; properties by L. Bateman; processions and ballets arranged by E. T. Steyne and Minnie Smith; and the incidental and other music by Leonard Hornsey and Guy Jones. There is little doubt that the present Shakespeare pantomime will prove as successful as any of the twenty that have preceded it, all of which, by the way, have been superintended by the present esteemed manager, Mr. John Gaffney.

"ALICE" IN MANCHESTER.

Mr. William Greet's production of Alice in Wonderland, followed by Through the Looking-glass, took place at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on the afternoon of Saturday, Dec. 26, before a well-filled house. It is meant to run through a long succession of matinées, and if the initial audience's enthusiastic appreciation is a guide to its prospects with the playgoers, young and old, for whom it is intended, there is no need to fear for its success. It enjoys with Peter Pan the distinction of affording unalloyed pleasure to those (and they are many) who delight in those unsophisticated joys of youth which are awakened by the genius of imagination. Its humour is simple enough for the young, yet also subtle enough for their elders. It is the kind of play that divests the parent of his superiority of outlook and brings him consciously and willingly to the acceptable level of the child. Always fresh and welcome, with its gryphon, its mock turtle, its mad hatter and Cheshire cat, its animated playing-cards and chessmen, and all the rest of its quaintly-conceived personæ, it is a welcome relief from the usual round of entertainment, and it is something to be thankful for that such charming plays exist at all.

Mr. William Greet has been fortunate in being able to secure Miss Maidie Andrews for the part of Alice, in which she appeared at the Apollo Theatre last Christmas. A more realistic exponent it would be hard to conceive. Natural, unassuming, and of a pleasing personality, every movement and every intonation are those of a child in veritable wonderland. Many clever young people are in the cast beside, however, and great praise is due in particular to Miss Ivy Sawyer, first as the Dormouse and afterwards as the Cornflower, and to Miss Florrie Bond as an especially graceful and engaging Cheshire Cat. Mr. Frank Collins as the Mad Hatter has opportunities which he knows how to avail himself of, and not a single point of his humour is lost on the audience; while Mr. Percy Davidson makes a really comic figure of the Mock Turtle. Among others, Mr. Percy Favelle is good as the Gryphon, and in the second act a remarkably smart and humorous Gollywog dance is given in that rôle by Mr. Will Bishop, jun. Between the first part and the second animated pictures by Jury's Bioscope are shown.

The music, which is always tuneful and appropriate, is by Walter Slaughter, and Mr. Will Bishop has arranged the dances and produced the play.

"GOODY TWO SHOES" AT MANCHESTER.

By arrangement with the United Theatres Co., Mr. F. W. Wyndham (assisted by Mr. Sidney Watson) produced a new and original version of Goody Two Shoes at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on Wednesday, Dec. 23. The splendid record of this theatre for magnificence of setting and excellence of cast has been always an assurance to the public of a really good show, and a big audience was present on the opening night to give the pantomime a start upon what is sure to prove a successful career. The book, written expressly by J. Hickory Wood, contains interesting variations of the story of Goody, the Baron's adopted daughter, whose fortunes and personal temper are controlled by the good fairy and the bad by virtue of the miraculous properties of the shoes; but, of course, the good fairy triumphs in the end, with the usual pleasing results, and (equally of course) the development of the story is never allowed to obtrude itself to the exclusion of the particular kind of entertainment one looks for in pantomime, though it is appreciably there for cohesion, like the links in a chain.

The scenery has been painted by Messrs. T. F. Dunn, T. Holmes, W. Glover, and Stafford Hall, nine of the twelves scenes being due to the first-named. Of these, the County Fair, containing all the attractions of a showground, with a fine perspective, is a highly effective "set" for comedy; while as an example of woodland beauty, the Forest scene, at the opening of the second part, is full of extraordinary charm. Among other striking sets are The Baron's Armoury and The Widow's Reception (the latter by Stafford Hall), while not one fails short in any respect of the quality demanded by first-class pantomime. As for the costumes, it needs an effort of memory to recall anything quite so gorgeous and tasteful. The incidental music, too, which has been selected, composed, and arranged by Alfred Carpenter, is invariably cheerful and inspiriting.

In the very centre of the story figures Miss Hylda Dugdale as Goody Two Shoes, and she plays the part with a charming appreciation of the author's ideas. Incidentally she sings "Antonio" with great success, and renders very prettily a dainty "Rainbow" scena. In close touch with her comes Prince Spritely, in a very becoming disguise, which is not less splendid in its way than the subsequent trappings of his identity, and this attractive personage is embodied by Miss May Beatty, who is in every way well equipped for the requirements of a dashing principal boy. Some of the best songs of the evening are allotted to her, these being "A White Man," "A tiny seed of love," and "Bombardier." Mr. Mark Sheridan is at the head of the fun-makers as Baron de Boots, one of the Old Nobility, and this sterling comedian may always be depended on for a brisk and resourceful entertainment. His impersonation of the Baron is quite in his best style, and it embraces at least one speciality interlude which is worth recording, namely, his endeavour to obtain apartments as a seedy actor at the door of Widow Leather's residential shoe. Among his songs, one on the peculiarities of "Manchester" is especially clever and successful, and he has a good number also in "I don't care if there's a girl there." His principal supporters are the Brothers Egbert (Seth and Albert), whose eccentricities as a couple of the unemployed are provocative of considerable amusement. Much of their clever speciality work is embodied in the action, and they are throughout an appreciable asset of the show. Mr. Harry Conlin is also much to be commended for his smart and busy work as Widow Leather, which is comic without being exaggerated out of reason, and he scores a distinct success in his song entitled "My love." Miss Lizzie St. Quinten as Malvolia, the bad fairy, and Miss Lilian Hewitson as Claribelle, the good fairy, are vocally and histrionically good; Miss Amy Singleton as the Baron's second wife works hard and satisfactorily in a rôle not often seen in pantomime (it is really a "straight" one); and opportunities to shine are afforded also to Miss Marie Ashton as Rupert, the Baron's eldest son, and Miss Mabel Hirst as Margery, the Widow's eldest daughter, of whom the latter is furnished with a song that quite took the fancy of the house on the opening night—"If you've got another girl like Mary." Here, it will be seen, are the materials for a good run, especially when are added to them the various picturesque and vocal achievements of a well-trained chorus and a finely-organised ballet, the latter including some very pretty spectacles by children.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY" AT MIDDLESBROUGH.

The gorgeous pantomime, Humpty Dumpty, which was produced for the first time on Christmas Night, is steadily winning its way to popular favour. Mr. J. F. Elliston is once again responsible for its production, and he is to be congratulated on its success. The inventor and writer of the pantomime, Mr. John Hickory Wood, is a past-master in the art, having been responsible for several Drury Lane successes, and in the adventures of Humpty Dumpty he has found a story exactly to his taste. His efforts have been ably seconded by Mr. Carlile Vernon, whose catchy music is of popular type. There is some really beautiful scenery, the various sets representing The Home of Neptune, The Red Coral Grotto, and the White Coral Grotto being particularly fine. The final scene, The Grand Hall in the King's Castle, is absolutely bewildering in its magnificence. The costumes, specially designed by A. Comelli and Alias, are very becoming, and there are some clever mechanical effects by Mr. F. W. Davies. Miss Florence Wix as Rudolph, a harlequin, otherwise Lord Gay, makes a charming principal boy, and quickly wins the hearts of all. She is ably supported by Miss Dolly Ross, who, as Prince Sprightly, the King's son, has a pleasing presence. Miss Audrey Esmonde is the leading lady, and as Princess Aurora, the King's daughter, she sings and dances with charming vivacity. She has a delightful companion in the person of Miss Nell Carmichael, who, as Cherry, proves very winsome. Miss Emilie Warner is a picturesque Fairy Queen. Much rollicking humour is introduced into the story by Mr. George Danvers, who plays the title-rôle with rare skill; while Mr. George Campbell as Martha, his mother, gives a most comical interpretation, the drolleries of these artists evoking roars of laughter. Mr. Rex Kempton is exceedingly good as Bison Bob, a circus proprietor; and the Lecardo Brothers, as Brick and Brack, cause endless amusement by their acrobatic eccentricities. Mr. Willie Black gives a fine impersonation of the part of King Solumn. There is an excellent ballet, and the Walmsley Troupe of dancers give a clever exhibition. The Quality Quartette are responsible for some good singing.

"ALADDIN" AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

Without doubt the twelfth pantomime under the Robert Arthur régime at the popular Theatre Royal is an unqualified success, as the plaudits of a crowded audience testified on Boxing night. This year's Aladdin is a happy combination of fun and frolic, magnificent scenery, beautiful costumes, and splendid choral effects, admirably supported by the augmented orchestra under the able bâton of Mr. George F. Ford. The story as adapted by Mr. Frank Dix adheres pretty closely to the familiar tale of Aladdin's adventures with his wonderful lamp, the comedy being worked in to suit the diverse talents of the company under engagement, whilst the fairy tale proper is treated with a touch of lightness that cannot fail to please. First of the principals to be introduced was Mr. Horace Lane as the Vizier, and he was closely followed by Messrs. Regan and Ryan, the policemen, who danced with comic effect. Mr. Malcolm Scott, the Widow Twankey, had a cordial reception, and his dissertation on "Geography" was full of satirical hits. Miss Violet Lloyd, the vivacious Aladdin, rendered the song "Saturday afternoon" with a keen sense of humour; and Miss Maud Thorne, the Princess, scored with "Sue, Sue, Sue." Other notable items were the patter and song "I love dancing," by Happy Fanny Fields, who kept the house in laughter whenever she was on the stage. A ballet of lanterns brought a lengthy scene to a picturesque close. In the Exterior of the Cave Mr. Harry Tate as Abanazar had the house with him in his "Diamonds" song. Miss Violet Lloyd's rendering of "The tiny seed of love" gained a deserved encore. The Home of Jewels, one of Mr. Stafford Hall's interiors, was a notable specimen of stage-management, the discovery, with gradual growth of light, of groups of exquisitely attired dancers being a triumph. A pas seul in old-fashioned ballet style by Miss Doris Dean that was heartily applauded terminated the first part.

The second half is laid in Pekin, where Happy Fanny Fields convulsed the audience with her picture post card song and amusing business with the occupant of a box, after which Mr. Harry Tate's very funny mimicry of Mr. George Robey made way for Mr. Tate's droll Golfing sketch, which kept the audience in roars of laughter. A song with a chorus for Mr. Harry Claff, the Emperor, had two encores, "Monte Carlo" being a number that this practised vocalist did every justice to. Mr. Malcom Scott's skits on the Directoire dress and the Salome dance aroused general amusement, and success was scored by Miss Violet Lloyd with "The White Man" song and Miss Florence Hersee's dance to the "Teddy Bear's Picnic" music. "Mrs. Twankey's Laundry" introduced more fun, for which Mr. Malcolm Scott was chiefly responsible. Miss Fields' "Drums" song and patter went as well as anything she had done; a topical song was rendered by Mr. Lane, and Mr. Harry Tate's Motoring act proved to be one of the most diverting features of the evening. A beautiful stage picture, The Fairy Forge, winds up a pantomime which may be placed amongst Mr. Arthur's greatest successes.

"HUMPTY-DUMPTY" AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

The pantomime season was inaugurated on Christmas Eve, when in the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, the lessees, presented their twenty-sixth annual pantomime, Humpty-Dumpty. The book is written expressly for this theatre by Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and was produced under the personal direction of Mr. F. W. Wyndham, assisted by Mr. John J. Lloyd. Mr. Hickory Wood has had to construct a story of his own for this annual. The old nursery legend would not serve, so with the aid of the Fairy Queen he brings Humpty-Dumpty back to life again, after the great fall from the wall, and endows him with a misshapen human figure. Humpty-Dumpty is given the power of having every wish gratified, but must finish with a truly unselfish wish, otherwise he is doomed. Thus he has all the best of the handicap for the hand of the Princess Aurora, King Solumm's daughter. This melancholy old ruler has promised his daughter's hand to anyone who shall make him laugh, and here the various comedians, in their different rôles, try their luck in vain, but Humpty-Dumpty, with his malicious power, is successful. The Princess, however, refuses, and the King, by way of solving the difficulty, tells how he has lost a ring, and promises that the finder, whoever he may be, shall wed the Princess. The fun and merriment continue as the various suitors proceed in their search for the ring, and in the end Humpty-Dumpty, who has found the trinket, gives way, and wishes the Princess and her lover "a silver wedding, a golden wedding, and a diamond wedding," and by this display of unselfishness saves himself from destruction.

Many of the scenes are gorgeously beautiful. The Throne Room, which ends the first part of the pantomime, with its glitter of gold and jewels, and the final picture, blazing with light and colour, elicit unstinted admiration. The costumes are equally effective. The principals are all excellent. Mr. George Elliston is the Humpty Dumpty, and endows the part with quaint humour. The old woman of pantomime is ably impersonated by J. E. Nightingale, and King Solumm by Shaun Glenville, both comedians provoking laughter with their amusing business. "Carlton," the Bison Bob, is a skilful conjurer; and Arthur Prince, the clever ventriloquist, is conspicuous all through the pantomime. Jock Walker is a Scotch comedian of undeniable quality. Niels W. Gade, the Spirit of Ambition, has a fine voice, and uses it admirably. Miss Rhoda Gordon, as Cherry, a pierrette, sings a couple of songs charmingly; Miss I. Coley is a captivating Prince Spritely; and Miss Evelyn Hope is a dainty Claribel. Miss Lily Iris makes a very "fetching" principal boy, and keeps the audience in the highest spirits. Miss Ida Rene acts the principal girl with sweetness and grace, her remarkable dancing and excellent singing winning all hearts. The Lottie Stone troupe of dancers, and the principal dancer, Miss Violet Hope, merit unstinted praise, and commendation must also be extended to Mr. John J. Lloyd, who has assisted Mr. Wyndham in the production; to Messrs. E. H. Ryan, William Glover, Gordon Dunn, and T. F. Dunn for the beautiful scenery; to Mr. E. J. Rogers for the music; and to Mons Comelli and M. Aljas for the beautiful costumes and designs.

"ALADDIN" AT NOTTINGHAM.

The story of Aladdin and his wonderful lamp is always a safe foundation for a gorgeous pantomime. In the present instance the book is from the pen of Mr. J. Hickory Wood, which fact is sufficient guarantee of its superior quality. With such a foundation and scaffolding, a clever set of artists, carefully selected by Mr. J. F. Elliston, produce a pantomime at the Grand Theatre which is to all appearances going to prove a gigantic success, judged by its reception at its first two shows. The story is followed in the conventional style sufficiently to link together a more or less coherent plot. The scenes are nine in number, the first (Market Place in Pekin) and the last (Porcelain Palace) being especially noticeable where all are good. The music is very good, and its execution and selection reflect great credit upon the conductor, Mr. Arthur Braddock, who also, in conjunction with Mme. Phasey, has very carefully trained a large and successful chorus and ballet. Amongst other specialities should be mentioned "the wonderful bubble fountain." Its mechanism is concealed, but its effect is to produce a veritable fountain of iridescent soap-bubbles, which float about in the limelight with most charming results. After all, however, the artists are looked to most of all by the audiences, and here one can allot nothing but unstinted praise. Miss Mabel Carr makes a fine Aladdin, and will prove not only "his mother's joy" as per the bill, but also the joy of the houses, who readily open their hearts to anyone who secures their approval as Miss Carr has done. The Princess Badroulbadour is found in the winsome person of Miss Molly Wynne, whose charming manner and graceful style will doubtless make her a popular favourite. The second boy and girl, Miss Gertrude Lytton and Miss Maud Rayne, are above the average, and sing and dance themselves through the play in a very satisfactory manner. The fun is fast and furious, and it is difficult to say who squeezes the most out of his or her part in this department. Miss Elsie Roby is funny throughout, and in her speciality turns convulses the house with laughter; whilst Mr. William Fullbrook secures the heartiest of receptions every time he shows himself upon the stage. The Dame part is undertaken by Mr. Tom Kelso, who misses no single opportunity of getting his points; and Mr. George Fearnley works hard as the Grand Vizier. Even this array has not exhausted the laughter-making talent of the company. Like the best wine, reserved till the end, mention must be specially made now of Burley and Burley. Many comedy duo artists have appeared in Grand pantomimes from year to year, but no pair yet in which genuine humour was more highly developed than in Burley and Burley, who work real hard for the success they achieve and undoubtedly deserve. Miss Edie Graham as Nicee has a part for which she is amply capable; and the Genie of the Ring and Spirit of the Lamp are ably represented respectively by Miss Jessie Leslie and Mr. Fred Leglare. Some excellent special dancing is provided by the Walmsley Sextette and by Mr. Harris Coonie. The number of catchy songs in the pantomime is somewhat limited, but amongst them, "Hello, little boy," by Miss Molly Wynne, "A little wooden hut in Norway," by Miss Gertrude Lytton, and "She sells sea shells," by Mr. Wm. Fullbrook, have decidedly taken the popular fancy, and the quasi-topical "A White Man" is also likely to be a winner. As before mentioned, the chorus is large and good, and the whole of the production bespeaks hard work, and to Mr. Lewis Leslie and Mr. C. Fielding-Smith, who are respectively manager and acting-manager for Mr. J. F. Elliston, the greatest of praise is due. The whole performance passed off without a hitch, and Mr. Harry Upton, the genial manager of the Grand, no doubt congratulates himself, and with every right, upon another pantomime success at this popular house.

"CINDERELLA" AT NOTTINGHAM.

The twelfth annual of Mr. Robert Arthur was launched on Boxing Night at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, to the accompaniment of hearty laughter and the greatest appreciation of the really excellent fare provided. Naturally there must follow judicious pruning, and alterations here and there, but, generally speaking, the pantomime is well equipped, and everything points to an admirable production. Mr. Frank Dix has been again requisitioned for the "book," and the oft-told tale of "Cinderella" is charmingly treated by this gifted author. He is a past-master in the art, and has given a thoroughly sound groundwork on which the artists will be enabled to build up a huge pile of fun and frolic. Described as an operatic production, we can safely say that it fully deserves the appellation. Mr. Jullien H. Wilson and Mr. John Armstrong (the musical conductor of the theatre) have provided a delightful collection of haunting refrains, rousing choruses, and catchy melodies. The orchestration is to be specially commended, and some of the vocal numbers are of a much higher standard than those usually associated with pantomime productions. The scenic arrangements are a pronounced success, as can only be expected from the brush of that famous artist, Mr. J. Fowler Hogg. The Merry Wild Woods makes a delightful pastoral set, where the volatile villagers, in picturesque costumes, disport themselves, and forms the usual opportunity for introducing all the principal characters. Cinderella (Miss Madge Vincent) acts as the good Samaritan to an old woman, who eventually turns out to be her fairy godmother. It is here she first meets the Prince (who has assumed the guise of his valet) and treats the audience to a pretty rendering of the song "Carnation." Dandini (Miss Marie Empress) scores heavily with the rousing "Bombardier," and the Prince (Miss Cressie Leonard) captivates the whole house with her vocalism in "Won't you come to Connemara?" There is a capital finale, in which the chorus give early evidence of their power and effectiveness. The Baron's Picture Gallery scene enables those inimitable comedians, Alexandre and Hughes, to exploit their humorous cross-talk and enliven the proceedings with selections on the guitar. Miss May Lillian Levey as one of the Ugly Sisters helps matters along musically by a capital song entitled "Eva," and the receipt of the Prince's invitation to the ball gives rise to much comical fooling.

The Kitchen scene, in which the scenic artist displays some of his best detail work, is the centre of uproarious fun. Alexandre and Hughes are again the recipients of hearty commendation for some excellent concertina duets, and a plaintive song by Cinderella, "Nobody loves me," brings tumultuous applause. The Prince and Cinderella are here associated in a melodious duet, "A tiny seed of love," and the appearance of the Fairy Godmother brings us to Scene 4, the Fairy Boudoir. The harmonious blending of colour in white, gold, and heliotrope, with the handsome and effective dresses, make a truly gorgeous show, and the appearance of Cinderella's carriage, drawn by four tiny black ponies, completes the magnificent spectacle. Act II. opens in the Ball Room, and the guests are discovered dancing a minuet. Dandini's song "Have you got another girl like Mary?" is given in spirited style, and the Prince adds to his (or her) laurels with a delicious rendering of the coon song, "Sue." Mr. Harry Brayne submits a cleverly-written skit on the British workman, and the comedians make matters lively for everybody. The sudden darkening of the stage as the clock strikes twelve and the rapid flight of Cinderella are smart pieces of stagecraft. The Exterior of the Baron's Mansion provides an excellent opportunity for the Baroness (Mr. Johnnie Schofield), and his ditty "Let me sing," with its accompanying "business," provides endless amusement and uproarious mirth. The Baron's Hall is used for the entry of the Prince to discover if Cinderella was really at the ball, and to make the proclamation that whoever could wear the silver slipper found at the ball should be the Prince's bride. The trial of the shoe takes place at the Prince's Garden, a strikingly handsome scheme in white and pink. Cinderella's triumph and a lovely floral ballet brings to an end one of the most beautiful and merry pantomimes ever produced here. Miss Cressie Leonard is a most captivating exponent of the Prince, her acting and vocalism being altogether delightful, and we confidently predict for her a huge success. The Cinderella of Miss Madge Vincent is another charming piece of work, and her winsomeness is quite an attractive feature. Miss Marie Empress is full of life and movement in her portraiture of Dandini; as the Fairy Godmother Miss Alice Tremayne makes an excellent impression, and her vocalism is not the least enjoyable part of her performance; Miss May Lillian Levey and Mr. Harry Brayne make a capital pair as the Ugly Sisters, and their drolleries are abundantly rewarded; Mr. Johnnie Schofield cuts a quaint figure as the Baroness, and scores heavily in his volatile humour; no more whimsical pair of comedians could be imagined than Alexander and Hughes, and the fun goes fast and furious while they occupy the stage; Mr. Walter Uridge, a broker's man, and Mr. Stanley Maude, a footman, do well in their respective parts; the Eight Madeira Girls dance prettily; and the band adds a share to the success under the bâton of Mr. John Armstrong. The stage-manager, Mr. Tom Blacklock, is to be heartily congratulated on the excellent results of his energy, and to the acting-manager of the theatre, Mr. Howard Finney, must be accorded a large amount of praise for his untiring zeal and urbanity, both before and behind the curtain.

"CINDERELLA" AT PLYMOUTH.

Judging from the reception accorded on Saturday, Cinderella should easily prove the most popular Plymouth pantomime presentation. Mr. Fred Bowyer, who is responsible for the book, has adhered to the main features of the legend with commendable accuracy, the more modern and topical matters being so interwoven as not to affect the general trend of the story. The opening scene, In Fairyland, supplies a very pretty picture, in which the attractive costumes are materially set off by a judicious manipulation of the lights. Old London, a picturesque stage realisation of the metropolis in the spacious days of the fifteenth century, is soon followed by one of the prettiest scenes imaginable, In the Woods. We here see a herd of live deer quietly grazing in a cool-looking and leafy glade. A babbling brook which comes rioting down adds greatly to the vraisemblance of a delightful woodland. Cinderella's coach is drawn by four pretty ponies; and in the Ball Room the different principals appear in some gorgeous costumes, and the latest songs are introduced. The final scene is The Palace of the Prince, whose retinue wear strikingly pretty dresses.

Miss Maisie Ellinger makes a dashing principal boy, and quickly has the whole house with her in the famous number, "Oh, oh, Antonio." She also scores in the more serious "White Man." Miss Lucie Caine as Cinderella has a part to which her daintiness and charm are particularly well adapted; Miss Nellie Sheffield, an old Plymouth favourite, as Dandini had a regular West Country welcome on making her reappearance. Her two songs were both rewarded with clamorous encores. Mr. W. H. Kirby as Peter Pepper does yeoman service on the comic side; and Miss Louie Tinsley as Phyllis and Miss Denny Fitzherbert as Zena strike out an original line as the ugly sisters, their most diverting number being "Millionaires." Special tribute is due to Mr. E. Woodville for the particularly tuneful music for which he is responsible.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT SALTLEY.

Robinson Crusoe here is the clever production of Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Josephs, and is ably equipped to stay the three weeks allotted by the management. A clever principal boy in Miss Stanton, smart comedians, a well-attired and good-looking chorus, and quite adequate scenery, are the ingredients, and the public on Boxing Day were well pleased with the whole. The first scene opens in Davy Jones's Locker, where Will Atkins is seeking Davy Jones's aid to destroy his rival in love with Polly Perkins. This Will Atkins is a cunning but droll rascal, played by Mr. Melville Page, and in Scene 2, the Port of Hull, he gets in a large amount of fun, aided by Mr. Sydney Dean as Mrs. Crusoe, the Brothers Ray as McCross and McBones, and Little Keeno, who, as Sunny Jim Crusoe, pervades the pantomime with his clever witticisms. Here, Miss Lena Stanton as Robinson rescues Polly Perkins (Miss Gertie Lovedale) from the clutches of Will Atkins, and the fun increases rapidly. Captain Billee Taylor (Miss Marie Gerard) sings "I'm afraid to come home in the dark" to plentiful applause; and a ditty from Mrs. Crusoe, "Kate, Kate," fetches much laughter for Mr. Melville Page's efforts. Then Little Keeno's song, "This is the job for me" proved very popular, with a dance to succeed. Will Atkins, as a "pirate landlord," again creates mirth with his efforts to evict Mrs. Crusoe from her home; and Miss Gertie Lovedale as Polly sings "I want to be among the boys," with a joyous style that quite captivates. Moreover, she speaks well and distinctly in her rôle. Then Miss Lena Stanton, who really makes a fine-looking, bonny hero, sings with a fresh and strong voice, "Antonio," with "effects," and the effect was very good. Here, Polly disguises herself as a boy, and, love being blind, is not recognised by her lover Robinson, and then we find all aboard the Lucky Lobster. A most amusing topical quartette for the comedians has preceded this, entitled "Bread and Jam"; and now the Captain (Miss Marie Gerard), who is exceedingly vivacious and good-looking, sings "When the hills are white with heather," wherein she shows she can be sympathetic as well as spirited. She also sings "I want you to see my girl" successfully. The Brothers Ray contribute a clever comedy and trick-cycling act in this scene, and Will Atkins' plot to sink the ship having succeeded, we next see Crusoe on the raft. A song for the Fairy Britannia (Miss Rene Willoughby), entitled "Love," opens the second half, on the Island of Palms, and then appears Friday (Mr. E. Floyd-Gwyne), the humour of the pantomime being much increased by this smart representative. Miss Stanton, the hero, here sings "Sue, Sue, my cinnamon Sue," with fine power and charm as well; and the company join in "A Jubilee To-day," which proves another exhilarant. In Scene 8, Another Part of the Island, Mr. Sydney Dean as Mrs. Crusoe shows much humour in his treatment of the song "The Directoire dress"; and in the "hut" Miss Stanton sings with fine dramatic effect in the scena, "Red Wing." The Interior of the Isle of Palms is another notable scene, and Mr. Melville Page's song as Will Atkins, "Excelsior, muddled up," contributes to the humour of it. Polly, rehabilitated in the dress of her own charming sex, sings with a good voice and expression, "Ah, do come home," and Little Keeno as Jimmy Crusoe evokes roars of laughter with his next effort, "To-ro-li-to-rol-lay." Crusoe, being rescued by a crew of British tars from the Cannibal King, he, together with Polly, joins in the duet, "Esau, Esau, take me on the see-saw," which is illustrated with "effects," and proves decidedly popular. In Scene 12, which is a Palace scene of much beauty, the Leopold Legiere troupe of acrobats perform some startling feats, and Little Keeno gives some remarkable lifelike imitations of popular performers, which, with the ensemble, bring the pantomime to a very successful conclusion, and, amid great plaudits, the Alhambra Girls, vocalists and dancers, lead the chorus in their picturesque groupings and dancing. The pantomime is written, as well as produced, by Mr. Harry Josephs; Mr. Ray M. Lancaster's musical arrangements are perfect; the scenery is greatly to the credit of Mr. R. P. Smith; and the costumes are by M. Delavanti, W. Kennedy, and assistants.

"GOODY TWO SHOES" AT SHEFFIELD.

If the walls of the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, could speak, what a tale they could tell of the pantomimic glories seen on its historic boards during the 135 years of its eventful existence! Countless happy children have had their first and never-to-be-forgotten peep at the enchanted realms of the fairies here, and made the rafters ring with the heavenly music of their gladsome voices. The material part of a theatre, like men and women, grows old, but the spirit of the playhouse is ever-youthful, and Boxing Day saw boxes, stalls, pit, and gallery packed with the accustomed crowd of expectant sightseers, when, after a lively mélange of popular songs by Mr. Dean and his merry men, the curtain went up on Mr. John Hart's third Royal annual, Goody Two Shoes, which, in point of scenic magnificence, costly and artistic dresses, and well-arranged ballets, is quite up to the high standard of Mr. Hart's productions at the Lyceum. The first performance on Christmas Eve went very well, and to those who were present it was quite evident that when the artists had "got into their stride," the pantomime would be as popular for its fun and drollery as it is already notable for the exquisite beauty of its mise-en-scène. Mr. Hart's refined taste in the matter of sartorial display is known to all lovers of this very important department of the theatre, and the costumes of the principals, chorus, ballet, and children, designed by the talented Comelli, are all of the most charming design, and even to the untrained perception of the "mere man" it is quite obvious that the material and trimmings are of the most costly, as they are of the richest texture. The hats are triumphs of the millinery ateliers, and many of the "confections" worn by the ladies of the company are positive dreams of beauty. As Miss Ethel Irving remarked, "draw the women to the play and the men will follow on," so for one reason only the Theatre Royal pantomime is bound to have a good run, as all the women in the district will want to feast their eyes on these chaste productions of the designer and the costumier's art. Elaborate scenery is also one of the special features of Mr. Hart's annual. Conventional pantomime "slap-dash" will not do for his fastidious taste, and if he has any special penchant it appears to lie in the direction of Arcadian landscapes and Watteau effects. Mr. D. G. Hall and his talented "brethren of the brush" have, as usual, been given every encouragement, and it is no mere figure of speech to say that they have surpassed themselves in their fine examples of the scenic artist's delightful craft put on the Royal stage this season. The story of Goody Two Shoes is rather a thin one, but Mr. J. Hickory Wood, the author of the libretto, has done his best to infuse dramatic interest in the nefarious doings of the Mephistopheles-like demon Spite, whose base designs on the happiness of the Prince Sprightly and his pretty sweetheart are ultimately frustrated by the fairy power of Fortuna. The attraction of the annual, from an acting point of view, will be found in the bits of comedy introduced, and the vivacious little interludes, savouring of Offenbachian opera-bouffe, which are deftly worked into the main fabric of the play. Most of the favourite comic songs and catchy ditties have been secured, and the purely music-hall business puts the proper amount of exhilaration into the whole without any suggestion of being "out of the picture." The annual starts in the time-honoured and good old fashion, with a demon scene, The Magic Workshop, after which comes the beautiful Village of Anywhere, with its charming park-like surroundings and all the soothing characteristics of a trim and well-ordered English hamlet. There is the usual rustic dance, and most of the characters are introduced. Near the Forest is a lovely landscape cloth, with a fine view of an old castle standing in relief against a well-painted background of purple hills and a splendid sky. The Widow's Shoe is a big, built-up scene, in which much practical fun is provided, also special features, including a very laughable racing burlesque, with a noble sportsman, who "rides to win," à la Mr. Harry Tate. After a pretty scenic representation, with fine lighting effects, of "Sunrise," the most novel and exquisite set scene of the pantomime is revealed. This is called The Butterflies' Ball, and is what may be termed an edition de luxe of the old transformation scene, minus the "rises and sinks." The general impression produced by the picture is that of a gigantic valentine, with a never-ending vista of delicate filigree work, with exquisitely-coloured tracery of flowers fading by imperceptible graduations into a lovely sky of turquoise blue. It is a picture inspired by the best traditions of the Telbin school, full of poetic fancy, correct drawing, and harmonious colouring. The dawn gives place to the full light of a summer's day, the stage is flooded with light, and from flowery avenues on either side glide a multitude of girls and children, attired in resplendent costumes with gossamer wings, representing the many coloured varieties of the butterfly. After a graceful dance, a tableau is formed, and a gigantic butterfly descends, formed of hundreds of coloured electric lights. The second part of the annual begins in the cool and restful seclusion of A Woodland Glade, whose subdued tones prepare the eyes of the spectator for the dazzling white and gold splendours of The Widow's Mansion. This set extends to the back wall of the theatre, and it is a triumph of architectural detail and correct perspective. Here come the widow's guests attired à la Watteau, and deporting themselves with the courtly grace and delicious insouciance of the merry throng in a Boucher picture. An elegant Pompadour ballet is introduced here, and a bright touch of gaudy colour is added to the picture by the lively antics of children made up as clowns, pantaloons, columbines, harlequins, zanies, scaramouches, punchinellos, and, of course, the irrepressible pierrot. The final spectacular scene is the Prince's Flower Garden, with well-designed and solid-looking terraces and steps flanking a part of the Royal château. A good all-round company has been secured, the title-rôle being sustained by the local favourite, Miss Sylvia May, who looks dainty and bewitching as the sylvan beauty who, like Cinderella, captures a prince for a husband. Miss May sings acceptably, and her manner and enunciation are marked by grace and refinement. Miss Olive Crellin is the elegant and handsome representative of the gallant young Prince. She looked the ideal hero of the fairy story-books, and she acted and sang in a bright and vivacious way that soon secured her the favour of the house on Boxing Day. In Miss Irene Verona many Sheffielders welcomed an old favourite of comic opera fame. Miss Verona brought the well-trained skill and distinction of the able and experienced artist to bear on the part of the Baroness. Miss Daisy Stratton acts well and looks charming as Marjorie, and her catchy songs and graceful dances were enthusiastically applauded. Miss Lillie Howard was a tall, handsome, and tuneful Fairy Fortuna; and Miss Madge Quest looked smart as Rupert. Mr. Frank Calvert as the Baron was full of resource, and he adopted several disguises with mirth-provoking effect. Mr. Jack Pleasants followed his characteristic methods as the simple youth, Jack, and his comic songs were very cordially received by his many local admirers. Mr. Marriott Edgar's Widow Nibblett was a clever character-sketch, caricatured just sufficiently for pantomime purpose, full of quiet drollery and free from anything offensive. Mr. Edgar has the good fortune to sing the popular song "Oh, oh, Antonio!" Mr. Fred Hobbs makes a very effective Demon Spite, and the Brothers Valdo cause much amusement as the Bull. The ballet has been trained by Mme. Louie; Mr. Henry Dean occupies his old post at the conductor's desk; and the stage is carefully overseered by Mr. Ivan Capell (assisted by Mr. Finn Doyle), inspired by the artistic mind of John Hart and the energy and tact of the veteran pantomime producer, T. F. Doyle.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT SHEFFIELD.

To thousands of hard-workers, old and young, in South Yorkshire, Yule-tide would be bereft of half its significance without the honest fun and glittering feast of fancy provided at the Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield, where years ago the "magnificent Ducrow" held sway and instituted the annual spectacles which won for good old "Tommy's" the title of the Sheffield "Home of Pantomime." What a tale of past glories and famous performers could the old stage tell! Nelly Farren, Louie Sherrington, Georgina Smithson, Jenny Hill, Jenny Wilmore, Annie Adams, Bessie Bonehill, Sam Cowell, "Bill" Wallet, the Queen's Jester, George Leybourne, &c., ad lib. Old Sheffielders never forget old favourites, but they are just as loyal and sympathetic in their encouragement to new talent, and Christmas Eve saw the spacious theatre packed from floor to ceiling; the same sea of happy expectant faces met the conductor's gaze as he bowed to the hearty plaudits; the magnetic influence of an audience determined to be happy permeated the atmosphere; and the artists, stimulated to "do all they knew," were assured of success before the curtain rose.

Of course this Dickens's spirit would not last without a good show to back it up, and Messrs. Dottridge and Longden, together with Mr. Forsdike, have in Robinson Crusoe provided an annual which adheres to the traditions that have spelt success in other years. The book by Mr. H. Flockton Foster is well written, and the lyrics are full of quaint fancy humour, and nautical suggestions set to appropriate music and admirably orchestrated by Mr. Frank Barrett and Mr. G. Ess. Crusoe gives the scenic artist and machinist every chance for theatric display, and Messrs. H. O. Richardson and assistants, evidently uncrippled by any sordid considerations, have fully utilised the large stage room and resources of the Alexandra, and the result is a series of brilliant set-scenes that, for artistic conception, technical skill, and glowing but harmonious colouring, equal, and in one case absolutely surpass, anything seen on the stage famous for its spectacular triumphs. This is The Coral Cave and Home of Neptune's Daughter. It is no discredit to the artist to say that the famous scene in Babil and Bijou and the work of the great Beverley have inspired him in this notable effort to materialise a beautiful and poetic conception. The great depth of the stage is utilised, and when the scene is graced by mermaids, tritons, and other spirits of the ocean, who appear from large shells and coral grottoes, the hand of a master of theatric effect is revealed in every artistic touch, and the usual adjectives are too hackneyed and commonplace to do justice to a picture that will never fade from the memory of lovers of form and colour. Taking the scenes in their proper sequence the first is Davy Jones's Locker, followed by the Old Port of Hull, an idealised view full of old-world interest. On either side are quaint sixteenth century houses, and at the wharf is moored a fine old "bottom" of the Golden Hind type, the very sight of whose high poop fills the mind with visions of sunny lagoons, pirates of the main, and buried treasure. After the usual funny business in the 'tween decks scene comes the main deck of the Pirate King. Here the atmosphere of the "spacious days of Elizabeth" is maintained, and after a pleasing hornpipe ballet, Will Atkins scuttles the gallant craft, and there is a quick mechanical change to The Open Sea, with an effective tableau representing Crusoe clinging to a rock, amid the waste of Moonlit waters. Scene 5, Under the Sea, precedes the above-mentioned Coral Cave scene, where a charming ballet, followed by Crusoe's departure in a golden shell, brings the first part of the annual to a fitting conclusion. The curtain next rises on the Isle of Juan Fernandez, where Mr. Richardson has most lovingly depicted the exquisite and luxurious verdure of those "Isles of the Blest" beloved of modern adventure-writers. This is no conventional "Dutch-pink" tropical scene, but a finely-conceived and realistically painted representation of the varied plants and gorgeous flowers of the Pacific islands, the rich tones and umbrageous depths of the palmetto and cactus woods on either hand, being relieved by a delicious suggestion of space in a beautiful "backing," showing a stretch of white sunlit beach washed by the blue waters of a lagoon. The imaginative spectator may in fancy hear "the roar of the surf on the barrier-reef." The grand barbaric ballet and entry of the Cannibal King's Amazon Army proved a spectacular tour de force, which brought down the house on the opening night. A solidly built-up scene is Crusoe's Hut, where plenty of fun and excitement is provided, and finally Crusoe's adventures finish at the King's Palace, in the Grove of Golden Palms. This is the culminating scene of refulgent glitter, and in it the clever scene-painter's inventive brain, wonderful fertility of resource, and facile treatment of large masses of colour have had full scope, and where this artist's skill may have come short in the matter of dazzling display, the genius of the electrician, the costumier, and the jeweller has been enlisted to add to the glories and to give material expression to a stage-manager's dream of sensuous beauty and barbaric splendour. To come to the human interest of the annual, it was soon proved that the management had carefully studied the taste of the Alexandra clientèle, a good company of burlesque artists being headed by Miss May Mars, a lady whose commanding presence, pretty face, charming smile, and fine vocal organ make her a fitting successor to those famous stars, Miss Georgina Smithson, Miss Milly Howes, and Miss Bessie Bonehill who have preceded her as Crusoe on these historic boards. Miss Mars made a great impression some months ago by her magnificent acting and singing as Cleopatra at the Empire, and she now shows her great versatility by the arch naïveté of her style and the refined vivacity with which she enters into the fun and abandon of the comic scenes. Miss Mars makes a big hit with "My girls a Yorkshire girl" and "Sea-shells," and she also delights the less robust section of the audience with several musicianly selections, which will add to her popularity as a finished vocalist. It is hardly necessary to say that such a graceful and shapely artist wears her tasteful costumes with distinction, or that her dramatic appearance in the well-known Lydia Thompson dress in the island scene nightly brings down the house. Miss Mars is a great success with a talent-admiring audience, to the majority of whom her personal charms would count as nothing unless backed up by artistic ability. Miss Nancy Thornton made an ideal heroine as Polly Perkins, Crusoe's tasty bit o' bunting. She looked exceedingly pretty in her dainty dresses, and she sang, danced, and acted with a whole-souled enjoyment that carried the audience with her, and made her position as a favourite secure on the opening night, a position strengthened by the warm applause of succeeding holiday crowds. Miss Kitty Brewster looked a picture of a dusky barbaric beauty as the King's daughter Lu-Lu, and she danced and played the banjo as a Brewster should do. Miss Rita Vincent was a fair and radiant vision as Amphitrita, the Queen of the Sea, and her singing was enthusiastically applauded. The Sisters Cora appeared successfully as Jack and Sally, and their clever song and dance business was received with cordial favour. The well-known dramatic artist, Mr. Ivan Berlyn, played the part of Will Atkins on traditional burlesque lines. In make-up and bearing he was the typical "bold, bad buccaneer villain of the deepest dye," and though he will fill countless boyish breasts with awe and secret admiration, and cause speechless horror to thousands of virtuous little girls, he is a merry villain withal, and his comic songs, eccentric business, and the comical luck of success that follows his crafty plotting end in making the "bad man of the piece" a tremendous favourite with old and young. Mr. Jack Lennol was the incarnation of quaint drollery and infectious humour as the lively Mrs. Crusoe, and in that inspiring ditty, "Oh, Antonio!" this clever comedian provides one of the big vocal hits of the annual. Mr. Arnold Richardson is a warm favourite as Billy Crusoe, and he sings and dances in an energetic manner. Mr. Flockton Foster looks a true son of Neptune as the breezy Cuttle, master of the Saucy Polly. Mr. C. D. North is first-rate as the cannibal potentate, King Hullo-Bullo. Mr. Oswald Battye makes an agile and mirthful Friday, and Mr. C. D. North is a melodramatic and sonorous representative of the Storm Fiend. The clever pair of comic bar performers, Messrs. Elton and Elma, appear successfully as Will Atkins' rascally minions, and their speciality act on the triple bars causes roars of hearty laughter. The celebrated Brewster Troupe with dances and banjo selections are loudly applauded, and the ladies of the corps de ballet all deserve credit for their graceful movements. Mr. Frank Barrett conducts the augmented band in an efficient manner, and Mr. Flockton Foster, stage-manager, and Mr. J. Kelsall, his assistant, have helped Mr. C. H. Longden in the toil of production. Messrs. Dottridge and Longden, with the personal connivance of Mr. W. D. Forsdike, the genial managing-director, and Mr. C. W. Ramsay, his popular aide-de-camp, have provided in Crusoe a pantomimic triumph that will draw crowded houses for many weeks.

"MOTHER GOOSE" AT ST. HELENS.

This year's pantomime, which commenced its run on Boxing Day at the Theatre and Opera House, is Mother Goose and the Bird that Laid the Golden Eggs. It is produced on a grand scale by Messrs. Bliss and Bliss, who have gathered together a company of well-known and accomplished artists to assist. The subject lends itself more to fun and frolic than to spectacular display, and the former quality is exceedingly well catered for, while the latter is by no means neglected. The story, as written by Messrs. Brian Daly and John M. East, is an interesting one, and relates the fortunes good and otherwise of Widow McGooseley and her daughter Jill, and maintains its attraction from start to finish. A beautiful rustic scene, showing the exterior of the widow's house, first charms the eye, and here and in the next scenes, amidst a troupe of bonnie lads and lassies, are introduced the principal characters. The Widow, who is impersonated by Mr. Leo Bliss, has a fund of natural humour, which shows itself in every action, and consequently is a most amusing person, and the peculiar ways of her silly son Jack, as portrayed by Mr. Ernest Percival, are provocative of laughter. In a dainty soft gray dress and old-fashioned poke bonnet, which adds to the attractions of a pretty face, Miss Ray Ford declares herself to be Jill, and naturally the dashing Prince Lothario (Miss Ethel Dunford), who happens to be passing, falls deeply in love with this vision of beauty. They reveal their mutual affection in a duet entitled "The garden of my heart" very feelingly, and Jill executes a delightful dance with pleasing gracefulness and skill. Mother Goose also gives a good song, and Katterina, a Dutch girl, impersonated by Miss Nellie Reilly, sings and dances herself into the good graces of the Widow and everyone else. The Widow, having fallen on evil days, is persecuted by Septimus Snatchall (whose terrible deeds are amusingly portrayed by Mr. George Bliss), and his dusky bailiffs (Messrs. Pete and Juno). To the accompaniment of excellently-executed songs and dances, they agreeably proceed to carry out their onerous duties when the stately Goose (Mr. Lambert Eaton) comes to the rescue by obligingly laying a number of golden eggs, thus raising the Widow to a state of affluence. The Prince's father, King Geezer (Mr. Louis Kerno), possessing very little money but a fine voice, sings in the following scene, "Do you want any coal," evidently with a view of enriching himself by the disposal of that seasonably expensive commodity, and the Price likewise being down on his luck, but certainly not looking it, charmingly sings in a very sweet voice, "Poverty Street." The halls of gold is a splendid set, and herein the now wealthy widow's rich dwelling special items are rendered by Messrs. Pete and Juno. George Bliss and Miss Nellie Reilly. A pretty dance is presented by the Sylva Troupe. In the following scenes Jill, touched by jealousy, plaintively sings "If I had a pal like you," for which she is enthusiastically encored, and the Prince in, perhaps, the prettiest scene of all, renders "Shadowland" most effectively. Pride always precedes a fall, and the Widow, in her endeavour to become beautiful, loses everything, including the golden goose, and it is only by the good offices of Fairy of Wisdom (Miss Damaris du Pere), who restores the Goose, that everything comes right and ends happily with the union of the Prince and Jill in a scene of splendour, in which the whole company, dressed in most artistic costumes, take part. Of the artists, nothing but praise can be said. Miss Ethel Dunford is a charming principal boy, and acts with a due appreciation of the part. Miss Ray Ford is sweet and attractive; she sings pleasingly and her dancing is delightful. Mr. Leo Bliss make a capital Widow, and Mr. George Bliss does good work as Septimus Snatchall. Mr. Louis Kerno has a good voice, and the character of the King suits him well, and Mr. Ernest Percival as Jack is always laughter-provoking. These four have many funny items together, and are responsible for most of the hilarity. Messrs. Pete and Juno also render excellent aid in this respect, and Miss Nellie Reilly is a gay and sprightly little lady, who is sure to became a favourite. The Two Rubies dance well, and the Sylvia Troupe of dancers give a fine display of their art. Miss Kittie Glannon is quite the village belle as Bessie, and Miss May St. Pierre is a pretty Margery, and both might with advantage have more to do. Mr. Frank Proben is capital as the Demon, and Miss Damaris du Pere is a graceful Queen. The chorus is a capital one. The whole of the costumes are beautiful and costly, and are designed and executed by Miss A. Burrows and Miss E. Schorn. The elaborate scenery is painted by Mr. Alfred Terraine and the music is under the direction of Mr. Alan D'Albert. Much hard work has fallen to the share of Mr. H. F. Housden, the courteous business-manager.

SINCE mentioning Messrs. Vaughan and Cook, of Goswell-road, the specialists in the heating and lighting of theatres, as having completed the work at the New Hippodrome at Devonport, we find they have completed a large number of other contracts. Among them are the Tottenham Palace, the Palais Cinema at Richmond, the Grand Opera House, Oldham, the Empire at Edmonton, the National Hall, Hornsey, the Hammersmith Picture Palace, the Parkhurst Theatre, and the Electric Theatre, Rye-lane, Peckham. They have just started the Lyric at Bromley, the Royal Sceptre at Canning Town, and the New Hall at Tooting. The old-established firm is thoroughly up to date, and as they have excellent craftsmen their work is to be found at an enormous number of theatres.

Messrs. Hickory Wood and Arthur Collins have contrived and constructed a really charming pantomime at Drury Lane this year. The main lines of the Whittington legend cannot, of course, be departed from without outraging long-venerated traditions; but the theme has been handled in a truly intelligent and artistic spirit. Seldom have we seen a more beautifully-painted set than the fifth in the first act—Mr. Henry Emden's idea of the view from Highgate Hill in the Middle Ages. The treatment of the sky, and the delicacy of the bluish-grey tones in the distance, raise this scene to a very high level of excellence, and confer great credit on the artist. The last scene of the same act, The Harbour of Gold, is a marvellous instance of what the same clever painter can do in the way of complicated spectacle. The background at first is architectural, and the "wonders of the world" are symbolised by queens of the four quarters, borne aloft on chairs, and raised on man's shoulders above the crowd of natives and fairies, who perform evolutions on the stage. Eventually the scene develops into a very beautiful fantasy, the keynote of which is Fame. The ballet groups itself in the middle distance, and, at the back, a number of coryphées, blowing horns, are elevated; while a lace-like "cloth," glittering with silvery sheen, descends from the flies. With the aid of coloured lights, the result is dazzlingly beautiful, and is a striking proof of the height to which modern pantomime spectacle can be carried. Mr. R. C. McCleery has supplied a pleasant seashore scene in Phantasia, and is also responsible for the admirable background for the last scene of the second act. Mr. Harry Brooke's masterpiece is the Court of Hustings, an excellent example of his art; and Mr. Bruce Smith's brilliant shop interior—reminding one of a section in the White City—is quite up to that able artist's standard. No pantomime production at Drury Lane would be complete without the presence of Mr. J. M. Glover in the conductor's chair, and his composing, selecting, and arranging the music has been done this year with his usual skill and judgment. Now and then, in some stirring situation, one's ear is startled by a really fine bit of writing and scoring, and the ordinary music of the pantomime is just what is required. As we have said, Mr. Hickory Wood and Mr. Collins have not strayed far from the beaten path in concocting the "book," but there are some pleasing and ingenious touches, as notably the utilisation of the "Pied Piper of Hamelin" idea in connection with Dick's rat adventure. To the librettists is also due credit for the amusing scene in which Fitzwarren, come down in the world, is visited in his cellar-tenement by Idle Jack, who has become a Guardian of the Poor and is "rolling in riches"; and for the screamingly funny trial scene in which the jury play upon brass instruments. The costumes, designed by Comelli, are exquisite, the mediæval fashions being cleverly utilised for the purpose of stage effect, and the supernatural shapes, notably some large-winged spirits in the Harbour of Gold scene, being splendidly imposing. The original incidental songs, &c., by Messrs. Arthur Sturgess, Eustace Ponsonby, and Arthur Wimperis, are valuable contributions to the very successful result; and the experienced and able stage-management of Mr. Ernest D'Auban, exerted under the all-seeing eye of Mr. Collins as grand producer and superintendent, must also be heartily commended. The Harlequinade, which was omitted at the production, is now spiritedly supplied by the Pender family, with Mr. Bob Pender as Clown. Now that the time of performance has been reduced to the ordinary limits, this part of the entertainment, which still has a charm for the patrons of pantomime, might well be elaborated and made of importance.

The cast was remarkably well chosen, the various creations fusing into one harmonious and effective whole. The contrasts between the various styles were of the strongest. Mr. Wilkie Bard's dry, deliberate method was very effectively applied to developing the humours of the part of Idle Jack. To see him receiving instructions from his master on the subject of shop-keeping, and blundering most completely and ridiculously, was most diverting; and Mr. Bard introduced many droll details, such as a "floppy" dog who followed him to Highgate Hill, and a fireman who came to him with objections on the stage. Mr. Bard's songs went extremely well, especially one directed against the suffragettes, a mob of whom attacked and maltreated Idle Jack outrageously; and the "seashore shells" ditty has a very "taking" tune, and is likely to become popular. A printed apology was circulated for Mr. Johnny Danvers, who had undertaken the part of Alderman Fitzwarren at short notice, owing to the unfortunate breakdown of Mr. Neil Kenyon; but there was no necessity for any allowance being made. Mr. Danvers was excellent as the store-keeper, and supplied his full share of the fun. Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald gave a quaint and curious representation of Will Worthless, commendably serious in its eccentricity, and always clearly-cut and well-defined. He rendered his song of etiquette in the sixth scene very neatly and smartly, and supplied a highly original and piquant contribution to the scene of amusement. His property giraffe sent the house into convulsions. One of the greatest hits in the performance was made by Mr. George Ali as Mouser the Cat. The costume differed in many ways from the usual feline dress, the head being big, and the body stout and tiger-like. The movability of the eyes and jaws were taken full advantage of by Mr. Ali, who endowed Dick's faithful friend with human expression and gesture, his pantomime rivetting the attention of the house. His business of nausea after smoking a pipe was quite comical, and he was loudly applauded at each exit. The Cat in Dick Whittington is one of the greatest successes of the show. Mr. Arthur Conquest supplied a neat, smart, humorous, and never overdone impersonation of Sarah Slapp, and proved himself a clever scion of a gifted race, and Mr. Bert Monks deserved praise for his competent depiction of Captain Keel.

Miss Queenie Leighton cut a bold and striking figure in the character of Dick, her dashing and downright method being very acceptable, and her spirited singing bringing down the house. It was a trying ordeal to have to deliver a pæan in praise of Mr. Chamberlain amidst a running fire of cries of "No politics," and doubtless some less controversial theme will be found as a substitute for this dangerous ditty. Throughout Miss Leighton was a tower of strength in the pantomime, acting the rôle with an earnestness and vigour that were very commendable. That attractive artist, Miss Truly Shattuck, with her dark and brilliant beauty, her fine voice, and her slashing style, was an ideal representative of the Prince of Phantasia, and sang and acted with an impulse and an energy which completely carried away the audience. She was applauded and encored again and again. Miss Marie Wilson made a refined and engaging Alice, looking very pretty in the becoming costume of the period, and acting with grace, gentleness, and sympathetic expression. Miss Nellie Stratton was praiseworthy as the Serving Maid; and Miss Doris Trevelyan sang in capital style as the Spirit of Love. Miss Marie George is such a favourite that her success is assured as soon as she appears in the familiar short jacket and wooden shoes, and her Dutch accent, her lively dancing, and the "taking" way in which she rendered a ditty about the Fatherland, and another about a husband who is afraid to come home in the dark, gave the greatest pleasure to the public with whom she is so popular. Her Katrina this year is as big a hit as any of her previous creations of the same kind. Minor characters were carefully and conscientiously sustained. Mr. Fred Penley did good work as the Tax Collector, Mr. Edward Morgan was efficient as the Farmer, Mr. Guy Williams performed his duties satisfactorily as the Herald, and Misses Irene Smith, Crissy Cranford, and Joan Burton spoke their lines with feeling as the Three Spirits.

Dick Whittington shows the extraordinary advance that has been made in the production of pantomime in late years. Mr. Collins gives more largely and more liberally every year, and the name and fame of Old Drury grow greater annually.

Mr. Robert Courtneidge, who is associated with Mr. George Edwardes at the Adelphi, comes to that house with an enviable reputation for the production of pantomime, and his bright, sparkling, fanciful, refined, and admirably-acted version of Cinderella is quite worthy to take its place among the most noted realisations of that world-famed story. In the country, we know, the stage-work of Courtneidge bears the stamp of excellence, and that his Christmas pieces possess a character of their own may be learnt after witnessing the latest pantomime at the Adelphi, a house famous for such spectacles. Liberality is spread over each department—scenery, mechanical effects, dresses, and, more important than all, company. Scenes of great beauty, groupings of glittering splendour—and we have both in profusion—would be useless without a cast possessing the daintiness, and the humour, and the jollity that are demanded in every Yuletide piece. We may say at once that the authors of Cinderella are specially fortunate in their interpreters. Mr. A. M. Thompson has collaborated with Mr. Courtneidge in the telling once again of the story of the humble heroine, who has ever been associated with the "grate." The persecution to which Cinders is subjected is scarcely so rigorous as pantomime usages permit, and the love interest is not so much insisted on as is usual. The elder sisters are neither particularly overbearing, aggressively malicious, nor ugly, and are even ruled by sweet reasonableness. Cinderella comes to her heritage of love and devotion in a beautiful scene by Mr. R. McCleery. Mr. Conrad Tritschler distinguishes himself greatly in what may be called the transformation of the Baronial Kitchen into a wonderfully beautiful toilet chamber, a dream of ivory-coloured daintiness. In a wooded scene Mr. Tritschler has also done exceedingly well. Mr. W. R. Coleman is responsible for a scene of considerable beauty in his realisation of the Palace Interior. Cinders is taken from the beautiful "white" apartment to the ball in a crystalline coach, drawn by four little brown ponies, who will be beloved by the youngsters.

The pantomime has the advantage of the services of Mr. Dan Rolyat, a comedian, as the Baron. He has played the part in previous representations in the provinces, and is therefore on quite familiar ground. To speak of him as a resourceful comedian is but faint praise. He positively bubbles over with fun, and in every scene in which he appears he is responsible for diverting business. He scores in a topical song, "Poor Uncle John," but his dancing is a liberal education in comicality of movement; and it reaches the highest level of alertness in a remarkable solo in which he astonishes one by his surprising contortions. That his work as Joe Mivens in The Dairymaids and as Partridge in the opera of Tom Jones is not forgotten was shown by the hearty reception given to him on both Christmas Eve and Boxing Night. Mr. Rolyat as Archibald is associated in his scenes with Mr. John Humphries as Daisy—a part he has previously played in the provinces. He is diverting to a degree, and his parody of the "Merry Widow" waltz is admirable. Mr. Stephen Adeson is already making the very most of his opportunities in the part of Choddles, in which he is responsible for "Sing us a song of something to eat, and give the girls a rest." He joins Miss Phyllis Dare, a dainty Cinderella, in "When you smile, smile, smile." Miss Dare is also fortunate in her coadjutor in the very successful number "Rainbow." He is none other than Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., who is playing Dandini in a way that shows considerable promise. He is heard to advantage in the tuneful and ear-haunting "Oh, oh, Antonio," which is one of the most successful selections in the production. Miss Carrie Moore as Prince Rudolph of Sylvania cuts a pretty figure as principal boy, and her vocal endowment enables her to do complete justice to such numbers as "Come back to Connemara." She is well suited, too, with "Take me round in a taxi-cab," in which she has the assistance of an octet of smart lady chauffeurs. The assignment of the parts of the Sisters to actresses is a fashion that is growing, and when such experienced and clever ladies as Miss Marie Rignold (Arethusa) and Miss Mabel Russell (Mopsa) are engaged, the innovation—if it may be so called—is a very welcome one. Miss Rignold (a daughter of the late Mr. William Rignold), is very whimsical in her high falutin', and she constantly evokes laughter. Miss Russell's vivacity and buoyancy are refreshing, and her dancing is particularly well worth watching. Miss Gertrude Sinclair as the Fairy Godmother gives significance to her lines by her clear utterance. Miss Maudie Thornton, whose success in The Antelope is well remembered, makes the best of the slight part of Gaston; Miss Violet Graham fascinates by her dancing; and Miss Louie Lochner, Miss Marjorie Manners, Miss Muriel Varna, Miss Maisie Sinclair, Miss Norah Dwyer, Miss Ethel Denny, Miss Belle Ross, Miss Lily Vanlon, Miss Margaret Keane; Messrs. G. Parte, G. Smith, Charles James, Charles Chamier all add to the effectiveness of the different scenes. Miss Elise Clerc, who is shortly to go to the Alhambra, has arranged the ballets, and this fact alone is sufficient to account for their excellence. Some of the lyrics are from the pen of Mr. Arthur Wimperis; and special numbers have been composed by Mr. Herbert Haines, Mr. Alfred Haines, and Mr. Arthur Wood, the musical director. In the stage management, Mr. Robert Courtneidge—who had a special call on Christmas Eve—is assisted by Mr. Reginald Highley. Mr. Herbert Ralland is managing the house, being assisted by Mr. A. W. Ashdowne.

Herne the Hunter	MR. JOHN SANDBROOK
Cock Robin	MISS MARJORIE GUMMERSON

A record attendance was established on Boxing Day at the King's, when Mr. J. B. Mulholland's seventh "annual" was produced in the shape of Babes in the Wood. Needless to say, every expectation was realised, and the reception awarded to the pantomime and performers was so eminently favourable that no doubt can be entertained as to the huge success of the undertaking. The Babes follows very much in the footsteps of tradition, but Mr. Fred Bowyer, the author of the book, has introduced Robin Hood, his sweetheart Maid Marian, and his merry followers to assist in carrying the story to a pleasant ending. In Scene 1, The Haunt of Herne the Hunter, we hear of his assistance to be given to Baron Swanker, who wishes to rid himself of the Babes and then marry their cousin Maid Marian, so as to gain possession of their wealth; but the Fairy Lovelight has a word or two to say in opposition. The scene then changes to Meadowsweet Village, a charmingly old-fashioned rural set, in which Robin masquerades as Colin, a gamekeeper, in order that he may meet his sweetheart, Marian. The Baron employs Percy and Cecil to carry off the Babes, and after arranging with them, makes a speech to the villagers, but is rudely interrupted by the suffragists. A rattling hunting chorus and ballet follow, and then we are moved to Scene 3, The Village School. After Maid Marian has sung a song of "Bubbles" to a number of children dressed as in Millais' celebrated picture, the serious business of the school begins, and, as presided over by Phyllis Macwhackington, governess to the Babes, and in love with the Baron, proves a very laughable affair. Percy and Cecil, on the Baron's instructions, carry off the Babes from the school, and in Scene 4, The Forest (a piece of very daninty painting), the robbers quarrel between themselves, and after a clever burlesque fight they go off waltzing, leaving the Babes to take care of themselves. In their despair the children lie down to sleep on a bank, and Herne the Hunter appears, thinking they are now in his power; but in this he is thwarted by Lovelight, who orders her attendant, Sprite Cock Robin, and his companions to care for the Babes, and return them to safe quarters. Marian, meeting Robin in the wood, calls him by his proper name, and the Baron overhearing, orders his arrest, but Hood's foresters quickly make their appearance, and with a very picturesque tableau Part I. comes to an end.

Part II. opens at Saltville-on-Sea, where all the principal characters appear in disguise as pierrots and itinerant musicians, but all follow modern methods and form a combination. A clever entertainment follows, in which all take part with so much success that the audience asked eagerly for more. Scene 2 is a room in the Baron's house, where we find Phyllis waiting up for the return of the Baron, who, when he does appear at a window, is half-seas over. The Babes are returned, but are now under the safe care of Marian, and therefore the Baron's main endeavour is to get her to marry him; but in this and the succeeding scenes he is quite foiled by Robin, who, after a time, is pardoned and comes into his own again as the Earl of Huntington. Scenes 4 and 6, The Garden of Roses and The Earl's Palace are, indeed, beautiful, and earn warm praise for the painter, Mr. F. J. Dowling, who is responsible for the whole of the artistic scenery.

Now for the acting. First and foremost we have the inimitable Mr. George Mozart as the Baron Swanker. There was never an instant's doubt as to his success. From his first entrance to the close he held the audience in excellent humour, his comical acting, singing, and amazing versatility being highly satisfactory. Mr. Mozart's songs "Walks" and "On and off the stage" are bound to become most popular. The fact that Miss Marie Dainton was engaged for the part ensured that Maid Marian would be an eminently pleasing and delightful personage, and so she was. Miss Dainton's acting and singing, together with her celebrated imitations, will tend to make her an immense favourite in West London. A handsome and refined Robin Hood was Miss Winnie Browne, who created a most favourable impression, and who will undoubtedly become a general favourite. Her songs "Bombardier" and "I should like to have a shot at that" were very pleasantly rendered. The Phyllis Macwhackington of Mr. James A. Watts was quickly appreciated. His rich humour soon caught on, and when he appeared in a Directoire dress and sang of it the enthusiasm of the audience was unbounded, to be repeated later when he gave a screaming burlesque dance of "Salome." Miss Gwennie Harcourt made a clever Tilly (maid of all work); and Mr. Alec Godfrey was a lively Perks. The robbers, Percy and Cecil, found very able representatives in Messrs. Hall and Earle, who, besides being drily humorous, gave an excellent acrobatic display. The Babes (Dorothy and Norman) were exceedingly well impersonated by Miss Elsie Forster and Miss Vera Sanders. Dobson, Friar Tuck, Will Scarlett, Margery Daw, and Alan-a-Dale were all brightly and energetically played by Mr. Rudolph Kloss, Mr. Reg. Edwards, Miss Miriam Grainger, and Miss Olive West. Miss Madge Bell sang prettily as Fairy Lovelight; and Mr. John Sandbrook was a sonorous Herne the Hunter. Miss Marjorie Gummerson was a pert and vivacious Cock Robin. The large chorus was all that could be desired, both in voice and appearance. Ballets, undertaken by the Asturias troupe of National dancers, met with distinct approbation. Miss Bessie Royce was an extremely graceful première danseuse. The dresses, by Alias, Baruch and Simmons, and Mme. Julia Beaumont, were marvels of beauty, colouring, and richness. The music, by Mr. B. J. Patterson and Mr. Ernée Woodville, has been capitally composed and selected, and the former capably directed the orchestra. The whole production reflects the greatest credit on Mr. J. B. Mulholland and his able stage-manager, Mr. Joseph R. Tate.

"THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT" AT HOLLOWAY.

On Boxing Day, Dec. 26, at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, the Pantomime, written by J. Hickory Wood, Music by Dudley Powell, entitled,

"THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT."

Prince Opulent	MISS MADOLINE REES
Princess Prue	MISS KITTIE DOUGLAS
Jack	MISS WINIFRED WARD
Jill	MISS MAIDIE SCOTT
Tommy	MISS MAUDIE FRANCIS
Margery	LITTLE ROSIE LEE
Siren	MISS NELLIE HOWARD
White Heather	MISS GLADYS SOMAN
Father Hubbard	LITTLE ZOLA
Squire of Whare	MR. DICK TUBB
Ripp and Rapp	MESSRS. FARR AND FARLAND
Cat	MR. SAM POLUSKI, JUN.
Circe	MISS MAY DAVIS
Honey	MISS JESSIE BUCKLE
Mother Hubbard	MR. FRED EMNEY

The first performance on Boxing Day afternoon of the Marlborough Theatre pantomime was received by a crowded audience with every sign of satisfaction, judging by the frequent applause during the representation and when at six o'clock the curtain descended upon the gorgeous and enchanting Palace scene. There were a good many child critics present, and as they were heard to express a favourable opinion regarding the feast of fun and the wealth of scenic splendour which the management had provided, the fact in itself affords convincing evidence of the success of the Christmas piece. The pantomime was produced by Mr. W. H. Morgan, under the personal supervision and direction of Mr. Fred Karno—a name that is closely associated with the production of hilarious stage productions that have given delight to thousands of patrons of our most popular places of entertainment in London and the provinces.

As the story of The House that Jack Built is told in a few lines of doggerel verse, Mr. J. Hickory Wood, the author of the book of words, has borrowed from several other familiar nursery stories and ingeniously woven together a coherent tale, the hero of which is Jack Hubbard, a son of the dame of immortal fame. The first scene represents the village of Whare, and here are found a merry party of lads and their lasses, who sing in joyous strain. Hither comes the Princess Prue in disguise, she having run away from the parental home because of her refusal to wed her parents' choice, Prince Opulent, son and heir of King Oof. This young man follows in pursuit of the bride selected for him, but it seems that the Princess, charming as she is, has made no lasting impression on him, because when he meets Jill, daughter of Mother Hubbard, he falls in love with her at first sight. Curiously enough, the Princess has a similar experience when she sees Jack, Jill's handsome young brother. The remainder of the story can be told in a few words. The good fairy, White Heather, smooths the path of her protégé Jack, and eventually she enables him to build, by magic powers, a wonderful house, and to claim the hand of the lovely Princess. But to return to the village scene. The entrance of Mother Hubbard is followed by a very comical domestic episode between her and her diminutive husband. At first they bill and coo like turtle doves; but soon the couple fall out, and abuse each other so violently that a policeman makes his appearance. It is, however, for the offence of gleaning corn from the fields belonging to the Squire of Whare that the old lady is "run in"—and not she alone, but the whole family. After a burlesque trial in the Squire's hall (the Prince acting as magistrate) and a pretty scene outside His Royal Highness's castle, the dame's kitchen is revealed, and here some screamingly funny comic business is introduced. Mother Hubbard's very knowing Cat, accused of the murder of the canary, and threatened with punishment, climbs into a private box, and thence nimbly makes his way round the dress circle to the opposite side of the house, again regaining the stage. Much merriment is caused when the dame gives her dwarf of a husband a bath and then carries him off to bed. A dark scene follows, in which the "Immortals" appear, and some excellent choral singing is given, this being the preliminary to an electrical floral ballet, which is strikingly effective. The dresses of some of the dancers are illuminated by electric lights, and finally a brilliant picture is obtained by the illumination of the whole stage by myriads of these fairy-like lights.

The second part opens with a picturesque scene representing a cornfield in the autumn, and here the youthful representatives of Tommy and Margery, Mother Hubbard's twins, display precocious cleverness in some smart burlesque business, assisted by other members of the company. In the Haunted Chamber scene continuous laughter is excited by the weird experiences of Father and Mother Hubbard after their retirement to their respective beds; and next we behold the wonderful house that Jack built, not forgetting the Cat, the Rat, and the Cow with the crumpled horn. Succeeding scenes are the Wishing Gate, Lovers'-lane, the Aeroplane, concluding with the Silver Palace, a dazzling picture, in which the colour tones are charmingly harmonised. Here enter all the principal characters arrayed in the most brilliant costumes imaginable; and the applause of the audience testifies to the scenic triumph achieved.

Miss Madoline Rees is the Prince Opulent, and is in every respect well qualified for this part. As a vocalist she very early in the afternoon made a hit by her rendering of "Bombardier," with its catchy chorus sung by a bevy of girls dressed as soldiers. Later she sang "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" and other ditties with much spirit. Miss Kittie Douglas was a charming representative of the Princess Prue, and one of her most pronounced vocal successes was "A tiny seed of love," which was greeted with much applause. Miss Winifred Ward was a sprightly Jack, and proved, indeed, to be quite an ideal hero of the love story. She sang "I want you to see my girl," "Any girl will do," &c., with excellent effect, and was untiring in her efforts to please. And no one could desire a more attractive exponent of the part of Jill than Miss Maidie Scott, who quickly became a prime favourite with the audience. Very artistic and charming was her rendering of "Will you be my Teddy bear?" assisted by Miss Ward as a soldier and a number of children representing bears. In the next scene she was vociferously recalled for her exceedingly clever treatment of "We all work but father," and later she delighted the audience with "A leader of society" and "I'm afraid to go home in the dark." Never in Holloway has a pantomime heroine received a warmer welcome than did Miss Scott on Boxing Day. Tommy and Margery, Mother Hubbard's twins, were smartly played by Miss Maudie Francis and Little Rosie Lee, both clever children well versed in their business. Miss Gladys Soman as the Good Fairy scored as a vocalist, and Miss Nellie Howard was excellent as the enchantress who endeavours to work mischief. Coming to the comedians engaged, Mr. Fred Emney is entrusted with the part of Mother Hubbard, and a more genuinely humorous exponent of the dame it surely would be difficult to find. In every scene in which he appeared he helped to maintain the fun at the highest pitch, and by perfectly legitimate methods he caused uproarious laughter from old and young alike. In this task he was ably assisted by Little Zola, who has had much experience as a pantomime comedian, and whose diminutive stature, remarkable agility, and quaint manner all helped to win him the immense popularity he has gained at Holloway. His ditty "Whoever would have thought it?" was very well received. Mr. Dick Tubb as the Squire of Whare, "one of the old school," cut a funny figure and met with deserved success. Messrs. Farr and Farland as Ripp and Rapp were prominent throughout, and contributed to the fun by their amusing cross-talk. Mr. Sam Poluski, jun., was a very active Cat, and rendered valuable assistance in the scheme of amusement. Favourable mention should also be made of Miss May Davis as Circe and Miss Jessie Buckle as Honey. Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of lady dancers fully maintained their reputation as terpsichorean experts. The dances and brilliant processions were admirably arranged by Mme. Elise. The scenery, designed at the Karno Scenes Factory by E. Grimani, excited general admiration, and the charming costumes were by Harrison, of Leicester-square, and Mme. Day. The music was composed and arranged by Mr. Dudley Powell, who also acted as conductor.

"THE BABES" AT THE SHAKESPEARE.

Pantomime, by F. Maxwell Stuart, Produced Dec. 24.

Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett's fourteenth annual pantomime produced here on Christmas Eve, whilst essentially an entertainment for the juveniles, should also appeal to those who like a high-tone Christmas entertainment, in which genuine mirth and melodious music intermingle with graceful dancing and spectacular processions. The piece is a mixture of Babes in the Wood and Robin Hood, and Mr. F. Maxwell Stuart, the author of the book, has compiled a pretty story, the plot of which is in evidence throughout. The music has been cleverly arranged by Mr. Alf. J. Lawrence, and the dresses call for special mention. The pantomime is divided into eleven scenes, commencing with the Demon's House, from which we proceed to the Village Green, a very pretty set. Another effective scene is the Baron's Kitchen, in which the Two Missouris have an opportunity of displaying their clever trampoline act, which was greatly enjoyed by the audience. The concluding scene of Part 1 is the Land of Flowers, introducing a grand procession of fairies representing different flowers. The blending of the colours in this scene showed exquisite taste, and the whole effect was very striking and evoked great applause. The most notable scenes in the second act are the Woodland Glade and The Hall, Huntington Castle. In the latter, which forms the final scene of the pantomime, special mention must be made of the vocal minuet, which was pretty and effective. The electrical effects of this scene were on a scale of unparalleled magnificence and excited general admiration.

The cast is a strong one. At the head of the scheme of fun are Messrs. Nat Clifford and Harry Phydora, the former as the impecunious Baron and the latter as the Village Schoolmistress, who aspires to become a Baroness. Mr. Nat Clifford worthily maintains his high reputation as a comedian, and keeps the fun going fast and furiously. His clever drollery and eccentric dancing keep the audience in roars of laughter, and altogether he was very successful. He has a number of songs, amongst which the most successful were "I don't care if there's a girl there" and "A silver spoon in his mouth." Both these were rendered with considerable comic effect, and were warmly received. In Mr. Harry Phydora is found a capital Dame, and he plays the part with a keen sense of humour. His make-up is excellent, and he works energetically throughout, being responsible for a good deal of the fun. His most effective numbers are "When I was in the chorus of the Gaiety" and "When there's a woman in the house," both of which received well-merited encores. He also assisted the Baron in the duet "I prophesy," which was very amusing. Mr. Will Harris is well suited to the rôle of Georgie, the Baron's son, and scores a hit with his song "Cos he was smarter than me." This was sung with a deal of expression, and was warmly applauded. Mr. Jack Denton makes the most of his opportunities as the jovial Friar Tuck, and acquits himself with success. The Two Missouris as Snatcher and Catcher introduce their knockabout business with the most satisfactory results, and their clever specialities are rewarded with loud applause. Two more diverting robbers than Pick Lock and Till Litter, as played by Messrs. Fyne and Hurley, could not be imagined, and even without the aid of the Fairy Queen the Babes need not have been seriously alarmed, for the robbers thought more of creating general hilarity than doing evil. They were untiring in their efforts to amuse, and caused considerable laughter in their "Heroes" song. The Miltons as Louisa and Jack Slim also render valuable assistance. Mr. Glanmore Jones is an imposing Demon, and his fine voice is heard to advantage in several songs. Miss Nancy Hearne, an established favourite here, is an attractive and dashing Robin Hood, and enters with spirit into the business of the part. Possessing a vivacious personality, and singing her songs with excellent effect, Miss Hearne repeats her previous successes. A number of popular songs are allotted to her, amongst which we may mention "I want you to be my girl" and "Have you got another girl like Mary?" (with business by the conductor), which were both demanded again by the audience.

Miss Lena Brickwell is a bright and pleasing Maid Marion, acting with refinement and singing with a charm of manner: her songs, which were well received, include "Come round on Sunday" and "If I should plant a tiny seed of love." Her duet with the Baron, "Mingle your eyebrows with mine," was very humorously rendered, and, with the comic by-play of the Baron, made this a very effective number. The Babes, Miss Dorothy Miller and Baby Hutt, earn considerable applause by their clever acting and dancing, and it is well merited, for their performance is particularly ingenious and entertaining. Their duet "Run away from Old Man Goblin" was enthusiastically encored. Baby Hutt also has a pretty song, "Goodbye, Teddy Bear," with graceful dance, which was re-demanded. Miss Florence May is a very pretty Dolly; Miss Wilfred Howard's fine presence and voice is well suited to the rôle of Will Scarlett; and Miss Vera George is a commanding King Richard. Fairy Moonbeam has an excellent representative in Miss Eva Colton, whose fine voice is heard to particular advantage in the pretty song "The Beautiful Land of Nod," gaining a well-deserved recall. Miss Kathleen O'Neil as Allan-a-Dale, Miss Eva Brickwell as George A. Green, and Miss Olive Mortimer as Mat of the Mill also render valuable assistance. Some excellent dancing is contributed by Miss Beatrice Howard's celebrated Troupe of Twelve Gipsy Girls, and the Shakespeare Glee Singers gain considerable applause for their harmonious rendering of humorous glees. The general work of the chorus is above reproach, and the concerted pieces are given with vigour and tuneful effect, that reflect great credit on all concerned.

Mr. Frank Seabrook is acting-manager for the production, and, with Mr. H. Percival Young, the resident acting-manager, is assiduous in looking after the comfort of the audience. The pantomime is a really excellent sample of its kind, and judging from its cordial reception on Christmas Eve, should have a very successful run.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT THE KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Boxing Night, the Pantomime, Written by Frank Dix, Music by J. H. Wilson, entitled

"RED RIDING HOOD."

Boy Blue	Miss Lulu Valli
Miss Muffett	Miss Queenie Essex
Jack	Miss Angela Ward
Jill	Miss Marjorie Moore
Johnny Stout, Willie Green	Poluski Brothers
Grunter (the pig)	Archibald
Squire Vaux	Mr. Ernest Thiel
Mrs. Hubbard	Mr. Leonard Teel
Snatcher (the dog)	Mr. Fred Zietz
The Wolf	Mr. Harry Benson
Tiger	Tiny Tim
Daddy's Girl	Miss Violet Edge
Bertie	Miss Rosa Costa
Fairy Queen	Miss Florence Ray
Red Riding Hood	Miss Winifred Delevanti

There were many anxious moments when the curtain rose on Mr. Robert Arthur's eleventh Kennington pantomime on Boxing Day, for, despite the previous long list of successes the enterprising "booming," by which Mr. Harry B. Brandreth, the astute acting-manager, had kept Red Riding Hood well in the public eye, had prepared the overflowing audience for something exceptional, and everyone concerned in the production was alert to note if the popular expectations had been realised. But the verdict was not long in coming, for the first scene ended amid a furore of applause, and from that point onwards the production was a triumph, in which all participated without stint, and which must have delighted the heart of Mr. Dix, who shouldered the double burden of authorship and production, and who had worked like a Trojan to make the show go. The pantomime is one which appeals alike to the imagination of the children and the passing fancy of their elders. The nursery story is preserved as a groundwork, and on this Mr. Dix has grafted an interesting comedy, for merriment is the word which dominates the pantomime. No one can see Red Riding Hood without catching the humour which infects it in every phase, and coming away happier than he went. Mr. Dix has introduced a lot of local colour, and has given some quaint turns to his fertile genius. He never allows the Wolf to sing. Time and again the Wolf comes on, and in orthodox fashion essays to sing "The Wolf," but he is summarily suppressed, and does not get any satisfaction until the end, when the pig is given him as a sort of consolation prize. Then again, greatly daring all the conventions, Mr. Dix has brought in "The tiny seed of love," from Omar Khayyám, but he does it so artistically that no one can take offence, and the sweet way in which Miss Lulu Valli interprets the song brings down the house. To give anything like an adequate description of Red Riding Hood is not possible within this limited space, but its main features might be briefly indicated. The curtain rises on the Wolf's Lair, a rocky recess in the forest, and a chorus of wolves sing an operatic melody by Mr. Wilson, in which they state their intention of settling the fate of Red Riding Hood with the aid of the Squire of Vaux, who desires her fortune and estate. The Squire enters into the conspiracy, and there you have the theme, which is cleverly worked out, with the aid of the winsome Fairy Queen, who never fails to rescue Red Riding Hood from the Wolf, and of Boy Blue, who, helped by Miss Muffett, checkmates the Squire. Scene 2 is a magnificent piece of painting and staging, The Village of Kennington Cross, in all its ancient picturesqueness, and Mr. McKie and Mr. Stafford Hall may well be proud of their handiwork. Again there is a taste of Mr. Wilson's pretty music by the silvery-voiced Fairy Queen, and Red Riding Hood appears with letters for Mother Hubbard and the rest. Mr. Leonard Teel is a great humorist, and the reputation of the Poluskis as mirth-makers is too well known to need description, so between them it may well be imagined that the fun is fast and furious. The Wolf, which has been caught by Boy Blue in the forest, is brought in caged, but Johnny Stout and Willie Green let it out. The Poluskis have some smart gags in this scene, and also sing a duet, "The bad boys of Bow," with great effect, while there is a rattling chorus of villagers. Here it might be said that the chorus is strong and well-balanced, and throughout sings splendidly. Boy Blue introduces his first song, "There is not another girl like Mary," and the way in which Miss Valli makes it go puts this melody amongst the foremost of pantomime numbers. Miss Muffett, having been rescued by Boy Blue from Johnny and Willie, who frighten her with an enormous spider, gives a taste of her quality as a singer, a clear soprano voice of wide compass taking Miss Queenie Essex at once into the front rank of principal girls. The School scene which succeeds the Village is chiefly notable for some clever by-play between Jack and Jill and Mother Hubbard, whilst Miss Queenie Essex sings a lullaby song very prettily. Archibald, the famous pig, is brought in here squealing lustily, much to the amusement of the house, while Jack and Jill make a distinct hit with the duet "Anyone will do." Miss Violet Edge proves herself the possessor of a remarkably powerful contralto voice, which is heard to full advantage in "Daddy," while variety is lent to the musical numbers by a "Teddy Bear" song by one of Victor's children and a clever imitation of Vesta Tilley by Rosa Costa. These specialities over, the curtain rings up to the fourth scene, The Glade—another excellent set—in which Miss Valli sings "The tiny seed of love" with much feeling, the chorus being echoed by Miss Queenie Essex as she wanders down the woodland path. The whole effect is distinctly striking. A little later Miss Essex's beautiful voice is heard again trilling the soft notes of "Bubbles in the sunbeam," whilst as she sings countless bubbles well up at the back of the glade, a novelty on which the Kennington management may well pride itself. In this scene Mrs. Hubbard drinks the love-philtre intended for Miss Muffett by the Squire, and henceforth pursues him with an ardent affection which is worthy of a better cause. The first act terminates with a gorgeous Butterfly ballet, blithesomely led by Miss Monica Bevan, in which all the resources of wonderful dresses, well-trained dancers, and the brilliant scenic illusion produced by a shower of golden-brown leaves blend to make a fitting finale. The ballet is splendid, and Miss Madge Martin, the mistress, should be fully satisfied with the result she has achieved. The second act opens with The Squire's Front Garden, in which Red Riding Hood appears, having escaped the Wolf, and in which Boy Blue sings "Sue, Sue, Sue," and Miss Muffett warbles "It's a handy little thing to have about the house. Then, again, Boy Blue has a vocal innings with two really fine pantomime songs "The White Man" and "Bombardier," both treated with much spirit and accompanying chorus effects, so that the inevitable encore has to be taken in each instance. The second scene furnishes Mr. Leonard Teel with an opportunity of singing in rattling style "He's after me," and the third scene, The Daily Mail Ideal Home, finds Mother Hubbard and the Poluskis busily engaged at their pranks. Here, too, the Wolf sails in in true nursery-rhyme fashion, puts Mother Hubbard to flight up the chimney, and assumes her night cap, with which she essays to impose upon Red Riding Hood. The dialogue delights the children and so does the denouement, the deliverance of Red Riding Hood by the Fairy Queen and the appearance of Boy Blue with the news that the child heroine is heiress to all the property that the Squire enjoys. The two closing scenes, The Squire's Grounds in Old Kennington Lane and The Conservatory in Vauxhall Gardens, are devoted to the conventional ending of the story, to magnificent staging, in which Mr. David Marshall introduces brilliant electrical effects, and to a wonderful ballet that is a fitting tribute to the Goddess Terpsichore.

And now to sum up. The company is strong in ability and numbers, the dresses are gorgeous, the music is bright, the dancers are pretty, the fun is overflowing, the staging is of the highest order, novelties are plentiful, and nothing is wanting to make the Kennington pantomime a huge success. Miss Lulu Valli is a dashing principal boy; Miss Queenie Essex a charming principal girl. Endowed with all the artistic graces, they make an ideal couple. Little Miss Winifred Delevanti is a Red Riding Hood born to the part, and is at once the joy and envy of all the youngsters. In Miss Florence Ray, Kennington has a distinctly new type of Fairy Queen. Young and pretty, she withal has a beautiful voice, which makes her principal number, "Dreamland," one of the features of the show. Miss Angela Ward and Miss Marjorie Moore are admirably placed as Jack and Jill, and whether in song or dance or raillery are equally at home. The Poluski Brothers are great. They loom right through the pantomime, and put in some of their very best work. It is all original comedy with them, sheer brains in every gag or wheeze or line of patter, and Red Riding Hood furnishes another laurel to their chaplet. Mr. Ernest Thiel is excellent as the villainous Squire, and should go far; while Mr. Leonard Teel makes a big hit as Mother Hubbard, and is already a popular favourite. His song, "The hand that rocks the cradle," gets a big encore. Mr. Harry Benson does all that is required of him as the Wolf; and Mr. Fred Zietz is extremely lively in the rôle of Snatcher, the dog. Sinclair's Eight Radium Girls deserve a meed of praise; and the precociousness of the Victor children should delight the heart of their trainer.

Amid every sign of a highly successful run, Mr. Frederick Melville, in conjunction with Mr. Newman Maurice, presented his second pantomime at Brixton on Boxing Day at the matinée. The house was densely crowded, and each item in a four-and-a-half hours' feast of fun and frolic was applauded with vigour by the audience. Particularly is the Brixton pantomime lucky in a number of smart comedians, who indulge in jokes and gags, which, being largely local, hugely amuse the patrons of Mr. Melville's pretty house.

Dick Whittington's story, as presented by Messrs. Newman Maurice and Fredk. Melville, follows closely the legend of the feline pet and his master. We are taken from the entry of Dick in the scene in Olde Eastcheap, where he sees and falls in love with Alice, to his "Turn again, Whittington," at Highgate, to Morocco, and back to "dear old London town," where he is made Lord Mayor, which enables the management to give a capital representation of the Lord Mayor's Show. In this Dick rides a white steed, and many of the prize-winners' dresses from Covent Garden Fancy Dress Ball (which are supplied by Mr. Willie Clarkson) figure in the procession, and all ends happily with Bow bells ringing out their sweet melody. Mr. Newman Maurice has written a capital book, interwoven with some graceful lines and some excruciating puns. There are ten scenes, which include The Belfry Tower at Bow, Exterior of Fitzwarren's Shoppe in Cheapside, Fitzwarren's Emporium, On the Road to Highgate, Highgate Hill, Deck of the good ship Alice, The Rocky Coast of Morocco, The Sultan's Palace, Ye Olde Pudding Lane, and Lord Mayor's Show, by Mr. H. K. Brown and assistants. Mention is deserving the sets of Highgate Hill, with real rabbits running about, and the Sultan's Palace at Morocco; indeed, the whole reflects high credit. Plenty of popular music is provided by Mr. Frank Bradsell, and the "gods" join liberally in the choruses of "There's a girl," "Dear old London Town," &c. The dancing, too, and clever poses of the Frisky Girls are delightful, and win approbation. In particular, too, the Fairy Ballet must not be omitted. Everything has been done on a liberal scale, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Fredk. Melville and his trusty lieutenant, Mr. Will T. Taylor, on a brilliant success.

Miss Maud Esmond is an ideal Dick Whittington. Throughout the pantomime this clever artist sings in capital style the up-to-date songs of the day, and acts with verve in capturing the love of the Alderman's daughter. To Miss Flora Morris is assigned this part, and no more dainty representative of Alice Fitzwarren could be desired. Mr. Allan Dale is the mercenary Mercer, Alderman Fitzwarren, and, in company with the other clever comedians, evokes roars of laughter. Mr. Newman Maurice, the "plain cook," Sarah, is a host in himself, and the shopping expedition he indulges in and other comicalities will ensure his popularity with future audiences. Mr. Will Smith, too, scores unmistakably with his funny gags as Idle Jack, the lazy apprentice. Then there are Messrs. Alec Pearson and Jock Davis as the Alderman's clerks, Lazy and Crazy. Their acrobatic and knockabout business is deserving of warm praise. The Brixton pantomime is undoubtedly rich in comedians, who provide hilarious fun. Master Stanley Lauri worthily upholds the name of a renowned family in his delineation of Tommy the Cat. Master Lauri, no doubt, will be the delight of youngsters who visit this pantomime. Miss Amber Wyville is a handsome representative of Morocco's Prince Rataplan; and Miss Dorothy Irving is his sweetheart Zuleika. The humours of the pantomime are added to by the bright acting of Miss Dorothy Maurice as Lieut. Swanker, of the good ship Alice, and Mr. Fred Monty as the Sultan of Morocco. Miss May Bell is a dashing Hassan; Miss Mab Stuart and Miss Claire Aldwin are delightful as the Emperor's "Turkish Delight." There are also a number of dashing representatives of Old London apprentices in Miss Ruby Bland (Tom Tit), Miss Florrie Peters (Harry), Miss Marie Seymour (Bertie Bounder), Miss Flora Leslie (Jock), Miss Phyllis Gordon (Ernie the Earnest), Miss Minnie Leonie (Will the Willing), Miss Ethel Trace (Sam the Smith), Miss Dennis Warwick (George the Baker), and Miss Florrie Ansell (Frank the Goldbeater). The immortals are safe. In the capable hands of Mr. Russell Moyle we have a good representative of King Rat; Rodentia (Mr. F. Salcombe), Knaw (Mr. Sam Lynd), Bite (Mr. Syd Vaughan), and Nibble (Mr. Harry Eversleigh) as his attendants are very good. The Little Fly is well played by Little Rita Parker; the Nasty Spider is sufficiently cobwebby in Mr. Harold Webb's hands; and the Fairy Bowbell is sweetly enacted by Miss May Curtis. It may be mentioned that at matinées, which are given four times weekly, an old-fashioned harlequinade "just to please the children" is provided.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

Pantomime, by Victor Stevens, produced on Boxing Day.

Mr. Geo. Brydon-Phillips produced, by arrangement with Mr. Wentworth Croke, at the matinée on Boxing Day his Little Red Riding Hood pantomime at the above house, where it will be "at home" for three weeks. Judging from the satisfactory reception and the smoothness of the initial performance, there can be little doubt that the pantomime will meet with much success. Mr. Victor Stevens is the writer of the book, which keeps well to the old tale, and at the same time plenty of opportunity for funny business is given, and of this advantage is taken to the fullest extent.

The pantomime opens in the Village of Sweet Content (a very effective set), and we meet in turn Grannie—full of troubles; Little Red Riding Hood—sweet and youthful; the Prince—badly in love; then the wicked Squire, whose agent, Lawyer Slyfox, decides should marry Red Riding Hood, for which purpose they evoke the aid of the Wolf. This is followed by three particularly pretty woodland scenes, during which the Fairy and Wolf are continually crossing swords, metaphorically speaking. The timely arrival of the Prince saving Red Riding Hood from the Wolf closes the first part.

In Part II. we see Granny disappear and the Wolf take her place in bed; the return of our heroine, who is once more saved by the Prince when almost overcome by the Wolf; the finale being the Wedding Festivities at the Palace—another scene of much splendour. The costumes throughout are also particularly pretty and effective. Of the songs, the most successful are "Little Teddy bear," sung by Little Red Riding Hood, and "It seems to make the sun shine brighter" and "Won't you come to me in Canada," by Miss Kittee Rayburn, who in the latter song fairly brought down the house.

Of the cast, nothing but the highest praise is due to Mr. Phillips for his able selection of the various clever people he has engaged to interpret the characters. Miss Kittee Rayburn is in every way a most successful Prince; her clever acting, the charming rendering of her songs, and her handsome presence all combine to make her an ideal Prince. In Miss Ena Corelli, who plays Little Red Riding Hood, Mr. Phillips has a vivacious and sweet little lady, whose dancing is a delight for all who witness the show. In Bishop and Vale, the Simple Simon and Johnny Stout, we find a really clever pair of knockabouts, whose antics meet with roars of laughter. Mr. Henry de Solla is excellent as Lawyer Slyfox, and also gives some entertaining and agile dances; Mr. Will Vokes is a humorous Squire, and, with Miss Alice Vokes as Marjorie Daw, also shines in the dancing line. Mr. Tom Carrick is most amusing as the Dame. The antics of Mr. James Ewins as the Poodle provoke much laughter, and as the Wolf Mr. Harry Ewins works hard and successfully. Some sweetly-rendered songs are given by Miss Edith Jefferies as the Fairy; and little Miss Euphan MacLaren displays great dancing ability as Cupid. Jack and Jill are pleasingly performed by Miss Kitty Wells and Miss Maisie Mildare.

After all matinée performances an excellent harlequinade is given by Mr. Harry Ewins and company. So, with a well-written story and excellent company of artists and a chorus that sings and dances well and pretty scenes, Mr. Phillips has a pantomime he might well be proud of, and it will undoubtedly meet with the success it certainly deserves at Mr. Croke's charming and cosy house in Hammersmith, where Mr. Fred S. Jennings reigns a popular and obliging general manager.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT THE DALSTON.

Produced on Christmas Eve.

Fairy Glowworm	Mlle. Tessie D'Alberti
Lupus	Mr. Richard Hamilton
Baron Badlot	Mr. Tom Melbourne
Dame Mary Trott	Mr. George Rapley
Simple Simon	Mr. Sydney T. Russell
Johnny Green, Jimmy Stout	Messrs. Kerr and Koe
Boy Blue	Miss Florrie Bray
Prince Charming	Miss Kitty Marion
Miss Muffit	Miss Nellie Moore
Maud Matilda	Miss Madge Seymour
Margery Daw	Miss Lilian Rose
Red Riding Hood	Miss Prudence Ayrton

The pantomime this season at the Dalston Theatre is founded on the well-known story of Red Riding Hood. The "book" is written by Frank Ayrton, the music is composed and arranged by Geo. D. Fox, and with Mr. Fred J. Little and Mr. Fred Darcy rests the responsibility of general production, Mr. Ernest Longstaff being musical-director. A rural scene, The Village of Maybloom, is the locality chosen for first introducing most of the characters to the audience. Here is disclosed the fact that a certain Baron Badlot, who occupies a castle not far distant, is not entitled to either his broad acres, his money, or anything else for the matter, for he is simply a usurper, little Red Riding Hood being the actual heiress to the property. But spectators have to possess themselves in patience while the ingenious story is gradually told, and while Dame Mary Trott, Red Riding Hood's grandmother, who is continually declaring with gusto that her relative is the rightful owner, and that "she has the papers to prove it," approaches the identical moment when she deems it advisable to produce the all-important deeds, which is the beginning of the period when everyone connected with the story, except the wicked Baron and his associates, are rendered happy ever after.

Of course, before all this happens, everyone is made to literally roar with laughter over the fun that takes place in the village school, and poor Granny is eaten by the Wolf, and makes a miraculous reappearance; but all ends in the reward of the good and the discomfiture of the bad, which is the culmination most appreciated by audiences, especially at Chirstmas time.

The title-rôle falls to the lot of Miss Prudence Ayrton, who is a dainty and becomingly modest little Red Riding Hood. She plays the part carefully and thoughtfully, and her rendering of the song "Come round to tea" is evidently to the taste of the listeners. Another song, "Come over the garden wall," is given with equal success, and at the conclusion of each verse Miss Ayrton executes a neat dance. Prince Charming finds a dashing representative in Miss Florrie Bray, whose excellent presence, clear pronunciation of her lines, and general air of healthy good humour, place her on good terms with the audience. The Princess's song concerning a yacht goes with a good swing. Miss Kitty Marion is a decided favourite as Boy Blue, proving herself an artist of genuine ability. She has marked charm of style and appearance, acting with sprightly vivacity and being an excellent singer, her song, "A White Man," bringing down the house. Miss Nellie Moore is Boy Blue's companion and friend, Miss Muffit, and both her singing and dancing are keenly appreciated, her dancing securing demands for repetition. Miss Madge Seymour creates a good deal of amusement as Maud Matilda. Miss Lilian Rose makes a decided hit in the character of Margery Daw. Her vivacious, but delicate style and tuneful vocalisation, render her a decided acquisition to the cast. Her rendering of the popular song, "In the garden of your heart," is decidedly sweet. Miss Tessie D'Albert is Fairy Glowworm, the influence for good throughout the piece, and her singing is quite on a par with the virtues of the character she represents.

The male cast in the pantomime is quite equal in the matter of excellence to that section of characters represented by the ladies. Mr. Tom Melbourne is decidedly interesting as the wicked Baron, and his deeds prove that, although he is always declaring that other people "want watching," that precaution is decidedly necessary where he is concerned. He takes part with Miss Nellie Moore in representing a variety of characters, which are hit off so true to life that the turn quite takes the audience by storm. Mr. Richard Hamilton as Lupus, the Wehr Wolf, is encored for his singing; in fact, without any disparagement to the part he essays in the pantomime, which is supposed to include devouring, he proves himself a much better singer than an eater. Mr. George Rapley is responsible for much merriment as Dame Trott, who proves to be a somewhat muscular female. Mr. Sydney T. Russell is Simple Simon, the Baron's page, and his song "Don't put me with a suffragette," is absolutely up to date. Some topical references in the course of the performance include allusions to the visit of Carrie Nation, who is twitted with attacks on trade, even to the extent of "making the publican's clothes (close)." Messrs. Kerr and Koe, as the tired pair Johnny Green and Jimmy Stout, are real laughter-makers; the Sidney Girls are the principal dancers; the Dayton Family as acrobats cause the audience to marvel at their agility; and there is an harlequinade in which Mr. Tom Green is clown, Mr. G. Claremont Pantaloon, Miss N. Elsie Columbine, and Mr. Mountford Policeman. Foremost in the matter of scenery must be mentioned the transformation, The Seasons, The Village of Maybloom, and The Enchanted Wood.

Mr. Robert Arthur's fifth pantomime bids fair to be as much a success as any of its predecessors. Mr. Stanley Rogers is responsible for the writing and the production generally, while Mr. Harry Richardson with Mr. G. M. Saker have arranged the music. The time-honoured story is adhered to in the main, and serves to provide a coherent plot, while Cinderella's sisters are played by actresses instead of the former "comedians." The pantomime mother-in-law remains a stronghold of the mere man, who continues to raise the frequent and the hearty laugh thereat. Cinderella opens with a couple of pretty scenes—winter and summer in a glade, and these serve to set the story going and introduce us to some of the principal characters. These are the usual dramatis personæ—Cinderella, the Prince, his valet, Cinderella's family, and so forth. A quiet scene in the Baron's Library is followed by Cinderella's historic kitchen. Much fun is extracted from the troubles of the Baron, who is, as usual, over-ruled by his more robust spouse. Cinderella has a pretty song about the children going to bed, the Baroness gets there with a song on the modern Salome, and Cinderella and Capers have a curious duet concerning the doings of a parrot and certain other beasts. In due time the Fairy Godmother appears, makes the arrangements for the ball, including the hurried leaving at 11.55 p.m. The scene changes to the Portals of Fairyland, an artistic study in flowers. The Fairy Godmother has a pretty song here, "Roses everywhere," and the scene changes again to the home of the Fairy Godmother. In this there is a note of novelty, as the whole has a lace-like effect, the colouring being white and a pale yellow. A ballet of fairies follows, and this is succeeded by an Oriental dance in the now fashionable sinuous mode, very well done by the Lottie Stone Troupe. Cinderella is now introduced en princesse and is provided with her coach, which is drawn by real ponies, two demure little mouse-coloured animals from the well-known provider of theatrically-disposed creatures Mr. T. G. Hales, the coach being brilliantly illuminated. The second act begins with the Ballroom Scene, which is more akin to the French eighteenth-century period than the old English baronial style. This idea is kept up by the dresses of the guests, which are of the Watteau style and make an uncommonly pretty picture. The Prince has a good song, introducing the inevitable Merry Widow waltz, and the Baroness is equal to the occasion with a hat of colossal dimensions. The Baron next contributes a capital set of dances, in which Mr. French shows his skill in different styles of dancing. A gavotte by the guests also makes a good show. On the disappearance of Cinderella, the ball (and the scene) comes to an abrupt termination. Scene 2 represents the front of the Baron's mansion, and witnesses the return of the revellers to their home. In this scene there is introduced some capital business by the Baron and Baroness. The best of this is the wrestling scene, in which the Baron is forced by his better half to encounter Joseph, a royal flunkey of colossal proportions and abnormal muscular development. By sundry artifices the Baron overcomes his opponent, and by his victory is straightway transformed from the mere worm of the former scenes into a masterful personage who henceforward dominates his family. Scene 3 shows an ante-room in the Palace. The ceremony of trying on the slipper is gone through to the accompaniment of much laughter. The final scene is a simple and tasteful one: it is a garden scene, again reminiscent of the eighteenth century, and well worked out. There are a ballet of flowers, and a dance by the Stone Troupe. This time it is an acrobatic dance, remarkable for the vigour and agility of the performers. With the entry of the Prince and Cinderella for their wedding the play is brought to a close.

The company contains some excellent artists. Miss Mabel Rose makes a good Fairy Godmother and sings well, and Miss May Edbrook is admirable as the Snow Queen. The principal boy is Miss Agnes Tandy as Prince Casimir. She does not appear to have overmuch to do, but plays and sings excellently. Her valet, Dandini, is portrayed by Mr. L. W. Harris, who makes a fine figure, and scores with one or two good songs, notably "I don't care if there's a girl there." Hercules (Baron de Debtington), the impecunious father of Cinderella, is impersonated by Mr. Freddie French. The Baron is very much in the piece, and Mr. French's excellent business is provocative of endless laughter, for he is a master of make-up and facial expression, and is moreover a smart singer and a dancer of more than ordinary ability. He is well supported by Mr. Ted Young as the Baroness, who is equally ready with side-splitting business and good songs. The daughters of the Baron are represented by Miss Alice Inman and Miss Emily Stevens, who present two different types of old maids, and help to keep the fun going. Mr. Arthur White takes the part of Capers, the Baron's man-of-all-work. He is a capable comedian and no mean acrobat and dancer. Mr. Harry Carlisle is an admirable flunkey as Joseph, and gives a good representation of the magnificent menial, whose tone is irreproachable while his grammar is indifferent. He plays well in the very ludicrous wrestling scene with the Baron. Miss Dollie Hook as the Duke of Whistbridge (Master of the Prince's Household) is a piquant little figure, and acts smartly. She does well with a song, "My girl is a Yorkshire girl."

The dominant note of the production is that of tasteful simplicity. The comedians have plenty to do, and there is no lack of laughter at their efforts, which, it may be said, are always in excellent taste.

So far as providing a reasonable book, good acting and singing, bright music, and tasteful dresses and scenery, with comedians who can amuse without being vulgar, can go, Mr. Arthur has made a decided bid for success, and it is to be hoped that the public will appreciate his efforts and fill the house for weeks to come.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY" AT NEW CROSS.

Pantomime, by Hickory Wood, produced on Boxing Day.

We have to chronicle another emphatic pantomime success for this theatre, the first under the present management. The opening performance went with remarkable smoothness, and it is safe to predict that Humpty Dumpty will have a prosperous run. The production is distinguished by capital acting, excellent singing on the part of the principals, dancing of a most graceful kind by a clever quartette (Tiller's Superba), and attractive ballets. Then there are gorgeous dresses, beautiful scenery, and an indefatigable stage-manager (Mr. Charles Goff), who also plays Humpty Dumpty with considerable success. Mr. Fred Eastman's impersonation of King Sollumm is one of the hits of the entertainment; his quaint humour and easy style on the opening night were evident from the first. He sang several numbers, including "A B C," with success. Mr. Stratton Mills will be a great favourite as Martha. He is genuinely funny, and made a decided success. Another excellent performance is that of Mr. Carl Howard, who is very good indeed as the circus proprietor, Bison Bob, whose leading attractions are Brick and Brack, played with much energy and go by Fremel and Fremel, a capital pair of knock-about comedians. The harlequin of the circus, named Rudolph, is the principal boy, and has a charming representative in Miss Edna Morgan, who is an excellent actress and vocalist. Miss Hanid Alexander is a delightful Princess Aurora, singing, dancing, playing, and acting all with equal and distinct success. The Cecilias, an attractive pair, play Prince Spritely and Cherry in very pleasing style, and introduce their clever instrumentalism with excellent effect. Miss Cecilia Maude is the Fairy Claribel, and this clever lady sings in a manner to win all hearts. Mr. Roland Chester as the Demon of Ambition displays a fine singing voice, which he uses to the best advantage. The whole entertainment is under the direction of Mr. Leslie Moreton. Mr. Clarke Richardson is the able musical-director; and Mr. Bertram Iles looks well after the comfort of patrons of the theatre.

The plot of the pantomime is clear and well told, and is, in brief, the story of Humpty Dumpty with embellishments. Scene 1 shows him as an egg, seated on a wall; the egg falls and breaks, and discloses Humpty, who is watched over by Fairy Claribel and Soaro the Demon. Claribel gives him six wishes, to be granted when and where he chooses. We next find him in the Courtyard of the Palace, where every possible joke is being tried to make King Sollumm laugh. The reward for success is to be the hand of Princess Aurora and a large sum of money. Among others, Rudolph tries and fails. Humpty's first wish is for a mother. Instantly Dame Martha appears, and succeeds in making the King laugh. Humpty loves Aurora, but Rudolph determines to win her, and the Fairy promises her help towards recovering a fairy ring which will bring him luck. All the characters start out in search of the ring, the King—who has married Martha—among the rest. A pretty scene at the seaside shows the Entrance to Diving Bells. The King and Queen claim the chief diving bell, and are soon seen in it at the bottom of the sea, where there is much fun. In a delightful Fairy Grotto we see Rudolph receive the ring from a fairy hand. This concludes the first half of the pantomime. The second half opens with Scene 7, The Throne Room of the Palace, where matters begin to clear up, and so proceed through Scenes 8, 9, and 10. Rudolph claims his bride, and Humpty Dumpty expends his last wish, and, renouncing all claim to the Princess, wishes happiness to all. The final scene, a very fine one, employs the full strength of the company. It is entitled A Congress of all Nations.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE WEST LONDON.

Pantomime, Produced on Boxing Day, Dec. 26.

Prince Rupert	Miss Kitty Tims
Baron Boldheart	Mr. Will Skelton
Arabella Jane	Mr. George Cave
Lucretia Maud	Mr. Arthur Stevens
Cinderella	Miss Phyllis Yorke
Billy Buttons	Mr. Ernest Coyle
Dandini	Miss Alice Wade
Rosalind	Miss Louie Belrose
Fairy Godmother	Miss Victoria Rochester
Demon Discontent	Mr. Frank Viner
Hyacinth	Miss Violet Parry

This Boxing Day production at Mr. William Bailey's historical home of pantomime in Marylebone, is a more than usually hilarious and melodious "annual," and its success was at once apparent. Mr. Wm. Bailey, jun., has adhered very closely to the familiar story of Cinderella, the lonesome kitchen drudge who afterwards blossoms into the lovely Princess of nurseryland memories. Scene 1, The Village of Sunshine, is a pretty and effective setting, and here we are introduced to Prince Rupert, Baron Boldheart, Arabella Jane, Lucretia Maud, Dandini, and Billy Buttons. Some very amusing by-play here ensues, which keeps the house in roars of laughter. After the departure of Prince Rupert and his followers to the hunt, Cinderella enters, and in tuneful voice plaintively sings "I want somebody to love me." Prince Rupert's unexpected return affords him his first glimpse of Cinderella, and the usual love passages ensue, resulting in "Cinders's" shyly-given promise to attend the castle ball that night. Scene 2, The Lovers' Walk, gives Demon Discontent and the Fairy Godmother an opportunity to introduce a most melodious duet, "Shadowland." The Baron's Kitchen is a fine, spacious set, and some capital foolery here takes place between the impecunious Baron and his hungry daughters. The arrival of Dandini with the invitations for the ball puts one and all in a fluster of excitement. The entrance of the Fairy Godmother and her promise of help to her lonely god-child, ends in the first appearance of the lovely electric lighted coach, drawn by the sweetest of Shetland ponies, which is to convey Cinders to the castle. Scene 4, The Boudoir, principally consists of the efforts of the ugly sisters to complete their toilet for the ball, in which Billy Buttons, in his endeavours to assist, makes matters worse. This scene is one of the funniest in the pantomime, and the house rings with peals of laughter. On the road to the castle the beautifully-transformed Cinderella passes in her gorgeous coach. Scene 6, The Vestibule, quickly hurries us along to the fancy ball, where some pretty measures are daintily tripped, ending in the hurried flight of Cinderella as the clock strikes twelve, leaving her glass slipper behind in the dear old traditional way. In Scene 8, The Market Square, Prince Rupert's proclamation is given, promising his hand and heart to the glass slipper's owner. Following an interval the curtain rises on a magnificent transformation scene, a feature which this old Church-street house has ever been noted for. In saying that the blend of colour, warmth, and spendour, and picturesqueness of grouping is quite up to the standard that Marylebone expects, the highest praise has been given. A sign of the times is the decadence of the harlequinade, but the West Londoners evidently still have a warm corner in their hearts for this old-fashioned feature of pantomime, which brings to a close one of the completest and prettiest hardy annuals that Mr. William Bailey has ever put before his patrons. The producer, Mr. Samuel James, has every reason to be gratified with the results accomplished, mainly due, of course, to his personal supervision. The music of Mr. Percy Kurutz is both tuneful and appropriate, whilst the genial Mr. James Sinclair studies the welfare of everybody in front, in his usual suave and tactful way. Miss Kitty Tims is a divinely tall and swaggering hero, with a good stage presence and a well-trained voice, which is heard to most advantage in the numbers "A song about the boys" and "Hats off to the King." The Cinderella of Miss Phyllis Yorke is a dainty portrayal, and her sweet smile and neat dancing enchant everyone. Miss Louie Belrose is full of light and amusing gaiety as the village beauty Rosalind, her rendering of "My pretty piece of Dresden china" being delightfully chic. Miss Victoria Rochester is possessed of a voice with a fine range, and though her chances as Fairy Godmother are necessarily somewhat curtailed, she nevertheless is a great favourite, and her song, "All the world loves a lover," catches on immediately. Miss Violet Parry is much appreciated as Hyacinth; and Miss Alice Wade contrives to score all the evening with her bright and lively impersonation of Dandini. In addition to being the fortunate possessor of a neat and trim figure, Miss Wade has also an engaging personality and a pretty voice, which is heard at its best in "Won't you waltz the Merry Widow Waltz?" Mr. Frank Viner as the Demon King makes good use of his opportunities; Mr. Will Skelton is full of resource and alertness as Baron Boldheart, and his droll rendering of "I couldn't come home in the dark" is decidedly popular. Mr. Ernest Coyle is a most diverting Billy Buttons, his spirits and energy never once flagging, and his success is unmistakable. Mr. George Cave as Arabella Jane and Mr. Arthur Stevens as Lucretia Maud, the inevitable ugly sisters, play into one another's hands admirably. Their various disagreements with the much-harassed Baron and the unfortunate lackey Billy Buttons, are all full of genuine fun and unctuous humour. Lucretia's "Song about the girls" is archly rendered; whilst Arabella scores one of the hits of the evening with Miss Vesta Victoria's world-famous ditty, "Poor John." The success of this pantomime should be beyond doubt, and, judging by the reception given it and the good wishes of everyone in the neighbourhood, it is to be hoped and expected that Mr. William Bailey will find his old patrons rallying round with their generous support of a good show, well dressed, well staged, and loyally interpreted.

"BLUEBEARD" AT THE CAMDEN.

Produced on Boxing Day, Libretto and Lyrics by Hugh Mytton, with Music by Mark Strong.

The Camden reopened its doors once more on Boxing Day, when, under the auspices of Mr. Walter Gibbons, a pantomime was produced. Since the last Christmas season this handsome and comfortable theatre has passed through many phases, and until recently it seemed likely that the inhabitants of North London would this year have to forego their usual pantomime season at this house. Happily all is well, for Messrs. St. John Denton and Peter Davey have come forward and provided a Christmas production in the shape of Blue Beard, which is a capital entertainment, and is at once both amusing and pleasing to the eye. No special striving is made to place any big spectacle on the stage, but the whole show is of uniform quality throughout, for there are many scenes which are pleasing to the eye, as the dresses and general colour scheme show the best possible taste. Blue Beard's Garden is a fine set, while that of the Look-out Tower is an extremely fine piece of perspective; and the final tableau of the Fête of Roses is a perfect feast of colour. The book is cleverly devised, and follows pretty closely the accepted story of this much-married Prince, whose secrets of the past are discovered by Fatima. A modern touch is given to the story by the introduction of a party of English girls, who are so fascinating that we feel sure that did Blue Beard exist to-day he would certainly have wished to include them in his schemes as the present-day author suggests. The company is a strong one, and is headed by Mr Ben Albert and Mr. Ernest Rees. The former as Blue Beard is a host in himself, and fairly revels in his part. Mr. Albert has a peculiar style of his own, which compels laughter, and his songs, "Why?" and "There's an exhibition," both brought down the house. Mr. Ernest Rees as Sister Ann is extremely comical, and gives a very diverting sketch of this elderly lady with a glib tongue. There seems to be no limit to Mr. Rees's resources for fun-making, and his lines fairly bristle with funny gags and topical allusions. He is well served with songs; that of "Robinson Crusoe" is decidedly quaint, while his Salomé skit, in which Mr. Ben Albert assists, must be written down as quite one of the hits of the production. A dashing Selim is found in Miss Addie Lennard, who is very bright and lively, and was a great favourite from her first appearance. Her dialect song is very clever, also "I want you to see my girl," and she joins Fatima in that popular song, "The tiny seed of love," which goes splendidly. Miss Lydia Flopp makes a most bewitching and dainty Fatima, and charmed everyone with her very pretty number, "Shadowland," which she sings suspended on a large moon. Another tuneful song is that, "Won't you play at sweethearts," which Miss Flopp gives in the most fascinating way. Ferguson and Mack are a couple of droll fellows who keep the fun going very fast while they sing, dance, and cross-talk, and they score with a funny duet, "Solomon." Wilhelmina, the Dutch girl, is brightly played by Miss Lottie Sargeant, who has a Dutch song, which is very pretty. One wishes that Miss Sargeant had more to do. Shacabac has a very prepossessing representative in Miss Helen Cunningham; while Persey Pryde, the naval lieutenant, is capitally played by Miss Violet Vaughan. Mr. Harold Carson works hard as Mustapha, and achieves success. Esau, the baboon, is cleverly played by Mr. Harold Clemence; Miss Lena Denton is very pretty and smart as the leader of the English girls. The dancing is very pretty, and Miss Geraldine Somerset does a pas seul in one scene, and scores a great success for her graceful art. The chorus does much useful work in the best possible manner, while the orchestra, under the able bâton of Mr Mark Strong, renders yeoman service. Messrs. Denton and Davey have every reason to be gratified with the success of their pantomime, and the highest credit is due to Mr. Buckstone Clair, the producer, for we understand that the pantomime has been produced and arranged in a very brief space of time. We are glad to welcome back here Mr. Leslie Hughes, who resumes his former position as manager, and we are sure that his old friends will soon gather round him again.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

Pantomime, produced on Christmas Eve.

Robinson Crusoe ..... Miss Lillie Lassah
Polly Hopkins ..... Miss Venie Clements
Friday ..... Mr. Harry Zietz
Will Atkins ..... Mr. Bert Edwards
Mrs. Crusoe ..... Mr. E. Harvey White
Bob Halyard ..... Miss Elsie Allen
Sally Primrose ..... Miss Gladys Allen
Princess Zanatel ..... Miss Cissie Murphy
The Sultan of Baraboomba .. Mr. Scott Russell
Captain and Mate ..... Passmore Brothers
Mr. Primrose, Bombala, Ben, Bob ..... The Melody Four
Davy Jones ..... Mr. C. Gifford
Aphrodite ..... Miss Lallie Campbell
Jack the Monkey ..... Mr. Leon Dubois
Tommy Tiller ..... Miss Marjorie Bowyer

The only Crusoe of this year's London pantomimes is to be found at the Crystal Palace, where he was welcomed on Christmas Eve by a crowded and enthusiastic house, who marvelled at the magnificence of the staging and enjoyed to the full the melody and mirth of the pantomime. The work, which is divided into two parts, is from the pen of the prolific librettist Mr. Fred Bowyer, the music, some of which is very striking, being composed and arranged by Mr. Leonard Gautier. There are thirteen scenes, the first of which reveals Davy Jones's Locker, where the plot to effect the undoing of Robinson Crusoe is hatched by Davy and his myrmidons. The Ancient Port of Hull is a scene of bustle and excitement, and here Robinson rescues his beloved Polly from the clutches of Will Atkins, who connives with Davy Jones to compass his destruction. Robinson takes service on board the Saucy Sally, and is followed by his mother and Polly, who disguises herself in the traditional way as a sailor boy. The 'Tween Decks of the Saucy Sally gives opportunity for some boisterous fun in the bunks, and is followed by a set representing the deck of the schooner, when Will Atkins' fell purpose of scuttling the ship is accomplished. The vessel speedily becomes a wreck, and there is a quick change to the Open Sea, where Robinson is seen guiding his raft to shore. He stops to render help to Atkins, who, however, repays the kindness by pushing his rescuer into the sea. Mrs. Crusoe, the Captain, and the Mate succeed in clambering on to the raft, and a merry interlude is the result. Meanwhile, Crusoe has descended to the depths of the ocean, where the good offices of Aphrodite secure him a welcome to the Nymph's Garden, and after a series of glittering fairy revels Robinson is conveyed to the surface of the sea by means of their queen's diving-bell. The Island of Golden Palms, in which the second part opens, displays a wealth of colour and picturesque costumes. The arrival of the Captain and his Mate is the source of much amusement, and Mrs. Crusoe's advent is similarly mirth-provoking. Here Crusoe rescues Friday from his captors, and receives from the grateful black a promise of eternal fidelity. The Interior of Crusoe's Hut affords a glimpse of his domestic arrangements, and opportunity is taken for the introduction of a series of amusing specialities. Here, too, Crusoe and Polly are reunited, and the pantomime ends with a representation of the Sultan's Palace, where a gorgeous procession is beheld, scarlet-coated drummers and gaily-decked coryphées contrasting pleasingly with rich-robed chieftains and ermine-clad courtiers, the curtain going down on a dazzling scene of splendour.

Favourites of former pantomimes figure in this year's annual, and a hearty welcome is extended to all. Miss Lillie Lassah has again the title-rôle, and exerts a fascinating influence by reason of her charming personality, her tuneful singing, and expert dancing. Her sweet-toned voice has gained in strength, and all her songs are rendered with the utmost effect. She succeeds admirably in "Good morning, Mr. Postman," in which assistance is rendered by a bevy of what might be described as post-maidens, and in "Let's have a song about the boys" her triumph is equally great. Miss Lassah is an ideal principal boy, and if there are any prizes in prospect this year she may safely be "backed" for a place. Another welcome reappearance at the Palace is that of Miss Venie Clements, who is as pretty and vivacious a Polly as could be desired. Her dancing is particularly agreeable, her graceful movements arousing much admiration. Several songs fall to her share, that of "Come and be my little Teddy Bear" being engagingly rendered, and "Oh, oh, Antonio!" being the source of unlimited fun, especially when a dark-visaged organ-grinder emerges from among the audience and joins in a clever imitation of the Apache dance. "A tiny seed of love," sung with Robinson, is also productive of unlimited applause, Miss Clements' dainty dance at the end captivating all. Perhaps her chief effects are gained in association with Mr. Bert Edwards, with whom she renders the duet "Oh, sir, go hon!" which was the hit of the evening. Mr. Edwards has the part of Will Atkins, and plays drolly throughout, his singing of "What a terrible thing it would be!" getting many recalls. The Passmore Brothers furnish numberless merry moments as the Captain and the Mate. Their comic resources are unlimited, and their daring knockabout act and smart sayings were responsible for frequent and hearty laughter. An auburn-haired Mrs. Crusoe is found in Mr. E. Harvey White, whose unexaggerated methods of fun-making are irresistibly humorous. He was recalled in the song "Study your cookery-book," and in the clever duet "Do you remember? How can I forget?" he and Mr. Bert Edwards scored repeatedly. Mr. Scott Russell, who has made many a hit in pantomime, obtains one of his most pleasing successes as the Sultan of Baraboomba, who turns out to be a canny Scot and the husband of Mrs. Crusoe. His fine voice is heard to particular effect in the funny but tuneful song "Don't go out in the lifeboat," the last verse of which had to be repeated. Miss Lallie Campbell is a prepossessing Aphrodite, and sings "I'd do anything in the world for you" with much charm. Mr. C. Gifford gives a duly dramatic touch to the evil-disposed Davy Jones; Mr. Harry Zietz, who produced the pantomime, acts realistically as Friday; and Mr. Leon Dubois as the monkey performs marvellous tricks on the perpendicular rope. Misses Elsie and Gladys Allen, who represent Bob Halyard and Sally Primrose, distinguish themselves greatly in a duet and a neat dance, executed with wonderful rapidity; and Miss Cissie Murphy is a picturesque Princess Zanatel. A distinctly pleasing feature of the pantomime is found in the Melody Four, who won encomiums for their part-singing, and carried out a cleverly contrived piece of "spoof" ventriloquism. Mr. Bannister Howard himself was among the audience on the opening night, and must have felt extremely gratified at the smooth working of his third Palace annual and at its hearty reception at the hands of an assembly that filled nearly every part of the capacious auditorium.

"THE BABES IN THE WOOD" AT THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

Pantomime, by Frank Ayrton, produced on Boxing Day, Dec. 26.

Robin Hood ..... Miss Kitty Clinton
Maid Marion ..... Miss Alice Maple
Will Scarlet, Daisy Buttercup ..... The Sisters Morgan
Sir Rupert de Guile ..... Mr. Charles Clarke
Reggie ..... Miss Gracie Mortimer
Rosie ..... Miss Hester Reeve
Wilhelmina Wilkins ..... Mr. Will Lorenzi
Sally Slapp ..... Mlle. Rita
Percy Perkins ..... Mr. F. C. Roma
Friar Tuck ..... Mr. Edward de Vere
Roger Ratys, Timothy Taxys ..... Messrs. Barrett and Knowles
Envy ..... Miss Edna Cragge
Content ..... Miss May Cartwright

The story of The Babes in the Wood is told in a simple manner in this production. The opening scene depicts the Village of Jolly Well, when Robin Hood is declared an outlaw. Enter the wicked uncle, Sir Rupert de Guile, who is also the very hard up Squire, and cannot pay his bills. He is the guardian of Reggie and Rosie (the Babes), who stand between him and £15,000. He wishes to remove them, so enlists the services of Roger Ratys and Timothy Taxys, bold, bad robbers, who agree to "kill the kids" for a stipulated sum of money. The nursery of the Babes is next visited, when a good deal of rollicking fun is introduced, and we proceed onwards to the Fairy Bower, which brings the first part of the pantomime to a close. In the second half we find the Babes have been sent into Sherwood Forest for a picnic with the two robbers, whom their uncle describes as two kind gentlemen. At the crucial moment, when these two bad men are about to put an end to the youthful career of our two Babes, one relents, and a very comical fight ensues between them. Robin Hood appears and rescues the children, and in the end virtue is victorious, villainy vanquished, Maid Marion makes Robin Hood happy, the Babes are made happy, and last, but not least, the audience are made happy (judging from the reception the production received on Boxing Day). The last scene shows the Earl of Huntingdon's Palace, which is a very gorgeous set, bedecked with equally fine costumes. The pantomime abounds with humour and the dresses are smart, the staging being effective.

Miss Kitty Clinton is a dashing Robin Hood, her principal songs being "I don't care if there's a girl there," "A tiny seed of love," and "A white man." Miss Alice Maple is a successful Maid Marion, who obliges, among other songs, with "Couldn't come home in the dark." The Sisters Morgan are a decidedly taking couple as Will Scarlet and Daisy Buttercup, their duet "Sue, Sue, Sue," being one of the most successful numbers in the show. Miss Alice Morgan is also successful in "Antonio." Mr. Charles Clarke is a "very" wicked Uncle, and Mr. Will Lorenzi causes much amusement as the faithful nurse Wilhelmina Wilkins, a topical duet introduced by these two comedians, "What a terrible thing that would be," being a distinctly taking number.

The Babes are Miss Gracie Mortimer (Reggie) and Miss Hester Reeve (Rosie), both of whom are possessed of excellent voices and are accomplished dancers, their duet "A pretty piece of Dresden china" being a very tuneful addition. Miss Hester Reeve (who is a younger sister of Miss Ada Reeve) scores also in "I know a lovely garden." Messrs. Barrett and Knowles as the Robbers are a clever couple of comedians, their two principal numbers being "My word, if I catch you bending," and "What! what! what!" Mlle. Rita and Mr. F. C. Roma as Sally Slapp and Percy Perkins are responsible for a good deal of the humour of the piece. Mlle. Rita provides a distinctly clever "grotesque" dance, and is also an expert contortionist. Their respective songs are well received, but we would suggest that the first-named artist dispense with her "Salome" song, which is out of place in a children's pantomime. A clever long buck dance is executed by the Sisters Harcourt, and Miss May Cartwright is a dainty Content, the good fairy who watches over the destiny of the Babes; while Miss Edna Cragge is sufficiently malicious as Envy, the bad fairy. The pantomime, when it plays more closely, which it will do when some judicious cuts have been made, will be a fine show, and we must congratulate Mr. Charles Barnard on his first Christmas pantomime here. A very important feature, the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. W. Stephenson, must also be commended upon their most excellent work.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE PAVILION.

Pantomime, Produced on Christmas Eve, Dec. 24.

Fairy Godmother ..... Miss Fay Reyne
Demon Chauffeur ..... Mr. Gray Langston
Baron Hardup ..... Mr. Frank Lilliput
Jock ..... Mr. Sydney Benson
Sophonista ..... Mr. James Danvers
Araminta ..... Mr. Gus Danby
Baroness Hardup ..... Mr. Johnny Johnston
Prince Florizel ..... Miss Fifi Gordon
Dandini ..... Miss Ida Lawrence
Countess Kinkey ..... Miss Mildred Parr
Count Kinkey ..... Miss Alice Knibbs
Selina ..... Miss Constance Coopman
The Author ..... Miss Annie McCarthy
Cinderella ..... Miss Dorothy Rundell

After four years without a Christmas pantomime, the Pavilion Theatre has reverted to its old traditions by opening on Christmas Eve with the ever-welcome Cinderella. Mr. Jonathan Jones, who is responsible for the book, has done his work remarkably well, and provided a well-connected and pretty story, keeping strictly to the conventional lines, while in many instances the libretto is of an unusually high standard of excellence. The pantomime runs through fourteen scenes, and opens with the Author seeking at the Toy Shop for a Demon, and being supplied with a chauffeur for that purpose. After the glass slipper has been made at the Fairy Workshop, we pass to the Village, where a welcome is given to Baron Hardup on his return with his newly-wed Baroness. The usual accidental meeting of Cinderella and Prince Florizel, and the invitation to the Ball, and the sympathetic assistance to the old woman who turns out to be the Fairy Godmother are incidents familiar to all; while the subsequent ending with the marriage of the Prince and Cinderella finishes the old-time story to the satisfaction of both young and old. The music, which is in exceedingly good taste, has been selected, arranged, and composed by the accomplished musical director, Mr. Victor Vorzanger, who is to be highly commended upon his work. The scenery, which has been specially painted for the production by Mr. Leveson Linton, is admirable, his Fairy Workshop and Fairy Glade being especially pleasing to the eye, while the Ball Room and Palace of Delight are good specimens of colouring. The chorus and ballet have been well drilled, and reflect every credit on the producer, Mr. George Taylor, who has worked exceedingly hard.

As Baron Hardup the short comedian Mr. Frank Lilliput is a host in himself, and brings the house down with his funny antics and his songs "If the missus says it's black" and "Tra la la." He is ably seconded in his efforts by Mr. Johnny Johnston as the massive Baroness Hardup, who is full of humour throughout the performance, creating infinite amusement with his "Laughing" and "Whistling" songs and the inevitable Suffragette business. Miss Fifi Gordon, who took up the part of Prince Florizel at a few hours' notice, is to be highly complimented upon the general smartness and "go" she infused into the character, singing her numbers, particularly "Firefly" and "I want you to see my girl," with éclat. Sophonista and Araminta, the quarrelsome daughters of the Baroness, were played on the usual lines by Messrs. James Danvers and Gus Danby, the latter rendering with good effect "The Directoire Girl." Jock, the Baron's page, has a capital representative in Mr. Sydney Benson, whose songs and dances are executed with neatness; while the acting of Miss Constance Coopman as the slavey, Selina, is excellent. Miss Ida Lawrence is a dashing Dandini, and sang with piquancy "Wink," and Miss Alice Knibbs and Miss Mildred Parr as the Count and Countess Kinkey were applauded for their efforts. As Cinderella Miss Dorothy Rundell was entirely successful, her portrayal being marked by much tenderness, as well as histrionic ability, while her songs "Wildflower" and "Teddy Bear" were much to the taste of the audience. Miss Annie McCarthy was heard to advantage in "A Dutch Girl," and Mr. Gray Langston made the most of the Demon Chauffeur. The Fairy Godmother was enacted with stateliness by Miss Fay Reyne, who sang with expression "Roses everywhere" and "Il Bacio." Enthusiastic applause was obtained by Mr. Leonard Gorney for his marvellous protean dance, his changes of costume in a space of ten seconds being done with a perfectness that is almost incredible.

"ALADDIN" AT STRATFORD.

On Boxing Day, Dec. 26, at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, the Pantomime, by Iam Query, entitled

"ALADDIN."

Aladdin ..... Miss Ethel Ward
Badroulbadour ..... Miss Lena Verdi
Sau See ..... Miss Ethel Ashton
Pekoe ..... Miss Florence Dudley
Mrs Twankey ..... Mr. Arthur Stigant
Abanazar ..... Mr. Hal Forde
Emperor ..... Mr. C. Ballard Brown
Grand Vizier ..... Mr. Frank Couch
Washee Washee ..... Mr. Ernie Mayne
Bobee ..... Mr. Pat Redmond
Copee ..... Mr. Dan Redmond
Genius of the Ring ..... Miss Mabel Gordon
Slave of the Lamp ..... Mr. J. M. Jones
Orlock ..... Mr. Laurence Winning
See Zing ..... Mr. Fred Harding
Lord Chamberlain ..... Mr. James Williams

Mr. Fred Fredericks's twelfth annual pantomime at the Stratford Borough Theatre was produced on Boxing Day at a matinée performance, and was enthusiastically received by a packed house. Aladdin is a subject which readily lends itself to lavish treatment in the way of dresses and scenic effects, and of this full advantage has been taken. The "book" is from the pen of that prolific pantomime writer who elects to be known as "Iam Query," and, besides serving its purpose for the introduction of a long series of beautiful stage illustrations, the familiar story is of entrancing interest to the juveniles, as well as containing many smart lines and witticisms for the benefit of their elders. Much admiration is aroused at the scene depicting the Gold and Silver Mines in the Mountains of the Sun, which is absolutely a wealth of rainbow colouring and of rhythmical movement by numberless performers; while the culminating scene, entitled Aladdin's Ivory Palace, with its animation and artistic setting, provides a picture which is likely to linger long in the memory. The Port of Pekin at Night, in which Chinese lanterns are carried hither and thither, is also well applauded, while much impressiveness is added to the cave scenes by the very adroit manner in which the stage traps are utilised. If there is one fault at present it is that the interpolated comedy business and songs—of which the pantomime contains a plethora—unduly prolong the first part.

Excellent judgment has been shown in the selection of a well-balanced cast. In the name-part Miss Ethel Ward figures, and a very genial, alert, and buoyant Aladdin she makes; while her songs, "I want you to see my girl" and "Hello, little boy, hello!" are finely rendered. Miss Lena Verdi is a vivacious and girlish Princess Badroulbadour, whose charms extend far beyond the footlights. Her flirtation song, "Wouldn't you care to be the bridegroom?" is rendered most coquettishly, and is a very popular number, while Miss Verdi wins a splendid reception for her speciality item, in which imitations of music hall celebrities are introduced. Mr. Ernie Mayne's quaint and stolid appearance as Washee Washee is immediately suggestive of mirth, and his excessively absurd depiction of an English nobleman travelling in China to learn the customs of the country and who there becomes assistant to the Widow Twankey is the source of endless merriment. His songs allow for many witty introductions, while his parody of "Cupid" is one of the funniest things in the pantomime. Mr. Arthur Stigant is eminently successful as the Widow Twankey, his sleek, unctuous style, ready resource, and eccentric costumes making him a highly popular Dame. He has a burlesque Directoire song, in which he is helped by a confederate in the conductor's chair, which is very amusing, and cleverly worked, and "Afraid to go home in the dark" and "A to Z" are other songs in huge favour. Mr. Hal Forde is particularly good as Abanazar, who looms so largely in the story, his clear enunciation being most welcome, and this clever comedian does not overlook the dramatic possibilities of the part. His "Doomsday Book" song contains many local and topical allusions which are readily recognised, and he is equally successful with other numbers. Miss Florence Dudley is a handsome, shapely, and active Pekoe, and her songs provide a vocal treat. Miss Ethel Ashton makes a pert and piquant Sau See, and in the rôle of première danseuse contributes several solo dances which are keenly enjoyed. Mr. Frank Couch makes the utmost of his opportunities as the Grand Vizier, and his performance is highly creditable. The Brothers Redmond as the two policemen Bobee and Copee are responsible for many mirthful moments, their clever knockabout business being highly diverting, while their speciality act wins some of the heartiest applause heard during the evening. Mr. C. Ballard Brown portrays the Emperor very appropriately; Mr. J. M. Jones submits a smart performance as the Slave of the Lamp; and Miss Mabel Gordon is a graceful Genius of the Ring. Among the concerted numbers, the topical duet "Ice cream! Baked chestnuts!" between the Widow Twankey and Abanazar is in high favour, while the Princess and Aladdin are very cordially received in "A tiny seed of love."

The scenery is by Mr. Henry Emden and Mr. George Dodson; Mr. George Saunders is the able machinist; properties are by Messrs. Stokes and French, and the electric effects by Mr. A. Marshment. Mr. B. Barrow is once again responsible for the incidental music, and he is also to be congratulated upon the splendid ensemble he secures. Congratulations are also due to Mr. A. L. Pitman, the stage-manager, for the smoothness of the initial performance. The enthusiastic reception accorded to Mr. Fred Fredericks when he appeared at the interval and at the end of the matinée should augur well for the success of Aladdin. Mr. Frank Rothsay, the popular and urbane acting-manager, looks well after the front of the house.

"CINDERELLA" AT KINGSTON.

Pantomime produced on Boxing Day.

The Fairy Mistletoe ..... Miss Alice Coverick
The Spirit of the Purple Heather ..... Miss Providence Lesley
Prince Paragon ..... Miss Hilda Vining
Dandini (his valet) ..... Miss Bessie Butt
The Baron Shotocash ..... Mr. Lauri Wylie
Cinderella (his daughter) ..... Miss Dorothy Grassdorf
Salome ..... Mr. Arthur Carlton
Potipha ..... Mr. Bobbie Hall
The Hon. Miss Peggy Poudre ..... Miss Edith Deverell
Bill May (proprietor of a pierrot troupe) ..... Miss Nellie James
Chary McTash ..... Mr. George Hirste
Mr. Gollywog ..... Miss Alice Mosley
Mrs. Gollywog ..... Miss Dolly Rawleigh
Stumpy Dumps ..... Mr. C. Kingsley
Top Taffy ..... Mr. F. Percy Cann

The twelfth annual Christmas pantomime was produced at the Royal County Theatre on Boxing Day before a house that filled the cosy little riverside theatre from floor to ceiling, and it was received with unmistakable signs of approval in all parts of the building. Mr. Peter Davey, the energetic and painstaking managing-director, who has again devised and arranged the production, has done his best to go one better than anything he has attempted before, and it is freely admitted that Cinderella takes the palm amongst former Christmas productions. The familiar story is told in a series of nine scenes, some of which are of surpassing beauty. Chief amongst these is the Baron's Great Hall, a pretty woodland glade showing a long vista of silver birch and purple heather, and the scene in which the State ball takes place, and in which the Prince finds the owner of the traditional slipper. Nearly all the scenery has been painted by Mr. George Miller, the resident artist, whilst valuable contributions have been made by Mr. Joseph Harker and Mr. A. G. Betts. The story follows pretty much upon the lines of those that have already been told, with deviations made to add to its attractiveness. Cinderella is still the drudge of the household and the constant slave of her two ugly sisters. There is still the good fairy watching over her, who appears to her in her distress from amid the ample folds of a bunch of mistletoe blazing with numerous electric lamps. It is in a wood that the Prince meets her first, and then he has changed places with his valet in order the better to press his suit. After the ball, when the slipper is found, the little maid, divested of her fairy habiliments, is led back to the dais in her rags to receive the betrothal kiss of her royal lover. The pantomime sparkles with fun and pretty music from beginning to end, and the fun is of a kind that the most prudish could take no objection to. The chief honours in tickling the risible faculties unquestionably belongs to Mr. Lauri Wylie, an old Kingston favourite, who appears in a number of astonishing disguises, with an infectious drollery, and always with a new joke on his lips. Mr. Wylie has an opportunity in one of the scenes of introducing his marionette show, of which he is an accomplished performer. The two ugly sisters find capable exponents in Mr. Arthur Carlton and Mr. Bobbie Hall, who between them contribute much to the hilarity of the performance. The way in which Mr. Hall plays with a piece of dough in the Baron's kitchen fairly brings down the house. Another artist deserving of note in this direction is Mr. George Hirste, who plays the part of a Scotchman, Chary McTash, with great success. A winsome and engaging Cinderella is presented by Miss Dorothy Grassdorff, who not only possesses a pretty voice, but is a skilful dancer. Her song and dance, "In the garden of my heart," were received with loud expressions of approval. Mr. Davey has also been fortunate in securing the services of Miss Hilda Vining to play the Prince, which, in her hands, is all that could be desired. Gifted with a fine presence, Miss Vining also possesses a voice of remarkable sweetness and compass, and her song, "Cinderella," was one of the musical numbers that will be longest remembered. Great praise must be awarded to Miss Bessie Butt, who appears as Dandini, the Prince's valet. Miss Butt, an artist of unquestioned ability, quite excels herself at Kingston, throwing a dash and spirit into her performance that at once makes her friends in every part of the house. Her coon song and dance, "Sunlight Sue," secured an ovation. Of others taking part in the performance, a word of mention is due to Messrs. Kingsley and Percy Cann, who gave a droll representation of two "brokers' men," and of Miss Alice Mosley and Miss Dolly Rawleigh, who appeared with success as Mr. and Mrs. Gollywog, for there is a gollywog scene in the pantomime for the benefit of the children. A charming appearance was made by Miss Edith Deverell as the Hon. Miss Peggy Poudre. There is a full chorus, admirably trained, and the performance goes with a merry swing from the beginning to the end. The libretto and the lyrics have been written by Mr. Hugh Mylton; the music has been selected and arranged by Mr. Hugo Rignold, the chef d'orchestre, and includes original pieces by himself and other local composers. Miss Nellie James has been responsible for the invention and rehearsing of the dances, Mrs. Peter Davey has had the fashioning of the costumes, which are of a most elaborate character. Mr. Wilson Blake is acting as stage-manager.

"PUSS IN BOOTS" AT SOUTHPORT.

The Opera House was reopened on Boxing Day, when a crowded and enthusiastic audience greeted the production of Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime, Puss in Boots. The lyrics are from the pen of Mr. J. Hickory Wood, who fully justifies his high reputation for this class of amusement, the well-known nursery story being unfolded with a freshness and charm that delighted both old and young. The gorgeous scenic effects and the dressing were in keeping with the excellence usually associated with Mr. Elliston's Christmas productions, and that gentleman, together with Mr. Harry Rogerson, the stage-manager, may be congratulated on the success of the first presentation. By permission of the various publishers, the tuneful music was specially composed and arranged by Mr. Arthur Braddock and Mr. George Ess. Miss Ethel Ra Leslie, in the rôle of the principal boy, Colin, combines a good stage presence with piquant and artistic acting; her best vocal numbers were "The white man through and through" and "Connemara," for which she was warmly applauded. Mr. Fred Lincoln as Dame Shortly was responsible for much merriment, his humorous song, "Laying the linoleum on the floor," being highly appreciated. Gretchen (the Dutch servant) was capitally portrayed by Miss Zona Joy, who sang "Good-bye to Charlie" and "Antonio" in excellent style. Mr. Harry Rogerson was exceedingly droll in the character of King Grabbus, and finds plenty of scope for displaying his humorous versatility. Miss Bessie Herbert made a dashing Prince Rudolph, her song "Kitty," being very acceptably rendered. Baron Rumphiz had a commendable and amusing representative in Mr. Harry Edlin. Miss Issa Steel depicted the good Fairy Felina with artistic effect; Princess Ivy was vivaciously portrayed by Miss Gladys Christoe, and the same may be said of Miss Gladys Hicks as the miller's daughter Phyllis. Other good character sketches were those supplied by Mr. Hal Bert as Slyboots (the king of cats), Miss Annie Stewart as Doris, Mr. Ben Corday as Digestion, and Zelina as Fritz, the juggling waiter. Under the direction of Mr. George Goss, the choruses were rendered in excellent style; and praise is also due to the Albion Quartette and the Amazonian Trumpeters.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE ALDWYCH.

On Saturday, Dec. 26, Revival of the Comedy, in three acts, by Brandon Thomas, entitled
"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, Bart. ..... MR. BRANDON THOMAS
Stephen Spettigue ..... MR. ROY BYFORD
Jack Chesney ..... MR. HASTINGS LYNN
Charley Wykeham ..... MR. RICHARD B. MASON
Lord Fancourt Babberley .. MR. STANLEY COOKE
Brasset ..... MR. SYDNEY COMPTON
Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez .. MISS VERE GERALD
Kitty Verdun ..... MISS AMY BRANDON THOMAS
Amy Spettigue ..... MISS G. DENBY-RUSSELL
Ela Delahay ..... MISS EVELYN BEAUMONT

The sportive old lady from Brazil—"where the nuts come from"—is again on a visit to the Metropolis for the festive season, and is "at home" for three weeks, afternoons and evenings, at the Aldwych, old friends voting the frivolous dame as entertaining as ever; and she has soon established herself a favourite with those who are making her acquaintance for the first time. The season started by Mr. Brandon Thomas of his evergreen play on Boxing Day promises to be a most successful one, judging by the cordial reception given it on its reproduction by a crowded house, and it would certainly be difficult to find a merrier or more enjoyable entertainment for the Christmas holidays. The company responsible for the representation is an excellent one throughout, the all-important part of Lord Fancourt Babberley being again undertaken by that funny comedian, Mr. Stanley Cooke. Mr. Cooke, having played the rôle something over 2,000 times, is quite aware of its comic possibilities, and his performance throughout is a most mirth-provoking and clever one. Very funny is "Babs'" business in the first act, before he dons the petticoats, notably his efforts to annex the champagne of his college chums, and also his successful manœuvring to obtain the loan of half-a-crown, which is eventually bestowed on the tactful Brasset, from whom it was originally borrowed. As "Charley's aunt" his impersonation would be difficult to improve upon, the many awkward situations the old lady is placed in, and the droll lines put into her mouth, being done full justice to by the resourceful comedian. A funny and well-managed incident is that in which the quaint old lady receives an offer of marriage from Colonel Chesney, and her efforts to elude the amorous attentions of Stephen Spettigue also compel hearty laughter. Altogether, a most humorous and finished portrayal. The author, Mr. Brandon Thomas, is again seen in the part of the genial father of Jack, Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, and his impersonation is a natural and admirable one throughout, particularly droll being his treatment of the scene where he proposes to "Charley's aunt." Mr. Roy Byford gives an excellent portrait of the pompous Stephen Spettigue; and the impecunious and irresponsible undergraduates, Jack Chesney and Charley Wykeham, are alertly, smartly, and humorously enacted by Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Richard B. Mason: the college scout Brasset being played in a quietly funny style by Mr. Sydney Compton. Spettigue's ward and niece, Kitty Verdun and Amy Spettigue, have attractive and intelligent representatives in Miss Amy Brandon Thomas and Miss G. Denby-Russell; Miss Evelyn Beaumont is a delightfully dainty Ela Delahay; and the real Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez is played with distinction, dignity, and no little sense of humour by Miss Vere Gerald. Mr. Brandon Thomas is also responsible for the curtain-raiser, the amusing and well-written little piece, A Highland Legacy, in which he so cleverly impersonates the canny, but good-hearted Tammy Tamson MacDonnel, the representatives of the other parts—all admirable little portraits—being Messrs. Hastings Lynn, Sydney Compton, Roy Byford, David Denard, and Misses Joan Dilla and Amy Brandon Thomas.

"FAUNTLEROY" AT THE COURT.

The first revival under Miss Mouillot's administration at the Court merits the heartiest support. Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's story took a firm hold on the public on its stage production in 1888, and its sentiment appears now as fresh and fragrant as ever. Two versions of the novel were produced in the same year, the first by Mr. E. V. Seebohm, which saw the light at the Prince of Wales in the February; the second, by Mrs. Hodgson Burnett herself, being brought out under the title of The Real Little Lord Fauntleroy at Terry's in the following May. It was the latter version that Miss Mouillot produced in conjunction with Mr. Will Dennis at the Court on Boxing Day, and the appreciation of the audience was evident in the enthusiasm aroused. The story, it will be recalled, is that of Cedric, a little boy of ten, who is surrendered by his mother to his grandfather, the Earl of Dorincourt, in order that he may take up his inheritance. Cedric is the offspring of the Earl's third son, and as both the elder sons have died he is the heir to the title and estates. The Earl was opposed to the marriage of Cedric's father, and makes the condition that the mother shall not visit her child. How the boy works upon the sympathies of the solitary old Earl, and finally succeeds in completely softening his heart, is told in touching style which must move the hardiest playgoer.

A strong cast has been engaged to support the play. The title-rôle on its first production, it will be remembered, furnished a triumph for Miss Vera Beringer, who, by the way, is now appearing as Fairy Godmother in a neighbouring pantomime production. It is now portrayed by a boy, Master Lenton Murray, who, we are glad to note, has had his licence, at first granted only for a week, extended to a month. The youthful actor is gifted beyond his years, and gives a performance that charms all by its unaffectedness and quaint aristocratic air. Master Murray's articulation is especially to be commended, and every word of the dialogue can be readily heard. Mrs. Errol, formerly played by Miss Winifred Emery, is now represented by Miss Eva Moore, who invests the rôle with a sweetness and pathos that are very touching. Mr. Will Dennis realises with full force the character of the old Earl, a part created by Mr. Alfred Bishop. His irascibility and constant outbursts of temper are admirably assumed, and his acting while undergoing the process of subjugation at the hands of Cedric is remarkably fine. Mr. Havisham, who in the first production was played by Mr. Brandon Thomas, is sustained by Mr. George Canninge, who supplies a faithful reproduction of the old family lawyer of a Dickensian type that is still to be met with, and acts and speaks with a quiet ease that is very effective. The malevolence of the unscrupulous Minna is realistically suggested by Miss Gertrude Netterville; and Miss Mary Brough appears with excellent effect as Mary. Mr. Hobbs, originally in the hands of Mr. Albert Chevalier, is now entrusted to Mr. William Lockhart, who gives a comical performance; Mr. T. N. Walter is a thoroughly effective Higgins; Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood as Thomas and Mr. Norman Clifton as Wilkins add considerably to the comedy relief; and the cast is completed by Mr. Christmas Grose, who combines the duties of stage management with the representation of Dick Tipton, a part originally played by Miss Esme Beringer.

ISLINGTON THEATRE.

On Boxing Day, the Drama, in Three Acts, entitled
"THE CRICKET ON THE HEARTH."

Mr. Walter Gibbons, having acquired the Grand Theatre for his Islington vaudeville enterprise, has converted the old Mohawks hall into a drama house. Messrs. Herbert Blackmore and Lionel Wallace, who are responsible for the production, have chosen the play based on Dickens's well-known story. A very capable company has been engaged, which includes some well-known names, and every credit must be extended to them for a capital all-round performance. Mr. W. T. Elworthy as Perrybingle gave a good impersonation, which was distinguished by great directness of method. Another altogether admirable performance was that of Mr. Archibald Maclean as Gruff Tackleton, the unpleasant nature of the rôle being well realised. Mr. Augusta Wheatman as Caleb Plummer is capital in the attractive part of the old toymaker, and scored a great success. Mr. Laurence Leyton as the Stranger did well in a very restricted part; Miss Frances Rutledge as Mary Perrybingle acted with power and effect; Miss Gladys Archbutt as Bertha portrayed the blind girl very sympathetically, and is to be congratulated; Miss Maud Stainer as Tilly had very little to do, but did that little very well; Miss Rita Trekelle as May Fielding was satisfactory, as was Miss Alice Gordon in the part of the Mother; the cast being completed by Miss Iredale Hope and Mr. Edward Whiting. The scenery and effects were very satisfactory, but the inclement weather was not without its effect on the audience.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 28, the Drama, by Chas. H. Longdon and Eric Hudson, entitled
"TWO LITTLE HEROES."

The drama submitted this week has a strong domestic and human interest, and naturally appeals to the paternal instincts of the audiences that have visited the theatre during the week. Mr. Harry Tresham has a part that suits his personality well, and he plays in a natural and free-and-easy manner the character of a French naval officer, Henri de Courcelles. Mr. H. Ryeland-Leigh has gained unenviable notoriety as the villain, being always cast for that particular character, and this week he is duly responsible for causing a considerable amount of misery as the Marquis de Verannes, a part that gives him ample scope for the display of his abilities. Mr. C. Alan-Hineson makes an excellent Jacques Fourniere, and uses to the utmost the scanty opportunities given him; a kind-hearted and sympathetic Abbé Vincent St. Paul is submitted by Mr. Conrad E. Clerke, who gives an ideal portrait of the priest; Dr. Bartrand is well played by Mr. Herbert Young; the two cut-throats, Lagourdaine and Raval, are ably represented by Messrs. Herbert Young and Ivan P. Gore, the latter making up to represent Guy Fawkes; the two orphans are artistically represented by Miss Florence Barnes as Gabriel and Miss Evelyn Kington as Valentine; considerable amusement is caused by Mr. H. G. Brandon as Achille le Grand and Miss Edna Lester as Lulu, these two performers keeping the audience in a merry mood; Miss Ethyle Gordon Murray's Catherine is a good performance, and although the character does not present many opportunities, Miss Murray makes it stand out prominently by her strong acting; and Miss Lalla Stanhope is again allotted a part that suits her personality, and she does full justice to the character of Marie St. Geran, playing in a quiet, unobtrusive manner, never out of the picture, and her winsome and dainty style is entirely in keeping with the part. The drama is well mounted, and full advantage is taken of the opportunity given to dress the play in an artistic manner, the uniforms blending well with the ladies' costumes. The orchestra plays some excellent selections during the evening. The performance is closed by some fine pictures depicted by the Bioscope. Mr. Fred A. Fowler, the resident-manager, is kept fully occupied in attending to the comfort of his numerous patrons.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Boxing Day, the Drama entitled
"THE NIHILIST."

Presented on Boxing Night, before a crowded house, where even standing room was unavailable, The Nihilist proved a great attraction. The plot of the drama being unfolded in Russia lends itself to thrilling treatment, and the authors, Messrs. Hugh Montgomery and O. Silverstone, are not slow in taking every advantage of their opportunity, consequently The Nihilist is well stocked with blood-curdling situations and exciting incidents. Mr. Joseph Millane gives a powerful rendering of the character of Ivan Nowasky, the village blacksmith; Karl Orloff is ably undertaken by Mr. Cowell Clark; Mr. O. Silverstone looks well as Prince Alexander, and maintains a strong hold of the audience; Mr. Newton Buckland contributes a good study of Pierlree Petoff, of the secret police; Mr. J. Brunelle Harvey is well suited to the part of the exiled priest Father Gourko; Mr. Henry Wright as Bobbie Smart, a British subject, provides a large amount of comic relief, in which he is strongly assisted by Miss Jessica Ford as Katrina Zindoff, who plays her rôle in a vivacious manner; Miss Edna Clare as Alexina Orloff is well placed; Miss Florrie Kelsey provides a very effective performance as Princess Olga, while little May Edise as Little Alexina supplies a clever impersonation. Mr. Morgan Dale, Mr. S. G. Eugene, Mr. Edward Dowds, and Mr. James Hamilton lend suitable assistance in minor parts.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Dec. 28, for the first time in London, the Drama, in Five Acts, by T. G. Bailey, entitled
"HOW WOMEN RUIN MEN."

Jack Fairclough ..... } MR. SIDNEY RENNEF
Maurice Fairclough .... }
Bruno Schlag ..... MR. RICHARD VANE
Major Bagstock ..... MR. STEPHEN LANGTON
Freddy Fondheart .... MR. ALEX. WILSON WYNNE
Jimmy Chucket ..... MR. FRED ELVIN
Dr. Methvin ..... MR. MATT RUSSELL
Karl Swarts ..... MR. FRED ASTLEY
Earl's Court Attendant ..... MR. JOHN BLYTH
Sylvia Grey ..... MISS DORIS BROOKES
Mercy Grey ..... MISS GRACIE JONES
Belle Plantin ..... MISS ANNIE BRUNNETT
Mrs. Meadows ..... MISS LILY STANLEY
Jennie Chucket ..... MISS KITTY RUSSELL

Produced at the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, on Nov 9, How Women Ruin Men has quickly found its way into the metropolitan area, and at the Stratford Theatre Royal on Monday, despite pantomime attractions, a full house witnessed the performance and unmistakably expressed their approval of the piece. The story is told lucidly and in language far above the average met with in melodrama, though it cannot be said that the comedy scenes, which are but scantily connected with the play, enjoy the same superiority. The piece is interpreted by a particularly capable cast, under the direction of Messrs. Sidney Rennef and G. M. Copping, and it is exceedingly well mounted and dressed.

Sylvia Grey is the woman whose misdeeds suggest the title. Sylvia is a thoroughly bad lot, who can well be described as possessing "the face of an angel and the soul of a devil." When the story opens she is affianced to honest Jack Fairclough, but the prospect of humdrum respectability has no attractions for her, and when Bruno Schlag, a polished German adventurer, appears on the scene, he has not much difficulty in persuading Sylvia to elope with him to Germany. Fairclough only thinks that she has gone to take up that he is a much-sought-after Colonial who has been honoured by royalty for heroic deeds, agrees to leave her husband and fly to Paris with him. Here Maurice reveals his identity. But vengeance is not his. It is contrived that Bruno Schlag should be informed of his wife's elopement, and his is the hand which is the final undoing of the woman, he himself falling dead from a pistol shot before he can do further murder. Maurice's oath fulfilled, the end sees his betrothal to Mercy.

Mr. Sidney Rennef, in the dual rôle of Jack and Maurice Fairclough, acts with virility and earnestness, and carries conviction with every word he utters. Miss Doris Brookes as Sylvia Grey plays with much fluency and latent strength, looking the part well, and declaiming the lines allotted to her with point and emphasis. Mr. Richard Vane is to be commended for an artistic, restrained performance as the German adventurer Bruno Schlag, which is in no way detracted from by the necessary adoption of an accent. Mr. Stephen Langton as the brusque, debonair Major Bagstock is excellent; Mr. Alex. Wilson Wynne in the light comedy part of Freddy Fondheart does well; and Mr. Fred Elvin is a very amusing Jimmy Chucket. Miss Gracie Jones is a sympathetic and charming Mercy Grey; and Miss Kitty Russell is a bright and entertaining Jennie Chucket. The minor parts are in quite capable hands.

VIEW OF INTERIOR OF THE NEW EMPIRE THEATRE, CALCUTTA.
JOINT PROPRIETORS, MR. MAURICE E. BANDMANN AND MR. A. STEPHEN.

OPENING OF GRAND, OLDHAM.

The new Grand Theatre and Opera House, Oldham, was thrown open to the public on Christmas Eve, and a large audience took advantage of the opportunity of visiting one of the prettiest and cosiest theatres in the provinces. Every portion of the house was well-filled by a representative audience, all the seats in the dress circle and orchestra stalls being booked well in advance. Nothing but expressions of admiration were heard at the pretty appearance of the theatre. The opening attraction was the pantomime, Aladdin, the story of which has been written by Mr. Arthur W. Field, and the music and lyrics composed, selected, and arranged by Mr. Walter Scott. In the selection of the company, Mr. Dottridge has been very fortunate. Miss Ray Wallace is the hero, and her captivating manner and delightful singing quickly made her a first favourite. Her numbers include "Antonio," "If you want to make love to a girl," and "Opportunities," all sung in capital style. Miss Mildred Bryan as Princess So-Shi repeated her former success, her tuneful voice being used with good effect in "Take me in your arms" and "Far away in Australia," and she also joined with Miss Wallace in two duets. Miss Jennie Hallworth as Pekoe and Miss Marion Walker as Wan Lung were admirable in their respective rôles. Miss Phyllis Seymour as Prince Tokay and Miss Isa Gibson as Nicee also sang and danced in a capital manner. Miss Flo Collier as Sau-Cee acted in spirited fashion, and did well with Mr. Joe Robins in their variety business. The latter appeared with great success as Widow Twankey, and he kept the house roaring with laughter. Mr. Bert Harrow was no less successful in his endeavours to amuse. Mr. Leonard Russell as the Emperor used his fine voice to great advantage, and Mr. E. W. Avery made the most of Ching Chang. Mr. Hugh Cedar as Wishee Washee helped to keep the ball merrily rolling, and Messrs. Maxford and O'Neill as Coppa and Stoppa were effective members of the force. Miss Nellie Duval as the Genie of the Ring had the benefit of a fine presence and a sweet voice, which she used well, and Mr. Edward Elgar was a capital Slave of the Lamp. Messrs. Rolfe, Eadie, Stephens, and Dillon formed a capable quartet, and earned much applause. A feature of the pantomime is the Children's Dream of Toyland, invented and produced by Mlle. Pauline Rivers. From the House of Toys emerge the animated presentment of the kiddies' dreams, dolls they have dreamt of, marching out in delightful manner, and singing and dancing in a most graceful style. Included also in the company are the Pauline Sextette and the Dainty Dandies. Amongst the vocal tit-bits are "My Little Money Spider" and "Only Boys," sung capitally by Misses Nellie Langley and Gertie Langley. Miss Lena Melville was very smart in Scotch dances, and the toe dancing of Miss Edie Howarth was of a very clever character. The production concluded with myriads of lights, forming a pretty picture, and Mlle. Rivers had to bow her acknowledgment. The scenery is excellent, some fine specimens of the artists' work being shown. The Interior of the Magic Cave called forth rounds of applause, as did the Chrysanthemum Carnival, Mr. Dottridge duly appearing in answer to loud applause. The remaining scenes are equally good. Mr. Herbert King stage-managed the production, and under his guidance it runs right merrily.

NEW THEATRE FOR CALCUTTA.

A temple of the drama which, from all accounts, possesses the attributes of a London house has been provided for Calcutta, and bids fair to inaugurate a new era of amusements in the Far East. Mr. Maurice E. Bandmann and Mr. A. Stephen are the proprietors of the new edifice, in the erection of which a record in theatrical construction is claimed. The building of the New Empire Theatre was begun in the spring of the present year, and it was opened on Dec. 5, the work having been completed within a period of nine months. The theatre is divided into four distinctive parts, viz., the stalls, with a seating capacity for nearly 500 people; the grand tier, consisting of boxes only; the dress circle, with a seating capacity for nearly 300 people; and the amphitheatre, which will accommodate 500. The great beauty of the theatre is its wonderful line of sight and its marvellous acoustic properties. The house being built on the cantilever principle, there are no columns to obstruct the view, consequently there is not a seat in the house which does not command a clear view of the stage. Large foyers and marble promenades surround each tier, and the grand marble staircase leading right up as far as the dress circle stands out in grandeur. Each box on its grand tier has its own separate entrance and a comfortable seating capacity for six people, and the proscenium boxes accommodate ten people, who can all see comfortably. The boxes are handsomely draped with rich Utrecht velvet curtains.

The decoration is white and gold throughout, with red velvet, carpets, and hangings. A very pretty feature of the theatre is the principle of lighting. From each circle and box stand out electric fittings, consisting of triple electric candles, each one shaded by red silk, which throw a rich light over the interior. The ceiling is quite a work of art, and is studded with electric light. A rich Utrecht velvet tableau curtain is provided, and a safety curtain is worked by electricity, and can be raised or lowered in a few seconds. The stage is an exact copy of His Majesty's in London, and is complete with every mechanical contrivance. It is capable of holding any production. A whole scene can be lowered or raised according to the will of the producer. There is a large property room and scene dock, with a formidable opening capable of admitting the largest piece of scenery that would ever be used on the stage. The scene doors leading out into the compound are so large that a carriage and pair could drive either in or out of the stage at a comfortable pace.

The dressing-rooms, of which there are sixteen, are quite apart from the stage, and are fitted with every modern convenience. There are lavatories on each floor, and each dressing-room has large windows, and in each one there is a ceiling fan. As regards the fans in the theatre, there are considerably over 100, and they are arranged in such a manner as not to obscure the view. The stall fans are all on standards, which in the cold weather can be lifted out entirely.

The seats have all been brought out by Mr. Bandmann from England, and have been specially made for the Indian climate. They are all modern tip-up chairs, with comfortable arms and backs and gilt metal standards. In the stalls there are foot rests for each seat. The dress circle seats are most comfortable, consisting of cane tip-up chairs, supplied with gilt metal standards. The amphitheatre has an absolutely clear view of every part of the stage, the promoters being particularly desirous of affording every comfort to their patrons. Emergency exits are numerous, and Mr. Bandmann is confident that the building could be emptied within a minute. The theatre is built throughout of brick, stone, and concrete, the outer roof spanning over 80ft. In this roof there is a special installation of ventilation.

The exterior of the building is very handsome, and its tower can be seen from almost any part of the town. Powerful arc lights will light it up at night. The electric installation is the finest obtainable, and equal to any European theatre. From the enormous switchboard on the stage every light in the house can be controlled—dimmed or put out at will. The stage is lit with a three-colour system, so that any lighting effect required can be obtained on a second's notice. Six powerful reflectors are also for use on the stage, apart from the innumerable side lights, ground lights, &c. With one lever every light in the building can be put out instantaneously, and also put up again. The orchestra is sunk well down, so that there are no instruments to obscure the view. There are four bars, one on each tier, and these bars are not sub-let to anyone, but will be run by the management themselves. Messrs. Mackintosh Burn are the architects and builders.

The opening attraction was The Mikado, which was heartily enjoyed by an audience that filled nearly every part of the theatre and displayed great enthusiasm. A more pretentious production was reserved for the following week, when Havana was staged in most elaborate style. The dressing of the piece elicited the highest commendation. In prettiness it would be a difficult matter to beat the costumes. The scenery on each rise of the curtain exacted applause, and the general lighting and limelight arrangements were perfect. The performance gained the highest admiration. The company included Miss Constance Lait as Consuelo, Miss Florence Beech as Anita, Miss Mabel Gregory, Miss Wilmot Karkeek, Miss Elsie Probyn, Miss Blanche Vauden, and Mrs. Henry Dallas. Mr. Henry Dallas and Mr. Frank Danby were respectively the Bosun and the Yacht's Boy, and other members of the cast were Mr. Fred Coyne, Mr. Villiers Arnold, Mr. John Doran, Mr. Dan Clifford, and Mr. Edward Granby.

Mr. Bandmann relied upon pantomime as his Christmas attraction, and it is his intention during the coming season to present the most famous Drury Lane dramas. Mr. Bandmann's London manager, it should be added, is Mr. James Bury.

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

The management of this theatre is fully entitled to, and deserves congratulations on, its judgment in the selection and engagement of a holiday programme. Commencing from Boxing Day, the Moody-Manners Opera Company is giving representations from its repertoire of well-known operas, and will continue its occupation of this well-appointed house for the two following weeks, during which time the operas Faust, Tannhäuser, Cavalleria Rusticana, I Pagliacci, Maritana, Carmen, and Madame Butterfly will be presented. The latter opera, being the one under notice, was introduced on Monday night before a full house, the large audience showing unmistakable signs of their keen appreciation of Puccini's weird and Eastern-garbed music, and bestowing enthusiastic applause upon the principal artists engaged, who, we may here mention, deserved the praise so liberally meted out to them. In the title-rôle Miss Enriqueta Crichton (Cho Cho-San) renders her score with artistic ability, and her acting of the tragic part is a noteworthy feature. Miss M. Dennis as Susuki displays a well-trained voice, which she uses to the best advantage, her acting being finely touched with pathos. B. F. Pinkerton is capitally essayed by Mr. Charles Carter, who makes the most of an excellent tenor voice and achieves distinction. Mr. Marshall Vincent as Sharples gives a good taste of his quality and deserves commendation. Miss V. Barry as Kate Pinkerton is successful. The remaining members of the cast do ample justice to the parts allotted them, and the greatly augmented orchestra under the bâton of Mr. Cuthbert Hawley deserves praise.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE must have been much gratified by reading the letter which the Minister of the Italian Royal Household addressed to Mr. H. S. J. Booth, the chief organiser of the recent matinée given by Mr. Tree at His Majesty's Theatre, in connection with the Adelaide Ristori Memorial Fund, in which the Minister says:—"The details of this worthy manifestation have been received with special interest by His Majesty, who rightly appreciated this homage and the accompanying feelings of friendship towards Italy. I am now commanded by His Majesty to convey to you in the Royal name his best thanks, and to express to you and to all who are associated in the noble enterprise the sovereign's gratification."

MRS. D'OYLY CARTE, lady vice-president of the Strand District of the League of Mercy, gave a special matinée of The Pirates of Penzance, at the Savoy Theatre, on Wednesday afternoon, the proceeds to be devoted to the League of Mercy. In aid of the same beneficent society the Lady Mayoress has given her patronage to the fancy dress dance (fancy dress optional) for children and adults, to be held at the Hotel Cecil on Monday.

MISS VIOLA TREE will retire from the stage for one year at the end of the run of Pinkie and the Fairies, in order to devote herself to the study of singing with a view to qualifying herself for grand opera. Miss Tree is acting on the advice of her music teacher, Signor Visetti, whose recommendation is endorsed by Sir Hubert Parry and Sir Villiers Stanford. The clever young lady has already given ample evidence of her accomplishments in the arts of both acting and singing, and her début in the opera Francesca, which was produced at His Majesty's by the Royal College of Music on the 3rd ult. was highly promising.

THE sudden advent of winter played havoc with the amusement business, and the attendances at both theatres and variety halls were enormously depleted. The prospect of issuing forth even for a few moments into the blinding snow, and taking the few steps in the slush necessary to reach motor-car or cab, could not be faced by the ordinary members of the playgoing public, and booked seats were sacrificed by the hundred, while the cheaper portions of the houses suffered accordingly. Fortunately the frost was of comparatively brief duration, and the thaw that set in quickly restored business to its normal condition.

"PENELOPE," a new play from the facile pen of Mr. W. Somerset Maugham, will make its appearance at the Comedy on Saturday. Mr. Maugham has once again selected a charming Irishwoman for the principal character, but on this occasion she is a young wife and she exerts her fascinations triumphantly over her husband, a gentleman of the same warm-hearted race, whose taste for pretty faces is too pronounced. The title-rôle will be played by Miss Marie Tempest, and that of the husband, Dr. O'Farrell, by Mr. Graham Browne The cast will also consist of Mr. Alfred Bishop, Miss Kate Bishop, Mr. Eric Lewis, Miss Norma Whalley, Mr. Herbert Ross, Mrs. Calvert, Mr J. H. Brewer, and Miss Ethelwynn Arthur-Jones.

MISS JULIA NEILSON and Mr. Fred Terry will reappear at the New Theatre on Thursday, when Henry of Navarre will have its introduction to London. The two principals will have the support of Messrs. Malcolm Cherry, A. E. Anson, Harry F. Wright, Walter Edwin, Horace Hodges, J. Carter-Edwards, George Dudley, Maurice Tosh, C. R. Gibbon, Maurice Elvey, Philip Merivale, Sydney Porter, and R. Easten Pickering, and Misses Tita Brand, Kathleen Doyle, Gladys Gardner, Kitty Carteret, Gwen Thomas, and Beatrice Manning.

MISS EVELYN MILLARD brings the successful run of Idols to a close to-day, in order to make way for the promised revival of The Adventure of Lady Ursula at the Garrick on Tuesday next. The character of Lady Ursula, in Mr. Anthony Hope's charming comedy, has always been a favourite with Miss Millard, who made a distinct hit in the original production at the Duke of Yrk's Theatre in 1898, when the play had a run extending over a year. The cast will be completed by Miss Dora Barton, Miss Dolores Drummond; and Messrs. Herbert Waring, Charles Fulton, J. L. Mackay, Lytton Grey, Owen Roughwood, Evelyn Vernon, Heath Haviland, Gerald Jerome, A. E. Benedict, John W. Laurence, and Frank Danby.

MR. RUTLAND BARRINGTON will deliver an address to the members of the O.P. Club in the Grand Hall at the Criterion on Sunday, Jan. 17, when "Encores: Their Advantages and Drawbacks" will be discussed. Another Savoyard, Miss Jessie Rose, will take the chair.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS is actively engaged in rehearsals of the new musical play, The Young Duke, which is to be brought out at the Hicks Theatre about the middle of next month. The score of the new piece, which is based upon A Court Scandal, has been composed by Mr. Frank Tours. Not the least interesting feature about the production is that it will serve for the appearance of Miss Ellaline Terriss for the first time at the head of her own company, under the management of Mr. Charles Frohman.

THE Merry Widow dinner arranged by the O.P. Club to celebrate the success of an opera which has created a world's record will be held on Sunday, Jan. 31, at the Hotel Cecil. Mr. George Edwardes, Miss Lily Elsie, and Mr. Joseph Coyne will be the guests of the evening, and invitations will also be extended to the members of the Daly's Theatre company. The president, Mr. Max Pemberton, will be in the chair.

"JACK STRAW" concludes its career this week, and the Vaudeville will subsequently revert to serious drama. The piece decided upon for production will be a new play called Olive Lattimer's Husband, by Mr. Rudolph Besier, whose Virgin Goddess was produced by Mr. Otho Stuart at the Adelphi in the autumn of 1906. Interesting engagements have already been made in those of Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Mr. Lyn Harding for the leading parts.

MISS ELLEN TERRY has found it impossible to play in Pinkie and the Fairies nine times a week. Her part in that attractive play will therefore be taken at the Monday and Wednesday matinées by her daughter, Miss Edith Craig.

MR. RICHARD GREEN, who is playing Max in Wilfred Cotton's Butterflies company at Glasgow, holds the Royal Humane Society's certificate for saving life. The gallant deed was accomplished some ten years ago, and on Sunday, Dec. 13, when Mr. Green was singing at Brighton, a fine young fellow came round after the concert to thank the popular vocalist for having saved his life.

SOME of the successes at the Paris theatres are lucrative. "The Variétés," says our correspondent, "continues to do well with Le Roi. The gross receipts since the work was launched show the respectable figure of over £40,000, and seats continue to be booked a long time in advance. The next play on the list is Le Circuit, by MM. de Flers and Francis de Croisset; but some time will elapse before Le Roi will disappear from the bill."

WITH a view to ascertaining the opinions of some representative theatrical managers in regard to the questions raised by Mr. Harcourt's Theatres Bill, a representative of the Morning Post has called upon Mr. George Alexander. "I much prefer to be under the Lord Chamberlain," he said with emphasis: "and I hope personally, for the sake of the Drama generally, that we shall always be under his jurisdiction. But at the same time I think that the present Act—the Theatres Act of 1843—is obsolete, and my wish is to have Free Trade in amusements.

"So far from wishing the censorship to be done away with I should rather think that it ought to be extended further, so as to include the music halls. I certainly think that something should be done to place matters upon a more sensible footing. It is ludicrous that people should go on producing these 'Sketches' in music halls and yet be prosecuted as at present: it is time that these prosecutions should be done away with."

"WHY not leave well alone?" represents the attitude taken up in regard to the Bill by Mr. Henry R. Smith, partner with Mr. Ernest Carpenter in the management of the rejuvenated and popularised Lyceum. "What has arisen recently, or, indeed, at any time, in the conduct of theatres," asked Mr. Smith, "which should cause anyone to bring forward a Bill on these lines? I really see no necessity for it. I know of no London manager who has expressed any feeling antagonistic to the Lord Chamberlain or to the way in which the duties of his office are carried out. Mr. Carpenter and myself have always found him perfectly reasonable in regard to the censorship of plays, and I cannot see that he has treated anybody badly.

"WE have no desire to introduce anything that might be objectionable into our plays; we want to present what is popular. We are perfectly satisfied with the reader of plays, who is a man of wide experience, and have no desire to change a system which has lasted long and worked well. But if there are any London managers who are dissatisfied with the Lord Chamberlain's department let them speak out now and say why they are dissatisfied. Some dramatic authors, I dare say, may desire a change; but the managers, so far as I know, are quite content to let well alone. The Lord Chamberlain has the power to grant or to refuse licences, and if a licence were abused it would very quickly be revoked."

"WE have too many theatres in London already," proceeded Mr. Smith, "and it is quite right that the established houses should have their licences continued. Competition among theatrical proprietors is very keen. We do not want theatres in every street in London. As for the suggestion that the power of licensing and controlling theatres in the central parts of London should be transferred to the London County Council, we think that the present system, under which the County Council issues a certificate stating that they are satisfied of the adequacy of the provision made for the protection of the public against fire and the Lord Chamberlain grants the licence, is a good one.

"I THINK the County Council discharge their duties properly. They do not insist upon anything which is not absolutely necessary, but they do insist upon the public being protected against fire. Here at the Lyceum, which is one of the largest theatres in Europe, and where we are catering for the masses, we hail with delight the taking of all such precautions. It is quite right that the London County Council should have control of theatres in this respect for the protection of the public, which is a thing that every right minded manager welcomes.

"WHAT has happened within the last year or two to change the general condition of affairs? There has been no serious calamity and no trouble, and why should we not leave well alone? The supervision of the Lord Chamberlain is a thing of long standing; while it is only within recent years that the London County Council has stepped in for the purpose merely of protecting the public against fire. In regard to the censorship of plays and the grant of licences, we would rather be in the hands of the Lord Chamberlain and the London County Council than of any newly-appointed body of whom we have no knowledge."

MISS EVIE GREENE, Miss Lily Elsie, and Miss Margaret Cooper saw the old year out under extraordinary circumstances. Just before midnight the popular actresses proceeded to the Embankment, where they distributed tickets to 250 hungry and homeless men. The tickets entitled the holder to the Salvation Army's pint of soup and half-pound of bread, half a pound of cake, a roll, two oranges, and some coppers, the gift being the proceeds of an entertainment given at the Kennington Theatre by Mr. H. Bernhardt, the concert director, of Regent-street.

THE Drury Lane dresses, as was to be anticipated, are marvels of taste and elegance. Miss Marie George as Katrina has five dresses, all of the German peasant type. The first and simplest is in red, the bodice being trimmed with green and yellow silk. A similar fashion is followed in the second, which is, however, in purple-pink silk trimmed with flowers. The third is an apprentice boy's suit in cloth and cashmere, and is succeeded by a dress of black silk trimmed with ribbons and bands of white silk work in Czech black and red embroidery. The fifth, a dress of azure blue silk, is trimmed with Czech gold and silver lace, and with it is worn a pale azure apron and a head-dress of gold lace.

MISS QUEENIE LEIGHTON, in the title-rôle, also affects five dresses. The first is an apprentice costume of brown cloth, with white sleeves, and leather apron, tights, and boots; the second is similar, with an under-dress in a shade of brown and fraise écrasée; No. 3 is the same dress in a ragged condition, with a long brown cloak; and the fourth is a rich costume of reddish purple embroidered in red and scarlet; the last being a blue-black dress, supplemented with an extremely rich blue-black and gold Lord Mayor's robe.

A TRIO of toilets suffices for the Prince of Phantasia, played by Miss Truly Shattuck. The first is a fancy costume of Royal blue velvet, with sleeves of white silk edged with fringe, a yard long, of silk shaded from white to blue, while her marabout toque is trimmed with long blue feathers. The second is the national costume of Phantasia, half Oriental, in purple silk, richly embroidered with gold, a wreath of flowers on the head, her long cloak being ornamented with a sort of Maori gold trimming. The third dress is somewhat like the first, but in Oriental white and hyacinth blue.

MISS MARIE WILSON invests Alice with five captivating costumes. She has first a mediæval fancy costume of very pale pastel blue, the bodice of which is trimmed with emerald green. The head-dress is of white lace, adorned with orange ribbon. Next comes a gown of pink silk, with an over-dress of muslin and a lace bodice. The third is a rustic peasant dress of Oriental blue cotton, with a printed design in salmon pink; and afterwards a ragged street dress in various shades of lavender is worn, with a green and white apron. When Miss Wilson makes her entry as Lady Mayoress she is arrayed in a soft white satin gown, over a white and silver under-dress. It is made on classical lines, regardless of trimming, and with a long train, while a mediæval head-dress completes the costume.

THE Hutchison tours have made a most auspicious start. At Swansea on Boxing Day Peter's Mother broke all previous Christmas records there by playing to £251 in the two performances, a fact on which both Mr. Brooks, the lessee of the Grand, and Mr. Hutchison are to be congratulated. Brewster's Millions opened a return visit at Hastings on Saturday, and beat not only its own remarkable receipts there last August, but also the Christmas records of the theatre. Mrs. Dot also commenced its spring tour with enormous houses at Ipswich on Boxing Day.

THE next of the Hutchison companies to start is Lady Frederick, with Miss Eleanor Delaporte and Mr. Robert Minster. The first date is at the Theatre Royal, Bath, on Jan. 4, and the tour is booked throughout the spring.

WORK is proceeding apace upon Mr. Mulholland's new theatre at Wimbledon, full particulars of which have already appeared in The Era. Even the holidays were not allowed to interfere, and the blizzard only caused the loss of one day. After the series of delays, due chiefly to methods of the local authority, exceptional efforts are now being made, and it is confidently anticipated that the theatre will be completed in all respects well before the end of the summer. The advent of one of London's very largest playhouses is being warmly welcomed in the neighbourhood.

IT is not impossible that in planning the New Theatre, Wimbledon, on such spacious lines, the proprietor has had in mind the possibility of its partial use for high-class variety purposes. A sign of the times is the variety seasons which, during part of the year, are sandwiched with the "legitimate" drama at some of the finest theatres in the country. Mr. Mulholland has been for many years an active member of the Theatrical Managers' Association. He is a man with his finger on the pulse of the time, and his theatre with a holding capacity of four thousand may not be intended solely for the drama.

MISS EMMA HUTCHISON and Mr. Percy Hutchison's latest acquisition is Mr. Roy Horniman's clever play, Idols, which they will send on tour, opening on Jan. 25 at Cheltenham. Miss E. Goodall has been engaged to play Miss Millard's part of Irene Merrian, and Miss Moyra Cregan will be the Minna Hart. Mr. Herbert Ford has the lead, Mr. A. B. Imeson is entrusted with the part of Gerald Merrian, Mr. J. E. Watson will manage the tour, and the advance-management will be in the hands of Mr. J. Major Ward. This is the thirty-ninth play toured under the direction of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison, and it will be staged with the thoroughness invariably associated with that enterprising management.

AMONG the victims of the awful catastrophe in Italy were the baritone Anceschi and his wife, of the Teatro Massimo, together with the soprano Mlle. Marie Fougères and her mother, who were killed in Messina. An elderly musician escaped from Reggio carrying his mother on his back and leading his wife by the hand.

MR. GEORGE ELLISTON was called upon to play the title-rôle in Humpty Dumpty pantomime at the Tyne, Newcastle, at barely three days' notice. He only arrived in Newcastle from London on the Monday, attended a full-dress rehearsal on the Wednesday, and took part in the opening performance the following evening.

WE regret to announce the death of Mr. H. Sharpe, the resident scenic artist of the Theatre Royal, Jarrow, which occurred suddenly on Monday morning. Mr. Sharpe was connected with the theatre over thirty years, and was universally respected.

MR. WILFRED COTTON'S Butterflies company, with the scenery, dresses, and electrical effects of the original production at the Apollo, is the Christmas and New Year attraction at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, where it opened on Monday evening with most gratifying results, the audience including the Lord Provost, and many magnates of the city. Mr. J. A. Robertson, the composer, was present in his capacity of musical director.

THE New Public Hall and Theatre, Aberaman, was opened on Monday evening, and a very large audience assembled to do honour to the occasion. The full seating accommodation of the new building is about 1,500, and the comfort of the audience has been studied in every particular. The scenery and effects are very elaborate, and the stage appointments leave nothing to be desired. The lighting is by electricity; emergency gas fittings have also been judiciously arranged. The production for the opening was The Mikado, by the Aberaman Operatic Society.

MR. C. ST. JOHN DENTON has received a cable from Australia as follows: "Cinderella pantomime enormous. Notices magnificent. Success undoubted." The book of this pantomime is by Stanley Rogers, and is the same that was such a success at the Shakespeare, Liverpool, last year, and the Grand, Glasgow, this season.

THE part of Mrs. Caddisbroke, in The General's Past, which was originally to have been played by Miss Ethel Warwick, will now be played by Miss Lucy Ashworth, and Miss Gwynne Herbert will enact that of Mrs. Curry in The Test. Both pieces, it will be remembered, are to be presented by the Dramatic Productions Club on Sunday evening and Monday afternoon next.

MISS GRACE LESTER commenced on Monday her seventh engagement with Mr. Frederick Melville at the Theatre Royal, Sunderland. Miss Lester is now engaged for the part of the Mother Superior in Her Forbidden Marriage, a part she played successfully on a previous tour.

SIGNOR CARUSO, the famous Italian singer, who is now appearing at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, was greatly distressed on hearing of the news of the misfortunes of his countrymen in Southern Italy, and announced that he intended to devote the night's salary, amounting to £500, to relieving the sufferers by the earthquake. Signor Bonci has followed Caruso's example, and is devoting a night's salary to the fund.

MR. ROLAND YORKE entertained the members of his Old Home company to dinner on Christmas Day. He also concluded forty consecutive weeks' tour, and is playing to packed business, the ordinary door on two nights last week remaining unopened. So great is the success of this play that it is well booked into 1910.

THE booming of pantomimes has been brought to a fine art by Mr. H. Barrett Brandreth, the acting-manager of Kennington Theatre, in the case of Red Riding Hood this Christmas-tide. For several weeks prior to the production Mr. Brandreth kept the Kennington pantomime prominently before the playgoing public by means of the daily newspapers. There were successively articles on the need of an educated pig, interviews with the call boy who possessed his own motor car and had a private income, sketches of how chorus girls are fed, and other interesting items of information in various London newspapers. It was not surprising, therefore, that Red Riding Hood was booked up for three weeks before the dress rehearsal was held—a tribute alike to the astute business methods of Mr. Brandreth, and to the high reputation which the Kennington annual enjoys.

"DOROTHY," so successfully revived at the New Theatre on the 21st ult., will be transferred to the Waldorf on Monday, with Mr. C. Hayden Coffin and Mr. Arthur Williams in their original parts, and Miss Constance Drever and Miss Louie Pounds as a new Dorothy and Lydia, Miss Coralie Blythe as Phyllis, Mr. John Bardsley as Geoffrey Wilder, and Mr. Lempriere Pringle as Squire Bantam.

THE present revival of Dorothy furnished something of a record in the annals of "hustling" in regard to a West End production. Practically all the engagements were made only twelve days before the actual date of production, and arrangements had then to be made for the costumes and scenery. Seemingly insurmountable obstacles were overcome, and the curtain was raised at 8.15 on the night the play was advertised to be revived.

THE sick children at the Great Ormond-street Hospital had sent them a few days since by Miss Lily Elsie, of The Merry Widow company, a sleigh laden with bon-bons and yoked to a couple of white steeds, which automatically nodded their heads. The kind thought of the popular artist was greatly appreciated by the little patients.

"THE DAWN OF A TO-MORROW," a drama of London slum life, by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, was produced at the Academy of Music, Norfolk, U.S.A., on the 18th. The theme of the play touches on Christian Science. Sir Oliver Holt is in bad health, and his physician has told him that he cannot live. He gives out that he is going to Paris, but he has decided to go into the slums and kill himself, believing that he can do this in such a way that his identity will never become known. He meets "Glad," an optimistic little creature who associates with thieves, but who possesses a wonderful knowledge of the doctrines of the preachers and philosophers. The girl and Sir Oliver become interested in each other, and she dissuades him from his suicidal intent. He forgets his troubles, becomes a well man, and again ascends to a state of happiness and prosperity. Miss Eleanor Robson appeared as "Glad." Mrs. Burnett went over from London to witness the first performance of her play.

"THE PICKPOCKETS" is the title of a new play by Mr. C. M. S. McLellan, the author of Leah Kleschna. It was produced at the Apollo Theatre, in Atlantic City, U.S.A., on the 14th, with Mr. Arnold Daly in the principal rôle. He assumed the character of David Murray, a young millionaire who has been won over to the Socialistic views held by Judith Zaraine, a strike leader. Miss Katherine Kaelred, an Australian actress, appeared in the latter rôle.

"THE WRITING ON THE WALL" is to be the name of the play that Mr. W. J. Hurlbut, author of The Fighting Hope, has written for Miss Olga Nethersole. The scenes are laid in New York.

MR. FRANK J. PITT will conclude his tour, which has extended over two and a half years, of the detective drama, £1,000 Reward, at the Queen's Theatre, Fleetwood, this evening. After a few weeks' rest he will produce Walter Howe's domestic drama, in four acts, for which scenery is being painted by Phil V. Davis. The incidental music has been written and composed by Herbert A. Harrison, of the Theatre Royal, Aldershot. The bookings already include most of the leading theatres.

MR. REGINALD DANCE, playing Raffles with his own company, had the distinction of beating all previous records at the Empire Theatre, Swindon, on Boxing Night.

ONE of the many enjoyable features of Mr. St. John Denton's delightful pantomime at the Camden Theatre, is the speciality dance given by Miss Geraldine Somerset, who has made a big success in it.

A VERY pleasant evening was spent at the Duke of Edinburgh Hotel, Barrow-in-Furness, on Christmas Day, when the members of The Bondman company, who are appearing at the Royalty Theatre in that town, were entertained by Mr. Wentworth Croke. Full justice was done to the sumptuous repast provided, and afterwards the company proved themselves most versatile in some excellent musical numbers. Mr. and Mrs. Croke's health was drunk amid musical honours and vociferous cheering, and a telegram was sent to Mr. Croke, expressing deep appreciation of his kindness and the excellent esprit de corps that existed between himself and his several companies.

MR. J. MAJOR WARD, late general manager of King's Theatre, Kilmarnock, having just finished a tour with The Walls of Jericho, has been engaged by Mr. Brandon Thomas as acting manager for his season at the Aldwych Theatre.

MR. ERIC H. ALBURY has been engaged by Mr. Lionel Rignold for the part of the Cabin Boy (Steward) and stage manager for his forthcoming tour of The Early Worm. Mr. Albury will also understudy Mr. Rignold in the rôle of the Worm.

THE members of H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's Leah Kleschna company dined on Christmas Day at the Station Hotel, Nelson. Mr. Arthur Leigh presided, and among the guests were Mr. George Mudd, the popular manager of the Nelson Theatre, and his assistant, Mr. Hatfield. After dinner, the company adjourned to the music-room, where singing and recitations were indulged in until the early hours of the morning.

MR. J. HENRY TWYFORD, who has just concluded a long tour in The Mystery of Edwin Drood, playing the duel leading rôle of Neville Landless and Mr. Datchery, will be in the cast of the Playactors' next production at the Court Theatre on Jan. 10.

BY way of advertising his several Butterflies companies on tour, Mr. Wilfred Cotton has devised a novel form of throw-away which is exciting much attention in Glasgow, where the principal company has been secured as the holiday attraction. It takes the form of an ingeniously painted papier maché butterfly affixed to a Scottish "burr," which adheres to everything it comes in contact with, and is in much demand by the jeunesse dorée of the city, who indulge in mimic warfare with them between the acts. It is quite an everyday occurrence to see staid citizens, stalwart policemen, messenger boys, &c., perambulating the principal thoroughfares, blissfully unconscious that some practical joker has attached to their backs one of these picturesque devices bearing the inscription: "Direct from the Apollo Theatre, London."

ON Christmas Eve at the Theatre Royal, Worthing, Mr. Charles M. Bestic was presented with a handsome cigarette case by the members of his Flower Girl company. The gift was handed to Mr. Bestic on behalf of the company by Mr. John T. MacCullum, who, in a few well-chosen words, conveyed to Mr. Bestic the heartiest wishes of all present for prosperity in the new year and also their appreciation of the many kindnesses they had received at his hands. Mr. Bestic, in reply, said he was deeply affected, and thanked the company on behalf of himself and Mrs. Bestic (who was presented with a handsome bouquet). The company travelled by special saloon from Paddington on Christmas Day, being entertained to a luncheon on the journey by Mr. Bestic, and opened on Boxing night at the Garrick Theatre, Hereford, to a packed house.

THE run of Lady Epping's Lawsuit at the Criterion will terminate on Tuesday, and on the following evening Miss Mary Moore will revive Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace, the performance of which, however, can only be for three weeks, as Miss Evelyn Millard commences her tenancy of the Criterion on Feb. 1. A special and last performance of Lady Epping's Lawsuit will be given on Thursday afternoon next.

"MRS. GORRINGE'S NECKLACE" bears the distinction of having been the means of Mr. H. H. Davies's first introduction to the London public. It was produced at Wyndham's on May 16, 1903, and after playing with great success all the season it was reproduced in October of the same year at the New Theatre, where it enjoyed a further run. In the forthcoming revival Miss Mary Moore will resume her former part of the delightfully irresponsible Mrs. Gorringe, and Mr. Yorke Stephens will play Sir Charles Wyndham's part of Captain Mowbray, a rôle to which Mr. Stephens is well accustomed. The remainder of the cast will comprise Mr. Fred Lewis, Mr. Leslie Faber, Mr. Reginald Walter, Mr. Lawrence White, Miss Marie Illington, Miss Dorothy Thomas, Miss Helena Drew, and Miss Ethel Marryat.

THE death occurred on Christmas Eve of Baron François Auguste Gevaërt, who was one of the most remarkable Belgian musicians of his time. He was born at Huysse, a village near Oudenarde, in 1828. He was the son of a baker, and was intended for his father's trade, but his musical gifts became so apparent that he was sent to the Conservatoire at Ghent. For a time he was organist of the Jesuit Church at Ghent, and it was in that town that he produced his first opera, Hugues de Somerghen, in 1848, and it was soon followed by another, entitled La Comédie à la Ville, given at Brussels.

A ONE-ACT opera entitled Georgette, produced at the Théâtre Lyrique, Paris, in 1852, was succeeded two years later by Le Billet de Marguerite, in three acts, and by Les Lavandières de Santarem in 1855. Three other operas produced at the Paris Opéra-Comique—Quentin Durward (1858), Le Diable au Moulin (1859), and Château Trompette (1860)—were all favourably received, and Le Capitaine Henriot (1864) obtained a real success at the time. The composer succeeded Fétis as director of the Brussels Conservatoire in 1871. From that time he devoted a great deal of his attention to works on music, and many valuable treatises from his pen appeared.

THE Children's Theatre in New York will shortly be built, plans having been furnished and a site secured. The founders of the juvenile playhouse, where fairy stories, pantomimes, and other entertainment suitable for the young will be performed, include, it is stated, Mrs. Carter Harrison, of Chicago, Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, and Mrs. Russell-Sage. It is expected to open next autumn.

THE theatre will be octagonal, and, instead of the ordinary orchestra chairs, pewlike boxes will be installed capable of holding from four to eight persons. From Monday to Saturday it is planned to give daily matinées beginning at four o'clock in the afternoon and ending at half-past five. Performances will also be given on Friday and Saturday evenings, and on Saturdays and holidays it is intended to have plays of a fairyland nature to be selected by the board of managers. The prices of seats will range from two to four shillings, and among the provisions for the comfort of the audience is that of an apartment where refractory children may be dealt with.

MISS BESSIE BUTT, who has so often made a success in the title-rôle of Cinderella, has this year essayed the character of Dandini in the same pantomime, and, judging by the success that has attended her efforts, the clever little lady has to be added to the list of principal boys who can sing, dance, and act to perfection. At the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, Miss Butt has carried all before her, and her exceedingly pretty song, "Sunshine Soo," is likely to haunt the neighbourhood for many weeks to come.

MISS BEATRICE WILSON has sustained a heartfelt loss by the death of her Japanese spaniel "Kara," to which she was greatly attached. The animal, which was only four years old when he died, was given to Miss Wilson by Mr. Norman V. Norman, and was her constant companion.

MR. LEWIS CASSON has been the recipient of numerous congratulations on his wedding with Miss Sybil Thorndike, which took place at Aylesford Parish Church on the 22nd ult. Mr. Carson is among the most promising of our younger leading actors, and the distinction which he won during the Vedrenne-Barker régime at the Court will be well remembered. He is an ardent advocate of combination among members of the profession, and the Actors' Association has been much strengthened by his work on the Council of that body.

A MEMENTO of The Merry Widow was presented to visitors to Daly's Theatre on Saturday afternoon, when every member of the audience received a copy of Queen Alexandra's Christmas Gift Book. The books were enclosed in large red, white, and blue envelopes, and were distributed in every part of the house, without exception.

MR. GEORGE LESTOCQ will take on tour, commencing in February next, that funny farcical comedy The Sportsman.

MISS BEATRICE FELSTED, who is Fairy Queen with Mr. J. F. Elliston this year, has just had a good offer for panto in the West End for 1909-10.

AT the dramatic reading of King John to be given by the British Empire Shakespeare Society on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 5, at the Victoria Hall, Archer-street, W., the cast will include Mr. Robert Loraine, Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. Walter Ringham, Mr. Arthur Burne, Mr. C. Leveson Lane, Mr. A. Harding Steerman, Mr. A. V. Bramble, Mr Lane Crauford, Mr Frederick James, Mr. George Owen, Mr. Lewis Willoughby, Mr. Arthur Tranton; Miss Sybil Ruskin, Miss Eve Tame, Miss Marion Grey, Miss Enid Rose, and Miss Esme Beringer.

THE revival by the English Drama Society, under the management of Mr. Nugent Monck, of the Nativity group from the fourteenth century mysteries called "The Chester Plays," has been postponed until Thursday, Jan. 14, Friday, 15th, Monday, 18th, and Tuesday, 19th, at 3.30 p.m. each day. The "Mysteries" will be presented at the Fortune Playhouse, Brewer-street, Regent-street.

MR. TOM B. DAVIS has added another attractive feature to The Belle of Brittany at the Queen's Theatre in the shape of a dainty dance by Miss Vivien Talleur. The charming dancer is new to London, and, although born in England, made her reputation in America under the banner of Mr. Charles Frohman.

FULHAM meets Stockport, at Stockport, to-day, when the London team will be selected from Fryer, Skene, Collins, Wyllie, Parsonage, Suart, Harrison, Dalrymple, Freeman, Millington, Lipsham, Charlton, and Leigh. At Fulham to-day in the match Fulham Res. v. Maidstone, the home team will be represented by Crossthwaite, Harper, Holtum, Mouncher, Waterson, Prout, Barton, B. Millington, Carter, McCourt, and Lee. The kick-off is at 2.30.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Tit for Tat.

I HAVE witnessed many funny incidents during my long experience as a business-manager, writes Mr. E. W. Silverthorne. The following amusing little episode occurred about ten years ago, when I was manager for Mr. Edward Terry, and the venue was the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow. Whilst we were giving the usual matinée (to a big house) of Sweet Lavender, a gentleman, who was sitting in the first row of the pit—and who, I discovered later, had been the main support at a wine party—requested two ladies who were sitting immediately in front of him, occupying pit-stalls, to remove their hats. On receiving a point-blank refusal, he elbowed his way out of the pit after noticing a solitary pit-stall vacant in front of his tormentors, and "transferred" to this seat. To my amazement, before sitting down, he rapidly divested himself of both coat and waistcoat, and rolling them up, promptly elevated himself to a position which practically obscured the entire centre of the stage from the ladies' view. Adding insult to injury, he turned round and leered at them with a smile of truculent triumph, remarking, "What do you think of my back for width?" It was then I found it necessary to have the gentleman removed.

Cicely's Complaint.

THE theatrical man of the Cosy Corner continues to give advice gratis to ladies of the profession. His most recent "case" is the following:—"Cicely is on the stage, but her experience of the profession up to now has not been very encouraging. It cost her a two-guinea fee at an agent's and over eighteen months of weary waiting before she obtained an engagement at all. After one or two small-salaried minor affairs she was engaged for pantomime, then was out until this autumn, when she went on tour with a musical comedy. She says the company was a poor one, visiting third-rate towns and fit-ups; the work was hard, and they did not always receive their salary. A lot of the girls left, and at last Cicely was dismissed for disobedience at rehearsal. She left at a moment's notice, and had to return to her home in Birmingham upon money lent her by her friends. Cicely declares that she did nothing to merit dismissal, and certainly, if her statement is a true one, she has been very harshly treated. She wants to know whether she should sue her late manager for two weeks' salary in lieu of notice—to which she is entitled according to her contract, she says—or not."

"From what you tell me, Cicely," says her Cosy Corner counsel, "your company was like, alas! too many upon the road—an indifferent attraction and a hand-to-mouth existence, and I should say you are very well out of it. Of course, it was hard that you should have to submit to such treatment, but it is an experience that will stand you in good stead. I should say you would almost certainly win your claim to two weeks' salary; but the manager of the company would be difficult to get hold of, and even then you would not be certain of getting your money. Two weeks' salary at 25s. a week is £2 10s. I should say you would be put to more than that amount of trouble to get it. Is it worth it?" The answer obviously is in the negative. Let Cicely go back to work, and be obedient at rehearsals.

Held by the Nose.

MR. RUDYARD KIPLING, says the Express, has written a play which no manager is bold enough to produce. He dramatised 'The Jungle Book' into a most exquisite, most beautiful bit of work, and he wrote twelve new lyrics for it as only he could write them. Several managers recognised the beauties of the work, but feared that the difficulties of production would prove insurmountable. Mr. H. Hay Cameron, who suggested the dramatisation, says:—"In the Jungle scene I should have had the curious animals which are a feature of the book wandering about in the moonlight, with their heads now and then appearing. I should have had fireflies flitting about. I should have had Oriental music from the orchestra, with a suggestion of tom-toms; and, above all, I should have had Oriental perfume in the house, for I believe that we are influenced through the nose as well as by the eyes and ears."

Military Supers.

AN amusing incident, says the same paper, was witnessed in the course of a play produced at Moscow a few years ago, when the management secured the assistance of a number of soldiers to march on in a procession. All went well as a marriage-bell until the soldiers, marching on gorgeously arrayed, to their dismay beheld their General seated in the stalls. In an instant the company came to a halt and stood at attention, and though the stage-manager in the wings alternately stormed and pleaded, nothing would induce them to continue their parade until their officer, rising to the occasion, shouted from the stalls, "All right, my children, play away," whereupon the men, wheeling off dutifully, answered, "At your command, General," and all was peace.

Odd Incidents.

A REMARKABLE scene was witnessed at Broken Hill, Australia, during the pantomime of Jack and the Beanstalk, when on the opening night a bull terrier, brought into the theatre by an occupant of a stall, bounded on to the stage and "went for" Jack's "cow," the fore and hind quarters of which parted company in an agonised attempt to get away from the attentions of the terrier by seeking flight in different directions. Early in the spring of 1905 there were witnessed in our theatres several unrehearsed scenes in addition to the incident that took place at Wyndham's Theatre during the run of the farcical comedy, The Lady of Leeds, when a man in one of the top boxes stood up and remarked, "Ladies and gentleman, without wishing to interfere with this performance, I must mention that there is a real ginger-ale manufacturer bearing the name mentioned in the play, who protests in the strongest manner against his name being so freely used."

A Shaln Suffragette.

THERE were several unrehearsed incidents associated with the very successful matinée in aid of the Liverpool Hot-Pot Fund, recently given at the local Hippodrome. Miss Mabel Green, Mr. Arthur Rigby, and some of their fellow-artists had volunteered their services, and were offered a motor 'bus to take them to the Hippodrome and bring them back again. On leaving the Hippodrome Mr. Rigby, who was attired as a dame of pantomime, was violently attacked with "suffragitis," and insisted on addressing the considerable crowd (which managed to keep pace with the vehicle) on the subject of the woes of the women. Cheers, ironical and otherwise, greeted his fierce pronouncement that "men were a useless commodity, not even ornamental, and should be crushed to a pancake." "Pankhurst, you mean," shouted someone. The crowd had assumed formidable proportions by the time the 'bus had reached the bottom of Islington, and continual laughter greeted the comedian's sallies. Arrived at the door of the Court Theatre, the crowd surged round the 'bus, and prevented egress. A scene of much animation occurred, the crowd good-humouredly trying to prevent the artists getting out, and it was only upon the impromptu suffragist's admission that "she," for one, very much admired Mr. Lloyd George, and "thought Herbert Gladstone a dear," while as for Asquith, "she" said "words failed her"—only then that they were permitted to alight and the good-natured and amused people dispersed.

THE THEATRES BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The introduction into Parliament of Mr. Harcourt's Bill, which proposes to transfer the licensing department of the Lord Chamberlain's office to the London County Council, is, in my opinion, a good opportunity for a full consideration of the licensing question for the whole of the country as regards uniformity. Mr. Jocelyn Brandon and Mr. George Alexander have a notice of motion down on the L.C.C. agenda paper which, if passed, would mean "Free Trade" for the whole of the Metropolitan places of amusement, inasmuch as it would allow the licensee of any place of amusement, providing he was a fit and proper person, to give either a dramatic or music-hall entertainment in his establishment. This would be a very useful thing as far as it went, but unless every other licensing authority in the country had, or took, similar power it would not prevent confusion, because of the difficulty that would arise in booking sketches or short plays in London that could not be booked in certain provincial towns because the local licensing authorities had not removed the present restrictions on music-hall or dramatic productions.

The question of "Free Trade" in amusements is bound to come to the front soon, because it hampers the development of the business and affects the interests of all classes engaged in the entertainment world. If a proprietor of a place of amusement were allowed to provide either a music-hall or a dramatic entertainment in accordance with the changes in taste of his patrons, it would free the whole business from harassing restrictions, and give free scope to proprietors, playwriters, composers, actors, musicians, variety artists, stage hands, and all concerned in theatrical and music-hall work, and allow the best of all kinds of entertainments to rise. It is certainly a ridiculous restriction that the proprietor of a theatre who finds that his patrons are leaving him for the variety halls should be compelled to give up his dramatic licence and take out a music and dancing licence to meet the new demand. On the other hand, it is equally absurd that the proprietor of a music-hall who finds his patrons want dramatic fare in the form of short plays should have to confine such plays to a duration of thirty minutes, with a limited number of characters. This restriction presses also very hardly upon the actor and actress who find themselves thrown out of employment by such restriction. There can be no doubt that if Mr. Harcourt's bill were amended so as to establish a uniform system in these matters for the whole of the country it would be a most desirable thing. There is also the question of entertainments being given in places that are not licensed by any public authority, and are, therefore, under no such obligations as are imposed upon proprietors of theatres and music-halls, although they charge prices for admission just the same. This is a glaring injustice, and one that affects the safety and protection of the public.

There is also the question of Sunday entertainments which are now becoming so popular, owing to the efforts of the various Sunday societies. This is a matter that the musicians are vitally interested in. This popularising of Sunday music in the past has inflicted a great hardship upon musicians in summer resorts. There was a time when Sunday concerts were almost unknown at our seaside resorts. We first had the introduction of the one hour's sacred concert "after church" on Sundays. This became a great success, and the word "sacred" was dropped and an afternoon concert in addition introduced. This again was a success, and there are places now where the bands play on Sundays just the same as they do during the rest of the week. This means the musician has had a compulsory seven days' week forced upon him in his summer engagements. Now it is obvious that Sunday concerts during the winter months have come to stay, and are bound to grow. The musician is beginning to realise this, and although he does not wish to deprive the public of Sunday music, he does not intend its development to force a seven days' weeks upon him in his winter engagements. Whatever managers decide to do in their own interests concerning licensing matters, the A.M.U. would certainly be neglecting their duty and the interests of musicians generally if, in response to the growing demand for Sunday concerts, they did not take steps to safeguard the musician against a seven days' week in places of amusement during winter months.

In my opinion what is most wanted now is a round-table conference of the various interests involved, so that joint action could be taken when Mr. Harcourt's bill is under discussion in the House of Commons. Certainly the various organisations representing the actors, sketch-artists, variety artists, musicians, stage-hands, and others, should lose no time in deciding on joint action, and if the proprietors could see their way to join hands, the legitimate demands of all would be irresistible, and the theatrical and music-hall business placed upon a sounder and better footing.—Yours faithfully,

C. JESSON, L.C.C.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your last issue you say, with reference to the proposed Bill to abolish the power of the Lord Chamberlain, "the licensing of theatres is now under the control of the local authorities in practically the whole of Great Britain where theatres are found, except the central district of London, the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, and places where his Majesty resides." By an Act of Parliament which was passed since I have been in management, the licensing of theatres in Cambridge came under the control of the local authorities, exactly like other provincial towns, and the licence of our New Theatre is annually granted by our County Council, and, unlike Oxford, is subject to no other control.—Yours faithfully,

W. B. REDFERN,
Managing-Director New Theatre Co., Ltd.
New Theatre, Cambridge.

Too Difficult.

"MR. GEORGE ROBEY," says Cassell's Saturday, "tells a story reminiscent of his childhood days. He used to be very fond of music halls even before he had any idea of going 'on the boards,' and spent much pocket-money at the box-office. One night, while he was in the gallery of a small hall, a performer on the stage offered to provide at a second's notice a rhyme to any word a member of the audience cared to suggest. 'Try "tuberculosis,"' suggested young Robey. 'Thanks,' replied the performer, 'but I never argue on religious subjects.'"

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS FREDA GODFREY.

Over a hundred and fifty principal parts in the space of ten years is a noteworthy achievement, and pretty Miss Freda Godfrey might well be proud of having accomplished it. Miss Godfrey has made more rapid strides than usually fall to the lot of our younger actresses, and now holds the enviable position of being leading lady in Mr. Leonard Rayne's No. 1 South African Company. Though fond of old England, Miss Godfrey prefers the freedom of the Great Continent, where she has endeared herself to South African playgoers. As the result of hard and strenuous work, when every shilling had to be more than earned before obtained, Miss Godfrey has benefited to such an extent that nothing comes amiss. Ophelia one night, Aurora in Oh, Susannah the next, Wally in Two Little Vagabonds to follow, then Kathie in Old Heidelberg—such a list will give an idea of a colonial week's work, for stock business is carried on by Mr. Leonard Rayne's companies in South Africa, and the latest London plays are presented in a manner worthy of the great Metropolis itself. Starting as a child actress, Miss Godfrey had played with various English companies, though her principal work has been done with her present manager. This tour's parts include Ophelia, Juliet, Desdemona, Virginia, Kathie, Lady Gwendoline (Raffles), Lady Hermione (The Flag Lieutenant), Nat-u-ritch (A White Man), Batty (Breed of the Treshams), Carlotta (Morals of Marcus), and Minnie (Message from Mars). She is passionately fond of music, her favourite composer being Greig. She is also given to horse riding and fishing, and is ardently attached to the profession which has done so much for her.

DEATH OF MRS. ARTHUR JEFFERSON.

Widespread regret, not only amidst the ranks of the theatrical profession, but also those of social circles in the various towns with which her name had been associated, was manifested when it became known that Mrs. Arthur Jefferson—professionally known as Madge Metcalfe, her maiden name—had passed away in Glasgow. The numerous telegrams and letters of condolence from all parts of the country bore eloquent testimony to the chain of friendships she had forged during her theatrical career. Prior to her marriage she was not in any way theatrically connected, and it speaks volumes for her abilities and energy to find that she was soon afterwards playing the leading "heavy" rôles in her husband's plays. Her most important part was Olga Snake in The Bootblack, in which she excelled, and, beautifully gowned, made a most imposing appearance, the Press in every town visited according her its unstinted and certainly well-deserved praise. In addition to acting, she proved an invaluable aid to her husband in the decoration schemes for his various theatres, and play-staging, and he attributes much of his early success to her artistic taste in that direction, as well as to her business tact. She had been in indifferent health for the past year or two, but the end was unanticipated, coming with startling suddenness, but in perfect peace and calm resignation. The remains were interred in Cathcart Cemetery, which is beautifully situated in the suburbs of Glasgow, and her last resting-place was entirely covered with beautiful wreaths. She leaves four children to mourn her loss.

AT the Theatre Royal, Bolton, in Mr. Charles Constant's pantomime of Aladdin, Miss Maude May Murray is causing quite a sensation with her beautiful electrical aerial dances. Her effects are magnificent, and nothing more effective has ever been seen at this theatre before.

Mr. W. H. C. Nation must be a very busy man one way and another, for in addition to his work of the editor of a magazine, as a playwright, and song writer, he controls a West End Theatre, where he produces and stage-manages new plays. He is, indeed, a versatile gentleman, and he shows wonderful vigour, enterprise, pluck, and perseverance. In his present production, The King of Kennaquhair, he gives us a play which may be regarded as of a somewhat seasonable character in that in several respects it resembles a pantomime, and this will be apparent to the reader later on. The story may be briefly epitomised. A young nobleman, who has been parading as a commoner under the name of Charles Wilmot, is deeply in love with the pretty daughter of Squire Addlepate, a territorial magnate in, we presume, the delectable country known by the designation of Kennaquhair. But there is another suitor for the hand of the fair Aminta—which is the name of the Squire's daughter. The rival is a gallant and, it must be confessed, somewhat bold and impertinent young fellow called Flutter, who appears on the scene with an assistant appropriately named Bouncer. Flutter describes himself as Lord This and Viscount That, and he certainly succeeds in making some of the villagers believe that his pretensions are genuine. There is a duel between him and Wilmot consequent upon many wordy encounters, but the fight is stopped before any harm is done. What happens after this can be, of course, easily enough surmised. Flutter is unmasked, and Wilmot's claims to an earldom are proven to the hilt.

The piece was, on the whole, creditably presented, and there was an adequate chorus. Mr. T. P. Haynes cut a quaint figure as Squire Addlepate, and was throughout consistently amusing. His songs "Tricks of the trade" and "Acting on the sly" were pleasingly rendered, the latter with the assistance of the chorus. Miss Angela Hope as Aminta, the Squire's daughter, was a graceful and sweet heroine, and she gave a very pretty rendering of the verses of "The Sower," imitated from a French harvest song by Mr. Nation. Mr. Alec Davidson acted and sang nicely as Ernest Wilmot, his numbers "The horrors of war" and "The fireman," being much appreciated. Miss Una Bruckshaw was dashing and lively as Flutter, and she pleasingly delivered the lines of "The song of the bird," the music to which is the work of Mr. Wm. Corri. Mr. Watty Brunton as Sophron, the steward, Miss Mabel Funstan as Bouncer, and Miss Margaret Webster as Beatrix furnished suitable representations, and sang their respective songs "Under the arches," "Fair Devonia's apple trees," and "The Smart Set ladies" to the great enjoyment of the audience.

I have compared this Account with the books and vouchers of the Fund, and certify it correct. I have verified the cash balances. Certain items have also been received on account of other Funds,* which have been handed to their respective Executives.

Nov. 11, 1908.

* This refers to money collected in 1907. On forms supplied for that year certain contributors directed that their contributions should be sent to existing Funds. These sums—namely, to the Actors' Benevolent Fund £42 6s. 8d., to the Actors' Orphanage £22 16s. 5d., and to the Theatrical Ladies' Guild £23 11s. 5d.—have already been certified by the Honorary Auditor, paid to the respective Executives, and the amounts published. The Advisory Board desire to point out that this has no reference to the 1908 collection. In 1908 and in future years the whole amount collected will be for the mutual help of contributors only, and will be exclusively and independently administered by the Actors' Day Advisory Board on this basis. This is in accordance with the unanimous resolution at the annual general meeting, held at the Kingsway Theatre, on March 19, 1908.

SYDNEY VALENTINE,
Chairman of the Advisory Board.

ON Boxing Night Mr. Horace Stanley presented at the Royal Theatre, King's Lynn, Guilty Gold to a delighted holiday audience, who packed the place from floor to ceiling. The scenery is most elaborate, and the production is on a large scale. On Monday the same company appeared in the ever-welcome 10.30 Down Express, which proved as successful as on former visits. We may state that Mr. Pareezer has some excellent bookings for the forthcoming spring.

We may use the sentence of dear, lovable little Wendy, and say that Peter Pan is "frightfully fascinating"; and it is really a question whether juveniles or grown-ups enjoy its humour, its daintiness, and its charm the most. James Hook, that most remarkable of pirates, whose ghastly smile vanishes on the approach of the crocodile—a saurian that would even deceive "an allegory on the banks of the Nile," as Mrs. Malaprop has said—once more exercises his scientific mind in original "swearing"; Tinker Bell, a mere flash in the pan, as it were, may again be reproached for lightsome behaviour; and for the fifth time the moral possibilities of Smee, with a mother, give one furiously to think. All the familiar scenes and incidents—the building of Wendy's house, the fight on the pirate ship, the home underground, the dwelling in the tree-tops, and the adventures on the lagoon rock are again to be enjoyed in their entirety—not a line or a bit of "business" is missing. No one would have it otherwise; for Peter Pan has become a classic of the English stage, and the beautiful score of Mr. John Crook emphasises that fact.

Miss Pauline Chase is as tender, as frolicsome, and as boyish as ever in the title-rôle, her acting since last year having considerably improved. Mr. Robb Harwood is master of the unctuous method that gives the best possible point to the alternate bluff and craven fear of James Hook, a pirate of the pressgang days—a black flag captain exactly realising the reckless sea robber of boyish imagination. The scene on the vessel is as whimsical as ever; and here we may mention the good work of Mr. George Shelton as Smee, a capital bit of acting, especially when manipulating the sewing machine, and Mr. Charles Trevor as Gentleman Starkey, who makes the kiddies shout with laughter by his acting when he is under the revengeful eye of the Redskin Great Big Little Panther, a satisfactory impersonation by Mr. Humphrey Warden. Mr. Charles Medwin, Mr. Chris. Walker, Mr. William Luff, Mr. James English, and Mr. John Kelt are other pirates. Miss Gertrude Lang, the new Wendy, has nothing to fear by comparison with her predecessor. A more lovable little mother could not be. Master George Hersee is growing rather big for the part of John Napoleon Darling, but is quite excellent. Miss May Kinder as the First Twin does the pillow-case dance neatly; Miss Dorothy Minto is an attractive Tootles; Miss Nellie Bowman a lively Nibs; Mr. A. W. Baskcomb a quaintly laconic Slightly; Miss Irene Clarke a clever Curly; and Master Herbert Hollom a very natural boy as Michael. Mr. Reginald Owen does all that is necessary with the part of Mr. Darling; Miss Sybil Carlisle's portrait of young matronhood in the part of Mrs. Darling is exquisitely sympathetic, especially in the last act; Mr. Edward Sillward, a wonderful animal impersonator, is both a joyful and sympathetic Nana; Miss Jessie Parke's 'Liza is quaintly old-fashioned; and very dramatic is Miss Margaret Fraser as Tiger Lily. The box-office of the theatre again becomes a model of the house built for Wendy, and Mr. James Mathews, Wendy's representative in front, beams on all good boys and girls who come in their crowds to the Duke of York's.

WAGNER AND SCHOPENHAUER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Now that one hears so much of the coming performances of Wagner's operas, it is odd that one does not hear the name of Schopenhauer mentioned in connection with them. Sufficient stress has never yet been laid on the fact that the whole pith and kernel of The Ring of the Niblungs is, according to Wagner's own statement, an illustration of Schopenhauer's "Theory of the Denial of the Will-to-life." Without an understanding of Schopenhauer it is as absurd to think a man can understand Wagner's operas as to suppose there could have been a St. Paul if there had been no Christ, or a Plato if there had been no Socrates. Yet how many of the spurious Wagnerites who will wag their heads at Covent Garden over the forthcoming performances will have bethought themselves to read this clearest and greatest of all philosophers as a necessary preparation?

It is difficult to see what Mr. Bernard Shaw means when he speaks in "The Sanity of Art" of the Schopenhauer revival. I should be glad to hear that Schopenhauer had come in, to say nothing of having come in and gone out and come back again!

The Englishman's incapacity for mental effort where it is a question of goods one does not weigh and measure is proverbial, but Schopenhauer presents none of the terrors of ordinary metaphysics: he has taken the pains to write with extraordinary clearness. Some working hypothesis of the meaning of life a man must have, and now that theology has both her legs in the grave, the time has certainly come for us to draw our inspiration, as Wagner did, from the noble fount of Schopenhauer.—Yours faithfully,

J. T. PRESSLIE.

5, Edith-road, Peckham, S.E.

[Schopenhauer's "working hypothesis of the meaning of life" was that it wasn't worth living.—ED., The Era.]

THE French stage continues to be unclean. "Le Foyer," says our excellent Paris correspondent, "although a most unpleasant piece, is still drawing crowded houses at the Comédie Française. As I have informed you already, the authors had written a fourth act, which M. Claretie refused to produce at any price. The scene of that act is laid in 'Le Foyer,' a home for destitute little girls, managed by a middle-aged spinster, whose character is a nauseous mixture of cunning and vice, of which her little charges are the victims. I willingly believe—in fact, I know—that the doings in these so-called homes baffle description. For all that, the stage is scarcely the place to parade all this moral dirt, and it is more than likely that the public would have protested against this tableau of profligacy if the Comédie Française management had been weak enough to mount that act."

THE PRIMROSES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Would you kindly permit me to appeal through The Era columns to my ever good-hearted brother and sister artists to subscribe just as much as they can afford towards the most distressing case of the Primroses, otherwise known as the Misters Worth? The details of the recent lawsuit will be fresh in the minds of your readers. Edith Worth will probably never be able to walk again—certainly she will never be able to perform on the stage, while her sister is recovering from an attack of brain fever. To be given £700 one day, and have it taken away a couple of days later—think what that means! Boys and girls, when I have asked you before to aid me in helping those in need and in suffering, right royally have you rallied round and handed over cheques, gold, and silver. I feel justified in asking you now for a case so thoroughly deserving of your sympathy and your subscriptions. I herewith enclose a donation. Thanking you in anticipation,

Yours faithfully,

JOE ELVIN.

At the Opera House, Tunbridge Wells, Fred Ginnett and Wal Pink's company in St. George and the Dragon is the principal item in the programme, introducing the seven champions of Christendom. Miss Cissie Wade is a martial St. George, Miss Dora Gregory is the Enchantress, Mr. Harry Valdo the comic woodman, and the other parts are well sustained by Messrs. H. Calver, T. E. Forster, and Miss Ella Mills. Other turns include Arthur Kenny, cyclist; the Four Sisters Victoria, instrumentalists and dancers; Gladys Witton, contralto; Cash and Clair, in dancing act; and Phil Bransby, coster comedian, in his convict song.

The pantomime Puss in Boots had a rare send-off on Boxing Day at the Theatre Royal, Worcester, when the theatre was crowded at both the afternoon and the evening performance. Mr. Carlton has spared neither trouble nor expense in his endeavour to maintain the reputation of the Worcester Christmas production, and the results achieved are in every way admirable. The scenery and costumes are well up to the level of towns of much larger dimensions, and the company of artists is both numerous and capable. Mlle. Lucretia makes a dashing principal boy, and she has some excellent songs, which have already "caught on." Miss Evelyn Desa, an old Worcester favourite, appears as Princess Iris, and delights both young and old with a singularly charming manner. Miss Louie Love is well suited as Fairy Queen, and the part of Pompey is safely entrusted to Miss Nancy Renshaw, who sings well and plays the bones with marvellous facility. Mr. Sam Lock makes the most of a fine voice in the part of the Ogre. There are no less than eight comedians in the company, of whom Mr. Fred Lyndo and Mr. Michael, as the King and Queen respectively, are the principal. Then there are Messrs. Carl and Carr as Rufus and Uriah, Mr. E. D. Nicholls as the stuttering Baron, Mr. Chas. Leverton as Freddie, and Mr. Byden Currie and Mr. Jack Osmond as the Cat and Donkey respectively. A numerous and well-trained ballet, directed by Miss Belton, do excellent work, and Mr. J. W. Austin's arrangement of the music leaves nothing to be desired.

AT the Empire Music Hall, Wrexham, a number of seasonable pictures are shown by the Empire electric animated Bioscope. Will Willis, a most amusing comedian, and Venie Veldon, a comedienne and clever dancer, also take part in the entertainment.

"THE GIRLS OF GOTTENBERG" is proving an immense attraction this week at the Royal, York. Mr. Bertie Wright has never had a part more suited to his style than that of Max Muddelkopf. It is an effort worthy of the highest praise, and the applause which greets him is fully deserved. Mr. Chas. Berkeley as Brittl Bottl is a distinct success—his dancing is a special feature; Mr. Tom Shelford gives another of his clever character sketches, and makes Prince Otto a most amusing person—his clever singing finds much favour; as Mitza Miss Simeta Marsden is most aptly placed—she is lively, full of vivacity, and, what is more, a neat dancer and clever singer. These qualities make the rôle a most attractive one. Miss Maisie North is a captivating Elsa; and Miss May Marshall is a handsome and interesting Clementine, who in some captivating costumes looks charming.

BARTON AND ASHLEY produce a screaming sketch, entitled Adam the Second, at the Opera House, York. Their popularity seems to increase with each visit, and their reception has been most cordial. The Mysterious Mephisto is a popular turn; and the following artists complete the company: Chas. Rowen, Prince Schaboo, Frances Hanlon, the Rangers, Tennis and Laune, and Angelina.

"BLUEBEARD" is always a favourite story at pantomime time, and at Her Majesty's Opera House, Workington, the way the plot of the old yarn has been weaved into modern song and dance at this theatre reflects the greatest credit on all concerned. George Constance has given the public a very artistic and realistic set of sketches, dances, situations, and screamingly farcical displays, which ought to satisfy the most greedy appetite for fun and stage effect. Selim is well portrayed by Miss Daisy Lake—a very jewel in the part. Bamboozallem finds a fitting exponent in Mr. Jack Parker; Miss Marie Duncan as Fatima is well worth going a long way to see; and Mr. Johnny Clegg's Sister Ann is a piece of real good pantomime work. The special artists are Harlin and Haslon, the Floridorians, Russel and Gage, the Sandow Girls, Walter B. Trear, and Dolly Moor.

MAC'S Happy New Year programme is enjoying good patronage at the Theatre Royal, Workington. Kendic and Laura are dainty vocalists and dancers; Major Arnold, necromancer, whose strange and weird manipulations brought rounds of well-deserved applause; Willie Roberts is a clever young comedian, whose songs are always acceptable; and genial Harry Jennings is well up to his usual high standard. Well-balanced quartettes are given by Mr. George Eastwood's party.

THE list of song writers who have successfully drifted into pantomime authorship is not a long one, and when the ability to produce and stage manage is added to the above, the list dwindles considerably. As a matter of fact, at the moment, we know of only one who can claim to have been successful in all these lines. We refer to Mr. A. E. Sidney Davis, who, as a song writer, has achieved distinction with such well known numbers as "Au revoir, my little hyacinth," "Can't you think of any other name but Baby?" "Peggy, the pride of the mill," and "Sunshine Soo."

MR. DAVIS has this year written and produced one of the most successful provincial pantomimes, viz., Aladdin, which is playing twice nightly to crowded houses at the King's Theatre, Edinburgh. As Mr. Davis has long been known as agent and business-manager, he can fairly claim unusual versatility.

ACCRINGTON NEW HIPPODROME.

On the ashes of the old Accrington Hippodrome, burnt to the ground on the night of June 26 last, has arisen, Phœnix-like as it were, a new and particularly handsome structure, which is to be the future home of variety entertainment in Accrington. And quite a palatial house of entertainment the public will find it, when the new Hippodrome is opened on Monday next. The wonderful expedition with which the Hippodrome has been erected is regarded as having created something like a local record in the way of quick work in putting up and fitting big buildings. From the very first any amount of "hustle" was exhibited, and though it was only on Aug. 5 that the contractors commenced work, the building itself was practically finished two or three weeks ago, and even the internal fittings are in a commendably forward state.

The new theatre is a structure worthy of the town in every respect, and we are assured that the entertainments to be provided will be of the best. First-class variety artists are to be engaged, and, in addition to variety performances, we may even be occasionally favoured with opera. The building itself has been erected on the most up-to-date principles. All entrances are from the front, in Ellison-street, and to facilitate the two performances a night the exits are quite apart from these. Seating accommodation is provided for 1,600 people, but in all 2,000 persons can be entertained at the same time. Rising right from the stage to the rear, the seats are conveniently arranged. The stalls, back pit, and circle afford every possible comfort to the patron. The whole building is elaborately furnished and decorated, and every convenience is provided. There are refreshment bars for both pit and circle. The stage is a large one, the width being between 30ft. and 32ft. It is provided with a fireproof curtain, in addition to sprinklers, and the scenery is being provided by the well-known artists, Wilkins Bros., of Liverpool. Throughout the building fire appliances are fixed, and in the "flies" and in front of the house are the latest spring coupling fire apparatus. The building is provided with both gas and electricity throughout. There is a thorough system of heating, excellent dressing-rooms for artists, and instead of the old drop scene, fine tableaux curtains will be used.

Mr. W. Mould, the popular manager of the old Hippodrome, will have control of the new hall, and he will be assisted by the following: Mr. Dudley, formerly of the Wilson Barrett's Companies and Prince's Theatre, London, advertising manager; and Mr. Dempsey, stage manager. Mr. Taylor, of St. Helens, will be conductor of a full orchestra.

The architect for the new building is Mr. Bertie Crewe, of London, and the contractors Messrs. J. Parkinson and Sons, of Blackpool. The latter have done the building, joinery work and painting; and other sub-contractors were: A. and B. Dean, Birmingham, upholstering; F. De Jong, London, decorators; Morrisons, Blackpool, electricians; and J. Tweedale and Co., of Newcastle, plumbers, who have also fixed the heating apparatus and provided the steel curtain.

MR. SYDNEY COMPTON is now fulfilling his fourth West End engagement as Brassett in Charley's Aunt, under the management of Mr. Brandon Thomas, at the Aldwych Theatre, his previous seasons being at the Comedy, Terry's, and Royalty Theatres.

NOTICES of Antony and Cleopatra at Manchester, In the Eyes of the World, at Grimsby, and A Repentant Sinner, at Stourbridge, are unavoidably omitted from this issue, but will appear next week.

"LADY LANIGAN, LAUNDRESS."

A Sketch, by J. Russell Bogue, produced at the Lyric Theatre, Liverpool, Dec. 28.

Lady Lanigan	MR. J. RUSSELL BOGUE
Quill Driver	MR. RICHARD WEBB
Sergeant Drill	MR. CLAUDE AYMOND
Bertie	MR. WILFRED COMPTON
Buggins	MR. A. E. FRANCIS
Denny	MR. J. HITCHINS
Selina	MISS E. M. WALTON
Bridget	MISS MARIE E. ROBERTSON

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

Several months ago this sketch was produced for copyright purposes, since which time special scenery has been painted and a capable company got together. It was received with considerable favour on Monday night, and should prove popular wherever presented. The business takes place in a laundry, which is very naturally arranged, the black and white tiling having an attractive appearance. Mr. Quill Driver, solicitor, comes to collect the overdue rent, and threatens to take possession. He is repulsed by Mrs. Lanigan and her girls; but on his return next day changes his attitude, having meanwhile ascertained that she has acquired a title and fortune through the death of a relative. His efforts towards inducing her to marry him promise to be successful, but, unfortunately, a document relating to Mrs. Lanigan's good fortune is stolen from his pocket, and handed to her, whereupon he hurriedly decamps. The sketch is exceedingly amusing, particularly the episode of the man in possession having to take refuge in the steam boiler from the infuriated washerwomen. Mr. Bogue, the author, was delightful as the Irish laundress; the rôle of the solicitor found a capital representative in Mr. Richard Webb; Mr. A. E. Francis made an exceedingly humorous bailiff; the character of the dude Bertie was made very laughable by Mr. Wilfred Compton; the bombastic soldier Drill was handled in good style by Mr. Claude Aymond; Miss Robertson played nicely as Bridget; Mr. J. Hitchins proved a lively boy Denny; and the rôle of Selina was ably handled by Miss E. M. Walton.

IN connection with the picketing operations conducted at the Cork Palace Theatre, a prosecution under the Trades Disputes Act was dealt with by the local magistrates on Tuesday, the defendants including prominent local trade unionists. It was contended that the method in which the picketing was carried out constituted a breach of the Act of 1906. After a prolonged hearing the case was dismissed, the stipendiary holding that the defendants' conduct did not come within the provisions of the Act. An application to have a case stated will be made.

A FANCY dress ball was carried out with much éclat at Covent Garden on New Year's Eve. A number of beautiful costumes were displayed, and Mr. W. Clarkson was successful in gaining second prize for a lady's dress entitled "New Year's Eve," and third prize for one dubbed "Skating Mad." Mr. Clarkson was also a winner at the Olympia Skating Carnival, where he took first prize for ladies with a costume entitled "Violets," and first prize for gentlemen with "Zulu."

At the Exchange Hall, Wellingborough, The Prodigal Son, well played and finely mounted by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, proved an enormous attraction for Boxing Day and Monday and Tuesday of this week. Mr. T. W. Dunscombe's Magnus was in every way a fine performance, and Mr. George Edwin Clive was good as Oscar, whilst Miss Dora Gregory acquitted herself well as Thora and Elin.

BATTERSEA PALACE.

Mr. James McCarthy, the resident-manager of the Battersea Palace, has an interesting list of attractions to offer his patrons this week, and visitors to this popular place of entertainment have not failed to appreciate the good fare provided. Mr. Sydney Mason and Miss Theresa Moore are presenting the now well-known dramatic sketch The Usurer, in which Mr. Mason's clever study of the part of Herbert Dane has won for him no small degree of recognition. Of Miss Moore's portraiture as the heroine we have had previous occasion to speak in terms of high praise, and the character, from the point of view of Miss Moore's acting, seems to gain with continued acquaintance. The two principals receive good support from Mr. H. Russel as Captain Manners, Mr. Syd Leslie as the adventurer Marsden, Mr. Harry Arnold as Johnson, the secretary, and Mr. E. J. Harris as the page boy.

Harry Desmond makes for merriment with "One and sixpence a week" and "I'm 'appy, very 'appy," the latter being a characteristic coster ditty. Miss Tina Frank is an engaging comedienne, and her vocalism as applied to "Antonio" and "Hello! little boy" wins her immense favour with the audience. Davis and Dean are seen and heard to advantage in an exceedingly quaint comedy and shadow dancing act; and Miss Nina Moore affords her hearers considerable delight by her expressive delivery of her "Slavey" song and the other entitled "Something more about that." Childie Stuart, too, distinguishes her little self by the quite enchanting manner in which she sings "Girls from Kay's" and "A pair of stockings." Hemsley and Ambrose prove exceedingly diverting in their petite act, The Coster's Motor Honeymoon; Miss Josephine Crook, whose name is so prominently associated with illustrated songs, gives a pleasing and refined turn, her well-trained voice being employed to good effect in such numbers as "Take me to your heart again" and "Don't forget your Ivy."

His Father's Teacher, an episode of the unemployed trouble, introduces to us a couple of juvenile characters similar to those in a celebrated drama which has had a remarkably successful career. In the sketch under review little Rupert, son of Sir Herbert Blakiston, takes pity on a poor waif called Joe, and provides for his welfare. The pathos of the situation is realistically conveyed by Miss Ethel Green in a clever study of the waif, and Miss Chrissie Francess as the aristocratic boy, the latter's father finding a capable representative in Mr. Charles Geoffrey; the rôle of a policeman being undertaken by Mr. Herbert Russell. The entertainment concluded with a film, Jones's New Suit, by Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

THE staffs of the Bury Theatre and Circus of Varieties had a dinner at the Queen's Hotel on Wednesday evening last. About fifty persons were present, and Mr. Otto C. Culling, general-manager for the Northern Theatres Co., presided. Those who contributed to the programme included Mr. E. Thornley Dodge, Mr. Jas. K. Harrison, Mr. P. Cook, Mr. T. Crompton, Mr. Whittam, Mr. H. H. Potter (assistant-manager), Mr. A. Eckersley, and Mr. Harry Bridge (musical-director of the theatre).

DR. BLACK NOBLE had a pleasant little surprise last week, when Mr. Brandreth, on behalf of the staff of the Kennington Theatre, presented him with a red and gold real Dresden china tea service, in recognition of the doctor's services rendered so whole-heartedly on many occasions.

MR. J. P. MOORE'S pantomime of Dick Whittington, we learn, broke all records for receipts at Kidderminster on Boxing Night.

EDMONTON EMPIRE.

The opening of the new music hall at Edmonton on Boxing night was an event which will be remembered by thousands of the people in the neighbourhood. For some time previous to the throwing open of the doors shortly after six o'clock for the first house a large and ever-increasing crowd gathered outside the walls of the handsome edifice, and it was scarcely a matter for surprise that every seat was occupied before the curtain was raised. The handsome scheme of decoration, which included an artistic blending of white, cream, gold, blue, and light brown, was an object of universal admiration, and Messrs. Harry Bawn and Jesse Sparrow, the managing-directors, must have experienced something more than a pang of pride as they realised that they were mainly responsible for establishing in a none too bright neighbourhood a handsome and comfortable place of amusement. We gave a full description of the building at the time of the laying by Mrs. Bawn of the foundation stone in September last, and it is not necessary to say more on that point except to refer to the beautiful proscenium draping and curtain, which are of red plush, and the act drop, which reveals blue curtains prettily hung together. Naturally, all the directors were present on this auspicious occasion, their names, in addition to those already mentioned, being Messrs. H. Balding and Marshall Frost.

The programme was a seasonable one, containing, as it did, Mr. Andie Caine's tabloid pantomime in three scenes, entitled Goody Two Shoes, a rollicking, lively production, which was hugely enjoyed. In it Mr. Caine gave an intensely amusing characterisation of Dame Freckles, and his song, "Oh, girls, the Exhibition's fine," was rendered with quaint expressiveness. Miss Hawthorne Shwaites was a sprightly principal boy (Prince Poland), and she sang her number, "Sue, Sue, Sue," in enchanting style. A graceful and engaging principal girl (Goody Two Shoes) was found in Miss Violet Macintyre, who had a capital ditty in "Goody Two Shoes." Mr. George Lester at a ludicrous figure as Baron Graball, and with the assistance of Harry and Edwin, who were highly entertaining as the ruffians, Biffam and Blasham, created uproarious merriment. The members of an adequate and well-trained chorus acquitted themselves most creditably, particularly in the opening chorus, in "Babies on parade," and in the finale, "Poppies." The three scenes, The Village of Sylvania, The Baron's Grounds, and the Palace, were pleasing specimens of the scenic artist's craft. The directors were fortunate in being able to secure My Fancy's services for the opening night. That lady was in exceedingly good form, and her dancing scena, descriptive of the seasons, winter, spring, and summer, won for her the enthusiastic plaudits of the spectators. Mr. Gilbert Girard submitted an agreeable and clever performance, in which he imitated the sounds made by various musical instruments and by animals, his efforts at mimicry being most natural and realistic. Mr. Frank Hardie and company appeared in the dramatic episode. The Old Brigade, in which piece that experienced actor, Mr. Fred Dobell, submitted an extremely interesting and able study of old Peter Pryde, Mr. Hardie playing in excellent fashion as Lieut. Dix, Miss Irene Carlton charming all with her portrayal of the heroine, Rose Garland, and Messrs. Ernest Swttrim and C. Goodman commendably enacting the rôles of young Pryde and the lawyer respectively. Mr. Hamilton Hill, the Australian baritone, who, by the way, sang the National Anthem at the opening of both performances on Boxing Night, delivered in an altogether admirable manner the sentimental song, "Oh, she was a grand old lady." Princess Pauline, whose appearance is as attractive as the subject of her "turn," was heard to great advantage in "Alice, where art thou going?" and "My wedding day." Serpentillo distinguished himself once more in his particular way, his various contortions creating a feeling of wonderment in the minds of the audience. Jeapes's Animated Graphic projected several up-to-date films. Mr. Angelo Asher, who has been appointed musical-director at the Edmonton Empire, introduced a new fashion for conductors of orchestras. He appeared in a new style of dress suit, the lapels of the coat being of white corded silk and looking very effective. Mr. A. R. Hollands is the manager of London's newest theatre of varieties, and he was very much en evidence on his opening evening.

At the Alexandra Theatre, Widnes, this week we have Mr. Percy Williams's company here with The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Cecil A. Melton is a capital Howard Wilson; Mr. Frank Harrison does sound work as Robert Curtis; Mr. Chas. Locke is an amusing Toto; Mr. Cyril Melton is responsible for an excellent study of Schwartz; Mr. Frank Ashley is the kind-hearted policeman; and Mr. J. Newton is good in the small part of the Rev. Dr. Lanceford. A sympathetic study of Mabel Wilson comes from Miss Ethel Kay; Miss Elaine Vanbrugh acts with force and ability in the part of Nora; and Miss Ethel Serjeant is a humorous Bridget. One of the big successes of the play is the Jessie of little Lulu Wohlmann. Miss Dorothy Darthy is good as Frank. The specialities of the children in the third act are unusually good

At the Theatre Royal, Tyldesley, Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company are presenting The Prodigal Parson. Mr. Logan Darra gives a meritorious performance as the Rev. Tom Godley; Enoch Jaggins is interpreted in an admirable manner by Mr. Alfred Northway; Mr. Charles Ashwell plays in the right spirit as Ben Jaggins; Mr. Roland A. Bridge is well suited as the Detective; Miss Violet Hammersley makes a charming and sympathetic Fern Godley; and Miss Madge Millard is a commendable Myrtle. Mr. Owen Redmonde as Phil Drive and Miss Alice Buckland as Gretchen are responsible for much amusement.

For the past fortnight the Dublin public have had the opportunity of witnessing, at the Theatre Royal Hippodrome, the new programme indicator, which is the invention of a popular Dublin citizen. The apparatus, which is fitted up on each side of the stage, shows all the "turns" that are over and also the "turn" that is on at the time. It is a marvellously simple invention, and possesses all the essentials of novelty and simplicity. The apparatus was fitted up and worked under the personal supervision of Mr. Hunter M'Allen, A.M.I.C.E.

AT the Town Hall, Folkestone, Miss Rosaline Thorne is singing with great success her latest illustrated song "Little brown eyes," also her nurse's song, "Under the Red Cross," which is much appreciated.

"ALADDIN" AT WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

For several years past Mr. John H. Thomson has been responsible for the production of a pantomime at the Knightstone Pavilion and Opera House, and each show has always proved superior to its predecessor. This year Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp is the title chosen, and, produced on Boxing Day, proved no exception to the rule. Mr. Chas. Wood has followed the story closely, and has written a book replete with smart and humorous dialogue. The pantomime is in two parts and ten scenes, all of which are beautifully painted, especially the Palace scene and the transformation (The Seasons), in which the artist has surpassed himself. In the former scene the Sisters Isabelle (two very charming ladies) and the Geisha Troupe of dancers are loudly applauded for their Terpsichorean efforts, and the Sisters Hylton excel as duettists. Mr. F. Sparrow Harris, leader of the orchestra, has composed, selected, and arranged some very catchy and pleasing music. The dresses are gorgeous and the mounting splendid. Mr. Chas. Wood, on whose shoulders the burden of the production has rested, must have worked with untiring energy to make the show go as it did from start to finish without a hitch, and must have been greatly elated with the reception his efforts received. Aladdin is interpreted by Miss May de la Grange in that dashing style that is requisite as principal boy. She possesses a handsome presence and a good voice, which she uses well in "I don't care if there's a girl there" and "Nancy," both songs proving a big success. Miss Jessie Hylton, a pretty little lady, portrays the Princess ably. A most artistic performance of the Genii of the Lamp is given by Miss Ada Victoria. Miss Phyllis Hylton is entitled to eulogy for her acting as the Genii of the Ring. Miss Edith Isabelle possesses a very sweet voice, and acts with much distinction as Pekoe; and there is nothing but praise for Miss Cissie Lenore as Nicey. The Widow Twanky is played by Mr. Norman Langford, who proves a comedian of versatility. Abanazar is impersonated by Mr. Chas. Wood, who is a great favourite locally; his mock tragedy in the character is the work of a thorough artist, and evokes unstinted applause. Mr. Laurie Howard is really good as the Vizier, and his dancing is undoubtedly above the ordinary. Mr. Jack Selway as Chin-Chin is commendable, and numerous other characters are well looked after. The chorus is a strong one and thoroughly well trained. Mr. Manaton courteously looks after the front of the house.

"THE SHERIFF AND THE ROSEBUD."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Your Liverpool correspondent's report on the performance at the Empire Theatre last week reads as follows:—"An acceptable dramatic sketch, The Sheriff and the Rosebud, was given by W. Mowbray Harle and company." May I ask you to correct this error in your next issue? The company is run by my daughter, Miss Ida C. Morgan, under my direction.—Your faithfully,

E. P. MORGAN.

MR. SIDNEY DAVIS wires the National Music Co. as follows:—"Your song 'You all want something to cuddle' is already being sung and whistled on the streets of Edinburgh." This is one of a great many telegrams received by the National Music Co., doing this wonderful song justice.

"KATE, won't you roller skate?" the first skating song in the market, is rapidly becoming very popular. You can hear it sung and whistled on all the skating-rinks already. George Elliott, Frank H. Fox, Ella Lane, Jennie Hartley, H. G. High, and several other artists are singing this number with great success. It is another of the National Music Publishing Co.'s winners.

THE Empire Theatre, Oldham, was well filled last Tuesday week, on the occasion of the Oldham Police Concert, when Mr. Wm. Lawton's "Amphion" Concert Party gave a capital programme.

EVANS' ANTISEPTIC THROAT PASTILLES
THE SINGER'S FRIEND

These wonderfully efficacious Throat Pastilles are made to a Formula of the Liverpool Throat Hospital, and act like a charm in keeping the voice and throat in perfect condition for prolonged vocal exercise.
Madame Luisa Tetrazzini says:—"I thank you for the boxes of Evans' Pastilles sent me, which I find excellent and efficacious."
Can be obtained of all Chemists at 1/- and 4/6 per box. Send for sample, enclosing 1d. stamp to cover postage, to Sole Manufacturers, Evans Sons, Lescher & Webb, Ltd., Hanover Street, Liverpool. Ask for "EVANS'" Pastilles, and see you get them. Beware of numerous Imitations.

INDIGESTION
Is the primary cause of most of the ills to which we are subject. WHELPTON'S VEGETABLE PURIFYING PILLS arouse the stomach to action, Headache flies away, Biliousness, Kidney Disorders, and Skin Complaints disappear.
Ask for WHELPTON'S PURIFYING PILLS,
And remember there is NO PILL "JUST AS GOOD."

SATURDAY, JANUARY 2, 1909.

THE DRAMATIC YEAR.

It becomes yearly more difficult to concoct a really good play for the London market; and this fact should make us indulgent in dealing with those which are actually written. For some time past we seem to have settled down into what may be called a very creditable dramatic output. There is something in our English play emporium for all tastes. And we have a great advantage in the fact that several of our managers are sufficiently "established" to be able to try experiments. It is too much to expect of the small capitalist to run risks with his eyes open. But the big firms cannot very well lose money—the "personal following" and the promptness with which a modern-life play can be taken off prevent this; and they often recoup themselves, unconsciously, in reputation. The production of a play like The Thunderbolt by an author like Mr. PINERO at a theatre like the St. James's gives a cachet and a bold advertisement to the theatre which have a distinct, though often unappreciated, value. The Thunderbolt was a work of which any author might be proud; and it will be a worthy addition to the list of Mr. PINERO's published plays. Another piece in which the author endeavoured to keep on a high plane was Miss CICELY HAMILTON's Diana of Dobson's. It was at the same time a clever comedy and a scathing indictment of our social system; and the difficulty of making such a combination is so great that Miss HAMILTON deserves applause and respectful admiration. A third play which came little short of being a masterpiece was Mr. BERNARD SHAW's Getting Married, which was produced at the Haymarket in May. The supposed necessity of protracting the "conversation" to three portions apparently led Mr. SHAW to tack a parcel of mystic nonsense on to two acts of exquisitely humorous comedy. The most important SHAKESPEAREAN revival of the year was Mr. BEERBOHM TREE's production of The Merchant of Venice at His Majesty's in April. Mr. TREE's Shylock was a noble and well-reasoned reading of the rôle, and will not easily be forgotten; and his superb production of a fine version of Faust by Messrs. STEPHEN PHILLIPS and COMYNS CARR was one of the memorable events of the year. Mr. PHILLIPS also proved his poetic gift in a version of "The Bride of Lammermoor," entitled The Last Heir, in which, at the Adelphi, Mr. MARTIN HARVEY gave a picturesque, poetic, and tragic representation of Ravenswood. A very fine revival of Romeo and Juliet was given by Messrs. SMITH and CARPENTER at the Lyceum; and Mr. LEWIS WALLER's reproduction of Henry V. at the Lyric was a credit to all concerned. And amongst the intellectual plays of the year must be included Mr. ROY HORNIMAN's Bellamy the Magnificent, presented at the New Theatre in October. A curious phenomenon in connection with the career of this play was the interest taken in the hero by the public, who refused to "turn down their thumbs" at the conclusion, and insisted on Bellamy's life being spared. In all probability this feeling was greatly owing to the fact that the part of Bellamy was played by Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM, who endowed it with an amount of attraction and amiability that excused the errors of the exquisite.

Where the year's output is largest and most excellent is in sound, practical dramatic material, of which there has been a liberal supply. Mr. ALFRED SUTRO has seldom done better work than in The Builder of Bridges, in which he combines the skill of SARDOU with the earnestness of HENRY ARTHUR JONES; a delightful mixture of breezy melodrama and conscientious realism was The Flag Lieutenant at the Playhouse; and Mr. J. M. BARRIE, in his lighter vein, contributed a most delicate evening's diversion in What Every Woman Knows at the Duke of York's. A really brilliant and well-constructed comedy, Mr. W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM'S Mrs. Dot, was produced by Miss MARIE TEMPEST at the Comedy; and Mr. EDWIN MILTON ROYLE'S Western drama A White Man had a successful career at the Lyric. All these pieces were thoroughly good and strong of their kind; and the reception they met with was very well deserved.

The list of artistic and interesting, but not epoch-making, plays of the year is a gratifying one. We have very pleasant memories of The Beloved Vagabond, produced at His Majesty's in February last, and of Mr. TREE's charming performance as Paragot; of Mr. JOHN MASEFIELD's beautiful little dramatic poem Nan, so admirably acted at the Royalty; and of Mrs. PATRICK CAMPBELL's rare and powerful acting in Deirdre and Electra at the New. The success of the Sicilian players at the Shaftesbury was owing partly to the fire and earnestness of their acting and partly to the "sensation" created by certain épatant extravagances of detail. They were over-praised, and are now almost forgotten. Lady Epping's Lawsuit, presented by Miss MARY MOORE at the Criterion, was slight in texture, and owed its success greatly to the perfection of Miss MOORE's playing of the principal part; The Marriages of Mayfair, which filled the stage of Drury Lane Theatre in September, was a first-rate specimen of strong spectacular drama; and in Idols, which appeared at the Garrick the same month, Mr. ROY HORNIMAN, armed with an effective and all-conquering situation, courageously defied ethical criticism, and did so with complete success. The crop of musical comedies and light operas has been quite up to the mark. Havana at the Gaiety, A Waltz Dream at the Hicks, My Mimosa Maid at the Prince of Wales's, and The Belle of Brittany at the Queen's have shown the immense improvement in taste and refinement that has taken place in this class of entertainment. This is satisfactory, seeing that it forms the favourite amusement of such a large section of the public. We must not omit to mention the success of The Passing of the Third Floor Back at the St. James's—a piece which, in many ways open to criticism, had a moral earnestness which, combined with Mr. FORBES ROBERTSON's fine performance in the leading part, won the hearts of the playgoing public. An event of the year which must be recorded with warm satisfaction was the triumphant return of Mr. H. B. IRVING to London with The Lyons Mail at the Shaftesbury, in which he repeated the success of his famous father in the dual part of Lesurques and Dubosc. Altogether, the past year has been pleasant, prosperous, and productive, and the prospects of the drama for 1909 are decidedly hopeful.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting held at 353, Strand, on Tuesday, Dec. 22. Present: Miss Lucy Sibley (in the chair), Misses Agnes Imlay, Rose Mathews, Messrs. Cecil Brooking, Clive Currie, E. Gurney, Frederick Morland, Frederick Annerley, C. F. Collings, Franklyn Walford, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary).

The minutes of the council meeting held on Dec. 15 were read and confirmed.

Miss Imlay read the Finance Committee's report, which the council adopted.

A committee to draw up the annual report was appointed, consisting of Mr. Morland, Miss Mathews, Miss Imlay, Mr. Brooking, and Mr. C. F. Collings.

The secretary asked permission, on behalf of Miss Beatrice Chester, to exhibit a notice with regard to the "Theatrical Anti-Vivisection League." The council decided not to exhibit this notice on the ground that it might prove a source of controversy, and received instructions to write to Miss Chester expressing their regret that for this reason they were unable to accede to her request.

It was decided that in future no notice or poster of any description or kind be exhibited in the Association's rooms without the sanction of the council.

Miss Rose Mathews asked the council whether they could see their way to make some suggestion for the benefit of the Play-Actors in view of the fact that that body had been instrumental in introducing a considerable number of new members, and a resolution was passed to the effect that "in view of the possibility of the Association moving into larger premises at the end of 1909, the council of the A.A. should approach the council of the Play-Actors with a view to taking premises where they can be accommodated."

Minutes of the council meeting held on Tuesday, Dec. 29. Present: Mr. F. Morland (in the chair), Messrs. Robson Paige, Richard A. Greene, C. F. Collings, Misses Rose Mathews, Agnes Imlay, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A letter was read from Dr. Sinclair informing him that he was removing to Aldeburgh, and the Secretary received instructions to write to him stating that the council would be glad if he would remain on the list of hon. medical officers.

Miss Imlay read the finance committee's report, which was adopted, and Mr. Morland read the "Annual Report" Committee's report, which was also passed.

The question of holding a meeting of members for discussion of topics of interest to the profession was discussed, and the secretary received instructions to ascertain from the manager of the Cabin whether the rooms could be used on a Sunday evening for that purpose

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Great expectations heralded the production of The Dollar Princess at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, on Christmas Eve, the popular idea being that this latest enterprise of Mr. George Edwardes was destined to rival the success of The Merry Widow. It can hardly be said, however, that rivalry exists, or is likely to exist, between the two; not because one of them transcends the other in point of interest or setting, but because of the essential differences between them. The last-named piece is, as everyone knows, peculiarly "Continental," picturesque, and sensuous in a high degree. The Dollar Princess, on the other hand, is more temperately homelike, more familiarly staged, and depends directly upon sentiment—a clever and distinctly pleasing play upon the sentiment of love—for the success of its appeal. The atmosphere and situations are quaint, pretty—and moral. And, without doubt, they spell success.

The story has been adapted for the English stage from the German of Willner and Grunbaum by Basil Hood. The lyrics are by Adrian Ross, and the music is by Leo Fall. It is not a complicated story, but it is based on a situation which has strong claims to originality, and which is of the very essence of comedy. Phineas Q. Conder, president of the Oil Trust, is wealthy enough to indulge to his heart's content in the rather imaginative hobby of having about him, as servants of the household, none but impecunious ladies and gentlemen of the British aristocracy. His butler is the Duke of Stonehenge, his footman is Sir James McGregor, his valet Sir Anthony Phipps, his chef the Vicomte de Champigon; while other distinguished hirelings who sink their prestige to the level of mere household utility are John, Earl of Quorn, Lady Augusta Broadstairs, Lady Dorothy Datchet, and the Hon. Edith Dalrymple. Conder's pleasure lies in the profuse application of their titles to these people who serve him so obsequiously, but it must be admitted that the humour of the situation from their side is not exploited to any notable degree, which seems a pity. His daughter Alice, however, the "dollar princess," plays the mistress in supercilious style, conscious of her position, and spoiled by the idea of the millions which make the situation possible. Something of the same impulse is in his niece Daisy, though she is a lighter and flightier personage, and is having some good fun out of the fact that John, Earl of Quorn (Conder's horseman), is in love with her, and she in love with him. Conder has commissioned his nephew Dick and his brother Tom to bring him a housekeeper from Europe; he wants a distinguished and attractive lady of a nice age whom he can marry; and when Dick and Tom return—an event which takes place in the first act—they bring with them a supposed Russian Princess, who is in reality a Lion Queen, known on the halls as Olga. At about the same time comes Freddy Fairfax, who has known Olga, and who seeks employment of Conder upon the strength of a letter of introduction. This is when the story takes piquancy and sentiment into itself. Freddy's interview happens to be with Alice, and it seems that he is just the man to take that young lady in hand. She at first dismisses him curtly, but, on Freddy's refusal to be fobbed off by her, eventually engages him herself to be her own private secretary. There is something about Freddy which unsettles her, and it takes dim shape when he comes into contact with Olga upon that pretty lady's appearance in the house. She begins to be piqued by jealousy. Freddy, being obviously a natural hand at love-making, knows exactly how to tease her and at the same time fan the flame, never showing her until the right moment that he is deeply in love with her. As for Olga, Conder shows his hand at once, and she is not averse. So the action goes on. In the second act, Daisy commands John, Earl of Quorn, to marry her, on a footing of mere friendly convenience, and he obeys. Also Conder chooses Olga as the object of his suit, and, since marriages are in the air, Alice, too, must choose a husband. After some finessing, Alice plunges insolently into the choice of Freddy, on the assumption that she can "buy the man; a tramp, a pauper—or a clerk"; who will just dance like a wooden monkey "when Alice pulls the string." It leads to a tremendously effective finale, for Freddy repudiates her with a punishing scorn, and throws up his place in the house. The sequel occurs at Freddy's bungalow in California, where he has "struck ile" and made a huge fortune. Alice comes to Freddy's knees; the "Russian Princess" deception is exploded, though Olga does not lose Conder by it; and Daisy accommodates herself to a more wifely notion of her relationship to the Earl of Quorn.

Many really splendid passages come into the development of the story. One of them is the "Inspection" duet, when Alice decides to employ Freddy; another, the "Typewriting" episode, when she orders him to take down a florid love-letter to an imaginary Isidore, in the hope of arousing his jealousy; while the "Hansel and Gretel" duet of Daisy and Quorn, and the subsequent "Reminiscence" on the same theme, are among the best of the musical items. Among the songs, Freddy's "My Dream of Love" and Olga's "Many a lover" and "The Lion Queen" and memorable, the first-mentioned being, perhaps, the best of all. It would be hard to overpraise the efforts of the cast. Miss Hilda Moody as Alice acted and sang with gratifying success, and a more artistic rendering of Freddy than that of Mr. Robert Michaelis could hardly be imagined. As Olga Miss Kitty Gordon did extremely well, considering her recent appointment to the rôle; while Miss Alice Pollard as Daisy, finely matched by Mr. Vernon Davidson as the Earl of Quorn, contributed materially to the success. Mr. Richard Golden as Conder stood forth throughout as a quaint and resourceful comedian, who is sure to make more of the part than he did on the opening night, though after the first act his opportunities are not too ample. Others deserving of praise were Mr. Willie Warde, Mr. Howard Cridland, and Mr. Harry Parker.

No doubt remained at the fall of the curtain about the magnitude of the success. Mr. George Edwardes, called upon to acknowledge the applause of the audience, said, while thanking everyone, that he was glad he had brought the piece to Manchester, which he should always think of henceforward as far more appreciative than hypercritical.

PRESENTATION.—At the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on Christmas Eve, Mr. Harry Ashton, the advertising-manager for the Howard and Wyndham Syndicate Glasgow Theatres, was the recipient of a handsome marble timepiece and a pair of bronze ornaments, from the members of his billing staff, as a mark of their esteem.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Francis Beaumont and John Fletcher were younger contemporaries of Shakespeare, who was writing his latest plays when they were at the beginning of their dramatic collaboration. Of the fifty odd plays that pass under the names of Beaumont and Fletcher, many were written single-handed by Fletcher, while others were produced in collaboration with Massinger and other writers of the time. In at least two of them Fletcher's writing is intermixed with Shakespeare's. Of the plays that Beaumont and Fletcher wrote together, The Knight of the Burning Pestle is certainly one, and it is at once the earliest and the best of English burlesques.

Thomas Heywood and others had written plays dealing with the exploits of valorous London apprentices, and it is this class of play that Beaumont and Fletcher set themselves to burlesque. Whether the authors had read "Don Quixote" is doubtful, for Shelton's translation of Cervantes appeared (1612) after the performance of the play. It is possible that they read the work in Spanish, but the resemblances between "Don Quixote" and The Knight of the Burning Pestle were, after all, not so close as to make it necessary to suppose that they were indebted to the Spanish masterpiece, or to give occasion for comparison either in point of idea or characterisation. A century after the Restoration the play was again seen on the stage; but this was followed by a long gap of obscurity, though it was known to students as an example of bright and genial humour, for its next appearance was not until November, 1904, when the Mermaid Society revived it at the Royalty. Saturated with an old-world flavour, its atmosphere under the influence of the management of the Gaiety Theatre is capitally sustained by the special scenery and costumes that have been made for the event, by the music which has been specially written by Mr. Granville Bantock, by the songs of the period specially selected by Dr. Henry Watson (and sung in excellent spirit by Mr. Charles Bibby as Old Merrythought), and by the dances arranged by Miss Nellie Chaplin. The latter are taken from Playford's Dancing Master (1665), and are of particular interest inasmuch as they are correct reproductions of the dances of the Tudor period. Miss Chaplin's dancers give joyous and delightful expression to these unforgotten evidences of the pastoral gaiety of our forefathers. The dances themselves are so delightful, so full of the atmosphere of fresh spring life, that they contribute in no small measure to the success of the play.

Miss Horniman's company showed themselves well able to get the best possible effect out of the material of this unusual enterprise. The fun began when a number of the artists ascended to the stage from a corner of the stalls, and the speaker of the prologue engaged in parley with the citizen and his loquacious wife. As the Citizen Mr. Edward Landor made good play with his comedy gifts, and Mrs. Theodore Wright scored continuously with her naïve intrusions upon the progress of the plot. Mr. Emé Percy as Ralph, the grocer's apprentice, who would-be heroic, made a capital burlesque figure, especially on his attempt to succour the distressed damsel, Mistress Merrythought, and later to overthrow the giant Barber in an encounter of lance against barber's pole. Comic passages occur also between young Jasper Merrythought and Humphrey (Messrs. Basil Dean and Leonard Mudie), who are rivals for the hand of Venturewell's daughter, Luce, a rôle played with proper humorous insight by Miss Hilda Bruce Potter. The coffin episode, when Jasper persuades Luce to escape from her father's roof, was also notably well done, as was the impersonation of the bibulous and aptly vocal Merrythought by Mr. Charles Bibby. Besides these, Miss Ada King was conspicuously good as Mistress Merrythought; Mr. Jules Shaw gave a very smart and polished rendering of the merchant, Venturewell; Miss Lilian Christine looked and acted well as Pompiona; and the many smaller parts, quaint and varied as they are, were cleverly handled by the remainder of the cast. It only remains to be added that the costumes are historically accurate in design; the scenery provides delightful glimpses of Old London, from the brush of Mr. Hugh Fremantle; and the piece was fully appreciated by the audience on the opening night. Under Miss A. E. F. Horniman, to whom Manchester is indebted for the opportunity of seeing so quaint and interesting a departure, Mr. B. Iden Payne has the production in hand, while Mr. Edwin T. Heys adequately looks after the comfort of visitors.

"THE LADY OF KENSINGTON GARDENS."—Those of our readers, particularly of the fair sex, who are permitted the opportunity of throwing aside their theatrical cares for a few hours, will find agreeable recreation in turning over the pages of Mr. J. A. T. Lloyd's new novel, "The Lady of Kensington Gardens." For in it Mr. Lloyd introduces us to one of the most strange feminine characters that has ever graced the world of fiction. It might be said that the real nature of a woman is an inscrutable mystery; but, apparently, Mr. Lloyd has attempted to probe the mystery if one may judge by the remarkably clever psychological study to which he treats the reader. Earlier in the book there is an amusing conversation between a clergyman and an actress, which will well repay perusal.

THE success of Mr. Charles Darrell's play, The Eyes of the World, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Grimsby, came near to being marred on the 22nd ult through an accident occurring to Miss Ethel Van Praagh, which might have had serious results for that gifted actress. In response to repeated "calls" the curtain had been raised several times, and on each occasion Miss Van Praagh was the recipient of floral tributes; but the applause still continuing, the curtain was again raised when a large basket of flowers was presented. As Miss Van Praagh stepped forward to receive the gift, the bell was accidentally rung, and the curtain descended before the lady had time to get clear of it. A shriek from the audience warned her of her danger, and with great presence of mind the actress fell prone upon the stage. Some of the stage hands rushed forward promptly and dragged her from her perilous position, so that the curtain only grazed her head as it reached the stage.

THE MARTIN HARVEY DRAMATIC CLUB.

Mr. Martin Harvey, in his speech at the annual dinner of the Martin Harvey Dramatic Club at the Gaiety Restaurant on the 20th ult., said:—

"And now, ladies and gentlemen, it is my further pleasure to say a few words about the Kit Marlowe Dramatic Club, and of your doings in the past year. I must congratulate you upon the fact that in last February you were able to chronicle your hundredth performance since the founding of the Club, and that your finances are in a satisfactory state. That is more than some managers could honestly say at the end of one hundred performances, and I heartily congratulate you. Then I look down your programme for the coming session, and a very attractive one it seems to be. In January a dance, in February a performance, but another dance very soon afterwards, then in April, just to keep up appearances, a performance, but a house dinner to quickly follow.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I read in the biographies of Kit Marlowe that he led a reckless dissipated life! Well, now I understand why you have taken poor Kit Marlowe as your titular deity, and I must say a fresh light is thrown upon the rollicking picture which is presented to my eyes at this moment. However, there is safety in numbers, and I see a very wise provision in Rule 16 that you must not use the name of Kit Marlowe in connection with affairs other than those of the Club—affairs, ladies and gentlemen. I suppose this means the sort of thing that is described in the papers as 'shameful affairs in Park-lane.' I take it you must not rollick alone or in twos and threes, but only in connection with the Club, and, as I say, there is safety in numbers. And now that I have said something about the abuses of your Club I ought to speak of its uses. Well, they seem to me many. One of them is the opportunity it gives to Mrs. Martin Harvey and myself of enjoying your hospitality and sharing in your reckless and dissipated life. Then I have no doubt some of the members of your Club, by accident or design, become regular members of the stage calling, and have had the opportunity of gaining their first experience at the expense of your audiences, just as I am gaining my experience of extemporaneous speaking at your expense to-night. You may not think it, but it is extemporaneous, and if you ask me how I do it I will tell you a story of Charles Lamb and his pipe.

"Charles Lamb was puffing away at his churchwarden, emitting the most voluminous clouds of smoke, and a friend of his asked him how he managed to pour forth such thick volumes of smoke. Charles Lamb replied, with his characteristic stutter, 'I strive after it as some men strive after virtue.' So, ladies and gentlemen, I have striven after extemporaneous speaking, and I wish my eloquence were as fine and rolling as Charles Lamb's volume of tobacco smoke.

"So I pass on quite naturally to my own experiences of the amateur stage. Very early they commenced. I think I cannot have been more than seven when I made my first appearance in a romantic melodrama (my predilections soon began to make themselves felt!) called The Frog and the Princess. You may think I was cast for the Frog, but I wasn't. I played the Princess, and therefore made my first bow in a petticoat. I address myself to the ladies particularly when I confess to them that I disgraced that petticoat by drinking more sherry on that occasion than was good for me. Someone lifted me up on a table that I might inspect myself in the looking-glass over the fireplace, but it was a shamefully bedraggled Princess that confronted my unsteady gaze. Shades of poor Sydney Carton were already perhaps stealing over me.

"But I hear you saying, You ought to be talking about the Kit Marlowe Dramatic Club. Ladies and gentlemen, I am coming back to you, and this time with a severe admonishment. How is it I see none of Marlowe's plays in your répertoire?

"I see Kit Marlowe, but by my friend W. L. Courtney, and lower down I see The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown, by R. Buchanan and one Charles Marlowe, but this Marlowe, I have a shrewd suspicion, wears, as your humble servant wore on the occasion I have told you of, a petticoat. Where are Dr. Faustus, and Tamburlaine, and The Jew of Malta, and Edward II.?

"If you ask that of an actor-manager, he would have his answer promptly, 'They are in the State-aided theatre.' But you, ladies and gentlemen, are proof against such sordid considerations, and, in the expectation that your future répertoire will include these great works, and in the hope that you may wax in strength and courage to attack your ambitious work, I drink, and I ask you to drink with me, 'The health—the continued health—of the Kit Marlowe Dramatic Club.'"

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual committee meeting of the Actors' Union took place on the 18th ult. at 49, Bedford-street, Strand, and the following members were present: Messrs. Frank Gerald (chairman), F. Rawson Buckley, E. Howard Templeton, Cecil G. Calvert, J. Hastings Batson, Royce Milton, Jerrold Heather, Leslie Arthur, George P. Lester, George H. Child, Edwin J. Collins, Doré Lewin-Mannering, James English, W. Ruddle Brown, Edward Y. Rae, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary).

Communications were received from the following members of the committee: Messrs. Clifford Rean, Paul Lovett, Alfred Maitland Stapley, and Campbell Goldsmid.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Two matters of importance with regard to the future policy of the Union were discussed at length.

The resignations of Mr. and Mrs. J. Milne Taylor and Mr. R. White and Miss Sheila Dawn were accepted with regret.

Three new members were elected.

The secretary was instructed to thank Mr. J. Hastings Batson for his donation of 10s. 6d. to the Actors' Union Benevolent Fund.

The secretary was instructed to remind members that no cards for the year 1909 will be issued unless membership cards for 1908 are returned to him fully paid up, and to draw attention to the fact that the subscription for 1909 will be 1s. 8d. per month, payable by the 7th of each month, or 15s. per annum, payable by Jan. 21.

The secretary reported four engagements during the week made through the Union Agency.

The secretary reported that he had made arrangements with the insurance company by which the insurance coupons on next year's cards remain good if the coupon is signed by the member and left at home, thus obviating the necessity of carrying the voucher about.

Friday last being Christmas Day, there was no meeting of the committee for that week.

Those members who wish to take advantage of the reduction of five shillings in the annual subscription are warned that no annual subscription (15s.) will be accepted if received after Jan. 21, 1909. Members who have not paid their monthly subscription of one shilling and eightpence by the 7th of each month will be out of benefit.

In future there will be no stamps for sale at the agencies, all subscriptions to be forwarded to the head office. Only members of the committee will be supplied with books of stamps for sale to members.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

IN reference to the dispute with the V.A.F., the Agents' Association meeting took place on Wednesday, at 5 p.m. At 7.15 p.m. Mr. Appleton, the general secretary of the Federation of Trade Unions, telephoned to the general secretary of the Variety Artists' Federation, and reported he had received a letter from the Agents' Association, stating that they had agreed to go to arbitration.

A PRIVATE meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation, under the chairmanship of Mr. Joe O'Gorman, was held yesterday at the Bedford Head Hotel, when the present position in the matter was laid before the members.

IN all probability the parties to the arbitration will be those gentlemen who have conducted the negotiations for the two interests up to the present time. Thus, Messrs. Joe O'Gorman, Wal Pink, W. H. Clemart, and William Lee will most likely represent the artists, and it is understood that Messrs. Hugh J. Didcott, George Barclay, Sidney Hyman, and Manny Warner will appear on behalf of the agents.

THE terms of reference were on Thursday drawn up between the representatives of the General Federation of Trade Unions and the agents, and these were under consideration yesterday by the V.A.F. Executive. The next question will be the appointment of an arbitrator.

MR. NEIL KENYON was unfortunately too ill to take up his part in the Drury Lane pantomime on Boxing Night, and has not appeared therein during the week. He had been unwell for some time, and is suffering from nervous breakdown. In his dilemma Mr. Arthur Collins was able to realise the value of such a sound comedian as Mr. Johnny Danvers, the former corner-man of the Mohawks, who had about two hours to learn Mr. Neil Kenyon's lines.

MR. NEIL KENYON wishes to contradict the statement which has been made in the Press to the effect that his absence from Drury Lane pantomime is owing in any way whatsoever to his relations with Mr. Wilkie Bard. Mr. Bard and himself are on the most friendly terms, being brother Rats.

DURING the week Neil Kenyon has received an offer from America to open in the first week in February at an enormous salary. He has also had several inquiries from West-End halls and from two provincial pantomime managers. It will be quite a few days before his doctor is expected to allow him to get about.

MR. BRANSBY WILLIAMS, who is at the Prince's, Bristol, has been hightly complimented on his success by Mr. Chute, and has also been much gratified at receiving so many telegrams of good wishes. Mr. Fred Terry "wished him all the success he deserves." Mr. George Alexander wired: "Success. Keep my memory green with your splendid imitations." Sir Charles Wyndham sent the following:—"Wish you all success, though I understand you are cutting the ground from under my feet.—Chas. Wyndham." He also received one from Wilkie Bard, amidst all his busy time, which was greatly appreciated.

MISS KITTER RAYBURN, always as conscientious and earnest as she is charming, has become an immediate favourite at the Lyric, Hammersmith, where her tuneful songs have inspired most enthusiastic chorus singing during the week. She has much improved, both as actress and singer, and we should not be surprised to find her nearer west next Christmas.

MRS. CLEMENT SCOTT is offering £100 for a really dramatic and sensational sketch suitable for the music-halls. Mrs. Scott will give this amount for that she considers the most suitable, and will present the work with herself in the chief rôle, which, by the way, must be a sympathetic one, in England, and later in America and Australia, in which countries she is now planning an extensive tour. The sketch should not contain more than four characters, and must only play fifteen minutes. Mrs. Clement Scott invites all who are interested to send their manuscripts addressed as follows:—"£100 Sketch," care of The Era Office, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

THE legitimate dramatic houses do not extend the hospitality of their stages to the one-act play or curtain-raiser, and the days of the Adelphi screamer are over. Sometimes a clever entertainer plays the people in, and at minor houses the cinematograph is often put up. Young authors who wish to win their spurs as dramatists turn, therefore, to the variety theatres, where it is generally admitted they receive their best encouragement. Still, there is many an unknown aspirant for fame who finds the conditions insisted on by some music-hall managers irksome and difficult to meet. Many such should be unearthed by Mrs. Clement Scott's offer.

MR. E. W. MACKNEY, the veteran singer of "The whole hog or none," who is an octogenarian, was present in both houses at the opening of the Edmonton Empire on Boxing Day. He was the first comedian of the variety stage to be called "great" by his manager, Mr. Charles Morton, who billed him as the Great Mackney many years since at the Canterbury, where he played five years almost continuously. He claims to have been the first to introduce an entertainment at the piano, and we feel sure that an introduction to Miss Margaret Cooper would lead to mutual congratulations.

IN connection with the recent action brought by Mr. Gray, known upon the music hall stage as the "Fighting Parson," against the Variety Artists' Federation and Odhams (Ltd.), printers of the federation's organ known as The Performer, for damage for slander arising out of an article published in the paper during the music hall war, an application is, immediately upon the Court's sittings, to be made for judgment.

MR. ALFRED MOUL, on Monday evening next, will present Mlle. Leonora, in the new playlet, or episode, which has been named La Petite Bohemienne. The music is by François Thomé, the well-known French composer, and Leonora will be supported by Miss Julia Seale, Mlle. Salandri, and M. Volbert. It will be in two scenes, laid in the Austrian Alps at Christmas time. In this little piece it has been the aim of author and composer to provide Mlle. Leonora with a vehicle not only for the display of her powers of miming and dancing, which were so well expressed in Sal, Oh My, but also to show the patrons of the National Variety Theatre her skill with the guitar, and that she possesses a well-trained voice. For the convenience of the Press, the first performance of La Petite Bohemienne will be given at nine o'clock on Monday evening.

ALL nominations of candidates for the V.A.F. Executive Committee election must be received at the head office by 12 noon on Saturday next. All male members over twenty-one years of age are eligible for office, providing they have been members for the preceding six months, and are not in arrears, as per the rules. The nominee must signify in writing his willingness to serve, if elected, and must be proposed and seconded by two members in full benefit.

MR. J. R. HORROCKS, lately with Mr. Thos. Barrasford at the Grand Theatre, Stockton-on-Tees, has been appointed stage-manager to the Oldham Empire Theatre, and commenced his duties last week.

MR. T. L. GOLDSMITH has been appointed local manager of the Putney Hippodrome, vice Mr. Marner, who is now officiating at Hengler's. The newcomer, by his courteous attention to patrons, should soon make a host of friends.

MR. BOSTOCK, of Glasgow, has, it is understood, purchased a hall in Wishaw, at which he intends to run first-class variety entertainments after the necessary refitting and upholstering. The Scotch circuit of this enterprising gentleman is rapidly on the increase.

THE Albert Theatre, Brighouse, was crowded with children of the poorest class on Boxing Day, when the proprietors, Messrs. Beanland and Emerson, entertained over 500, and at the close of a capital variety performance each child was served with a substantial meat tea and also given a little present.

IN the Sheffield Stipendiary's Court on Thursday, Dec. 24, Lewis Wilkinson, of 65, Infirmary-road, who has been a trader in the Sheaf Market for twenty years, was charged with selling pirated music. He was fined £2 10s. and costs—£4 6s. 6d. in all.

MR. HENRY J. BILSBOROUGH, of Leeds and Bradford, in conjunction with Messrs. Uloth and Sparks, of London, acting for Messrs. Popplewell and Illingworth, have sold the Queen's Theatre, Shipley, to a syndicate controlled by Mr. W. Turner, of the Regent Theatre, Salford, and the Opera House, Salford. The theatre is undergoing a scheme of reorganisation under the management of Mr. Illingworth.

MR. ERNEST BRIDGEN, whose fourth year of office has just commenced at the New Cross Empire, was presented on Christmas Eve by the patrons and staff of that house with a leather suit-case, with silver-mounted fittings. In his reply of cordial thanks the recipient said he was proud of the excellent relations that existed between him and his staff, and trusted they would always be maintained.

MR. HARRY LISTON, with his celebrated two hours' entertainment Merry Moments, is making his farewell tour. It is to be hoped that Londoners will have the chance of hearing this hardy veteran of variety, who has done more than most of his fellows to advance the cause of wholesome and mirthful entertainment. In his "fun without vulgarity" Mr. Liston is charmingly assisted by Miss Lord Lumley.

PLANS have been passed by the Dewsbury Corporation for a new place of amusement, to be erected opposite the north front of the Town Hall. It is to be called the Empire Palace Theatre, and is to hold 2,000 people at the least. The main entrances will front Wakefield-road, near the terminus of the Dewsbury and Ossett tramway. Messrs. Chadwick and Watson, of Leeds, are the architects.

A COMPANY has just been registered under the title of the Hippodrome (Durham), Limited, with a capital of £5,000 in £5 shares, to carry on the business of music hall and theatre proprietors, &c., at Durham or elsewhere. Subscribers include Mr R. Pepi, of the Middlesbrough and Darlington Hippodromes, with other prominent gentlemen.

THE first anniversary of the opening of Mr. Barrasford's handsome Hippodrome, Sheffield, was celebrated in befitting manner on Wednesday evening, Dec. 23, after the second performance, when advantage was taken of the occasion to make a presentation to Mr. P. D. Elbourne, the genial and popular resident-manager.

THE presentation, which took the form of a beautiful illuminated address, together with a substantial cheque, cases of table cutlery, fish eaters, and dessert knives, was made in the presence of a large company of friends by Alderman T. Nixon, who spoke of the great success of the Hippodrome during its first year, under the able management of Mr. Elbourne, and paid a high tribute to that gentleman's courtesy and ability. Mr. Elbourne suitably replied, acknowledging the great kindness of his friends, and referred in appreciative terms to the working staff.

ON Christmas night the employees of the Glasgow Pavilion held their fourth annual supper and dance in the Masonic Hall. A merry party of about 140 sat down to supper at midnight, and after "the wee short hour ayont the twal" dancing and other amusements kept the fun going briskly till nearly 5 a.m. Ex-Bailie Connell presided, and the invited guests included Mr. Peter Bermingham, Jack and Evelyn, Miss Gladys Godwynne, Mr. W. F. Frame, Mr. Walter Freer, Mr. L. S. Langfier, and The Era's Glasgow representative.

MR. SAMUEL LLOYD, general-manager at the Pavilion, was the recipient of a beautifully framed enlargement of a photo of the Pavilion staff, executed in Langfier's best style, while Mme. Lloyd received a splendid case of cutlery. Mr. Evan Good, assistant manager, who acted as M.C. at the dance, was presented with a richly-chased silver cigar case, and Mr. Howard W. Galpin, conductor, received from the members of the orchestra a handsome and appropriate gift., viz., a gold sovereign case of beautiful design.

MR. JOHN CLEMPERT had a rousing reception last week from crowded houses at Sunderland. He had accepted a challenge for £100 that he would not jump from Wearmouth Bridge into the river handcuffed. He arrived at 12.30. The Chief Constable and a strong body of police were there before him, and refused to allow him to venture. Thousands of people were there. Nothing daunted, he has accepted a challenge to jump from the High Level Bridge at Gateshead into the Tyne, handcuffed and leg-ironed, at 12.30 on Thursday.

MR. CLEMPERT was also the hero of a street fire incident on Wednesday at 4.30 p.m. An escape of gas near a street lamp at the corner of The Crescent, Gateshead, was the cause of a fire all round and about the lamp. Mr. Clempert, seeing it from his window, at once rushed out with a load of sacking, climbed the lamp, and smothered the flames, at the expense only of a scarred hand and damaged clothing, and was the recipient of loud and prolonged applause at the King's Theatre at both shows the same night.

DR. WALFORD BODIE, now on his native heath and setting the heather on fire, is playing to packed houses at the Hippodrome, Kirkcaldy, despite the fact of its being his second visit within two months. He has also made arrangements to take over the New Pavilion, Kirkcaldy, which has just been rebuilt and fitted and upholstered by Dean and Sons, of Birmingham, at great cost, and is now one of the finest theatres in Scotland. It will be run in conjunction with his Welsh halls, and several other places he is arranging in Scotland. Truly the doctor is a busy man. Mrs. Bodie has been unable to spend the New Year at their Highland home, the Manor House, Macduff, owing to the trains being snowed up.

"WHY THE THIRD FLOOR PASSED" was produced with every possible success at the Metropolitan last Monday. This is the second successful sketch written by Mr. J. J. Spencer Sutcliffe, whose Pigs in Clover is winning all along the line.

LAST Saturday night John Lawson put up a record for the Willesden Hippodrome with Humanity. So successful has the revival of this playlet proved that it will again be seen at the Grand, Clapham Junction, next week.

MR. MARK MELFORD, to quote his own words, considers that he has "overwritten himself," and is reluctantly disposing of his remarkably successful sketches—the neat and original little pocket vaudevilles so well adapted for touring parties.

MR. ARTHUR SLATER "the whistling man in white," starts on Monday next a thirty-seven weeks' provincial tour, returning on Sept. 20, 1909, to play the Gibbons' halls.

MR. ERNIE MAYNE has scored a tremendous hit at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, in Aladdin, in the specially-written part of Washee, the English Nobleman. This is his first attempt in a London pantomime, but it won't be his last.

MR. JACK WOOLF, where help is needed for the suffering and poverty-stricken, is both sympathetic and practical. He has collected quite a large amount during the year for various local institutions, and also contributes to the professional charities, having sent this week 30s. for the benefit of the Music Hall Home.

WE shall shortly have two Nations in London. One is W. H. C. at the Royalty, and another is Mrs. Carrie, the famous American drinking saloon wrecker, who comes to the Paragon and Canterbury Jan. 25. Her temperance talks will no doubt drive many to the bars to quench their thirst by lemonade and other exhilarating beverages.

THE Edmonton Empire, the latest addition to the variety theatres in London Suburbia, was opened on Boxing Night under the managing-directorship of Messrs. Harry Bawn and Jesse Sparrow. Hilarious holiday audiences packed the house at the two performances, and each item on the bill was greeted with enthusiasm.

THE acting-manager is Mr. A. R. Hollands, from the Brighton Hippodrome. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Angelo A. Asher from the Chelsea Palace; the stage-manager is Mr. Harry Shewan, formerly at Shepherd's Bush Empire and Ipswich Hippodrome; and Mr. Charles Yates is the electrician.

THE other evening, when Miss Gertie Gitana reached the Canterbury Theatre stage door, she was astonished to find that her chauffeur had driven off at full speed with her baggage and music to the Oxford, thinking, of course, he had got his passengers safely inside the motor carriage. Imagine the humour of the situation on arrival at the Oxford!

"FATHER CHRISTMAS" was quite an attraction in Balham on Chistmas Eve. It was a sight to see the youngsters holding on to his robes as he walked to and fro, with the announcement on his chest and back as follows: "Stop right here for Gus Elen's Toy Distribution at 3 o'clock to-day." Wigs and costume were supplied by Willie Clarkson.

MR. WHITBY NORTON, of Bradford, has been appointed musical director of the West End Pier, Morecambe, for the next season. Mr. Norton is a member of a Bradford family of musicians well known in the West Riding of Yorkshire, and he has been prominently associated with instrumental music in Bradford and district for many years.

THE biggest salary ever earned probably by a child of her years will be paid by Mr. Stoll to little Miss Elise Craven when she finishes her engagement as Queen of the Fairies in Pinkie and the Fairies at His Majesty's Theatre. The eleven-year-old tot, who became famous on her first appearance on the stage on Saturday night last, will receive £100 a week for an engagement of not less than eight weeks at the London Coliseum. She has been trained by Miss Elise Clerc.

ON Sunday, Dec. 20, Mr. Edward H. Lucas read Dickens's "Christmas Carol" at the Metropole Theatre, Birmingham, to a crowded audience, there being hundreds turned away. After the reading he had a very pleasant surprise in the shape of a presentation of a handsome illuminated address from the Birmingham Temperance Society, also a flashlight photograph of last year's audience—a record attendance.

MISS EDITH FINK (Mrs. George Lashwood), on a moment's notice almost, took the part of principal girl in the Jack and Jill pantomime at the Palace, Belfast, and thereby relieved the management from an awkward predicament. Miss Fink's performance as Cinderella at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, last year, placed her among the front rank of principal girls, and there is a whisper of a flattering offer from a very exclusive quarter for next season.

MR. ROBERT FOSSETT, the champion trick jockey-rider of the world, winner of several medals, who has for the past thirteen years appeared in London, and is now performing at Austin Fryers' Circus, Alexandra Palace, is issuing a challenge for £1,000 to ride against any circus rider in the world. He will ride act for act, including any of the various jumps (all to be previously specified), for the foregoing sum. The judging is to be placed in the hands of a committee of professional circus riders and recognised sportsmen.

MR. ALBERT MARSH'S playlet, Chums till Death, opened at the Palace Theatre, Leicester, on Monday to two of the largest audiences ever seen there. On Monday next the above successful miniature drama will be seen at the Paragon. The fact that Mr. Marsh was associated a few years ago with the Pavilion Theatre, playing the principal heavy and character parts for a number of years, should assure him a hearty welcome.

SAHARET, the famous Australian dancer, appeared at the Coliseum on Monday with striking success. Saharet's style has nothing in common with that made fashionable of late by Miss Maud Allan and others. She is a very active and graceful danseuse, attractive in appearance, and endowed with an amount of acrobatic skill which greatly adds to the effect of her performance. She was warmly applauded on Monday, and was recalled again and again, her pretty costume being greatly admired.

The Montpelier Palace, Walworth, started entertainments very successfully on Boxing Day under the management of Mr. Howard de Wing and under favourable auspices. A shortened version of Aladdin, in two acts, by Mr. Will Mayne, who played Abanazar, was the chief attraction, which was much helped by the bioscopic reproduction between the acts of scenes from the career of the Pekin gamin. The pantomime was most heartily received. The Breitmans (Fritz and Louise) also met with favour in their Tyrolean comedy sketch, Love Wins. The musical director is Mr. S. G. Lucas. The house looked particularly bright, and to such a teeming neighbourhood the cheap and wholesome art presented should prove a boon.

"RING UP 735 EAST," that enormously successful sketch which, when produced by Messrs. Grahame and Conyers, we predicted would enjoy a long run on the variety stage, will top the bill next week at the Queen's, Poplar.

MR. SPENCER BARRY, the popular stage-manager of the Empire Theatre, left England on Thursday, under an old contract with Mr. Williamson, to produce Havana, The King of Cadonia, and The Dollar Princess in Australia. After that he makes a tour of the world in search of novel attractions.

MR. FRED FORDHAM, who writes from the Sussex County Hospital, Brighton, where he has undergone an operation for gastric ulcers, desires to express his gratitude to Mr. Frank Macnaghten for a donation of £3 and to Mr. George Barclay for a gift of £1. It will be some months before the invalid will be able to resume work.

AT Lancaster this week Charcot has again been demonstrating his wonderful powers to packed houses. His blindfold drive on Tuesday caused the whole town to turn out, and the street were lined with thousands. His act goes stronger than ever, and we have it on the best authority that Charcot intends shortly presenting a greater surprise to the entertainment world.

AFTER a short run, Gilbert's Palace of Varieties, Exeter, has been closed. Cathedral towns are never considered good for stage business of any kind, and Exeter, it appears, has not belied their reputation.

MISS VIOLET HALLS, the principal boy of the Cinderella pantomime at the Grand, Glasgow, had to undergo an operation to her right eye on the 27th ult., when the part of Prince Casimir at a moment's notice was taken up by Miss Nellie Wigley, the second boy, who deserves every praise for her admirable rendering.

THE Town Council of Forfar is open to receive offers from managers of al fresco entertainments, to be given in the Recreation Park, Forfar, during the summer months of 1909, from the beginning of May to the end of September. Conditions may be learned from Mr. William Gordon, solicitor, Forfar, on or before Monday, Jan. 16.

MR. HENRY LUDLOW concludes a twelve months' engagement to-day at the Hippodrome, Peckham, supporting Miss Lilian Dundas in Cecil Raleigh's sketch The Doom of Delilah.

MR. WILMOT EDSON, the popular young variety agent, on Monday night successfully launched a pantomime at the King's Theatre, Edinburgh, the same being played twice nightly. The book is by Mr. A. E. Sidney Davis, the well-known song-writer, who is the author of several popular songs, notably "Au revoir, my little Hyacinth," "Amelia Snow," and "Can't you think of any other name but Baby?" Mr. Davis also produced and stage-managed.

MISS MARGARET MURCH, at present starring with conspicuous success in the dramatic episode What Women Do for Men on the Stoll circuit, has been specially engaged to create the title-rôle in a playlet on the subject of Madame de Lambolle, which will be produced for a trial week at one of Messrs. Stoll's London houses at the expiry of Miss Murch's present contract.

ON Christmas Eve a special children's matinée and Christmas feed to 5,000 of the poorest children of the neighbourhood was given at the Surrey. The entertainment, consisting of appropriate pictures and turns calculated to delight such an audience, was provided absolutely free by the artists, and, in addition, voluntary contributions enabled the management to ensure to each child a bag of substantial food, fruit, and a toy. Mr. Roy Cochrane, manager for Mr. Frank Macnaghten, is delighted at the result.

THE inmates of the Music Hall Home, who are all old performers, had a grand Yuletide, thanks to the kindness of several friends. Joe Elvin sent two large puddings and a large cake and box of cigars; Harry Barnard, the treasurer of the Home Fund, sent something nice and short; from Mrs. V. Cowper, 38, Abbey-road, St. John's Wood, came some entertaining matter for the "boys"; Harry Blake visited them on Christmas morning with cigarettes, tobacco, and cigars; Mrs. O'Brien, of Rule's, Maiden-lane, presented twenty-six tins of tobacco; and Tom Branson, the Grand Saloon, Hastings, and Walter Norman, of the Hippodrome, Hastings, sent Christmas cards, tobacco, and pipes. Mrs. Fruin and her daughter (the matron) were kept busy looking after the comfort of all—a labour of love when one sees that it is appreciated.

THE funds are now considerably overdrawn, and it is to be hoped that all in the variety profession will put their best help to the "New Year Shilling Appeal Fund" and try and win, not only the gold medal, but the grateful thanks of the poor old brother artist. Benj. Woodger, the secretary, would be glad to send a collecting card if you will only try. Drop a postcard to 31, Wilson-road, or Empire, Camberwell, S.E. Don't forget that your old clothes are always useful. Harry Barnard has given £3 3s. to the Home Fund. Kindly send in your cards and have another. The old boys wish every helper a Happy New Year. The next committee meeting will be held on Thursday, at Camberwell, 12 noon.

A VERY pleasant and interesting gathering took place at the Star and Garter Hotel, Liverpool, on Christmas Day, when the members of An Outside Chance sketch company were entertained by the proprietors (Messrs. Bellew and Stock). Advantage was taken of the festive gathering to present to Master Edward Garratt, the "star" of the company, on behalf of the management, a handsome present on the occasion of his birthday and in celebration of his four years' connection with Messrs. Bellew and Stock's management. The gift took the form of a handsome watch and chain, the former being engraved with the initials of the recipient. In acknowledgment Master Garratt made a neat and smart little speech. A toast to the health and continued prosperity of Messrs. Bellew and Stock was heartily drunk by the company.

ON behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (secretary) wishes to thank all those who so kindly responded to the appeal for the poor and crippled children, making at least one more memorable and happy day in their lives. Gifts were numerous, and, in addition to those already acknowledged: £5 5s. from Joe Elvin, 5s. from Gladys Marius, 10s. from Lydia Yeamans Titus, 2s. 6d. from Mrs. Jack Camp, Mr. G. H. Richards £2, A. Friend 2s. (through Miss Elmore), Mr. Biggs 2s (through Mrs. Ginnett), Mrs. Fruin, M.H.H., for Christmas gifts, pretty toys from Cecilia Loftus, large box of sweets from Mrs. Harry Lester, sweets from Flo Banks, clothing from Mme. Haydee, boxes of clothing from Mrs. Ernest Collins, Mrs. Carl Hertz, Miss Aitkin, and Mrs. Hole, boots and slippers from Mr. S. Aarons, parcel of music from Miss Sheard, gift of dolls from Mrs. Chas. Coborn, and parcel of ties from Henry Prenton. There was a great treat for about thirty families on Thursday, when beef, plum-pudding, and tea were given them at the Guild for Christmas Day. All friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and reception held every Wednesday, four to five o'clock.

AN extremely popular figure in the music-hall world has determined on Brighton as her future home, and taken over the proprietorship of a well-known local hotel. Miss Peggy Pryde is now the proprietress of the Sussex Hotel, East-street. Jennie Hill's petite and dashing daughter is a particular favourite with Brighton audiences, and the announcement of her latest venture will be read with interest by numerous admirers.

FOR days past workmen have been busily engaged in renovating the premises, and it may safely be said that none has worked with greater energy than the famous comedienne. Looking in for a few minutes on Monday, a representative of the Sussex Daily News found Miss Peggy working like a Trojan, putting the finishing touches to a hard week's work. "Ah," she said, cheerily, "I think we have now got things in ship-shape order to last us over Christmas, when there are to be more alterations."

"I AM just making this a little home," explained Miss Peggy. "I have all my professional engagements to fulfil for the next five years, but whenever I can be in Brighton I shall be here, always pleased to see old friends." She has received shoals of good wishes.

MLLE. LYDIA KYASHT, the new première danseuse of the Empire Theatre, appeared on Thursday night in two new dance creations of M. Alexander Genée, the teacher of his niece, Mlle. Adeline Genée. The first was a flag dance in the Champs Elysées scene of "A Day in Paris," and the second an elaborate polka fantasie—lasting five minutes—in the final scene. Mlle. Kyasht, was received with enthusiasm by a crowded house.

MR. FERDINAND CONTI writes:—"In your last week's paper you were good to refer in glowing terms to my 'masterful' performance as the little Japanese major in the sketch A Japanese Revenge at the Peckham Hippodrome. The part is played by Mr. Arthur Chesney."

"WANTED, immediately, lady dancer, to dance in lion's den; must be courageous, resolute, and of good appearance. Apply, Fun Fair, Warwick-road entrance, Earl's Court Exhibition." This remarkable advertisement, which appeared in Monday's papers, has brought the Earl's Court Toy City and Fun Fair a host of replies.

THE management, it appears, have acquired two "forest-bred" lions—Brutus and Cleopatra—and they advertised for a lady to dance in the lions' den. Up to yesterday the number of courageous ladies willing to undertake the task reached something like 500. Stage-struck servant girls, barmaids, and shop assistants were among the applicants, as were likewise a number of gentlewomen residing in the country, who enclosed testimonials from clergymen and local magnates.

THE fancy dress roller skating carnival held on Thursday night at the Olympia Rink proved eminently successful from the point of view of numbers and varied picturesqueness of costumes. In the prettily-decorated hall hundreds of skaters saw the Old Year out and the New Year in, the proceedings concluding at three o'clock on Friday morning. The gentleman who on this occasion lost his beauty sleep attending the function on our behalf sends us the following postcard description, which gives a terse indication of what was to be seen and of what happened:—"Manager says 4,000 to 5,000 on floor skating. Music, waltz and two-step; every kind of costume, representing country and every profession—army, navy, scholastic, theatrical, East End 'Arrys, policemen, firemen, soldiers in gay uniforms, kings, queens, Eastern potentates, jockeys, Mephistopheles and Fairies American Indians, several denizens of the forest (baboons, bears, &c.) and one rather novel and effective costume made up of pawntickets, with headpiece of three golden balls."

THE next important event at the Olympia Rink will be a skating "Cinderella" on Jan. 19, to be followed by a "Barnyard" fête on Feb. 2. In the latter the skaters will wear the typical "smocks," &c., of the true old-fashioned farmer. There is to be a great skating championship meeting during the last week in February.

MR. J. COLLINS, whose Stella and other troupes of dancers are so well known on the halls, has scored a great success with his two-houses-a-night pantomime Puss in Boots at York and Scarborough. The beautiful scenery, including four full sets, the gorgeous dresses by Alias, London, and Picaird and Roche, of Paris, as well as a very powerful company of principals, are very highly praised.

MR. GORDON WILSON (G. W. Glenny), the well-known veteran actor-author and lecturer, who boasts of threescore years' stage experience in varied lines, opened at the King's Theatre, Gateshead, on Monday, the 28th ult., being specially engaged as lecturer and Press representative by Mr. John Clempert, the Siberian jail-breaker.

THE funeral of the late Mrs. Hettie de Frece, wife of Mr. Jack de Frece, took place on Christmas Day from 245, Brixton-road, at 11 o'clock. The interment was held at the Jewish Cemetery at Willesden. The impressive services were conducted by the Rev. Samuel Rosenbaum. It was truly a pathetic sight which met the gaze of the friends when they beheld the husband at the grave. The poor soul was only thirty-three years of age, and has left a name behind her that will live for many and many a year in the hearts of the friends and people who knew her personally. She was indeed a loving and devoted wife, mother, sister, and friend. "May the Almighty rest her soul in peace."

THE following ladies and gentlemen sent wreaths: Mr. and Mrs. Walter de Frece, Mr. and Mrs. Sim L. Lion and family, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Shaw, the Stoke Newington Palace orchestra, Messrs. Amery Parkes, and Macklin company, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hertz, Mrs. L. Charlesworth, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Nathan, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Mr. and Mrs. George Barclay, the Stoke Newington Palace house staff, Miss A. Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. C. Purslowe, Mr. and Mrs. M. Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. Jury, Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr. Alec Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Higgins, Mrs. E. Copes, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lotto, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reeves, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin, Dr. and Mrs. Robertson, Mr. and Miss L. Braham, Mr. Jack Lotto, Mr. and Mrs. George Abel, Mr. and Mrs. R. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. W. Nathan, Messrs. Somers and Warner, Mr. Ben de Frece, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Pacey, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hast, the De Frece's office staff, Miss Millie Hylton, Miss Evelyn Taylor, Mr. Leo Fritz, Mr. Will Sley, Mr. and Mrs. B. Bent and daughter, Mr. T. J. Robinson (Palace, Stoke Newington), Mr. Amos Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Dutch Daly, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Claxton, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neiman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry de Frece, Messrs. I. and H. Lotery; Baby Carl Hooper, Mr. and Mrs. Will Poluski, jun., Mr. and Mrs. George Essayan, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Day, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas, Dr. and Mrs. Bocklet, the Members of the Pimlico Lodge, the members of the Brixton Sports Club, Mr. and Mrs. Edelsten, Mr. Ted Cowan, Miss Flo Cecil, Mr. Harry Taft, and Mr. and Mrs. Issy Woolf.

Mr. Jack de Frece desires to tender through our columns his most sincere thanks for the many expressions of sympathy which he has received in his sad bereavement, and which it is quite impossible for him to answer individually.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

DOLLY AND ELSIE have made a big hit with "Sue, Sue" (Francis, Day, and Hunter), in Cullen and Carthy's pantomime Babes. This very pretty number is being enthusiastically encored at each performance.

THE three great London pantomimes have "Hall-marked" Messrs. Francis, Day and Hunter's triumphs in the provinces by making the absolute feature numbers those published by the eminent firm. The following list will testify this:—Drury Lane, "I'm afraid to come home in the dark," sung by Miss Marie George, for which she is recalled again and again, and "She sells sea shells," sung by Mr. Bard; Adelphi Theatre, "Come, be my Rainbow" and "Jean from Aberdeen," sung by Miss Phyllis Dare; "Every fellow's in love with a girl," by Mr. Addison; "Molly Bawn" and "Oh, Antonio," by Mr. Fred Leslie; "I'm afraid to come home in the dark," Miss Mabel Russell, and "Take me round in a taxi-cab," sung by Miss Carrie Moore; Lyceum Theatre, London, "Sue, Sue, Sue" and "Bombardier," sung by Miss Dorothy Craske, "Come, be my Rainbow," by Miss Alice Russon, "Shadowland," by Miss Eva Kelland, and "Darling Teddy Bear," by Miss Marjory Carpenter. "My girl's a Yorkshire girl," "Oh, Oh, Antonio," and "Sue, Sue, Sue" are the undeniable hits of the provincial pantomimes. Press, public, artists, and managers are unanimous in their praise of these numbers, which have absolutely electrified all England. At the Grand Theatre, Leeds, Miss Daisy Dormer has made the hit of the pantomime with "My girl's a Yorkshire girl." At Sheffield the same success has been repeated, as well as Hull, Bradford, and Glasgow.

MISS MAY MARS at Sheffield is scoring heavily with the song "Sea Shells." It is the first time that a principal boy has attempted a comic song and has achieved such a success as Miss Mars has done. One of the greatest and best featured songs at the Adelphi Theatre, London, is "Come, be my Rainbow." In this charming song Mr. Robert Courtneidge, who is famous for "producing" songs, has undoubtedly excelled himself. It would be a wise move on the part of managers visiting London to see how beautifully "Come, be my Rainbow" is staged.

AT the same theatre Miss Mabel Russell is receiving a perfect ovation for the charming rendering of "I'm afraid to come home in the dark" and "Alice, where art thou going?" Miss Carrie Moore's song, "Take me round in a taxi-cab," is another prominent feature, as is Miss Phyllis Dare's "Jean from Aberdeen." "Every fellow's in love with a girl," sung by Mr. Adeson, and "Oh, Oh, Antonio," by Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., are two songs that are taken up with great enthusiasm.

MISS IVEY ROSE, at the Alexandra, Birmingham, has received the warmest praise from the Press, who in each case mention that her greatest song hit is "Every fellow's in love with a girl."

G. H. ELLIOTT, the famous chocolate-coloured coon, is creating quite a sensation at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, with his song "Sue, Sue, Sue," the number that has outrivalled all his previous hits in popularity.

MISS MADGE TEMPLE, who created such a sensation a little while back with her wonderful matinée hat burlesque, is this week fulfilling a starring engagement at the New Cross Empire, where she is singing her songs, "Esau, take me on the see-saw," and "Come, be my Rainbow. It must indeed be gratifying to this lady to see how extensively her "Rainbow" song has been taken up by practically every panto. manager all over England.

MR. HERMAN E. DAREWSKI, JUN., again this year as last year, is responsible for several of the great pantomime song successes, viz., "Sue, Sue, Sue," words by Lester Barrett, "Bombardier" (Weston and Barnes), "Every fellow's in love with a girl," words by Lester Barrett, "L.S.D.," words by Charles Wilmott, and "Far away in Australia," Charles Wilmott.

THE Four Black Diamonds, who have been successfully touring the Continent for fourteen months, have returned to the Alhambra, where they are repeating their former triumphs. The song which they have made the feature of their act, "When the swallows build their nest, Sweet Marie," bids fair to become one of the most popular songs of the day.

MR. HARRY FREEMAN has already struck oil with two new numbers, "Everybody knows it's there" and "Don't forget to write me every day." The latter number achieved popularity at once, and is now the reigning success in Manchester.

MR. HARRY RANDALL, who, as the Cook at the Coronet, sings with Mr. E. Lewis, the Idle Apprentice, the comic husband-and-wife duet, "'Do you remember?' 'How can I forget?'" easily obviates the difficulty of the two characters not being wedded by "making believe" they have been tied together for years. Great success has attended this duet's production, likewise, at notably the Crystal Palace, at Plymouth, and elsewhere. Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers.

AT Fulham Miss Nora Wadeley, the charming principal girl, has made a tremendous hit with "Sue, Sue, Sue," Messrs. Francis and Day's charming song. Of this number, at Nottingham likewise, the Guardian says, in speaking of its delightful rendering by Miss Cressie Leonard:—"It reaches a high level of excellence, and is one of the rare coon songs to which one can listen with the greatest enjoyment."

MR. WILL GODWIN at the Metropolitan is meeting with huge success with his new chorus song, written and composed by Harry Castling, entitled "On the banks of the old canal." It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS MARIE GEORGE gets a round after each verse and chorus of Messrs. Francis and Day's "I'm afraid to come home in the dark," which is only to be expected when a great song and a first-class artist come into conjunction.

AT the Theatre Royal, Bristol, Miss Ethel Hall, the charming Boy Blue, has been carrying the tremendous audiences by her rendition of Messrs. Francis and Day's "Oh! Oh! Antonio," and one of the principal papers declares that the multitudes of patrons at each performance claim "Antonio" as their song and not Boy Blue's!

THE great dailies of the provinces are according a full meed of praise to Messrs. Francis and Day's "My girl's a Yorkshire girl," which is one of the greatest pantomime hits of the time, the Yorkshire Post, the Yorkshire Observer, and the Sheffield Independent being particularly loud in their praises. Enormous orders for copies are being received by every post by the publishers.

MR. R. G. KNOWLES, who opened at the Lincoln-square Theatre, New York, on the 14th ult., had a great reception, his song, "L.S.D.," by Wilmott and Darewski, being voted the "real thing." Mr. Knowles is singing more and pattering less than formerly.

BRANSBY WILLIAMS, MOTORIST.

The sphere of the motor-car is wide in its extent, and to none does its usefulness and its many other advantages appeal more than to members of the variety stage. By its means they are able to accept engagements in halls situated at long distances which would be quite impracticable by horse conveyance or by railway. One of the earliest to use a car professionally was Mr. Bransby Williams, whose delightful and artistic renderings of the characters from Charles Dickens undoubtedly stamp him as the finest exponent of the works of the great novelist. Mr. Williams has used a Napier car for a long time past, and has chosen as his new car one of the 15 h.p. noiseless Napier landaulettes as being the car that would fulfil his requirements by running with dead regularity night after night across London—in many cases where two houses a night prevail making four journeys per night. One hardly realises the strenuous life behind the scenes. Balham to Poplar and back twice in an evening, or Ealing to Brixton, an equally far cry.

To keep undeviating time, and so obviate upsetting the management's arrangements or disappointing the public, one must have a reliable car. Mr. Williams realises this, and has never kept the horse waiting or missed his turn whilst using a Napier. He also runs his Napier for his provincial engagements, and does his journeys to all the large towns in it. The photograph of him standing beside his new noiseless Napier is an excellent likeness, and shows the details of the car well. The extra high luggage-rail on the roof will be observed. Their great utility is more apparent to the artist than to the layman; for Mr. Williams travels with rather large property baskets.

KITTEE RAYBURN,

AT THE LYRIC OPERA HOUSE, HAMMERSMITH.

Daily Telegraph:—
A gorgeous Prince Amoroso. The music of her songs is bright and catchy, of which she has several, the most notable, "Canada," "It seems to make the sun shine brighter," the choruses of which were sung by the audience with great enthusiasm.

Daily Mail:—
Judging by the principal boy's reception, she will prove one of the most successful. Her song "Won't you come to me in Canada?" (a copy of which was recently accepted by the Prince of Wales) is the hit of the performance.

Referee:—
There are many pretty songs in this pantomime, "It seems to make the sun shine brighter," "The Starlight Girl," and notably "Won't you come to me in Canada?" with which graceful Miss Kittee Rayburn brings down the house.

People:—
The chief character, Prince Amoroso, is sustained by Miss Kittee Rayburn, a lady who has a great reputation on the halls. Her songs bring down the house. We may add that together with the rendering of the character this dainty little lady is one of the mainstays of the show.

Westminster Gazette:—
Kittee Rayburn makes a handsome and vivacious Prince. A feature of this pantomime is that she sings only her own songs, the proceeds from the sale of which she is devoting to the Unemployed, which fund should benefit substantially judging by the enthusiasm with which "Won't you come to me in Canada?" was received and encored again and again.

Stage:—
Undoubtedly the chief honours of the pantomime must be accorded to Miss Kittee Rayburn. Her brightness and pleasing way win the hearts of her audiences, and her vocal numbers are admirably rendered. She knows how to sing effectively and make the most of her songs, so that the encores are continuous. "From the lips of your Starlight Girl," "Canada" (an exceedingly popular number), and another very good song, "When you know you've got a pal somewhere." In a topical duet with Mr. Henry De Solla (Lawyer Slyfox) entitled "By and by" many recalls are demanded.

Performer:—
Kittee Rayburn as principal boy not only won the hearts of the Hammersmithites, but of her fellow artists as well. "Won't you come to me in Canada?" took the house by storm.

Mr. Brydon Phillips, the producer of the pantomime, writes on the 27/12/'08:—Dear Miss Rayburn,—I feel I must write and thank you for your most admirable efforts last night at the Lyric, Hammersmith.

Mr. F. S. Jennings, the Resident-Manager of the Lyric, Hammersmith, personally congratulated Miss Rayburn upon her admirable performance on Boxing Night.

THE TIVOLI.

The inclement weather notwithstanding, the Tivoli has been well filled by hilarious audiences determined to make the best of the rapid climatic changes of dear old London. Frost and fog have exercised their sway outside; but inside good business has killed the one, and Mr. Joe Wilson's broad expansive smile "scotched" the other. Mr. Henri De Vries, who was recently seen here in Page 97, a protean drametta of considerable ingenuity, brings along a sketch of a much lighter texture, known as A Modern Othello. There are three characters—O'Thellow, Mona (his wife), and Mr. C. Larkson (a wig-maker). The Cassio in this instance who causes the jealousy is the last-mentioned. It is supposed that the young wife has, unknown to her spouse, been in treaty with Larkson for a "transformation." Portions of a letter, some suspicious-looking marks on a blotter, and other trifles supply "confirmation strong" of the wife's dalliance with the wig-maker, who has a very warm time when he calls on "Othello," whose onslaught evokes considerable laughter. Of course, the mistake is cleared up. The piece, which is from the pens of Ina Leon Cassilis and Auguste Van Biene, has no particular merit; but it is well played by Mr. de Vries, Miss Dorothy Drake, and Mr. Arthur Stanley. Charles His Friend, which was originally produced last year at the Palace Theatre, is a trifle that enables Mr. Courtice Pounds to display his excellent voice. He has in Miss Pearl Keats a delightfully vivacious actress, who plays the part of the maid.

Mr. Arthur Lester once again presents A Restaurant Episode, which has been so cleverly elaborated that in every line there is a laugh. Mr. Lester's style is his own, and, in consequence, he is equally acceptable on both the variety and theatrical stage. He is capably supported by Miss Gwen Howard. The house rocks with laughter when Little Tich appears as a policeman; and there is nothing funnier in the bill than Mr. Tom Dunville's "Territorialist." Mr. Haldane should certainly make his acquaintance. The comedian's description of a thin horse is exceedingly diverting. Miss Marie Lloyd, the very personification of jollity and hilarity, as an elderly aspirant for the hymeneal knot, illustrates also with a vast amount of cleverness the power of eyes that are continually on the wink—a distant echo of an earlier triumph in her career. Mr. George Formby sets everyone laughing by his Lancashire humour in "One of the boys." Orpheus opens the programme with well-played instrumental selections; Miss Minnie Mace dances daintily; the San Remo Girls are well received; Hilda Jacobsen sings effectively a popular chorus song; Les Marbas are clever and attractive acrobatic dancers; and other turns include Charles Whittle, Jordan and Harvey, Desroches and Bianca, May Moore Duprez, Cole and Rags, and Ruffell's Bioscope.

THE Oldham Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd., opened their newest house of entertainment on Christmas Eve, with a new version of Aladdin, produced by Mr. E. Dottridge, the general-manager. The theatre stands in a prominent position within easy reach of all tramway routes, being situated near the centre of the town, the main entrance opening on King-street, and the remaining entrances in Chaucer-street. The building presents a very attractive and imposing appearance on the outside.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MESSRS. B. FELDMAN AND CO. are very gratified with the following letter received from Mr. G. H. Elliott. It speaks for itself:—"Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, Dec. 30. Dear Mr. Feldman,—You will be very delighted to know your song, 'I want you to see my girl,' is a terrific hit, sensational success. The following will prove it. First of all the song has one of the hardest situations in this pantomime; it is the last solo song in the show; it is sung by myself in a front scene (front cloth) the scene before the Palace. On our opening night I went on to sing this song at 11.5 p.m., and at the finish there was a storm of applause, cheered to the scho. Being so late the encore was tried to be cut, but after several calls the audience would not allow it to go, and insisted on more, and the encore saw a couple more genuine calls. So when you consider the song followed every song in the pantomime and then went with a storm it shows the merit of the song. Boxing Night it was two minutes to eleven when I sang it, and about 10.47 p.m. or 10.45 p.m. since Boxing Day. Please accept my very best wishes for the New Year. Wishing you a happy, healthy, and prosperous New Year, with best wishes and regards, sincerely yours (signed) G. H. Elliott."

MISS DORA LYRIC, one of our greatest chorus singers, opens on Monday at the Oxford and Crouch End with the latest and greatest hit of the year, "If I should plant a tiny seed of love in the garden of your heart."

FIVE HUNDRED telegrams from all parts of the kingdom chronicle the sensational success of Messrs. B. Feldman and Co.'s pantomime songs. This firm, long famous for its wonderful successes, have broken all their past great records this season, and are to be heartily congratulated on this fact.

TOM E. MURRAY, who is this season the principal comedian at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, has, through M. Witmark and Sons, issued a delightful volume of monologues, cross talk, and odd jokes, which he calls "Tales I have told." The success of the book is proven by the fact that on the very day it was published it was taken up by the railway book-stalls, and is already enjoying a big sale. There is a laugh in every line, and it will be invaluable to all entertainers, professional and amateur alike.

MISS DOROTHY FIRMIN, the charming principal girl at the Coronet pantomime, scored a first-night hit with the delightful ballad "Some day you'll come back to me." This is another gem from the Witmark catalogue.

FEW managers are as painstaking and artistic in presenting a song as Mr. Rich. Waldon, the manager of the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow. In his present pantomime he has excelled himself by the beautiful and original environment he has given to the song "As long as the world rolls on," sung by Miss Ivy Proudfoot and a full chorus. No more elaborate or effective finale for a first part of a pantomime has ever been seen, and the song is immediately caught up by the delighted audience.

IN every important pantomime the quaint strains of "Teddy Bear's Picnic" will be heard. Not since "Hiawatha" has a melody caught on so quickly. Mr. John W. Bratton, the composer who gave us "My cosy corner girl" and countless other infectious melodies, is to be heartily congratulated and likewise the publishers, M. Witmark and Sons.

BASS vocalists, who have scored with H. W. Petrie's famous song, "Asleep in the deep," will be glad to hear that Messrs. Sheard and Co. will shortly publish a splendid new bass song by the same composer entitled "At night on the stormy deep," which they consider a worthy successor and a song that is sure to give satisfaction.

MR. PETRIE has also entrusted Messrs. Sheard with the publication of his new vocal waltz, "Starlight," which will also be issued in the course of a few days. Fairy queens and soprano and mezzo vocalists generally should secure a copy at once, as it is a bright, flowing, and melodious composition.

A BOOM in roller skating is with us again. Messrs. Sheard inform us that they have accepted a new chorus song on the subject called "Two pair of rollers and a girl," by J. W. Sandys, a new writer who they think will be sure to make a name for himself. It will shortly be published in conjunction with another song by the same author entitled "The faithless Frau."

ON Boxing Night, at the Town Hall, Burslem, Mr. T. Colclough (baritone) received a most flattering reception with Stanley Gordon's fine song "When the ebbtide flows." The North Staffs. orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. John Cope, accompanied the vocalist.

MR. BALLARD MACDONALD writes Messrs. Sheard from New York that he has placed his song, "Who'd like to pay for my holiday?" introduced in this country by Miss Yolande Noble, with two first-rate American artists. The song will shortly be issued in New York by Messrs. J. W. Stern and Co.

MESSRS. SHEARD wish to call the attention of illustrated song vocalists to their advertisement on page 41, wherein they announce that they are supplying coloured lantern slides, for six of their popular songs, at half price during the month of January only.

A FEW weeks since Messrs. Sheard announced the publication of the pretty little song "The wedding of the stars," by J. Anton Dailey, composer of "Dreaming" and "Sweetheart Days." They have now to announce that they have been fortunate enough to secure the British and Colonial rights of Mr. Dailey's latest song hit, "When I look into your eyes." It is a dainty ditty for sweethearts, and forms a first-class number for principal boys.

MR. COLIN COOP has found another winner in Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's latest song "Run away from old man goblin," at the Grand Theatre, Leeds. It scored instantaneous success.

MESSRS. PRICE AND REYNOLDS make a special feature of songs suitable for children, and their latest find is Wilson and Jaxon's pretty fairy song "The Pixy and the Iris," beautifully worked in Mr. John Hart's pantomimes.

MISS ANNIE SCHUBERTH, the operatic soprano, playing Fairy Queen at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, wires Messrs. Price and Reynolds. "'If the world were mine to give' terrific success." This song promises to be the hit of Mr. John Hart's pantomime.

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT, playing Jill at the Marlborough, scored with three of Price and Reynolds's songs—"Maidie and her little Teddy bear," "Father's got a job," and "Mother is the leader of society."

MISS DAISY WOOD LLOYD is making a huge success with her sister Alice's song, "You splash me and I'll splash you," at Bristol.

BOXING DAY AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

The pleasures of the Palace at Sydenham were enjoyed by a vast crowd on Boxing Day, when Mr. Geo. O. Starr put forward a most attractive series of amusements lasting throughout the day. Two enormous audiences were drawn to the theatre, where Mr. Bannister Howard presented his pantomime Robinson Crusoe, of which a notice appears on another page. The giant Christmas-tree, laden with a profusion of toys, decorated, as of yore, the South Nave, where also was established Ye Olde English Circus, run by Mr. Fred J. Connor, of which three performances were given to large audiences. The programme included the best circus talent available, and was full of interest. Mr. John Irvin is a fearless equestrian, and his juggling feats on a bareback horse, in the course of which he manages to send small discs spinning through paper hoops and catch them on a stick, aroused much wonderment; Miss Douglas, in a high school act, put her steed through many graceful manœuvres; and Little Mona Connor rode her pony Shamrock through a daring hurdle act, posing in varied positions, and catching up a flag from the ground while dashing Mazeppa-like round the ring. A novel and varied performance was submitted by Miss Ada Pinder, who excels in equestrian exercises. Her collie dogs accomplished some smart tricks, and a pretty finale was furnished when a flight of pigeons were let loose, and perched themselves on her head and shoulders, and even on the gun which she discharged. The Four Kellys, described as America's premier troupe of acrobats, did some expert tumbling, and clever foot equilibrism was furnished by Mons. Jean. An attractive young lady, aptly called La Belle Duchess, has among her company of intelligent animals a couple of stallions, who engaged in a boxing contest with marvellous spirit, while her ponies and dogs were equal to sitting down to a dinner party. The most exciting item of her performance came with the high-leaping feats of a number of hounds, who cleared fences some ten or a dozen feet in height amid enthusiastic applause. A pound a minute was to be earned by anyone able to ride Sunny Jim, a mule owned by Happy Hicks, round the ring in approved style, and similar inducements were offered to those who could maintain their equilibrium on his revolving table. The efforts of several participants on Boxing Day caused great fun, though but little apparent reward for those who essayed either feat. The clown element in the circus is liberally provided. Whimsical Walker, who was a notable success of last year's show, is instrumental in provoking endless laughter with his oddities; Bishop and Winkles also create unlimited mirth with diverting conceits; and the Brothers Austin combined with their quaint comedy a skilful chair turn. At the end of the performance Father Christmas issued forth with his escort of clowns to distribute toys to the children.

All the fun of the fair was to be found in the South Nave, where Ye Yuletide Fayre was located. Thriving business was done by Hyatt's galloping horses and cockerels, swings, racing motors and bicycles, and the houp-la; while the aerial flight or Slide for Life, the Haunted House, the Search for the Suffragette, Miss Nellie Hyatt's juvenile motor roundabouts and swings, Bailey's royal Punch and Judy show appealed successfully for support.

Crowds collected round the skating-rink in the North Nave, where a football match on rollers proved both exciting and amusing. The Palace has ever been the stronghold of roller-skating, and the present revival of the exhilarating sport must be due in a great measure to the consistent way in which it has been fostered at the Palace. Its specially prepared rink furnishes one of the finest surfaces to be found anywhere, as the thousands who donned the skates on Boxing Day were all eager to admit.

Mr. Robert Leadbetter's fine collection of wild animals still occupies its accustomed position on the North Tower Garden Terrace, and furnishes a most interesting exhibit. The menagerie contains nine lions, a magnificent specimen of the race being found in Prince, one of the largest in the country, who was born in the menagerie. Royal Bengal tigers, a pack of Siberian and Canadian wolves, camels, Prince Albert (the huge Alaska bear), Tree-ilby (the baby camel), Babs (the baby elephant) are all on view, and form a most entertaining and instructive show. It is indeed one of the finest zoological collections ever put before the public.

The Auxeto Gramophone supplied selections from Patti, Melba, Caruso, and other celebrated vocalists in the Concert-room, to which admission is free, and numberless exhibitions and museums kept the attention of the holiday crowds on the alert. Popular organ recitals were given by Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, and the Crystal Palace Band did yeoman service under the direction of Mr. Herbert Godfrey.

MESSRS. MORLEY AND CO. have found a huge success in Miss Edith Fortescue's latest song "Starshine." Talbot and Pearce have introduced this number into their latest Japanese sketch, now on a six months' tour. Miss Florence Esdaile, who sailed on s.s. Galeka last Saturday for South Africa, will make "Starshine" her leading song at the Empire, Johannesburg.

"STARSHINE" has proved a big pantomime winner. Miss Rita Vincent had made a big hit with it at Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield. Mr. Peter Davey has specially featured "Starshine" at his Royal County Theatre, Kingston, pantomime, where it is sung by Miss Alice Coverick; and the following are a few amongst a whole host of artists now singing "Starshine":—Miss Marie Beresford, Miss Rosina Effingham, Miss Violet Baynton, Miss Gladys Hicks, Miss Margaret Seymour, Miss Celia Sarron, Miss Lou Charlesworth, Mlle. Rina Benita, Miss Mina May, and Miss Phyllis Hylton.

LANTERN slides of "Starshine" are issued by Bamforth and Co., of Holmfirth, Yorks, and considering the fact that they are considered the finest slides issued, they are bound to be very largely used.

WILKIE BARD'S great song "Put me upon an island where the girls are few" has turned out to be the big Drury Lane winner this year. It has a chorus never to be forgotten, and judging from the exceptionally fine Press notices from all the leading newspapers it will undoubtedly be sung, played, and whistled at every street corner for months to come. It is published by the National Music Publishing Co., 132, Charing Cross-road. They have reserved it exclusively for London for Mr. Bard, but will give permission to all comedians playing in provincial pantos.

LOWENWIRTH AND COHAN'S magnetic chorus song, "My little Eva," which the National Music Publishing Co. have so highly recommended for pantomime, has undoubtedly turned out a great winner. It is being sung in almost every pantomime this year, and those who had not secured it before their opening are now applying for it. Good judges, too.

"WHEN the leaves are tinged with gold" (that 100 guinea song), written by J. F. Lambe, composed and sung by Fred Elton, and made free for pantomime by the National Music Co., has turned out a winner. Miss Madoline Rees had the audience absolutely cheering with it at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, on Boxing Night. The numerous other artists singing it report exactly the same success.

"TO-MORROW."
OR,
THE STORY THAT NEVER GROWS OLD.

A Spectacle, in Two Parts and Six Tableaux, produced by Bolossy Kiralfy and Frank Parker at the London Hippodrome on Christmas Eve.

Willie .....MASTER JAMES HOLLOM
Mildred .....MISS BEATRICE WILLEY
Albert .....MR. STUART ALEXANDER
"Happy-ever-after" Fairy ..MISS GRACE GRAY
"Snowflake" Fairy .....MISS MAY HOLLOM
Red Pot .....MR. O. E. LENNON

Mr. Oswald Stoll in securing the services of Mr. Bolossy Kiralfy to supply the Hippodrome novelty for Christmas has not only engaged one of the greatest metteurs-en-scène of the time, but has practically given him carte blanche. The result is that To-Morrow marks a very advanced development in arenic spectacle. Remarkable ingenuity has been shown in utilising the stage in conjunction with the arena, and the vista of loveliness in the last scene will long be a joyous remembrance to the cohorts of kiddies for whose enjoyment To-Morrow has been specially prepared. It is really quite an eye-opener for the grown-ups, who naturally cling to the conventional belief that the possibilities of the ring as the home of scenic magnificence are very limited. The production indeed creates a record in hippodramatic magnificence, if we may be allowed to use the phrase, and in its accomplishment we should mention Mr. Frank Parker, who has given his ingenious help and the benefit of his large experience in the staging of the spectacle.

When the circular curtain rises we are shown the reception hall of Mr. Barrington's house on Christmas Eve. The children are just off to bed, all of them anticipating the pleasure of "to-morrow," except Willie, who inquiringly asks why isn't to-morrow to-day? He falls asleep, and discovers in dreamland a land of promise and fulfilment. A hurried interview with Father Time precedes his first meeting with Santa Claus, a merry old soul indeed, who transports Willie to the region where Santa's toys are made. The realms of Lowther Arcadia surely never had a braver or a quainter array of characters. Fairies, harlequins, hobby-horses, columbines, Teddy bears, clowns, dolls, punchinellos, woolly rabbits, gnomes, roosters march in procession and dance before Willie's astonished eyes as he comes down a faerie staircase that has a translucent glow. Holding the hand of his kindly guide he expresses himself satisfied. He has the further novel experience of being driven back to his own home in a sledge drawn by a couple of reindeer. He wakes up on Christmas morning to find his stocking well filled and toys galore. Here the little story ends; but the last scene, "the entertainment of peace and love" on New Year's Eve, is not only the crowning joy of the spectacle, but sounds a note of Imperial triumph. Rich in allegorical suggestion, imposing in its magnificence, and glowing with colour, the picture presented is the perfection of stage grouping. The back of the stage is decorated with a gigantic Christmas-tree, carrying living dolls, and stretching away, is the gorgeously-dressed procession headed by Britannia clothed in the Union Jack, and riding in a golden chariot drawn by three milk-white steeds. Other figures typify Industry, Commerce, Science, Art, and Agriculture. Banners are held on high, flags wave in the air, and the huge Imperial garland floating over the scene in its ascent bears with it gossamer-winged fairies. A final blare from the trumpets of Herr Errhorn's excellent orchestra is the signal for a blaze of light, no less than 15,000 electric lamps shedding their incandescence on a very beautiful and finely-imagined spectacle.

A very slight love story is outlined in the first scene, where Albert asks for Mildred's hand. Mildred is extremely well played by Miss Beatrice Willey, who scores in her numbers. She is joined in a duet by Mr. Stuart Alexander, but this number, no doubt, will become more effective with repetition. Master James Hollom, who represents Willie, is intelligent and distinct; and we have an occasional spell of fun from Mr. O. E. Lennon who joins Miss May Hollom, the "Snowflake" fairy, in a duet and dance. The music by Paolo Giorza is particularly melodious, the dance measures being most exhilarating. In the last scene the strains are, of course, more grandiose and triumphant, and here we have agreeable reminiscences of Wagner. The costumes—a feast for the eye—have been designed by A. Edel, and Mr. Willie Clarkson has, as usual, done much excellent work in the wigging department. The engineering chief, Mr. H. W. Hawkins, should also be mentioned.

In the variety portion of the entertainment we have an exhibition of wire-walking by Caicedo which has won applause in all parts of the world. He is as agile, as intrepid, and as graceful as ever in his somersaulting on the "thread." By the facility of his movements he puts the spectator quite at their ease. The Dunedin Family of cyclists have also achieved fame in all parts of the world, and have richly deserved their triumphs. Such genuine ability, such an apparently easy conquest of difficulties, such perfectly developed control of balance are rarely to be witnessed in the world of the wheel. The two pretty girls are delightful to watch, and we say this without in any way wishing to discount the merits of their big brother's marvellous series of tricks on a safety, culminating in a perambulation of a tight wire with a machine which he "mains" to one wheel. We have an interesting exhibition of pictures by the Pathégraph; fun is supplied with complete success by the Fratellinis; Rochez's performing monkeys are quaint creatures that cause much diversion; a very remarkable instance of cleverness in training is to be observed in the performing zebras, elephant, horses, and dogs, introduced by the Corradinis; and the Huxter Brothers, in a leaping act, and the Lumars, on the electrical horizontal bar, are other attractions. The much-travelled Mr. Fred Trussell, who has been receiving many cordial and seasonable congratulations, courteously sustains the best traditions of management here.

MASONS AT WORK.

An extra emergency meeting of the Chelsea Lodge No. 3098 was recently held at the Town Hall, Chelsea, the primary reason for holding same being to allow (by courtesy and permission of the reigning Master Mr. Henry Coutts) Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon to initiate one of his sons, who was about to return to Canada, into the secrets and mysteries of the craft. There was a larger attendance of the members than could have been expected, having regard to so great a number being away fulfilling pantomime engagements. The Lodge was formed by Messrs. Serpentello, acting W.M.; Albert Le Fre, I.P.M.; W. H. Atlas, acting S.W.; Harry Bown, J.W.; Wolfe S. Lyon, Treasurer; C. J. Doughty, Secretary; W. F. K. Walton, S.D.; James S. Lyon, acting J.D.; Douglas White, acting I.G.; and Willie Benn, acting Organist; A. E. Micklin, E. T. R. Lester, Stewards; and J. H. Macnaughton, Tyler. After opening the Lodge, Mr. Serpentello vacated the chair in favour of Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon, who initiated Messrs. Horace O'Malley and James E. Dunedin, in addition to his son, Alfred E. Lyon. The members present comprised Messrs. James W. Mathews (the first Master of the Lodge), Herbert Choneng, Henry Crocker, Bonker Andrews, J. W. Ellison, H. C. Lovell, R. E. Wilding, Tom Edwards, Augustus Dale, Frank Hardie, J. Grant, E. H. Seener, B. Fridkin, Herbert La Martine, Horace Arondale, Leon Zeitlen, T. G. Davis, &c., &c.; and the following visitors:—J. Worth, P.A.G.P.; A. Solomons, W.M., Thorn Mill Lodge 3163; Harry Ray, Liverpool Dramatic 1609; Tom Clare, Lyric 3016; W. Kelly, Loyal and Royal 2952; N. S. Lyon, Joppa 188; and Hamilton Hill, Cannon 1539.

"THE BLIND MUSICIAN."

Rowland Lucas .....MR. S. F. PERCY
Mrs. Rowland Lucas ....MISS DAVIES WEBSTER
Richard Digby .....MR. GEORGE LYTTLETON
Winnie .....MISS G. HASTINGS WALTON
Dorothy .....MISS ROBERTS PULLEYNER

This little play, which is set in three scenes, has no doubt seen the light owing to the success achieved by M. Van Biene with his evergreen Broken Melody. It has not the same interest running through it, but gave pleasure to the large audience at this popular hall on Monday.

The theme throughout is the very old one of a married lady's love for another man, this time an utter scoundrel. Rowland Lucas is a blind musician, and he is married to a beautiful woman, but she, instead of helping him in his affliction, takes advantage of his misfortune and encourages the attentions of Richard Digby, a man engaged to their daughter. This scoundrel betrays Mrs. Lucas, with the inevitable result that the "blind musician" discovers the blow to his family honour, and, taking the advice of his old mother, practically turns his wretched wife out of the house.

In Scene 2 we find Mrs. Lucas at a London hotel, bitterly regretting her folly. Digby enters, and endeavours to persuade her to share his flat, and offers her some pearls he has stolen. She is about to refuse both his home and pearls, when Rowland's mother and daughter arrive, and prevail on the unfortunate lady to return to her husband, and in future to lead a virtuous life. Feeling keenly the trouble she has brought on her husband, needless to add she cheerfully accepts this offer. Scene 3 sees a reconciliation between the kind-hearted blind musician and his erring wife. Mr. John Jackson's sketch is wanting in that briskness so essential to the music-hall playlet, and the dialogue at times is weak. A Blind Musician gives Mr. S. F. Percy, for whom the sketch is written, exceptional opportunities for two violin solos, and undoubtedly could the dialogue be much cut down, and this clever artist supplied with more solos, it might ensure success. Miss Davies Webster is excellent as Mrs. Lucas; Mr. George Lyttleton sufficiently plausible as the betrayer (Digby); and Miss G. Hastings Walton (Winnie) and Miss Roberts Pulleyne (Dorothy) also are helpful in their respective parts.

The Empress bill also includes that clever comedian, Mr. John Lawson, in Pigs in Clover; Cecil Merry and company in their capital sketch, The Barrister's Dilemma; Tom Woottwell proves amusing with his capital songs; the Two Anartos give a really clever eccentric act; Miss Rose Dearing is heard to great advantage in her song "A tip I got from mother"; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto are entertaining in their laughable cycling episode; Miss Dorothy Gould, Miss Chummie La Mara, Monty Walker, Jolly Jimmy Walker, Lydia and Amelys, all add to a splendid holiday bill, which reflects credit on the enterprising management.

FUNERAL OF MR. SWANBOROUGH.

The funeral of Mr. Edward Swanborough, who died at the age of 68, after a long illness, on Dec. 21, took place at Brompton Cemetery on Thursday, 24th. The mourners included Mrs. Lyon (only surviving sister), Mr. H. Swanborough (son), Mr. W. S. Lyon, Capt. and Mrs. F. Lyon, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Henri Gros, Mr. Henry Tozer, Mr. J. Norman Berlin (representing staff of Chelsea Palace), Mr. Doughty (who, with Mr. Lyon, represented the Chelsea Lodge of Freemasons), Mr. F. H. Pedgrift ("The Era"), Mr. Frank Hardie (members of the same lodge), Mr. James Weaver and Mr. A. Chenery (representing the Lodge of Asaph, of which Lodge deceased had been Past Master), and Mr. Hugh Astley (for directors of London Pavilion).

The beautiful floral offerings from the family and friends included wreaths from Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Henri Gros, Mr. Beauclerk, Mrs. and Miss Stevens, and Dr. and Mrs. Blaikie; also very handsome wreaths from the directors, staff, and orchestra of Chelsea Palace, directors of London Pavilion, brethren of Chelsea Lodge of Freemasons, and brethren of Lodge of Asaph.

Unfortunately, owing to the fact that it was Christmas week, the funeral arrangements (which were quietly and efficiently carried out by Messrs Garstin) had to be hurried, and many colleagues and friends have expressed regret at knowing too late to send floral tributes or to attend. Edward Swanborough, from his genial, kindly nature, died universally regretted by those who knew him. He bore his three years' suffering very bravely, trying to make the best of it to the last. The deceased gentleman married Miss Fanny Hughes, a most attractive actress of the seventies, who predeceased him.

THE LATE MR. EDWARD SWANBOROUGH.

"THE CONQUERING HERO."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I note in your issue of last week the report of a sketch, produced by a Mr. Leon M. Lion, under the title of The Conquering Hero. This bears a remarkable resemblance, in practically every particular, to a sketch written and produced by myself last autumn, entitled The Courage of Charlie. This sketch, with Mr. Eustace Sydney as Charley, Mr. George Mortimer as the Burglar, and Miss Shirley Dalton as Mrs. Charley, first saw the light at the Palace, Greenwich, and has since been played by my Collar Stud company on many occasions.

I note also in your comments on the Metropolitan production that something of the same kind had been done previously upon the legitimate stage as a curtain-raiser. If such is the case, the coincidence of a similarity of ideas is still more extraordinary.—Yours faithfully,

HUBERT BARTLETT.

Hippodrome, Putney, Dec. 23.

NEW YEAR'S COLLECTION FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

In again directing the attention of our readers to The Era New Year's Shilling Fund on behalf of the Music Hall Home we are in the happy position of being able to associate with the appeal thus being made the name of the foremost music hall comedienne—Miss Marie Lloyd. It seems scarcely necessary to remind our readers of the deep interest Miss Lloyd has ever taken in matters affecting the welfare of her brothers and sisters of the variety profession. It is her desire that her "year" will be marked by a considerable increase in the subscriptions of previous years, and she therefore, through The Era, commends the Music Hall Home to the charitably-minded. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, the President of the Fund, is again this year exerting himself in its behalf, and this fact is sufficient indication that he is satisfied as to the way in which the institution is being conducted, and that he considers it worthy of support.

Mr. Ben Woodger, the secretary of the Music Hall Home, tells us that last year (1907) the inmates averaged ten, but that this year there have been as many as twelve. The address of the Home is 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, and there the matron (Mrs. Fruin) busies herself for the comfort and convenience of her "family." At present there are eleven of these, and the desire is to increase the number, which can only be done when sufficient funds for the purpose are collected. During the past twelve months three or four of the inmates have recovered their health and strength sufficiently to enable them to look for engagements. These secured, they left the Home, and the vacancies thereby created were immediately filled up. Now, this Home requires keeping up, and it cannot be kept up on air. There is no need for us to refer to all the good work which has been performed by the institution in the past, as that must for the most part be within the recollection of our readers. The ages of the inmates range from fifty to seventy-six. In all probability these men will be maintained in the Home until the day of their death, and their funeral expenses paid for out of the funds of the Home.

The Era New Year's Shilling Fund is the main source of income to the Home, and this means of sustenance is added to by the donations of artists, either given directly, or through the collecting boxes through which many managers of variety theatres collect pennies from "dead-heads" and from artists who desire free admission.

This year Mr. Woodger is endeavouring to get out six hundred Era Shilling Fund collecting cards, and anyone can be supplied with one by sending a postcard to Mr. Woodger.

Briefly, we may once more repeat that the objects of the Music Hall Home Fund are to provide shelter for deserving members of the variety profession who have been stricken with poverty or illness in their declining years, or who have in other ways fallen on evil times. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the hon. treasurer, will be pleased to receive filled-up collecting cards addressed to him at The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., and to acknowledge them in these columns.

MISS GRACIE MORTIMER.

Little Gracie Mortimer, who has made a really artistic success as the boy babe, Reggie, in the Elephant and Castle pantomime Babes in the Wood, is the only surviving daughter of the popular sketch producer Mr. Leonard Mortimer. Her father had no intention of placing Gracie on the stage; but a few years ago, at the South London Palace, he was very glad to utilise her services—a little child actress being suddenly taken ill—so at the age of seven little Miss Mortimer made her London début in The Undesired.

She has had no stage tuition whatsoever, excepting Mr. Mortimer's instruction to "always be natural, Gracie; but if you want to break your father's heart become a 'theatrical' child, talk as 'shoppy' as your elders, and use eye-black in the daytime"! It is her childish freshness and her easy adaptability to the stage that has won her many friends before and behind the curtain at the Elephant and Castle Theatre—her first professional engagement away from her father's companies, and her first pantomime.

At the conclusion of her engagement with Messrs. Lester Collingwood and Charles Barnard, she will be fully equipped with an excellent supply of original songs and dainty dresses, and launched upon a music hall and musical comedy career.

MISS GRACIE MORTIMER.

THE Rue des Martyrs, Paris, was the scene of the amusing escapade on Tuesday afternoon of "Toto," a pet monkey belonging to Mlle. Yvonne Silvestre, a young and charming actress. During his mistress's absence, "Toto" got out of the window, and, after cautiously letting himself down a drain-pipe, alighted at last in the midst of a quantity of goods exposed for sale outside a fine grocer's shop. There, "Toto" found nuts, raisins, and figs; and there, for some moments, to the delight of the crowd that immediately assembled, "Toto" made an excellent meal.

PANTOMIME AT HENGLER'S.

The admirably-appointed equestrian establishment in Argyll-street has come under the ever-widening control of Mr. Walter Gibbons, who has had the house cleaned and renovated, and on Boxing Day made a contribution to the Christmas entertainments with a production of Cinderella played almost entirely in pantomime. The transformation of the ring into a woodland glade, afterwards to a realistic kitchen, and then into the ball-room of a Palace, was a veritable revelation of the art of scene setting. The ball-room, indeed, furnished a most artistic spectacle, with festoons of flowers reaching from the ceiling to marble pillars similarly decorated, while handsome settees and appointments completed the illusion. The story of the little Cinderwench is embellished by novel features. A gay and festive rustic dance precedes the appearance of the Baron and his unprepossessing daughters, who indulge in a picnic. Cinderella comes to collect fuel, and renders assistance to an old woman, who promises her fortune. The Fairy Godmother exercises her beneficent influence in the second scene, that of the Baron's kitchen, when the traditional series of transformations take place, and Cinderella, her rags changed to silks and satins, departs for the ball in a magnificent carriage, drawn by miniature ponies. Cinderella's arrival at the ball, her subsequent flight minus a shoe, and her final triumph, when the glass slipper is fitted on her foot, are all depicted with striking fidelity, and the piece ends in a scene of splendour. A number of interesting engagements have been made for the pantomime. A welcome reappearance is made by Miss Vera Beringer, who, as the Fairy Godmother, has most of the dialogue, and speaks it with much elocutionary ability. An able actress is also seen in Miss Polly Emery, who returns to the West-end in the part of one of the Sisters. Her coadjutor in comedy is Mr. Deane Tribune, and together they make much fun, the scene of their toilet being very diverting. Mr. Arthur Ricketts adds to the hilarity as the Baron; and Mr. Harry Barford is a humorous Page. In the title-rôle Miss Lillian Pollard acts with girlish grace. Cinderella has a life-size "Teddy" bear for a constant companion, and her dance with him is a marvel of daintiness and skill. Miss Murielle Langley is a handsome and gallant Prince; and Miss Madge Campbell makes a dashing beau as Dandini. The gyrations of the corps de ballet, some eighty strong, are artistically performed, but a little more attention might be paid to the singing of the chorus, which, on the occasion of our visit, was lamentably weak. Music by Mr. James Sales formed a melodious accompaniment to the pantomime, which was invented and produced by Mr. Walter McEwan, the story having been written by that gentleman in conjunction with Miss Beringer.

The pantomime is preceded by a regular circus entertainment, in which clever performers take part. Miss Victoria Dagmar does difficult and graceful tricks on the horizontal bar, droll imitations of her feats being given by the clown who accompanies her. Carpet-spinning extraordinary is done by the Goldinis, who also indulge in a variety of other feats, a little girl doing some smart acrobatism and executing a clever step-dance on an iron platform, from which sparks seem to be emitted. Alf and John Frederick amaze all with double juggling on horseback; Charles and Alfred Clarke's somersaults, both on saddle and bareback, gain much admiration; Howe and Ardie, comedy ring performers, raise many a laugh; Tudor's ponies do tricks that are extraordinary; and Miss Annie Clarke does a neat equestrian act. The star turn of the ring is furnished by the Clarke Family, who do a series of surprising feats on horseback, tumbling, posing, leaping from ground to saddle, and bestriding the horse five deep with wonderful sureness and agility. The clever troupe, who have recently come from a prosperous tour on the Continent, earn quite an ovation. Performances are given twice daily at Hengler's, where Mr. Foster C. Marner is installed as manager.

Under Mr. Walter Gibbons's direction the prices have been rearranged on an extremely popular basis. Mr. Gibbons is determined that there shall be nothing cheap and nasty in the constitution of the entertainment, and the advance bookings are so attractive that he is sure the general public will appreciate the opportunity which will be given to them of seeing, for a very moderate price, a high-class entertainment, frequented by the best class of theatre-goers, and constituting an entirely new departure from the old traditions.

"MY LADY'S BOWER."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I note that Miss Zona Vevey is travelling a scene entitled My Lady's Bower. May I be permitted to say that I toured a scena under this title, 1907-08, and would be glad if you could find room for this statement, as I should not like to be accused of copying Miss Vevey's idea should I revive the scene, which I had intended to do. Thanking you in anticipation, I beg to remain, Yours faithfully, PERCY MAYE.

Tivoli, Pentre, Dec. 26, 1908.

["My Lady's Bower" is also the title of a song by Miss Hope Temple, and it was written by her about 1888.—ED., The Era.]

A CINEMATOGRAPH fire occurred in the East-end late on Monday night. It was, fortunately, unattended by any scenes of panic. It occurred in the York Minster Hall, Commercial-road. As soon as the film caught fire the manager announced that the performance was over, and the people left in good order, most of them without any idea that there had been any sign of fire.

Hyde Road, Manchester.

THE Christmas Fair at this popular suburb of Manchester was under the direction of Messrs. Hibbert and Sons, who exhibited their celebrated combination of fair-ground popular amusements. These included the fine sets of racing cockerels and electric jumping horses, steam yachts, big boats, and park swings. The other entertainers were Professor Dalma and Messrs. Chapman and Kent, with interesting side shows; J. White and Thomas's shooting concerns, and throwing games by Messrs. Murphy, Whatmore and Cottam; football penalties by Messrs. Bell, Cottam, and Nixon; houp-la maypoles by Messrs. White, Thomas, Towers R. Ingham, and Thwaites; character delineators, Messrs. Dalma and Benbar.

Marshall Hill's Fun City, Bedminster.

THE capacious fair-ground known as Organ's-yard, leased by Mr. Marshall Hill for the Christmas holidays, was most skilfully arranged, and the following excellent entertainments were provided for this thriving suburb of Bristol. Messrs. Anderton and Rowland's superb cinematograph theatre with up-to-date films proved an immense success. So also were the mystic novelties exhibited by Professor Ruby, including his well-known optical illusion La Morte. The other side-show was Mr. J. Matthews' temple of magic. The machines were provided by the lessee, and included the up-to-date novelties, the motor track, the galloping horses, flip-flap, aeroplanes, and park swings, under the direction of the proprietor and Mr. Ernest Hill.

THE juvenile swings were provided by Messrs. James and Bernard Hill, and the helter-skelter tower by Mr. Bernard Hill. Shooting concerns and throwing games, houp-la frames, and variety stalls were by the following well known West of England caterers:—Mr. J. Herbert, Professor Ruby, and members of the Hill family.

Deptford Holiday Fair.

THIS well-known fair was opened for the Christmas and New Year season on Dec. 15, for its usual run of six or seven weeks. The principal amusements on the ground are:—J. Chipperfield's cinematograph theatre, R. Chipperfield's mirror show, Taylor and Plinston's cake-walk machine, Knighton's aeroplanes, C. Cain's houp-la frame, T. Beech's football game, Irwin's galloping horses, S. Weatherhead's park swings, Bishop's shooting saloons, Knighton's cup breakers, Weatherfield's cokers, R. Chipperfield's pipe breaker, and other minor novelties.

Notes from Wales.

FRANK BOSTOCK, with his jungle of animal life, continues to be a triumphant attraction at Mountain Ash. The programme for the holidays consists of some new and extremely clever turns with trained animals. Messrs. Haggar and Son's No. 1 Bioscope under the direction of Mr. Walter Haggar are having their usual success at the same place attracting large audiences to witness their splendid range of up-to-date pictures. Mr. Haggar's No. 2 concern is stationed at Aberdare, where he is paying a most welcome visit. Mr. E. Danter with bioscope show, switchback, shooting galleries, swings, &c., is at Newport (Mon.). Mr. J. Danter is located at Barry Dock with his various amusements for the holiday season

PONTYPRIDD is rich in popular amusements for the holidays, the splendid concerns of H. Scard, Dooner and Son, and John Studt are giving the people of Pontypridd splendid exhibitions of living pictures. Messrs. H. Studt and Son are at Swansea with their celebrated machine novelties. Mr Sid White with his show and aggregation of machines is at Cardiff. Mr. Steel Parry is at Bridgend with bioscope exhibition. The permanent amusements at Cardiff include: Madame D'Arc' waxwork exhibition and Stoll's panopticon and museum of mirth.

The Annual Business Meeting of the Guild.

WE draw our readers' attention to the preliminary advertisement of the annual meeting of the Showmen's Guild at Manchester, fixed for Wednesday, Jan. 13, at four o'clock in the afternoon. Those old friends of the Guild, the Rev. H. Norburn, rector of St. Agnes' Birch, Manchester (hon. local chaplain), and Mr. Charles Howard (hon. local solicitor), have kindly promised to attend and to speak at the gathering. The meeting will be, as usual, held in the Memorial Hall, Albert-square, and will be preceded by a business meeting of the Executive Council at the headquarters of the Guild, the Black Lion Hotel, Salford, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon. Committee men within easy access of Manchester are earnestly requested to attend the business committee. The agenda paper contains a matter of great importance to the whole body of itinerant amusement-caterers. It is at this meeting that the retiring Executive Council nominates the executive for the ensuing year, the annual report and financial statement are submitted and adopted, and the whole of the business of the public meeting in the afternoon is arranged.

MR. P. COLLINS is nominated as president for 1909. There are other nominations which have been forwarded to the Guild Secretary and endorsed by the divisional committees. These new officials are men who have proved their ability and worth during the past year of arduous and important work. The nomination list is open, and, indeed, is not closed until the moment of election at the public meeting. Nominations may be sent in to the Guild Secretary, care of The Era, or to Mr. T. Hurst, hon. secretary, Broadhurst, Pendlebury, Manchester.

The Success of the Fun City, Olympia.

THEY say that money talks and so do figures, and no greater proof of the popularity of the Fun City at Olympia is required than the fact that no less than 22,347 paid for entrance on Boxing Day, while on Monday the attendance was almost as large. Crowds of holiday children have been delighted with the wonderful intelligence of Woodward's seals, which remain on the bill of the free variety show for the next week, whilst Morpheus, the Scotsman who has been asleep for thirty-five years, is the centre of a bewildered crowd from morning till night.

Central Cricket Ground, Hastings.

Crowds have been attracted during the holidays by the visit here of Mr. C. Harris's steam circus combination, which includes galloping horses, motor-cars for little folk, boat swings, pipe, cocoanut, and other shies, and a quoit bank, the latter especially having a crowd of onlookers. The visit lasted for a week.

A NEW YEAR'S WISH.

BY THE CHAPLAIN.

A Happy New Year unto you all, my dear friends
of the fair,
To wish all good things may befall, and freedom from all care
Your "Parson" hopes that in the year of nineteen hundred and nine,
Peace and prosperity may be yours, that were not in "auld lang syne."

That Corporations may be fair, and County
Councils true
Unto the showmen's interests—this is his wish for you.
Ye caterers for the people's fun, good luck attend your ways,
Who do your best for the teeming crowds, on England's holidays.

May Charters granted in olden days unbroken still remain,
May fairs and feasts and old-time wakes their wonted hold maintain.
Cinematographs and roundabouts, shows and shooters rare,
Be always to the front, the same as "All the Fun of the Fair."

THE REV. T. HORNE,
Chaplain the Showmen's Guild.

The Showmen's Guild has flourished now, full twenty years and more,
God's blessing rest upon it in the future, as of yore.
Good wishes to the founders, the executive, and all Who give their best work to its cause; and rally to its call.

Then this is the Chaplain's wish to you—to you
his dear old friends,
That the coming year brings hope fulfilled and joy that never ends,
From day to day as you go on your journeys without fear,
"For God and for good," he prays that all may have a glad New Year.

Carmarthen.

THE holiday season has meant large audiences at the Phœnix Theatre at the Carmarthen Pleasure Fairground, the plays presented being such as to draw crowded houses. The proprietor-manager, Mr. Harry Cowell, appears to strike the popular taste. On Monday evening Jane Shore was placed upon the boards; Tuesday, Emblems of the Cross; Wednesday, The Fortune Teller; Thursday, Mona; Friday, The Colleen Bawn. For Saturday afternoon a children's pantomime, Cinderella, was announced; and for Saturday evening, Charles Peace and the Two French Jack Sheppards.

Holiday Fairs at Bristol.

ON the East-street (Bedminster) ground are: Mr. John Jones's theatre of varieties and cinematograph, W. C. and S. Hancock's four-abreast galloping horses, Mr. Burton's shooting gallery and shooter, park swings and houp-la frames by Mr. J. Jones.

ON the Stapleton-road ground are: Mr. James Cole's switchback roundabout and houp-la frames, and small varieties by various caterers.

THE Jacob-street ground contains galloping horse set and helter-skelter tower by Cole Bros., and with them are the usual addenda of fun providers and minor amusement-caterers.

ON the Lawrence Hill pitch the local showman, Mr. Pruett, has located his well-known aggregation of amusements: galloping horse set, slipping the slope slide, houp-la maypoles, and stalls and varieties, with all the fun of the fair.

THE Red Cross ground is the locale of Mr. E. H. Justin's numerous modern amusements. These include cinematograph theatre, the haunted castle, the Brooklyn machine (Taylor and Plinston patent), and helter-skelter tower.

AT Hot Wells Mr. J. Herbert provides various amusements of a minor character, such as houp-la frames, Emma sheets, football penalties, &c.

SHOWMEN AND VAN-DWELLERS' PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

(THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD.)

NINETEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The close of 1908 marks the twentieth year of your organised trade defence work. Your society has won during the past twenty years an acknowledged place amongst the societies and trade unions of organised industry.

Your representatives are accepted and heard in your interests before Parliamentary Committees and at the Home Office and other great departments of State.

Twenty years ago it was thought a presumptuous thing that showmen sought by combination and by duly accredited officials to be heard as workers with a legitimate trade and business and having rights to conserve and interests to protect.

How you won your right to be heard as an organised body is now ancient history, but that right remains one of your most valuable assets, and every year's work demonstrates its increasing usefulness.

For example, this year, in connection with the Children's Bill your representative was in friendly conference with the Right Hon. Herbert Samuel, Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department, and the Guild and its work were fully understood and acknowledged. With regard to the Movable Dwellings Bill, your officials were able to open up important negotiations with the promoters of the measure, and although the concessions you sought were not obtained, there is no doubt that, by your determined stand for your rights as workers in the commonwealth, you have made a profound impression upon public opinion, and have effectively checked the promoters of class legislation.

With the resurrection this year of the Movable Dwellings Bill of 1890, with additional penal clauses and new sponsors, you were thrown once again, as at the beginning of your corporate existence, into the vortex of public agitation. Most fortunately this new agitation came at a time when, for the first year since 1898, you were free from the arduous and costly work of opposition to private Bill legislation in the Committee Rooms of Parliament.

Whilst every possible means were taken to arrive at just terms with the promoters of the Movable Dwellings Bill, the work of agitation against it was vigorously carried forward. Resolutions against it were passed at a public protest meeting at King's Lynn, the Mayor of Lynn presiding, and members of the Corporation present. At a similar public gathering at Gloucester, with the Mayor in the chair and the City Sheriff supporting the resolution against the Bill; at Hull, with a member of the City Council presiding in the absence of the Chief Magistrate; and at Rotherham, with the Mayor present and speaking in sympathy with the object of the meeting. This public sympathy and civic recognition of your organisation must be of extreme value to you, and an incentive to greater and higher endeavour in your work as entertainers of the people.

Your executive officials organised and carried out with most encouraging success protest meetings of showpeople at the great fairs of Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds, Blackburn, Huddersfield, Darlington, Oldham, Greenock, Wrexham, Leicester, Lincoln, Boston, Keighley, Bramley, Redruth, Perth, and a number of smaller fairs in various parts of the United Kingdom.

At all of these meetings petitions against the Bill were numerously signed. Your executive council acknowledge with great satisfaction the immediate and hearty response of all sections of the fairground industry to their call for support and united effort against the serious dangers threatened by the Bill. In several instances without any inspiration from your officials meetings were held, resolutions condemning the measure passed, and subscriptions obtained. In the face of a common danger every showman determined to strengthen the fighting forces of showland, and to stand shoulder to shoulder with his fellows against the enemy.

These special efforts were particularly noticeabel in Yorkshire, Lancashire, and the Northern and Midland counties, where the heart of showland beats in unison with the great heart of the people, whose fairs and holidays you maintain and defend.

As showing the solidarity of the showman world in this work of defence, it is worthy of special note that Scotland (although the Bill does not apply to that country) joined hands with their English brethren, and both at Greenock and at Ayr subscribed most liberally to the defence fund.

Your executive council in laying down the burden of responsibility you committed to them at your last annual business meeting at Manchester acknowledge with gratitude the immense help they have received from the whole body of members, and from the allied industries. Especially do they acknowledge the great help rendered by show proprietors who have lent their shows for the meetings of your society at the many fairs visited by your Chaplain and Organiser during the past twelve months. In this word of praise must be included the working staff of each concern, who so loyally responded to the call of duty and assisted to make the meetings successful.

Benefit performances or special subscriptions in aid of the Defence Fund have been given at Huddersfield, Keighley, Wrexham, Lincoln, Darlington, Hawick, Dumbarton, Leicester, Birmingham, Dartford, Mitcham, Greenock, Ayr, Gloucester, Hull, Rotherham, Holbeck, and Bramley (Leeds).

Your executive officials have been engaged in extremely important work in defending your business from attacks either by new bye-laws or by the invasion of your ancient trade rights secured by charter or prescription. The most notable of these instances have been at Mitcham, Hereford, Reading, Buxton, Brecon, Ludlow, and Penzance. Your executive council have dealt in these cases with an entire regard to your interests and have obtained considerable concessions. In every instance they have had both public sympathy and assistance in the endeavour to maintain your rights. This has been notably the case at both Mitcham and Penzance, where questions of grave importance have arisen, especially touching the business interest of the local showpeople.

Strictly adhering to the rules and constitution, your executive officials have not committed you to the defence of special fairs that have no bearing upon the whole industry.

They have, however, in every case rendered all the assistance they could, and have spared neither time nor labour in assisting the local showpeople in the defence of their business at the fairs threatened.

Both at Mitcham and at Penzance the wisdom of this course of action has been fully shown in the impression made by their endeavour to bring about a settlement by mediation and conciliation, and not by proceeding to expensive litigation to settle matters that only have a local and not a national bearing on the industry you are combined to defend.

Another sign of the growing importance of your organisation is seen in the steadily increasing reference to your executive officials by Corporations and public bodies when dealing with matters of importance to the show business. The Corporations of Gloucester, Hull, Ripon, Buxton, Brecon, Reading, Ealing, Penzance, and Ludlow, have been in correspondence with and in some instances have seen your officials in conference, and important matters have been settled by negotiation.

In the determined opposition to the new Movable Dwellings Bill your executive Council have taken all possible action. Owing to the great pressure of Government business (bringing with it the effectual blocking of private bills) the Movable Dwellings Bill is still waiting for Committee in the House of Lords.

Under the most favourable conditions it cannot go down to the House of Commons until the next Sessions of Parliament.

Your Executive Council have all their fighting forces and material against the Bill quite ready and waiting for the enemy to move. Your society is ready and fully equipped for the fight, whether in the House of Lords or in the Commons.

You are not now, as you were in 1890, a young and inexperienced society. You have served a long and expensive apprenticeship in the work of Parliamentary defence. You have behind you the immense force of an educated public opinion, as eager as you are to see justice done.

There is one note of regret—deep and profound in the heart of Showland—that must be sounded, adverse as your Executive Council is to give it utterance—the year 1908 is the last year of office of your venerable and beloved President, Lord George Sanger. If ever a man earned the right to close a great and honoured career in absolute quiet and freedom from onerous responsibility, that man is your leader and champion, George Sanger. In the sunset of life he retires, after full seventy years on the road, during all that time earning and building up the illustrious fame that will for ever give dignity and honour to the name "showman."

Your Executive Council feel with you the irreparable loss his decision to retire means, but at the same time recognise that that decision was made after most careful thought and in the confident assurance that others would take over the reins of supreme government, and that the general well-being of the whole body of travelling showmen would continue to animate all who desire the uplifting and the betterment of the popular fairs, feasts, and wakes of the British people. In your name and in their own your Executive Council tenders to your veteran champion, life-long friend, and benefactor George Sanger their heartfelt tribute of gratitude for his many and great services and munificent contributions to the society's funds. To all of us who have been engaged in the strenuous fight for life and liberty against the massed forces of puritanical rancour and narrow-minded prejudice, and are fast becoming, as Lord George Sanger now is, "veterans at rest after many fights," it is a most serious reflection, that the passage of time will inevitably bring to each of us in our turn the call to retire. Whether slowly and serenely in a grand old age, or suddenly—as with such hard workers in our cause as the late James Hibbert and William Shuttleworth—the call will surely come to pass on the work to others. May we do so in full confidence that the demand for workers will be ever met with a ready and whole-hearted response. In full faith and good heart that it will be so, your Executive Council submit this report of your society's many departments of useful labour in 1908.

Signed on behalf of the Executive Committee,

GEORGE GREEN, V.P.,
Chairman of Committee.
T. HURST,
Hon. Secretary.

CINEMATOGRAPH FIRES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In February last, on my initiative, a deputation from the L.C.C. addressed the Home Secretary on the dangers of fires at cinematograph exhibitions. Two Sessions have passed since Mr. Gladstone used these words in reply: "It must be admitted that there was great danger in connection with such exhibitions. Though they had been very fortunate up to the present, they could not shut their eyes to the fact that there might be a very serious accident, or even a catastrophe, and it was most desirable that legislative powers should be taken to put these unlicensed places throughout the country under proper authority, and he would consider whether it would be possible to deal with the matter by a short Bill in the current Session. He was well aware of the importance of the matter."

Notwithstanding the right hon. gentleman's portentous foreboding, which admitted a full knowledge of the risk, his Department has been quite content to fall into an unheeding sleep. Even when I nudged the officials last June by a question put for me in the House, an evasive yawn was the only answer I obtained.

Perhaps the latest cinematograph panic, at Stratford on Saturday last, where a score of people were injured through an unlicensed apparatus in an unlicensed building, will cause a rubbing of the departmental eyes. If not, I will remind the Home Office that about 200 of these unlicensed and unsupervised exhibitions are being given daily in the County of London, and somewhere about 300 in the greater Metropolitan area, besides an enormous number in every portion of the United Kingdom. And it is not an exaggeration to say that a trifling fire which is extinguished by the finger and thumb of some wide-awake operator occurs somewhere in the country on every day in the year, and that every one of these insignificant fires has the possibilities of a Newmarket, a Barnsley, or a Boyersville disaster in it.

Then it is evident the public must be protected against these Providence-tempting displays, and these dangerous shows must be compelled to adopt safety regulations.

At present no law exists under which they can be controlled. But a short Act of Parliament was practically promised to the Council's deputation in February last! And a Bill to maintain order at public meetings was passed in ten minutes the other day! Then why during two whole Sessions has not the Government spent at least as many minutes over a Bill to save human life? No Bill has been passed, and therefore, if the serious accident should happen which the Home Secretary foreshadowed in February last, the L.C.C. will not have been to blame, for the Council is, and has long been, anxiously waiting for the power to do its obvious duty. But without this legislative power the Council continues to be helpless, and should Mr. Gladstone's catastrophe occur, on the Home Office must rest the entire responsibility.—Yours, &c., WALTER REYNOLDS, L.C.C.

County Hall, Dec. 29, 1908.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I should be sorry to see too many restrictions placed upon cinematograph exhibitions, as I am convinced that they are both amusing and instructive, and they should be quite safe without any legislative interference, if only the necessary care were bestowed upon the lantern by careful operators. The fact is that those gentlemen often get careless with frequent showing, and neglect the attention which is imperative to ensure perfect safety; and if an official of the London County Council, well acquainted with the working of a cinematograph apparatus, were to visit these unlicensed entertainments, there would be very few accidents similar to the sad affair at Stratford.—Yours faithfully,

E. W. CARPENTER.

Christmastide at Middlesbrough.

ON the Market ground were: Henry Cariss with galloping horses, Luke Rich with juvenile horses and swings, Mrs. E. Twilly with park swings and rifle saloons. The minor amusements were: Winchester and rifle saloons by Cariss, Barugh and Dufficld, A. Crow, and W. Watkins; houp-la frames by J. Arthur, A. Crow, and Wilkie Bros.; with coker shies by Luke Rich.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Pathé Frères.

WOMEN CHAUFFEURS.—This scene recalls the film The Inexperienced Chauffeur, which met with such great favour with the public. It represents the first appearance of the woman chauffeur. Her awkwardness leads her into all sorts of laughable and exciting accidents and incidents, and, finally, she receives her due at the hands of her numerous victims.

THE FISHERMAN'S FIANCÉE.—A young and pretty fisherwoman is engaged to a big Norman lad, Charles, but she has, without knowing it, attracted the notice of a young ne'er-do-well, who thinks that his wealth will soon make her change her mind and give up her other lover. Having bought of her a basketful of fish, he asks her to take it to his home, which she does, followed from a distance by Charles, who, having seen the way the young townsman behaves to Kate, is afraid of a danger of some sort to her. As soon as she has set foot in the house Mr. Ne'er-Do-Well tells her of his love; but as she will not listen to him, he is going to make her pay dearly for it. Meanwhile Charles, who is growing impatient, rushes into the house just in time to give the other man a lesson which he is very much in need of; then he takes away his fiancée. Ne'er-Do-Well, in his rage, thinks of a means of revenge. He orders two of his servants to dress up as two fishermen, and then with their aid he securely fastens Charles on to a rock which will shortly be covered over by the in-coming tide. A courageous child, seeing him there, unfastens him before the tide is high enough to sweep him away. The girl's mother, a poor madwoman of whom nobody took any notice in all these happenings, springs at the ruffian's throat the moment he comes to kidnap her child, and strangles him pitilessly.

TRAGICAL ENDING TO A SHROVE TUESDAY.—Disguised as an Incroyable, Mr. Rave goes to the masked ball, in spite of Mrs. Rave entreating him to remain with her. This makes her suspicious, and, putting on a man's costume, of the 1830 period, she also goes to the ball. The ballroom is filled with a motley crowd, moving among garlands of flowers and brilliant lights. The Incroyable meets a "Merveilleuse," and exclaims, "I know you!" This is not true, for had he recognised her he would not have said it. She takes his arm, and, leaving the crowd, they go and sit down on a solitary bench. "Give me your rose," says the Incroyable, and as he opens his pocket-book to put it in, the Merveilleuse sees between the sheets the photograph of his wife. "You are not free!" she exclaims, but he gives her the photo, saying, "You may tear it up." During all this conversation the young wife, hidden behind a bush, is very sad at what she hears, especially when she perceives that these words are spoken by her husband. "You shall soon be my wife, when I have abducted you." "Abducted me! How will you do it?" "In a Sedan chair or on my horse's back. Wait a little, I shall be back in five minutes." During his short absence Mrs. Rave, thanks to her man's costume, makes love to the Merveilleuse, who flirts with her, and when the Incroyable returns he sees that he has been abandoned for the dashing "young man." A slap is heard. Seconds are hastily summoned, and a duel takes place. The last picture shows Mrs. Rave fatally wounded and her husband, tearing away the mask, just in time to recognise her and ask for her forgiveness before she passes away.

A TROUBLESOME TWITCHING.—Mr. Rude has the bad habit of always putting out his tongue whenever he speaks. His wife advises him to see a physician. On his way to the man of science he puts out his tongue in the face of everybody. Angry words are exchanged. Mr. Rude asks to be excused for his bad manners, and explains that he has a nervous complaint of which he hopes to be cured soon. The physician makes him put out his tongue, and after a few magnetic passes commands him not to do so again. But Mr. Rude must be a refractory subject, for on his way home he puts out his tongue more often than ever.

POLICEMAN IN SPITE OF HIMSELF.—During Mrs. Faraway's absence, Sarah, Peter, and Charles, the three servants, have a very good lunch, which they wash down with a bottle of champagne. Suddenly Peter has a brilliant idea. He leaves the table, goes up to Mrs. Faraway's dressing-room, puts on her spare wig, dons one of her gowns, and reappears in the dining-room, where he strikes a severe attitude. The servants have not yet recovered their wits when the entrance-bell rings. Mrs. Faraway's nephews are back from Chicago, and they have come to see their aunt. Sarah shows them into the drawing-room, and the would-be aunt receives them as best "she" can. Unfortunately, the nephews, noticing that their aunt is not a tectotaler, avail themselves of her drunkenness to help themselves to a part of the fortune which is to eventually revert to them. Peter, the would-be aunt, catches the two nephews at their work. He grasps them by their collars, and marches them off to the police station with a vigour and strength one would never have suspected in so frail-looking an "old lady."

WHEN LOVE WILL.—"If you can give roses human life I shall be yours," says the titled lady to her young page-boy, who had been bold enough to tell her of his love, and she goes away, leaving him desperate and powerless. Love, however, makes him discover in a far-away castle a bed of large living roses, and in their hearts beautiful women's heads. The boy goes in search of the enchanted flowers, which are separated from him by a hundred-and-one obstacles. Yet Love being a great magician, the page-boy, with her help, overcomes every difficulty and conquers the roses, together with the hand of his beloved.

THE TALE THE TICKER TOLD.—This picture tells the story of men money-mad, of intense passion, reckless revenge, and of a woman's devotion and love. It shows how, once embarked on a current of speculation, man is at the mercy of chance, and invites disaster—a story of stocks and bonds, hate and love, where the monotonous click of the "ticker" and the relentless "tape" make or mar happiness, while life is ofttimes the stake. In the mad rush of speculation we have the story of a hero battling for money for the woman he loves, and are also shown the hatred and antagonism of a rival who lays deep plans to bring disaster upon the favoured man. During a time of panic the Stock Exchange becomes a veritable inferno, men's passions are at white heat, and reason is apparently dethroned. Our hero strains every nerve in an effort to protect his interests against his unseen foes, his rival gloating over his every reverse, eventually losing his own fortune, the woman he desired, and his reason. Then—when failure and ruin bring his schemes to naught—oblivion!

THE ANGEL CHILD.—Although handicapped with an "Angel Child," a daughter whose age interferes with her plans, a buxom widow determines to try matrimony again. The "child" enters into the spirit of the game, and—when mother has dressed her in youthful attire, giving the necessary coaching how to act—decides to look after her own interests. The Angel Child begins to make things pleasant when the suitors arrive. Number One is soon disposed of. He is an effeminate youth, and, as she insists on singing and reciting in an exaggerated style, he pleads that he has another engagement and goes. A long-haired poet now comes to read his poems to the widow, and ask for advice regarding his new book. He gets this from the child. She smears him with toffee, plays with his curly locks, and succeeds in putting him to flight. A dignified suitor shows up next in the form of a fat and bald old man. The girl disposes of him by crushing his hat, pulling his whiskers, and then upsets his dignity by removing his wig. A French count is the next suitor. He plays horses with the child, and during this diversion she upsets a bowl of goldfish over his trousers, and so he departs. Billy Goodfellow is in a fair way to win "mamma," but the child decides to put the finishing touches to the matter, so during mamma's absence she dons lengthened skirts, thus winning Billy for herself, and upsetting mamma's plans altogether.

The London Bioscope at Bombay.

Our Bombay correspondent writes: Crowded houses are the order of the day with the fine new machine just imported by Mr. Bandmann into India. It is undoubtedly the finest machine shown here in Bombay, and the packed houses show its increasing popularity. A splendid collection of films has been continually supplied, and with a complete change of films twice weekly nothing need be said further as regards its success. The visit of Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer and her Shakespearean company is being eagerly awaited, and I anticipate a record for Bombay in the welcome.

MR. ALFRED WEST, of the Polytechnic, has just received a cable from his son at Malta, where he is exhibiting "Our Navy and Our Army," en route for home after a tour in India, that he has left to obtain cinematograph photos of the disaster at Messina. By a curious coincidence, Mr. Alfred West happened himself to be in the West Indies at the time of the similar disaster at Jamaica, and the photographic records he was then able to secure are among the best of his collection.

MESSRS. WEISKER BROTHERS' (of Wilde-street, Liverpool) operator is now on the scene of the awful calamity in Calabria, and films of this appalling disaster will be in England early next week.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

An exceedingly well-filled house greeted the rising of the curtain at the Hippodrome, Putney, on Monday evening, when the management presented a programme of an interesting and varied character. After the overture, a pot-pourri of popular airs, had been smartly played, Miss Millie Howell, a prepossessing young comedienne with a good voice and perfect articulation, sang two ballads replete with sound sentiment, the titles of which were "You will still be my girl" and "For better or for worse." Mr. Charles Carr followed in a strikingly realistic cowboy costume, which looked very picturesque, with a serenade to his "Prairie Flower," and concluded a very successful turn with some clever dancing. Miss Kitty Colyer, in a dainty costume of electric blue, sang of her unwillingness to leave her "Little snow house," which apparently she preferred to much more palatial establishments, and although her judgment might be criticised, her rendering of the song could only be commended. Her second appearance gave her the opportunity of displaying her cleverness in an acrobatic and speciality dance, which was also greatly appreciated.

A skilful and grotesque cycling exhibition was given by Les Marsumas, a couple of nimble navvies, who combined expert riding with excellent fooling, and earned a hearty recall. Yvonne Lamor, billed as "the somewhat different comedienne," was evidently indisposed, but the gentleman who filled the vacancy appropriately appeared as Father Christmas, with a good Santa Claus make-up. After singing a pleasing ditty he made the whole house roar with clever imitations of children in various anecdotes, and had every reason to be delighted with his reception. Mr. Charles J. Johnson, the prize cake-walk coon, who had a gratifying reception, gave us "Mandie Brown," an old favourite, followed by "Mumbling Mose," a really clever coon song, and concluded with a wonderfully neat cake-walk. A pleasing item was provided by Messrs. Lowenwirth and Cohan, Hebrew comedians, excellently made up. Their fantastic exploits with the King's English were particularly diverting, and kept the audience in roars of laughter.

Messrs. Howard and St. Clair took part in a very amusing sketch, entitled Do You Want Any Coke? in which the former, a vendor of coke, turns actor at the instigation of a lady upon whom he calls in the way of business, and the fun created upon his donning a Grecian kind of costume is simply uproarious. Eugénie Fougère also appears.

THE PECKHAM HIPPODROME.

In spite of the inclement weather an audience, which packed the house from floor to ceiling, assembled at the Peckham Hippodrome last Monday evening, attracted, no doubt, by the excellent programme, which included several star turns and a couple of first-class dramatic sketches. Miss Georgina Leno, daughter of the late lamented Dan Leno, a dainty little lady, was heard to great advantage in "Pretty See-Yu," winding up with a graceful dance. Kelly and Agnes were also much applauded for their dancing and singing, the gentleman of the party proving himself a clever eccentric comedian. Miss Belle Harcourt, whose Christian name aptly describes her, has a good descriptive song, "He was one of the boys."

A coloured comedian, Mr. Billie McClain, and his company, consisting of one lady and two gentlemen, were loudly applauded for their instrumental and vocal entertainment. Ruffell's pictures on the Bioscope, consisting of Life on a Fishing Smack, and a comic series of films, The Prize Camel, were much appreciated.

Lillian Dundas, a well-known Lady Isabel in East Lynne, is seen to much advantage in a sensational sketch, The Doom of Delilah, while two gentlemen whose names are not in the programme play powerfully as Jack Weston and Philip Royston respectively.

Harry Ford, who had a most enthusiastic reception, scored well with his quaint ditties, "What do you want it for, I'd like to know?" and "What a face!" The Union Jack Boys, consisting of ten youngsters dressed as sailors, appear in a realistic representation of a rampart overlooking the sea, and execute very ably a hornpipe and various melodies, such as "Excelsior," "Love me and the world is mine," &c., their turn being one of the best on the programme. The lightning comedian, Mr. Harry Champion, who is greeted with uproarious applause, executes in his well-known style two amusing numbers, "I do pity myself, I do," and "Out went the gas"; while the strong programme concludes with Mr. Fred Eustace's stirring and well-mounted sketch, in six scenes, Our Curate, in which Mr. Fred Eustace, as the curate, who is the embodiment of muscular Christianity, Miss Mary Eustace as the wronged heroine, and Mr. Alfred Harding as the villain, greatly distinguish themselves.

MOSS'S EDINBURGH CARNIVAL.

Sir Edward Moss is a real benefactor of his fellow-creatures. For many years his annual carnival at the Waverley Market, Edinburgh, has been thronged by thousands of holiday-makers, who are sure of an innocent, wholesome entertainment in a roomy building, secure from all adverse conditions of weather. On Monday evening last the twenty-fourth season was opened. The Market, bright with many additional electric lights, and decorated with much taste by Messrs. W. S. Brown and Sons, presented a glittering appearance, the scheme of colour being admirably worked out. Amer's Military Band has been specially engaged, and the playing of these musicians is a distinctly pleasing feature of the programme. The platform entertainment is of an interesting and varied nature, and includes a large number of the smartest turns in the equestrian and vandeville world. Woodward's sea lions display the surprising sagacity and the remarkable results of patient training which characterise their performance; the Holloways go through a series of daring wire-walking feats, the lady of the troupe being especially fearless in her jumping acts; Mr. Frank L. Gregory's company, in their hoop-rolling, are very clever, and their work is, in many respects, fresh and extraordinarily well done; Feynard's lilliputian circus is a performance in itself, the diminutive artists and horses giving a really admirable equestrian entertainment; Burke, Andrus, and Frisco act with mirth-provoking effect in a farcical sketch, Trafalgar Square, London, 4 a.m.; the Saxon Trio of athletes evoke the enthusiasm of the audience in their deeds of strength; and other performers who contribute to an excellent programme are the Five Mowats, expert manipulators of Indian clubs; the Sauteron Wonders, in an amusing jumping act; Hugo and Smit, clever knockabouts; and Tambo and Tambo, dexterous tambourine spinners. The side shows are sufficiently diverse to please all tastes. Pharos shows wonderful power in passing an electric current through his body, enabling him to light gas jets with his finger-tips. The Westwood Giant Children from New Zealand; Ebrahim's troupe of Indian fakirs; the Adeles, in a mystifying thought-reading entertainment; and Osca's snake charmers from Arizona are a few of the many attractions, which, in conjunction with Wilmot's circling cars and steeplechase hunters, will certainly sustain the popularity of Moss's Carnival.

THE first annual staff dinner in connection with the Hippodrome, Stoke-on-Trent, took place on Christmas Eve at the Sutherland-chambers. Seventy sat down to a sumptuous dinner at 12 p.m. The following toasts were proposed:—"The King," "Mr. and Mrs. Edwardes and Family," "Mr. and Mrs. Miller," "The Press," &c., after which the tables were cleared, and song and dance ruled, all present enjoying themselves thoroughly.

MLLE. JEANNE FRANSIOLI, the charming lady whom Mr. Goldin apparently materialises out of space, is, in private life, Mme. Goldin. She is, as her stage name denotes, an Italian by birth, and to her ingenuity Mr. Goldin owes in no small degree the success of his illusions. But his stage secrets are safe with his beautiful better half, and, if anything, she keeps a stricter watch on prying eyes in the wings than does Mr. Goldin himself.

THE Music Hall Ladies' Guild, at the Horns, Kennington, on the 23rd ult., entertained nearly one hundred of the poorest children of the variety profession at dinner, tea, entertainment, and a Christmas tree, and gave them gifts and clothing. Many clergy interested in the work of the Guild were present. Miss Cissie Loftus, who had promised to be among the entertainers, was unable to attend through overwork, but sent a message and gifts for the children. A number of performers gave their services.

26,760.—Ernest Bethel, John Jones Bell, and Lewis Emanuel Ford, of Liverpool. Illusive toy or puzzle, especially applicable for use in connection with advertising.

26,789.—Emory Walter Goodrich, of London. Improvements in and relating to projection apparatus.

26,890.—Thomas Clegg, of Huddersfield. Improvements in or relating to phonographs, gramophones, and similar instruments.

27,001.—George Alfred Bennett and Arthur Burman, of London. Pleasure lift.

27,003.—Newton Henry Nixon, of London. New or improved elbow pad, or rest for use when shooting with rifles or other firearms.

27,016.—Charles Clay, of London. New or improved apparatus for indoor golf practice.

27,040.—Emile Hertz Klaber, of London. Improved means for actuating the brakes of gramophones and like machines.

27,058.—William Richard Inshaw and Frederick William Savage, of London. Mechanical animal or model for amusement purposes.

27,111.—Leo Roland, of London. Apparatus for stage acrobatic performances.

27,120.—Henry Quartermain, of Woking. Bioscope safety stand or box for fire prevention or extinction.

27,127.—Gustave Ouviére, of London. Improvements in and connected with illuminable transparencies and means for displaying the same.

27,157.—Robert Rutson Fowler Neville and William Henry Westby, of London. Improved indoor and outdoor race game.

27,205.—Frank William Ordish, of London. Apparatus for games.

27,256.—Charles Randolph Uebelmesser, of London. Improvements in moving-picture apparatus; applicable also to other purposes.

27,284.—Herbert Charles Kingaby, of London. Improved game.

27,307.—Mary Jane Moss, of Bury. Device whereby automatic action is obtained, more particularly in connection with such things as the figures of human beings, birds, animals, fishes, or inanimate objects appearing from and disappearing into apertures in toy houses, and the like; but capable also of application in other directions, such as the automatic movement of limbs or parts of such figures.

27,327.—James R. Stewart, of Glasgow. Phonographic itinerant frame for displaying posters or bills for the purpose of audible advertisement.

27,342.—Robert Herman Gehrke, of Kingston-on-Thames. Chairs for theatres.

27,376.—Antoine Jacques Michel Poch and Prosper Jacques Pierre Poch, of London.—Process of and apparatus for obtaining on a screen luminous projections visible in full light.

27,393.—George Jessop, of London. Aeroplane scenic chute.

27,513.—William Spiers Freeman, of Otford, Kent. Improved disappearing target.

27,560.—Karl Georg Schipp, of London. War game.

27,583.—Witold Prus Szczepanowski and Waclaw Czernuwski, of London. Improvements in or relating to apparatus for producing animated pictures by the movement of a vehicle.

27,617.—Thomas Hervey Rochford, of Dublin. Improvements in programme indicator for theatres of varieties, music halls, and the like.

27,652.—Charles Stanley Montgomery Raikes, of London. Improved method of and means for producing scenic effects.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

16,378.—Cycle-racing apparatus. Pottenger, H. T. B., of Croydon, Surrey.

In cycle-racing apparatus for use in music-halls or other places of amusement, the cycle is supported entirely on a single frame, which is mounted on wheels, and may be provided with an adjustable front steering wheel supporting arms (p) and a distance recorder (q). The velocity of the back wheel (h) of the cycle is reduced by a train of gearing, and the reduced velocity is imparted to the carriage supporting the cycle, which is held in a clip (p). The front wheel rests in a support (e5), which is movably mounted in sockets (e3), and connected to the front wheel (e). The rider is, therefore, able to steer the carriage, the intermediate wheels (f) being mounted in a swivelling bracket to facilitate this. To allow of adjustment when the carriage rests on a sloping floor, the axles of the wheels (d, f) are mounted in bearings, adjustable by means of screwed rods. An idle wheel (r) prevents backward movement of the cycle.

A tent frame consists of a board floor (a) supported about a foot above the ground by longitudinal sill (b), posts (c), erected along the edges of the floor, rafters (d), and a ridge-pole (h). The posts (c) are held vertical by detachable skirt boards (e) and rails (f), and the rafters are stiffened by triangular tie-plates. A store closet is provided by connecting the bottoms of the sills by cross-boards (k), and the ends by hinged doors (i):

Access may be had to the store closet from the interior of the tent by means of a trap-door (v) in the floor (a). Removable panels are fitted between the posts (c) to protect the inmates when the tent is occupied late in the season. The tent frame may be mounted upon the bolsters of an ordinary farm wagon, as shown in Fig. 4, and is readily transportable thereon.

17,099.—Toy targets. Marshall, D., of Cheltenham.

The face of a toy target (a) is divided up into annular channels (c) by circular ribs (b). The channels are of a suitable size to receive and hold a ball or like missile which may be projected at the target. In a modification, the face of the target is covered with wire netting, the meshes of which receive and hold the missile.

17,402.—Amusements for fairs, &c. Taylor, W., of New Brighton.

A platform (d) mounted on cranks (c) attached to shafts, one of which is rotated by a motor, is hinged to platforms (e), in turn hinged to platforms (f) mounted on rollers (j). People walk over one set of platforms and return along another set.

17,093.—Advertising. Fawkes, J. W., of California, U.S.A.

In an advertising device constructed as a theatre curtain or exhibition space a series of display frames, fourteen carrying pictures or other matter, is reciprocated by oppositely disposed cranks (21), so that the adjacent frames move in opposite directions. Cords (19), mounted on pulleys (20), connect the frames and cranks. Supplementary frames (14¹) may be mounted at the top and bottom of the frames (14) in such a way as to be brought into a display position in the extreme positions of the main frames effected by pins (28) on the frames (14¹) working in loops (29) on the main frames. Each upper supplementary frame is counterbalanced by a weight (30) and held by stops (31). The frames are mounted in a casing behind an opening (32), in which is a sheet of glass of irregular cross-section, preferably with a series of leaf-like depressions. The frames may be constructed of V-shaped side-pieces (15) and S-shaped cross-pieces (16), into which the display plates are sprung. The crank-shaft comprises a number of preferably square sections (22), in which the cranks (21) are adjustably mounted by screws (25). The pictures, when transparencies, are illuminated by lamps (23).

17,449.—Producing illusions. Delloye, H. L., and Henard, A. E., both of Paris.

In a polygonal reflecting room for reflecting multiple images for producing illusions or decorative effects, each corner is constructed of mirrors fixed at the required angle to one another on a vertical shaft (d), the different pairs of mirrors having different decorations, such as columns, plants, or flowers, &c., so that the same room may be made to represent in turn a large room with columns, a flower garden, &c., by rotating the corner mirrors. The corner mirrors, after rotation, are kept in line with the fixed mirrors (a) of the walls by a bolt (c2) engaging with a stop

16,730.—Transporting apparatus; roundabouts. Darcy, F., of Philadelphia, and Speck, S. H., and Hill, H., of West Haven, all in U.S.A.

A rotary transporter, as applied to a roundabout, is described. Intermeshing gear-wheels (1, 2, Fig. 1) have a series of corresponding slots (1¹, 2¹), which engage supporting-rods (8) of the cars (23, Fig. 2), and carry them round in a figure-of-eight course. The slots (1¹, Fig. 1) are between the teeth of the wheel (1), but the slots (2¹) take the place of teeth in the wheel (2). A flange (2²) continues the sides of the slots (2¹). The crossing-over of the car is effected by the parts (10, Figs. 2 and 5) entering guides (19, Fig. 5), as shown. The whole device is driven from a pulley (20, Fig. 2), and is enclosed by a fixed platform (13, Fig. 1) and revolving platforms (14), the latter being supported by tie-rods (15, Fig. 2). A casing (24) on foundations (22) is added. The wheel (2, Fig. 1) may have pin-teeth, in which case the flange (2²) may be omitted. Four wheels or more may be used instead of two.

17,357.—Scenic exhibitions. Gordon, R. G., of Alberta, Canada.

An illusion of travelling in a ship, &c., is produced by imparting up-and-down and side movements to pictures projected on an enclosing wall or screen (11) by rocking a cradle (12), carrying the picture slides (20), in a universal manner on pivots (25, 28). The spectators reach an enclosed part of the stationary deck by a central companion way or shaft (7), and a series of stationary lanterns (14) are adjustably mounted in curved slots

(17) in pedestals (15) at the top of the shaft. The picture slides are connected by links (22) to the cradle or rocking frame (12), which rocks on pivots (25) in a forked upright (27) mounted on a horizontal shaft (28). The upright (27) is rocked by a cam (34) and a face cam (36), acting on a bar (29) fixed to the pivot (25), imparts a rolling motion to the cradle.

EARL'S COURT SKATING RINK.

THE SKATING BOOM.

CHAT WITH MR. P. W. WILLARD.

Remarkable success has already attended the roller skating rink in the Empress Hall in the Exhibition grounds at Earl's Court. The rink was opened on Dec. 5, and is the property of a company known as Rinking, Ltd., the managing-director of which is Mr. P. W. Willard, who has opened a rink at Balham, and is directing arrangements in connection with the establishment of others at Nottingham, Bristol, and Cardiff. The Empress rink—where Mr. E. Court is manager and Mr. Robert Aginton the "star" fancy skater—will finish the present season at the end of March, but Rinking, Ltd., will run it for the next seven successive winters.

If anything had been needed—and it has not been—to give roller skating a fillip, the blizzard visitor of this week gave it. The mammoth rink at the Empress Hall has been packed at every "session," and there are three of them every day. Roller skating lay practically dormant in this country for eighteen years until Mr. P. W. Willard came along and set 400 men to work converting the old Empress Theatre at Earl's Court into a vast skating area. Many of us can remember the Empress Theatre as "Venice," with its lakes and gondolas; again as a complete "Japanese Village," and again as a "Jungle." To-day the roll of the wheeled skate is heard day and night, like the roar of the surf, in this aspect-changing building. To-day acres of maple-wood make a skating surface second to none in the world. "Meet me at the Rinkeries, Earl's Court," has now become an oft-repeated phrase between young couples who daily keep tryst there. In few places in London is the convenience of young people studied to such a degree as at the Empress Theatre. There are alcoves, warmed by special apparatus, where one can sit and watch the skaters as long as one pleases. Everywhere white-capped waitresses are willing to supply all kinds of refreshment.

Mr. Willard has built and "run" more rinks than any other living man. As long ago as 1872 he was managing one in Sydney, and since then every big town in America, Great Britain, and the Continent, and even in far-away Japan, has been indebted to his enterprise for the chance to indulge in a delightful pastime. "Be graceful—skate!" is his motto, and every moment of his life is devoted "to making the advice good," as he himself says. That motto laid the foundation of Mr. Willard's fortune. Mr. Willard was first in the field in this country with roller skating, and started the present boom, for the Empress Hall was the first rink to be opened.

To suit the convenience of patrons there are at the Empress Rink three sessions daily, viz., 11 to 1, 2.30 to 5.30, and 7.30 to 10.30. Over 8,000 pairs of skates, provided by the best English firms, have been stocked, the hire of the same being well within the reach of all at the prices of 6d. per pair for ordinary skates, or 1s. per pair for ball bearing skates. A cosy and comfortably furnished club, entitled "The Empress," has been erected, and will be found an ideal rendezvous for constant visitors.

Many novelties will be introduced by the management from time to time, embracing skating gymkhanas, fancy dress carnivals, sports on wheels, push ball, hockey, and polo. There are three refreshment bars at which first-class refreshments will be furnished at most moderate charges, and an excellent military band is in attendance at every session.

A great boon to those learning to skate has been furnished in a specially set apart "Learners' Annexe," where the assistance of twenty skilled instructors is at the service of those requiring them.

The price of admission has been fixed at sixpence, but season tickets may be obtained for 7s. 6d., or 17s. 6d. for those providing their own skates, with, of course, the use of floor. The rink is thoroughly warmed and carefully ventilated, brilliantly lit, and tastefully decorated.

Rochdale Christmas Fair.

THERE can be no doubt that, under Mr. Mitchell's able management, Rochdale Winter Fair maintains to the full its great popularity. The show list includes Sedgwick's great No. 1 menagerie, Blackley's cinematograph theatre and the No. 2 concern—living marvels; Barker's fine art gallery is also on exhibition.

THE machine novelties, always an attractive list at this Fair, were mainly provided by the Mitchell family, and included the Lessee's steam yachts, W. Mitchell, jun.'s, motor-cars, Thos. Mitchell's racing birds, T. Forshaw's bicycle track, and J. Sharp's range of park swings.

THE other amusements were: Shooting ranges by Hughes and Martin and John Sharp. The throwing games, in endless variety, were provided by Messrs. Thomas, Butterworth, Ingham, Henshaw, Forshaw, and Martin. Variety stalls and roll-up boards by Messrs. Redfern, West, and Blackley. Football penalty frames by Forshaw and J. Chadwick, and the new houp-la sensation by Forshaw and Ingham Bros.; J. J. Butterworth provided the refreshment saloons.

The Fun City at Bath.

Mr. Fredericks has again succeeded in drawing together the most attractive company of entertainers for the annual holiday fair at Bath. These include Miss Agnes Beckwith, champion lady swimmer; Aeolia, the daring gymnast; the Elbad, thought readers; Prince Ishmael, Indian Fakir; the beautiful Leoville, wire walker; Professor J. Whitmore, illusionist; Miss Della Fredericks, the dainty vocalist; Madam Grace Burns, with her wonderful exhibition of working bees and ants; and the Bioscope, with up-to-date pictures. The band is that well-known combination, the Scarlet Ladies' Orchestra. There are also the usual side-shows and stall novelties, the whole making one of the best entertainments of its kind in the provinces.

ALL THE FUN OF THE FAIR AT "MERRIE ISLINGTON."

Just about the time that Messrs. Read and Bailey started the World's Fair at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, some thirty years ago, the prophets of evil said "that British Fairs would soon be a thing of the past." One learned pundit averred that "the London showman would soon be as extinct as the dodo." The moral of the above remark is a most ancient one—"Never prophesy until you know."

The Fairs of Great Britain have increased and prospered with the growth of the nation. London to-day contains more shows than existed fifty years ago in the whole of the United Kingdom. Yet London is not the greatest centre of British showland. The World's Fair took hold of great London, and it supplied a demand which no other form of cheap and popular amusement can supply.

The people want the fair, and they support it, and that is the economic reason for its existence.

Mr. T. E. Read, the enterprising lessee, has broken all previous records this year in the extent, variety, and drawing power of the world of shows he has massed together on the covered space at his disposal. This year the Gilbey Hall (a new extension of the Great Hall) is crammed by show and machine novelty, and every available inch in the immense Central Hall is occupied by amusements dear to the heart of the British public.

The Main Entrance Avenue.

Here we find the gigantic Christmas tree provided by Mr. Read for his armies of children, who delight to bring their parents to the Fair. Mr. Frank Turner, as usual, has a splendid array of up-to-date automatic machines and novelties, and side-show novelties in the entrance way.

The trade exhibits, too, in the entrance are of great interest to showpeople and the general public. There are traction engines by R. Garrett and Sons, engineers; electric light appliances by F. A. Glover and Co. (the electricians of the Hall); and trucks and ladders by H. C. Slingsby. The refreshment stalls are by Messrs. W. R. Slatter and Son, and Messrs. Gordon and Dilworth exhibit their well-known sauce and other specialities.

The Great Central Hall.

The superb cinematograph theatre of Mr. Wm. Taylor occupies the premier position. The artistic front from the atelier of Marenghie et Cie., Paris, is a gem of beauty, and the magnificent organ discourses the best music. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor must feel as the conqueror Alexander felt when he lamented that there were no other worlds to vanquish. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have achieved the highest possible pinnacle of success in the profession that for their whole lifetime they have so singularly and fully adorned. It is a show of shows.

Mr. Frank Turner's Exhibits.

Mr. Turner's shows are a special feature of the World's Fair. This year he exhibits, in addition to the automatic machine galleries and pavilions, the Fun Factory, the Mysterious Castle, the Electric Fish Pond, the Military Rifle Range, and a galaxy of small machine novelties.

The Side Shows and Mystic Temples.

W. Le Neve and Norah Sullivan with their school of athletes and boxers, John Hasling with midget show and fat girl show, Wm. Bedford with the miniature animal jungle, "The Secret of Life" Temple, and the weird demonstrations of the Greek mysterious magic of the ancient Greek magicians, Lewis's marvellous pythons and other huge snakes in picturesque snake jungle, and Read's Haunted Swing and electric kicking stairway form the exhibits of the invincible band of fun-smiths and expert showmen in the Great Hall.

The Machines and Roundabouts.

These include Wm. Wilson's three exhibits—the motor-car switchback circular track, the jumping horses, and the big wheel; Mr. Read's Channel Tunnel Railway, and the helter-skelter tower, or "slipping the slope."

The other exhibitors are H. Read with rifle jungle, C. Bailey with similar concern, Flinston Brothers with their famous Brooklyn cake-walk machine, and Messrs. Slatter and Son's juvenile roundabouts.

In the New Gilbey Hall.

The side shows and varieties are Stanborough and Hughes' portable Empire Theatre of Varieties, the Mandingoe Warriors in native dances in times of peace and war, Montezuma, the marvellous horse, the Marvellous X-rays and Electric Wonder Show, Hyatt's new machine, the aeroplane revolving cars and his second machine novelty, the juvenile motor-cars and rollicking porkers, Estelka Daly, the expert cheirotechnist, Thomas's roundabouts and swings, a set of bicycles and racing cars, H. Read's No. 2 shooting range, and auto machines by F. Turner.

The Old Fair Attractions in the Gallery.

Here, on the four sides of the vast quadrangle of the hall, are some of the most up-to-date variety frames, throwing games, and hoop-la maypoles. These are provided by those experts of the minor novelty world, Messrs. Pickard Brothers, Hussey Brothers, Taylor, Sharpe, Brown, Walcot, Street, Slatter, Bedford, the Novelty Company, Traylen, and others.

Of Wombwell's menagerie and of the great Free Circus we have already spoken in our first notice of this Fair. To sum up the whole matter, Merrie Islington maintains its proud pre-eminence as being in word and in deed the World's Fair.

The attendance on Boxing Day exceeded all previous records, and everything is going strong and well.

BOSCOMBE HIPPODROME REOPENED.

The reopening performance of the Boscombe Hippodrome on Monday, Dec. 21, was under the distinguished patronage of Lord and Lady Abinger. On the rising of the curtain the orchestra played the National Anthem, and Lady Abinger was presented with a bouquet by Mr. Fredk. Mouillot. Quite a transformation has been effected, mainly due to the entirely new proscenium, the façades of the tiers of boxes in cream and gold, also the old decorations giving way to Watteau paintings. The electric light has been entirely readapted, and everything has been done appertaining to comfort and to make it a brighter and more compact and elaborate hippodrome. An additional entrance has been built, with a vestibule and cloak-rooms, and there are now two lounges at either end of the promenade. There is also a new fireproof curtain of steel and asbestos, supplied with water sprinklers. Great credit is due to Mr. Bertie Crewe, the architect, and also the contractors, for the way in which the work has been carried out.

An excellent bill had been provided, which included Wizard and Irene Stone, performing "the globe of life"—looping the loop on a motor-cycle—the most daring cycle sensation ever presented. Alice Pierce was very successful in her impressions of popular players; as a tenor vocalist Arthur Hickman was heard to great advantage; the Three Panamas, in a comedy acrobatic pot-pourri, were extremely clever, and their "tumbling" performance kept the house in convulsions; Arthur Croxon, as the mimetic comedian, was much appreciated; and Wyotti, the witty juggler, is rightly named, and received deserved applause. The Hippodrome pictures, portraying all the latest subjects, were extremely good.

In conclusion, Bournemouth has now one of the most elaborately decorated and appointed Hippodromes in the South of England, and we wish Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece every success in the future.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—The holiday bill of fare is provided here by Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company in The Catch of the Season. Mr. Herbert Dyer as musical director contributes largely to the effect of the entertainment. Mr. Wm. Green takes the part of the Duke of St. Jermyns, acting nightly with humour; a sweeter little Cinderella than Miss Dorothea Clarke it would be difficult to find, fairylike, girlish, and buoyant, and her performance is delightful; Mr. J. W. Bruce's Lord Dundreary is an excellent character study; Master Ernest Grate is really funny as the page, Bucket; and Miss Alice Hamilton (Lady Crystal), Miss Barry Eldon (the Hon. Honoria Bedford), and Miss Kate Robertson (the Hon. Sophia Bedford) all do admirably; and Miss Clair de Vere's Duchess of St. Jermyns is attractive. Mr. Franklin Miles's Sir John Crystal is excellent. Mr. Geoffrey Berwick's caricature of the police magistrate is amusing; and Miss Grace Hampton makes a charming Lady Caterham, with a combination of stage presence, ready wit, and dash providing an ideal and dignified portrayal.

NORTHWICH.—PAVILION.—Proprietress, Mrs. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Phil Royston.—Mahatma, assisted by Mr. Chas. N. Steen, is the draw this week. Query Stratton presents a good turn, and Billy Briggs does well. Ruffell's Bioscope pictures are both humorous and entertaining. There are two performances nightly this week.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Messrs. Chas. Lintone and Vic Hunter's pantomime company in Robinson Crusoe is the attraction this week. The title-rôle is impersonated by Mme. Lizzie Lintone with much vivacity; Miss Helen Barton plays Polly Perkins gracefully; Misses Alice and Lily Raymond do good work as Billy Crusoe and Alice Perkins; and Mr. Vic Hunter is a diverting Mrs. Crusoe; Mr. Chas. Orme gives an excellent delineation of Will Atkins; Messrs. Dan Dunville and Harry Wallis are an extremely funny pair as Pinchem and Snatchem. The specialities include the Lintone Trio, concertina experts; Serpento, the human eel; Stylvo and his cleverly-trained dog Rennie; the Three Sisters Raymond, vocalists and international dancers; Jack Gascoyne, a good ventriloquist; and the Flora Troupe of expert dancers.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr Fred Morgan.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's excellent company in The Christian opened here on Boxing Night to a crowded and delighted audience. Miss Doris Gilham gave a powerful and well-pleasing representation of Glory Quayle, and won favour all round. Mr. Henry Renouf was equally effective in the part of John Storm, whilst Miss Margaret Brodie excellently acted that of Polly Love. Miss Senna St. Clair was good as Mrs. Callender; Mr. Edward Ling was successful as Father Lamplugh; and Mr. C. Turpin was commendable as Archdeacon Wealthy. The other characters were suitably filled. The piece was well mounted.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Mr. John Haddon's company in the pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk had an overwhelming reception at the two performances on Monday. The lyrics are by Mr. Brian Daly and the music arranged by Mr. Ernest Ramsay. Produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Haddon himself, the pantomime went with every success Miss Alina Obrey as Jack admirably rendered her songs, assisted by an efficient chorus, and her performance was much admired. Mr. Dave O'Toole was amusing as Dame Trotter, and with Mr. Bob Baxter as Silly Billy caused endless amusement. Messrs. O'Malley and Brown as Dip and Dap, the Squire's flunkeys, showed themselves capital comedians. Mr. Hal Forde, sen., was good as Squire Musty, and Miss Bessie Knight as his niece Dora was most successful. Mr. Tom Packer as Grumbles the Giant aroused much appreciation. The other parts were admirably filled. The pantomime is well staged, the singing and dancing good, the costumes very pretty, and the scenery, by Mr. Geo. Harris and Mr. William Charles, much to be commended.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The New Era pictures continue successful here, and the singing of Miss Gladys Vane is much appreciated.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.—Mr. Chas. Thurston's World's Fair is still here, and is being extensively patronised.

NOTTINGHAM.—EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The artistic display of the Elliott Savonas in their Palace of Orpheus makes a charming setting for the musical contributions, and an enthusiastic welcome is accorded them; Frederic Melville's "Moto Girl" provides a mystifying illusion, which pleases; the musical comedy duo Charlie's Visit makes for endless fun as presented by Eadie and Ramsden; Henry Carlton adds to the merriment in his musical absurdity, The Window Cleaner; Melia and Mozarabar are a clever pair of equilibrists; and the programme is capitally helped by Pat Rafferty, comedian; John Macauley, character vocalist; Frank Sylvo, comic juggler; Alf Holt, mimic and whistler; and Bioscope pictures.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. E. Lockwood; Treasurer, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—As an exponent of ju-jitsu Yukio Tani stands high, and he is drawing large and enthusiastic admirers to each performance; the Tossing Austins give an interesting exhibition of juggling and dancing; a smart little sketch entitled Hester's Mystery is supplied by Horace Pollock and company; Bellman and Moore are comedy artists of no mean order; the Ansonia Trio supply a clever acrobatic turn; Mons. Gerard accomplishes some daring and skilful feats of jugglery; the Four Aces submit a dexterous acrobatic performance; Rose Elliott vocalises pleasantly; Tom Yorke proves an entertaining coster comedian; and there are excellent films on the Barrascope.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Coyle.—Mr. A. E. Smith's pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk was produced here on Boxing Day. The house was packed to overflowing, and enthusiasm was unbounded throughout. The music is sparkling and catchy. The dresses are pretty and the scenery is good. The choruses are sung with much tunefulness and precision, and the play is carried through without a hitch. Some effective and clever dances are given, and the excellent humour provided keeps the audience in a constant state of hilarity. Miss Kathleen Garnon as Jack moves brightly through the piece, and is a generous contributor to the musical department, scoring well in her songs, the chief of which are "Have you got another girl like Mary?" "I don't care if there's another girl there," and "Bombardier"; Miss Frankie Barton as Jill, the principal girl, besides having a charming stage appearance, possesses a fine voice, which is used effectively in her rendering of "Oh! oh! Antonio," and "Poverty-street." The Sisters Holman as Margery Daw and Tommy Tucker fit their parts successfully. Their dancing is something above the average, the tambourine dance especially giving evidence of marked ability. Their duets are well rendered and very pleasing. Mr. Billy Taylor, a clever comedian, sustains the part of Dame Durden, his comicalities and versatility providing endless amusement. He is ably supported by Foley and Francis as Simple Simon and Johnny Horner. Miss Gertie Leno makes a dainty Queen of Light, her acting is graceful, and in her singing of "When the roses bloom again" she scores a success. The Bendenes give a fine contortionist display, and Miss Ella Verrier appears as a clever young dancer.

OLDBURY.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—This week's bill includes the well-known gymnasts Petro and Leon, who perform some remarkable feats; Walter Levalle, coster comedian; Miss Bellmore; T. W. Barrett, the nobleman's son; and the Cinderella pantomime on the Bioscope. Other turns include A. Vowles Reeves and Miss Pritchard.

OLDHAM.—COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company is doing good business in the second week of their stay in the pantomime Babes in the Wood. Wee Georgie Wood again proves most amusing in his delineation of Leslie, and Little Peggy McDonnell sings and dances in dainty fashion. Miss Dolly Dodds charms the audience with her vivacious acting as Marion, and Miss Daisy Wood makes a dashing Robin Hood. Misses Trixie Wyatt, Annie Brumby, Marie Lumberg, and Annie Adamson are excellent in their respective parts; Miss Jennie Hughes is a graceful Fairy Dew Drop, and sings her numbers with good effect; Mr. J. G. Aitken as Sandy Simple contrives to get much humour out of his part, and is ably seconded by Mr. Jimmie Watson as Lucinda Lovejoy, both artists causing hearty laughter. Mr. Neil Hardy makes a smart Baron Strangeways. The villains of the piece, Willing and Weary, are ably sustained by Messrs. Graham and Barron, who do some smart dancing; Mr. Harry Leander is capital as Friar Tuck; and Master Jack Harrison does well as Grinde, the miller. Specialities are provided by Harry Leander; Levy and Cardwell's International Dancers; Wee Georgie Wood, and Peggy McDonnell; and a harlequinade in the form of a circus delights the children.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—This house of entertainment was reopened with a variety programme, with B. A. Rolfe's Ten Dark Knights topping the bill, and some excellent singing and musical selections are given. Coram, in his popular ventriloquial act, is a capable turn; Sinclair and Whiteford, in Getting Even, arouse hearty laughter; the Austral Trio are excellent in a refined musical mélange; and the Gautschmidts are clever in an acrobatic novelty. Vena Valma sings and dances very well; Elsie Claire is a talented singer; and W. G. Webber contributes some finely-sung bass songs. The Bioscope concludes with an interesting picture.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Rosie Ring, in a novel pot-pourri act, has a good reception; Lloyd's Napoli Singers provide capital harmony; Mark Melford and company are very amusing in the comedy sketch Non-Suited; Wishart presents some smart illusions; and the Sisters Terry sing well, and gain much applause. Lester and Moure are good in an eccentric comedy act; Ellis and Ellis are smart in a singing and dancing speciality; and E. Frisbey is very good as a boy soprano. The Dottoscope depicts new pictures.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Elma and Rega, acrobats in funniosities, are smart; Biff Hall is a capital character comedian; Arthur Alexander and company present a well-acted dramatic episode, For the Honour of the Family; Bains and Reed are smart in an original speciality; Sid Kenneth and Maud Kane, an excellent comedy duo, appear in A Few Words.; The Milfords sing and dance well; and Cliff Rock has a good voice. McAskell is a very amusing comedy conjurer. The Dottoscope is a feature of the programme.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Thorne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—Jake Friedman and company top the bill in Happy Holland, and have a hearty reception. Miss Florence Hunton as Gretchen is dainty, and sings well; whilst Jake Friedman appears with great success as Jakey Doclevasal. A realistic picture of the Gotch and Hackenschmidt match is well received; Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas are amusing in their duologue, Her Birthday; a clever turn is provided by S. and G. Auer; Massona is a smart juggler; and Lena Pana, at the piano, is capital. Chas. Sloman, quaint comedian, completes the programme.

OXFORD.—EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company are here with The Silver King, which drew a large audience on Boxing Day. Mr. Fred D. Daviss easily scores high honours with his penetrating and sympathetic portrayal of Wilfred Denver; Mr. Edward J. George is well at home in the part of Daniel Jaikes, which fits him admirably; and Mr. Stanton-Sharp is strenuous and convincing as Capt. Herbert Skinner. Miss Louie Hale is effective as Tabitha Durden; Miss Margaret Rorke does well as Susie; Miss Madge Morley easily gains the sympathy of her audience with a clever study of Nellie Denver; and Miss Flossie Hall Daviss gives proof of considerable ability as Cissie.

NEW THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company, including Miss Agnes Verity and Mr. Austen Milroy, opened to a full house on Boxing Day with From Slave to Princess. Mr. Austen Milroy gives a very robust and spirited interpretation of Prince Julian, and Mr. Roy Jackson is powerful as Michael Bardoni. Mr. R. Harley West is very successful as Lieut. Alexis; Mr. Fred Clifford does well as Peter; and Mr. Will Hook is amusing as Patrick O'Brien. Miss Dorothy Last gives a graceful rendering of Vera; Miss Daisy Carlton makes a vivacious Amelia; and Miss Agnes Verity sustains Princess Claudia with great force and conviction. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday the same company presented Under Two Flags.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. Savile's twelfth annual pantomime in town, Puss in Boots, is running right merrily in this, its second week. The company has not been slow in getting the rough edges knocked off incidental to the initial performances, with the result that now the pantomime runs with complete smoothness and precision. The success already achieved augurs well for a most brilliant run of several weeks.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—A capital programme is being submitted here this week, and is contributed to by the following talented artists:—The Four Royal Scots, in a musical sketch entitled When the Cat's Away; W. L. Murray, who gives a series of muscular studies and also an exhibition of weight-lifting; the Leotard Brothers, whose hand-balancing and hat-throwing is excellent; Radie Furman, who delights with her dancing; J. A. Cassels, Scotch comedian, who is very funny and entertaining; Alf Chester, comedian, who is applauded; Richard Taylor, whose ventriloquial turn causes much amusement; and S. Bedford's company, in an enjoyable sketch entitled The Second Mrs. Chester. The Hippodrome Bioscope also adds to the entertainment of the holiday audiences.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Barger; Business-Manager, Mr. Norman Barger.—Opening on Boxing Day and continuing for the following week, Mr. Oswald Brooks presented to record houses The New Housemaid. Mr. Edward Mervyn is capital as Peter Pinkerton, J.P.; Mr. Reginald Hargreaves plays well as his nephew, Frank Pinkerton; Mr. Howard L. Tracy as the Hon. Bertie Rashleigh is good, and keeps the fun going briskly when disguised as the new housemaid; Mr. Archie Selwyn maintains to perfection the part of the Rev. Stephen Stingles, equal praise being due to Mr. P. Ramsay Forman as Marmsbury Doom, a detective. Mr. Herbert Colley in the rôle of Rosebery, the butler, causes considerable amusement, and he receives able support from Miss Caroline Carlton as Lettice, the cook. Miss Dot Seilby as Caroline, Peter's sister, is well suited to the part; Miss Babs Stuart is clever as Dulcie, her niece, and gains general admiration; Miss Renee de l'Estrade capably maintains the part of Lucy Merton; and Miss Marion Pollock as Nellie Haddock and Mr. Charles White as Police-constable Nailor complete the cast. Brokers Ahead is presented as a curtain-raiser with much success, the cast consisting of Mr. Edward Mervyn, Mr. Archie Selwyn, Miss Marion Pollock,(Mr. Herbert Colley, and Miss Renee de l'Estrade.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—An attractive bill draws large audiences here this week. Corbin's Dogs top the bill, and their performances are the acme of canine intelligence; Kyoto, in a Japanese mysterious and humorous act, is deservedly applauded; Jack Marks, the juvenile Hebrew comedian, as "Ikey Moo" is much appreciated; The Vanderbilts are artists of exceptional merit, and portray various characters with great effect; Ernesto is an equilibrist and juggler who holds the audience by his skill and dexterity; Allen and Harte, speciality dancers and duettists, are cordially received; Mario Leonard, in pictorial numbers, is much appreciated; May Geraldine, comedienne and dancer, is entertaining; and Miss Amy Anderson and Co., in The Banana Queen, contribute untainted comedy. The Tivoliscope concludes.

PERTH.—THE PERTH THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Perth is fortunate in being visited this week by one of Mr. George Edwardes's companies in the renowned musical comedy The Merry Widow. Miss Mysie Devine makes a charming Sonia, and meets with much success, as also does Mr. Frank Green, who takes the part of the Prince. Mr. Edward D'Arcy and Miss Ada Thomas are very humorous as Baron Popoff and his wife; while Mr. Fred Fowler as Nisch also provides much of the humour. Mr. Ripley Evans gives a capital performance as Vicomte Carmille de Jolidon; and Mr. William Allison as the Marquis de Cascada, Mr. Fred Pedgrift as M. de St. Brioche, and Mr. Clifford Seyler as General Novakovitch, all show ability. Miss Katie May as Frou-Frou dances gracefully.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Royal was closed last week in preparation for the pantomime Cinderella, which was produced on Boxing Day.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. J. Field.—The Christmas week programme would have satisfied the most fastidious, all turns being alike of first-rate merit. Les François, who have had the honour of appearing before His Majesty, furnished an acrobatic performance which was an entertainment in itself; Mendel, the blind pianist, again appeared, and gave his wonderful musical display; Spangles and Sawdust performed some marvellous mid-air feats; the Xentrics were warmly applauded for some skilfully executed dancing; Allan and Hart presented an interesting number as Protean artists; Edie Coolville proved herself an attractive and entertaining comedienne; Pop Dearly sang some taking coon songs; and the Cosman Couple presented a smart comedy act.

Large holiday audiences have nightly packed the building to enjoy a fine programme. Miss Gwennie Llewellyn, a youthful vocalist possessing a voice of surprising clearness and range, is "star," and fully deserves her position on the bill, her selected songs being loudly applauded. The Seven Perezoffs provide an amusing comedy juggling pantomime; Dusty Rhodes again meets with a hearty welcome, and Harry Tate's No. 1 Company furnishes a diverting skit on the less-enjoyable side of motoring. Mlle. Eldee furnishes some particularly graceful poses in an original number; Walter King's woes still supply much amusement, and Clarice Sefton is an accomplished specialty dancer. Some interesting films on the Palascope conclude.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—That Edward Ranier's company secured a success last week is evident in so far as they remain at the top of the bill this week in another stirring playlet, A Son's Devotion, which is no less appreciated; the Four Dorians do a graceful and clever gymnastic act, and are decidedly above the average; Rousby and Rene, in a duologue Fine Feathers, give a very human study of Lancashire life in a sympathetic style; Gibbon and Bell are nimble and expert dancers; the Sisters Henderson play the harp and dance equally well, whilst Fred Bamford whistles like the lark; Tom Gott, comedian, delivers himself of some most amusing patter in the very broadest "Yorkshire"; and Gertrude Martini sings some very pertinent songs in a convincing way. The pictures are all that can be desired.

PORTH.—THE PALACE.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Heading the bill here we have Fraser's "Enchanted Iona," a turn which merits the greatest praise; Will Probyn's Brooklyn Comedy Four in a nautical scena are accorded a warm reception; Gene Selby does remarkably well as the original Coffee-coloured Coon; the Bros. Dean, twin dancers, are exceptionally smart; the Zaid Trio contribute greatly to the evening's enjoyment in their original speciality; Frank F. Street meets with approval as a comedian; and the Sprees deserve credit for their endeavours in the scena entitled Twickenham Ferry. The Palascope, as usual, pleases all.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison presented Peter's Mother here last week. Mr. Townsend Whitling played Sir Timothy Crewys with ability; Peter Crewys was sustained in effective fashion by Mr. Vivian Gilbert; Mr. Edward Jephson made a typical Dr. Blundell; Canon Birch was ably taken by Mr. Walter Russell; and Mr. Drew Mackintosh did sound work as John Crewys. Miss Mary Griffiths was well suited as Lady Belstone; Miss Josephine Rae as the spinster sister was amusing; and Miss Hilda Sims as Sarah and Miss Violet Ley as Lady Mary Crewys were admirable. Turtle Doves was the curtain-raiser.

Mr. George Dance's company opened its tour with Havana on Boxing Day, when the house was crowded to excess for both matinée and evening performances. The production possesses all the advantages of lavishness in the way of staging, new and handsome costumes, and brilliant scenic effects for which Mr. Dance is conspicuous. The ladies and gentlemen of the chorus carry out their duties with ease, and reflect credit upon their conductor, Mr. Albert Vernon. Miss Hebe Bliss seems happily placed as Consuelo; she possesses both good voice and dramatic expression. As Jackson Villiers Mr. Cecil Parkes acts expressively, his friend Hon. Frank Charteris having an agile and effective exponent in Mr. Bay Russell, who assists in a semi-acrobatic dance with Miss Violet Dene (Maraquita). Mr. Sydney T. Pease is highly successful as Nix, his doleful countenance and droll mannerisms making him irresistibly funny; his matrimonial monologue and Merry Widow skit with Anita (Miss Gladys Guy) were hits of the evening. Mr. Tom Seymour as Reginald Brown made a typical sailor, full of rollicking fun and humour, his songs "Filibuster Brown" and "How did the bird know?" being favourite numbers. Miss Helen Langton made an imposing Isabelita, while the fortune teller Symra Verrions had an attractive exponent in Miss Toni Seymour. Bombito had a satisfactory impersonator in Mr. Frank Sealey. Adolfo is in the capable hands of Mr. George Story.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Pantomime is again the reigning attraction here, the task of producing it having been entrusted to the competent hands of Mr. J. F. Elliston, whose excellent work was admired by crowds who visited this popular house on Boxing Day. The story Cinderella, so dear to children, was condensed by Mr. St. John Hamund, and was elaborated in two acts comprising eleven scenes, many of great brilliancy, under the stage-management of Mr. Fred Mulvey. A dainty and charming Cinderella was seen in Miss Connie Leon, who distinguished herself in the song "Bubbles." Her suitor, Prince Florizel, was characteristically impersonated by Miss Maude Mortimer, whose dash and go made her an ideal principal boy. Her chief numbers were "Let's have a song about the boys," "The White Man," and "I want you to see my girl," and all went remarkably well. The success of the pantomime largely depends upon its comedians, and the engagement of Mr. W. T. Thompson for the rôle of Buttons goes far to fulfil that requirement, his quaint drollery keeping the audience in high spirits whenever he is on the boards. He was well supported by Mr. Stanley Vandyke as the impecunious Baron Harduppe, their principal hit being a caricature of the leading variety artists. Miss Minnie Miriam made a smart, captivating Dandini; the Fairy Godmother had a stately representative in Mlle. de Velin, and Father Time's impersonator was Mr. George Belrose. The jealous Sisters were amusingly portrayed by Misses Edith Barwell and Annie Cohen, the latter's song being "Oh, oh Antonio"; the Sisters Edwardes (Colin and Rose) are a valuable acquisition to the cast. Mr. J. Collins's Six Monte Carlo Girls sang and danced cleverly. The chorus and orchestra did well under the direction of Mr. Basil Horsfall.

KING'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Joseph Hart's racing spectacle, Futurity Winner, came here last week. Lennard and Veraker in illumined pictorial songs took the fancy of the house greatly; the Bijou Juveniles gave a pleasing show; Gus Garrick was very successful; Lanas and Montes, comedy acrobats, proved an acceptable turn; Le Freya contributed an artistic and novel performance; Raven Wood, card manipulator, had some excellent tricks; and Anitita and August in a bright comedy act; Mike None, the Irish cowboy; the Four Maisonias, in an extremely fine musical act; and the Barrascope pictures completed a capital bill.

The programme this week is The Butler's Party, presented by Joe Peterman; another capital playlet is In the Old Neighbourhood, by Jas. Callaghan and Jenny St. George; the Brilliants display skill on the xylophone; the Carmos are clever jugglers and balancers; Henry and Tyler are amusing in their cycling comedy, Humours of the Highway; Henry Helme, Tony Black, Iris Banfield, and the Barrascope Pictures complete the entertainment.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Captain Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Heading the bill last week were Muller, Chunn, and Muller, hoop jugglers; Henry Hilton, card manipulator, gave a clever entertainment; the Resua Trio in an acrobatic tight-wire act were good; the Three Brights in a refined vocal and instrumental speciality were admirable; Dave Samuels, American Hebrew comedian, caught on well; the Sisters Brooke, dainty vocalists and dancers, were well received; Jack North, the peculiar comedian, was responsible for a much-liked turn; Henry Herne, Ida Millais, and company presented an original water sensation in three scenes, gaining hearty and well-deserved applause; and Payne's excellent and seasonable pictures concluded.

For the star turn this week the management presents The Little Stowaway, which was well received by appreciative audiences. An exceptionally strong cast includes Mr. John K. Walton as the good-hearted old sea captain, whose kindliness touched the hearts of the "gods." As Lieut. Burton, R.N.R., Mr. Arthur Temple has a thankless part, but plays it to perfection. Miss Marjory Armstrong as the Little Stowaway proved herself a capable little actress in a very trying part. The Vasilescus provide a clever and laughable triple horizontal bar act; Bert Weston makes a decided hit with his clever and amusing patter and his topical song; May Loftus, described as the juvenile champion clog dancer of the world, is heartily applauded; Mr. Fred Elton has a tuneful voice, and his sketch at the piano is much appreciated; Joe Humphreys scores with his song "Bravo, Billy," and other excellent turns are provided by Irene Meldon, Ike Monckton, and Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Col. Roberts, V.D.; Resident-Manager. Mr. George Harris.—Yukio Tani headed the bill here last week. The Louisiana Trio of coloured vocalists and dancers pleased greatly; Frances McNulty, characteristic comedienne, gave an excellent turn; Mlle. Renée, in a refined instrumental act, charmed everyone; the Three Romas were wonderfully smart; the Victas, barrel jumpers, were also very good; Mike S. Whallen, Irish comedian, was immensely popular; and the Hippo. pictures of up-to-date character finished a good programme.

This week the principal attraction is Fred Karno's sketch The Yap Yaps. D'Arc's Marionettes in imitations of famous vaudeville artists provide another good turn. Mr. Arthur Croxon displays ability as a mimetic comedian. The Three Panamas, Edie Anderson, Chas. Leighton, and a capital picture from Ruffell's Bioscope, Raised from the Ranks, pleases greatly.

PEOPLE'S PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Pearce.—This house receives its full share of patronage. The entertainment is sustained by J. P. Boston, Dick Bradly, the Haydors, Mabel and Rosa, Madge Dorsay, Mint and Mart, the Two Bruntons, Clown Agouste, and Lilian Savaro.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—By arrangement with Mr. Cyril Maude Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper are presenting The Flag Lieutenant here, and it has proved an immense draw. The company is an exceptionally strong one all round, and the manner in which the play is produced is worthy of the highest praise, the scenery, dresses, and uniforms being really magnificent and perfect to the most minute details. The large audiences that have attended bear testimony to the popularity of the play. Mr. George Mallett is a typical Vice-Admiral Sir Berkeley Wynne; Mr. Lionel Atwill as Richard Lascelles (Flag Lieutenant) is admirable, and both looks and acts the part to perfection; Mr H. Montague Love is the Major William Thesiger, and it would be difficult to find anyone better suited to the part; Messrs. Hugh Wakefield and Lyonel Watts as Horatio Hood and Edward Lee (Midshipman) are both good; Mr. W. J. Yeldham as the mischief-making General Gough-Boyle is capital; Mr. John Wheatman is typically humorous as Michael Palliser; Mr. Edward S. Petley as Surgeon Walter Crutchley is most natural; Miss Florence Jackson is a firm favourite with the audience, and her Mrs. Cameron is an excellent bit of acting; Miss Viva Birkett also comes in for a large share of the applause for her excellent and sympathetic rendering of the part of Lady Hermione Wynne; Miss Marjorie Dore is very good as Viola Hood; Miss Stella Leigh also scores as Mrs. Gough-Boyle, and Miss Winifred Vallant deserves praise for her capital Lady Dugdale.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Matthew Glenville and Fred Osmond's pantomime Aladdin is this week's attraction. The company is a good one, and includes Miss Hettie Zillwood, Miss Maggie Hobart, the Ella Walmer troupe of dancers, the Brothers Lavelle, comedy acrobats, the Three Behans, comedy artists and dancers, and the Gaudo Vocal Male Sextette. With such speciality turns included in the cast it is little wonder that the fun is fast and furious from rise to fall of the curtain. Miss Hettie Zillwood is a sprightly Aladdin, Miss Maggie Hobart an exceedingly dainty Princess Balroubador, Mr. Matthew Glenville an irresistibly funny Emperor, and Mr. Fred Osmond a no less amusing Vizier. Mr. Fowler Thatcher is the diverting Abanazar; Mr. Arthur E. Behan a very funny Mrs. Twankey; the Bros. Lavelle are in their element as the two policemen, Pee-Lah and Kopp-Ah; Mr. Freddie Edwards is a capital Wishee-Washee; Mr. J. Sutton Edwards is good as Diabolo, the slave of the lamp; Miss Lou Charlesworth, a charming Electral, the genie of the ring; and Miss Cissie Behan and Miss Kitty Behan as Pekoe and Cher-Ke respectively win much applause.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Captain Roberts, the Army Staff trumpeter, assisted by two ladies, two ponies, and his comical soldier boys, Curt and Alexander, gives an excellent display, in which he proves himself to be a musician, athlete, and balancer of no mean order; Williams and Warden have a side-splitting vaudeville act, Mr. Dooley, which evidently pleases; Johnson and Bert present their novel act A Queer Customer, and win much applause; Lewis's Mannikins is an excellent fit-up and a most cleverly manipulated show, and certainly the best seen here; Beattie and Babs win much applause for their bright song and dance scena A Pavement Rehearsal, which is very cleverly rendered; Margaret Drew is a dainty singer of chorus-songs. Billy Williams, Jenny Shields, Arthur Royce at the piano, and the Bioscope are other attractions.

RADCLIFFE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. George T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company opened to a good house with The Lancashire Lad. Mr. Charles Stafford was good as David Elmore, and Mr. G. C. Wallace was seen to advantage as Max Carlton; Mr. Hugh Wallace gave a capital rendering of Jem Wincott; Mr. Will Brereton would be hard to beat as Professor Boulanger; Mr. W. Kenion as John Willie and Mr. G. Watson as the Village Sponge added to the amusement of the piece; Miss Nell Oliver was most effective as Lorna Wincott, and Miss Molly Monaghan caused much merriment as Mother Wardle; Miss L. Pearce fairly revelled in the part of Jane Alice, and Miss Phyllis Elton deserves a word as Jessie. The three variety artists, Miss E. Roselle, Miss Gertie Gaye, and Miss Daisy Gaye, introduced a turn which proved most acceptable, and the stage effects during the turn were admirable.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Resident-Manager, Mr. Dan Forrest; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—The Christmas attraction at the Royal Palace Theatre has this year taken the form of pictorial pantomimes, represented by Mr. Ernest Mansell's graphic life-motion pictures. The shows have been given twice nightly since Boxing Day, and the audiences have been large and appreciative except upon those afternoons when the streets were snowbound, the weather adversely affecting the attendance at matinées arranged. The pantomimes, effectively presented in picture, are Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves and Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp. The films are excellent and full of interest, and they are supplemented by others of a general character. Mr. T. C. Callaghan, the well-known eccentric comedian, has also proved very popular at the various shows. Mr. Mansell is continuing with success his series of sacred concerts on Sundays.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—The Eyes of the World was presented here on Monday by Ethel van Praagh and J. Edward Whitty's clever combination. As Helen de L'Orme Miss Ethel van Praagh was most powerful and convincing; as Esme de Carnac Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh gave a clever rendering; Miss Nellie Garside was a delightful Susanne, and Miss Irene Stanhope an admirable Avice de L'Orme; as Hector de L'Orme Mr. George D. Daiper was most successful; as Gaston de Carnac Mr. Will Casey was natural and refined; and as Achille Mr. J. Edward Whitty was decidedly good, Mr. Charles Stirling being equally successful as Octave.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton.—Messrs. F. J. Little and F. Darcy are having a capital run with their pantomime of Whittington and His Cat, which they have produced in sumptuous style. The title rôle is filled with grace and vivacity by Miss Beatrice Varley, who is also highly successful in her singing; Miss Vera Dudley is a dashing Captain Ralph Mainbrace; Miss Ida Brophy acts very daintily as Alice Fitzwarren; Miss Adelaone Tohie plays effectively as the Princess Zorilda; and Mr. J. Templar Ellis as Alderman Fitzvarren, Mr. Syd Crossley as Sarah the Cook, and Mr. James Kurry as Idle Jack keep the fun going fast and furious throughout. Messrs. Clifton and Gibson do some skilful step-dancing as the Bo'sun and his Mate; Mr. James Stratton is very good as the representative of Tom the Cat; Miss Beatrice Moore is a captivating Fairy of the Bells; Mr. Caryl H. Storrs sings and acts well as the King Rat; and Mr. Geo. Bishop is an able impersonator of the Emperor of Morocco. The Oowana Girls are a capital quartette of dancers; the Enrico Martiolo Trio introduce some very skilful and daring feats of juggling and balancing; and the Mohamed Ben Mohamed Troupe give a very smart acrobatic performance. The pantomime is elaborately mounted and the scenery and costumes highly effective.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—The artists engaged here are Elsie Earle, who introduces a pleasing song-scena, "A Garden of Flowers"; Jack Hamilton, a clever comedian and dancer; Tangar, the West African wonder worker, who gives a capital sleight of hand and magical display; the Three Hodginis, in a very smart and novel acrobatic turn; and Lew Towers, an amusing light comedian. Arthur Dandoe's company appears with success in a very amusing musical burletta, entitled The Phonograph Belle; and some very effective pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

LARGE TOWN HALL.—Messrs. Poole's Myriorama is here, as usual, for the Christmas season, and is again drawing crowded houses. The pictures depicted embrace scenes in all parts of the world. A capital series of animated pictures is also shown, including an excellent series of scenes from "Oliver Twist" and a large number of humorous subjects. The variety entertainment is also of a high order, and comprises Miss Frederica's wonderful performing terriers and cake-walking pony; the Maclaines, in a smart conjuring display; the Tissots' living marionette entertainment; Eileen and Maynie, in a pleasing musical turn; and the Seddons, the lady juggler and the lazy waiter.

REDDITCH.—PUBLIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. T. E. Field.—Mr. Edmund Tearle's company was here on the 26th, 28th, and five following nights. On the 26th *It's Never Too Late to was excellent. On the 30th, in East Lynn, Miss Clinton played Lady Isabel admirably.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—The Village Blacksmith is the attraction here this week. Mr. Sam Livesey submits a powerful impersonation of John Strong; Captain Leo is cleverly sustained by Mr. Albert Sinclair; Harry Strong is admirably enacted by Miss Lily Leicester; Mr. Edwin Maydew is an effective Lucas Marler; Mr. Fred Haming an amusing Billy Twigg; Miss Cassie Le Grande is a convincing Ruth Parkins; and Miss Maggie Edwards portrays with telling effect the rôle of Kate Strong.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—The Harvey Boys, who head the bill here this week, create roars of laughter with their comedy boxing act; Stewart and Morgan submit some acceptable vocalism; Martin Henderson, blind musician, renders some finely-executed numbers on the concertina and piano; and other items are submitted by Marie Powell (comedienne), Albert Letine (female impersonator), Morimura (Japanese illusionist), Ada Gatley (in a pot-pourri speciality), and the Empire Bioscope pictures.

NEW HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, The Jackson Family; Business-Manager, Mr. Jno. Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson, sen.—George D'Albert and company present The Outpost; the Warsaw Bros. are deservedly appreciated in their musical comedy act; Dare Austin, in His Wedding Morn, submits a capital duologue; the Raymond Trio are refined and clever in their musical and dancing act; and Miss Maudie Ford (comedienne), Dick Kendall (comedian and dancer), Joe Almasio (jumping juggler), and the Hippodrome pictures complete an attractive programme. The Voldam Bros. were unable to appear on Monday evening.

ROTHERHAM.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—An excellent bill has been got together here for the holiday week, crowded houses being the result. Ajax and George are responsible for an extraordinary gymnastic act; and Kent and Earle give a very pleasing drawing-room scena; David Poole has a smart ventriloquial turn; and the Celtic Trio are brimful of fun in their comedy act; the Cheers introduce a number of highly-trained cats; Dan Robans as a Continental vocalist is heard to great advantage; Harvey's American Boys and Girls score a great success in their song-and-dance novelty; Messrs. Frank Bernard and company introduce a funny sketch in Hello—Howard, a lawyer, is cleverly enacted by Mr. M. C. Arthur Fairfax, and Blatz is most amusing in the hands of Mr. Frank Bernard. The Hipposcope contines to provide some excellent films.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Messrs. E. C. Jason and Richard Nightingale are producing here an elaborate pantomime of Dick Whittington, and are receiving record patronage. Miss Maud Beaumont is a smart exponent of the title-rôle, being ably seconded by Willie Vanda as Thomas the Cat; Miss Vera Snowden as Alice is graceful; Mr. Wm. Miller is amusing as Fitzwarren; Mr. Fred Ward, an old local favourite, gains many friends as Jack; Mr. Allen Amber scores as Sarah; the Willoughbys are seen to advantage as Captain and Mate of the Saucy Sally, knockabouts; Miss Daisy Dashwood is a sprightly Prince of Morocco; and Miss Olive Audrey as Fairy Bountiful sings with great effect. Specialities are introduced by the Vandas, the Willoughbys, Peace and Ward, Salida and Vone, creole performers, and Terry and Snowden. Rustic ballets are prettily executed by specially-trained children.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Sam Duckworth's company had a good reception by a full house on Monday, when The Conscience of a Judge was presented. Mr. Stanley Bedwell as Herbert Granstone ably sustained the title-rôle; Mr. Frank Eaglesfield did well as the villainous Sir Edward Mervin; Miss Eva Moss was very successful as Jessica Draycott, and a charming Ethel Vaughan was that by Miss Mabel Coleman. Mr. Martin Pedler was smart as Cecil Bentley; Mr. Frank Eden caused much fun as Horatio Winters in conjunction with Mr. Dalton Bosher as John Summers and Miss Bessie Frank as Mary Wilson. Little Kitty was cleverly portrayed by Miss Elsie Isaacs. Mr. Cecil Renton (Geoffrey Granstone), Miss Mona Dawlish (Mrs. Draycott), and Mr. Ford Edwards (Old Jervis) also did good work.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Fred Granville's comic pantomime Beauty and the Beast commenced here on Boxing Day, and draws excellent houses. The production is under the personal supervision of Mr. Granville. It is brought up to date, and the scenery, by W. Wells and T. Holmes, is excellent. Very pretty dresses add much to the show. The gags are highly amusing. Some excellent songs are rendered in creditable style. The dances are very clever and well arranged. Beauty is smartly played by Miss Maud Sprightly; Miss Lily Sprightly is a dashing Silver Buttons; Miss Hilda de Gray is a charming Prince Greatheart; Mr. Sam Foster (Sammy), Mr. Juan Wood (Winkles), Miss Florrie Sprightly (Wilhelmina), Daleno and Stream (two Bailiffs) work hard and are very successful laughter-raisers. The speciality dancing by Kennedy's Kiddies is very smart. There are also very amusing and acceptable specialities by the three Sisters Sprightly, Messrs. Daleno and Stream, and the Sisters Kebble. Mlle. Benita does well as Fairy Sunlight. Two shows nightly and several matinées

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—Zona Vevey, assisted by Herr Max Erard (with special scenery by W. Maughan), gives a clever performance in My Lady's Bower; Sandy McNab in The Egyptian Mummy keeps the house in roars. Other good turns include Horace Sade, characteristic dancer; Frank E. Ford, dancer; Les Zelovas, smart Continental acrobats; the Deuchars, duettists and dancers; Fame and Fortune, comedy eccentrics; and Braund and Davies (Teddy and Bert), comedians

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. E. Percival.—Among this week's pictures are Tarn Mountains, Princess Tricksy, The Terrible Fly, Providence of Chance, Father's Holiday, Servant of an Acrobatic Family, Holiday of Life, On Guard at a Powder Magazine, and I Will if I Catch You. "Far away" is the illustrated song, by Mr. Tom Sherlock, which goes well.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. H. D. Lyle.—Messrs. F. Marriott-Watson and Sanderson Moffatt's company is here again this week with A False Wife. Lieut. Geo. Mansfield is skilfully drawn by Mr. Sanderson Moffatt; Mr. Elton Morgan gives a breezy portrayal of Ben Rattler; Mr. Owen Edwin is amusing as Archibald; Jean Berand's villainy is successfully depicted by Mr. Reg. Kloof; Mr. Geo. Langham gives a satisfactory study of Sir Colin; Zorak is carefully drawn by Mr. F. Marriott-Watson; as Estelle de Lussan Miss Florence E. Florence wins great praise; Agnes Weyland leaves nothing to be desired as depicted by Miss Phyllis Hamilton; Sarah is skilfully presented by Miss Flo Norman, and as Bessie Miss Norah Waylett does well.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—According to the custom of recent years, musical comedy is the Christmas theatrical fare provided here. On Boxing Day there was a crowded audience to welcome the great Sheffield favourite, Miss Marie Studholme, who appeared, supported by Mr. Frank Curzon's company of London artists, in the tuneful and brilliantly-staged musical play My Mimosa Maid, by Paul Rubens and Austen Hurgon. Miss Studholme, with her pleasing vocalism, charming personality, and fascinating smile, was received with enthusiasm, and it was evident that she still occupies a proud and honestly-earned position in the estimation of all lovers of the lighter form of dramatic entertainment. All the parts were well played, and the band and chorus were first rate. Miss Studholme's visit is for thirteen nights, so big business is assured.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The holiday bill of fare at the palatial Empire comprised the following talented artists:—Bella and Bijou, the popular and smart duettists, in their clever society burlettas; the Ten-Ji Troupe of extraordinary Japanese wonder-workers and conjurors; Mr. Charles Stevens, vocal comedian; La Belle Nello, equilibrist, &c.; McCann's well-trained dogs; Hayes and Wynn in a novel act; Mr. Tom Bryce; Miss Jeannie Mackay; the accomplished Dumond Trio, speciality artists; &c. The performance concludes with new Bioscope pictures.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—Crowded houses have this week cheered the Christmas company, which includes Brinn, in his spectacular athletic act and feats of strength; Ted Curtis and his agile piccaninnies; Mr. C. F. Best, an original humorist; Mr. Herbert Clifton; Mr. W. Reynolds's company; Mr. Ted Cowan; Friend and Downing; and the diverting pair Maxie and Pete. The Barrascope, with beautiful coloured films, is still a popular feature.

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—Animated pictures and vaudeville turns are delighting big crowds at Sheffield's leading picture theatre.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Jasper Redfern and Co., Ltd.—This resort, devoted mainly to animated pictures, is doing first-rate business.

THE PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Peach.—First-rate moving photos of every description are here delighting Bioscope lovers.

ALBERT HALL.—Manager, Mr. J. Peace.—The celebrated Chas. W. Poole Myriorama and Bioscope entertainment opened for a month's stay on Christmas Eve, and big houses have been the rule through the holidays. The variety troupe includes the Royal Banzais, Japanese jugglers; Little Alright; Mr. Harry Raymond; Mersano, the "Captain Kettle" conjuror; Mr. Dan Davies; Mr. Willie Dean; Mr. Sydney Bach; Mr. Frank Lyndon; and the Seven Bramusas, instrumentalists.. A grand mechanical and electric spectacle —"The Warfare of the Future"—is loudly applauded.

MONTGOMERY HALL.—The Imperial Animated Picture Co. is located here with the latest marvels in coloured films and up-to-date photography.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—Following an attractive Christmastide programme of variety turns and pictures, which drew large and appreciative houses, the management has this week, with characteristic enterprise, put on an entirely different set of turns. Savile Bradley and company are here with a very smart series of pantomime sketches, their knockabout business being particularly good; Professor Lorenzo and his finely-trained troupe of performing dogs proves a bright and pleasing item; the Sisters Ely are pretty and talented; the Maddison Bros., quaint comedians and comic boxers, provide plenty of wholesome fun; Castancia is a charming juvenile comedienne; Mitz, an expert Japanese juggler, wins enthusiastic applause; Sid Herman is a faithful delineator of Hebrew types, and works hard to entertain; and the Godfreys contribute a funny sketch entitled The Slavey and the Coon. Bioscope pictures, up to date and good, are, as usual, highly appreciated

SMETHWICK. — ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Pantomime is unusual Christmas fare here, but that it is much appreciated has been fully demonstrated by the crowded audiences which have attended since Messrs. Cullen and Carthy opened on Saturday with The Babes in the Wood. It is a merry piece throughout, with pretty ballets and catchy songs. The plot is hatched, as usual, in Cloudland, and the Palace scene is a fitting climax to a series of effective settings. The company is a strong one. Miss Bessie Cohen is the principal boy, and is a great favourite as Robin Hood; Maid Marian (Miss Ruby Roya) and the Babes (Misses Dollie Cullen and Elsie Jordison) are also well received. Messrs. Cullen and Carthy as the Robbers, Little Cluley as Bantam, and Tom Drew as the Dame, are clever and entertaining comedians. The chorus is well balanced and the dresses are capital.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. Walter Howard's Lyceum drama The Prince and the Beggar Maid is the holiday attraction, and proves a huge success, the acting, staging, and effects being very fine throughout. Mr. Howard himself gives a capital portrayal of Prince Olaf.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Trussell.—John Hart's racing scena The Futurity Winner is proving a great draw, the finish being highly sensational. Feldman's Beau Ideal troupe of juveniles are particularly clever; and others appearing are:—Bernardo, comedy juggler; Dan Merrett, drum soloist; Annie Heath, comedienne and dancer; Donnas Trio, speciality artists; and Beale and Broadway, comedians.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—That wonderful magician Chung Ling Soo is still a popular favourite, his tricks completely mystifying everyone; the Louisiana troupe of dancers are three experts; Willie Gardner dances on skates; Diamond and Hart are smart cross-talkers; and Harry Russell and company in a comedy sketch, Binks' Blunder, cause roars of laughter.

PHILHARMONIC HALL.—Messrs. Andrews's pictures are seasonable, and the hall is packed at every performance.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—The Walturdaw animated pictures are attracting big crowds twice nightly, all the latest films being shown.

VICTORIA HALL.—Mr. Jacob Studt's world's fair and bioscope singing and talking pictures are creating quite a sensation, and liberal patronage is accorded this popular entertainment.

PIER PAVILION.—This building has been transformed into a skating rink, and at the opening on Boxing Day all three sessions were crowded. Mr. Edwin Roberts, an old-time roller skating champion, is rink master and instructor, and the venture promises to be a huge success.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. George Conquest and Richard H. Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Houses packed to overflowing gave striking testimony throughout the Christmas holiday to Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's efforts to provide a pantomime of both interest and enjoyment. Aladdin is an entertainment in two parts, as diverting as it is successful. The scenery is an exceptional feature of excellence, while the dresses are tasteful and elaborate. Some clever turns in the speciality entertainment in the second part win especial favour, in which the La Dor Troupe figure prominently as acrobats with smart feats; the Misses Carrie Warner, Amelia Graham, and Lorrie Wells as dancing girls; Mr. Albert Laurence, with a pleasing rendering of "Dear heart"; and some remarkable bone-solos by Mr. Percy Galino. The name-part has an all-round exponent in the talented Miss Amy Bellwood, who gives every satisfaction; the Princess, too, is equally fortunate in having so able an interpreter as Miss Daisy Kersey, who is successful in acting, singing, and dancing; Mr. Albert Laurence is a comedian well suited to the rôle of Widow Twankey; Mr. Ernest Carlton as Abanazer, the magician, is also prominent; and Mr. Will Burton makes a good character of the Emperor.

SOUTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's drama répertoire company was playing A Woman's Passion last week. Lord Vale was ably portrayed by Mr. Edmund Grogan; the Drabengro was a powerful performance by Mr. Archie Helsby; Mr. David McFarlane was a good Sir Randal Derrick; Miss Rosa Mervyn a forceful Claire Trevenen; Miss Emmie Barton a successful Winifred Hamlyn; and the gipsy queen was well accounted for by Miss H. Lawson, the comedy element being well sustained by Little Poulton, Miss Gertrude Purnell, and Mr. A B. Douglass.

At the Theatre Royal this week Mr. T. Edward Ward's company appear in The Love of the Princess, a clever drama by Mr. C. Watson Mill. Mr. Wilson Coleman as Prince Conrad has a fine presence, and acts with considerable power; Miss Maisie Hanbury is a charming Princess Idalia, and captures the hearts of the audience. Another good part is Lady Irene, by Miss Olive Lloyd. The cast is an unusually strong one.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, the South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Albert and Edmunds troupe of comedians were here last week in their sketch, Neighbours; Charles Bignell, in amusing songs, was well received; Bennie Barrow, a young baritone, showed great promise; Stacey and Williams were a clever comedy pair; good barrel jumping was exhibited by the McIleaveys; and other good items were contributed by Nance Elder, comedienne; Walter Aubrey clever dancer; and the Bioscope.

The top of the bill this week is Machnow, the Russian giant, the tallest man in the world; Wood, Wells, and Wilkins are good in their humorous vocal sketch, The Piano Tuner; and E. J. Sheldon is an expert whistler and dancer. Sybil Lester, the girl vocalist; Duncan and Godfrey, in their famous coster comedy, Me and 'Er; Edward E. Ford, Australian sundowner, submitting impersonations of various faces; Harry Leybourne, mimic; and the Bioscope are also in the bill.

TIVOLI, LAYGATE CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Councillor J. K. Hall.—The Ormesby quartette of vocalists provided some excellent numbers last week; Max Lindo exhibited great strength in his athletic exhibition; Charles Cassell was popular; and the Tivoloscope completed the bill.

This week Marcus Boyle, London comedian, has a big reception; Sisters Russell, burlesque actresses, display ability; and Mme. L. Clair makes a good impression in her illustrated songs. The Bioscope completes the bill.

STAFFORD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr James Elphinstone.—A Bunch of Violets is the holiday attraction here. Mr. W. S. Hartford as Sir Philip Marchant is the central figure, and as the gentlemanly villain brings to bear on his rôle the skill of an experienced actor; as Mark Murgatroyd Mr. Horace Sinclair gave a fine interpretation of the level-headed Yorkshireman; Mr. David Curtis's Jacob Schwartz was a good assumption; Mr. William A. Armour sustains the part of Harker with effect; Miss Dora Price sympathetically fills the part of Lady Marchant; Miss Rosamond Thompson made a charming Violet; and Miss Florence Tyrrell made an effective Mrs. Murgatroyd, her acting throughout being a fine study.

STALYBRIDGE. — HIPPODROME. — Lessee and Manager, James Fioni; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—A strong variety company is occupying the boards here this week. The bill is topped by Fritz Ressler in his sensational looping the loop act on a half-inch wire track. The company includes Mr. Sam Dalton, comedian, and Miss Lillian Travelli, comedienne, two strong local favourites.

ST. HELENS. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—Charles Aldrich, at the top of the bill, is a host in himself; his wonderful versatility and marvellous quick changes delighted everyone. Zeta Grey created much amusement with her sketch, singing well and causing great fun with her dialect. Godfrey James sings with a sweet tenor voice; Mr. and Mrs. Shelley give a sketch which is truly described as comedy, and are greeted with roars of laughter; Probyn and Bates are also very funny; and Lauri Leyton is a ventriloquist of merit.

STOCKPORT. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's pantomime Little Red Riding Hood was produced here on Christmas Eve, and is now running merrily, and to the evident pleasure of large audiences. It is delightfully entertaining throughout, with its sparkling music, up-to-date songs, magnificent dresses, and charming scenery, together with an abundance of wholesome fun provided by clever comedians. Among the latter Messrs. Denby and Dent as Doleful Dan and Whimsical William are very funny, and achieve much success with their amusing patter and their comical saying, "Have a bit a dance?" Mr. Billy Melia as Sunny Jim gives capital support, and is appreciated for his clever clog-dancing; Mr. V. Wakeman provokes plenty of laughter as Dame Trot; Mr. J. J. Mannix acts the part of Baron Hardup satisfactorily, and displays ability as a coon vocalist and dancer; Miss Fanny Adamson is a captivating Boy Blue, and is making "Afraid to come home in the dark" a very popular ditty; charming and graceful and a delightful vocalist is Miss May Gibson, who fills the part of Miss Muffitt; Little Iris Vivienne in the title-rôle is sweetly unsophisticated; Miss Helen Dunscombe is a very pleasing Will Scarlet; Miss Daisy Clifford sings and dances ably as Marjory Daw; Miss Clara Bramwell impersonates the good fairy, Silvia, with dignity and grace; and Mr. Will Gibson in the character of the Wolf makes the most of the part.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Seasonable fare also forms the attraction here in the pantomime Robinson Crusoe, which is presented twice nightly by Mr. Harry Burns's company, and provides a capital entertainment. A comedian of undoubted ability is Mr. Arthur Aiston, who as Will Atkins is genuinely funny and amusing; Dame Crusoe, in the hands of Mr. Henry Curwen, is responsible for much mirth; and the Brothers Ramsey as Captain Cuttle and Mate are a diverting pair of knockabout artists; Mlle. Du Roche is a delightful Robinson Crusoe and Miss Marie Bell makes a charming Polly Perkins, whilst the Yankee-Doodle Girls are distinctly clever, and command much appreciation.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — CASTLE THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime, Little Aladdin, opened here on Boxing Day. Miss Marie Beresford as Aladdin was very successful, her singing delighting the audience; Miss Lyé Jeffries made a charming Princess; vocalising with good taste, Miss Lily Ennes, as Pekoe, took well; Miss Emmie Milsted as Darkie Diabolo captivated the audience with her singing and dancing; Miss Rose Pareezer looked pretty in the rôle of the Fairy Queen; Mr. Harry Pleon made a good Widow Twankey, his impersonations in the Palace scene receiving loud applause; Mr. Joe Bell as Wishee-Washee was exceedingly funny, as also was Mr. Walter Purvis as Abarazar; Mr. Joe Burgess as the Emperor did well; and Ray and Ross as Spy and Kop caused much laughter. The chorus and ballet were very powerful, and Mr. John S. Kershaw conducted ably.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Fred Storey, in Rip Van Winkle, heads the bill here, and has a hearty reception. The Delevines are very clever, and take well; Miss Georgette Thierry's company, including Mr. Bernard Liell, in a sketch, A Daughter of the Revolution, act with real dramatic skill, and are applauded; Rowlands and Ford, patterers and dancers, are successful; Sim Maree, contortionist, is very clever; Joe Belmont, human bird, whistles in rare style; and Harry Nelson, Tyneside comedian, is as popular as ever. The Bioscope concludes.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company are giving Flowers of the Forest here, the leading characters being well sustained. Payne's Bio-photoscope is still very popular.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Moroney.—In the sketch The Merry Widower some ludicrous and amusing situations are ably depicted by Mr. Henry Herne, Miss Ida Millais, and company. Very smart acrobats and tumblers are the Faludy Troupe of Continental artists; the Saxonias are instrumentalists of no mean order, and their rendering of the "Poet and Peasant" is very fine; Effie White's dancing as "The Spirit of the Cave" is charming, and the coloured slides used are very pretty; Nell Cotter has a good appearance, and renders her songs well. Other contributors are Argo, Eugene Brant, Carelo, and the Bioscope.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Alexander Telford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Reach.—Mr. C. St. John Denton on Saturday produced Mr. S. F. Davidson's first pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor. The book is written by Mr. William Wade and the music composed and selected by Mr. Forbes Martin. The scenery is particularly fine, and gives evidence of much labour, thought, and taste on the part of Mr. Julian Hicks, the designer. Particularly noticeable are the electric lighting effects in the scenes The Wreck, The Orange Grove, and The Diamond Valley, by Mr. C. Harland, all of which evoked much enthusiasm. The dresses are also worthy of special comment, for which great credit is due to Miss Fisher and Mrs. Nicholl. Mr. Denton has selected a very strong company of artists, all of whom appear to be putting their best talent into the work. Miss Jessie Wilton is the principal boy (Sinbad), and certainly does full justice to the part. Her vocal abilities are good, and quite on a par with her histrionic skill. Miss Wilton emphatically scores in two of her songs, "The White Man" and "I Want You." The principal girl, Miss Christina Roy, as Zobeida, also plays her part capably, and with charming grace, and is a most acceptable vocalist. These two artists present a pleasing duet, "A tiny seed of love," which meets with great applause. The song "Good Night" is also rendered by Miss Roy in exquisite style. Miss Madeline Rossiter acquits herself with remarkable success as the dark Princess Zorilda, and introduces some very clever specialities. Miss Rossiter introduces some graceful dancing, for which she was heartily applauded; her vocal efforts are no less satisfactory, and the duet "Timbuctoo," which she sings with Mr. Frank Lynne, promises to be one of the hits of the production. The second boy, Miss Sissie Brand, plays the part of Heesatoph with great energy, and also excels in song and dance. Miss Roberta Svensden is capital in every way as the Fairy Queen, and her vocalism stamps her a capable artist. Mr. Will Johnson endows the extravagant character of Mrs. Sinbad with a host of comicalities; he possesses a special gift of humour, which he thoroughly exercises, much to the enjoyment of the audience. The nautical rôle of Capt. Bowline is in the efficient hands of Mr. Fred Beck, who contributes no mean share to the general mirth. Mr. Frank Lynne acts commendably as Binbad, and is decidedly amusing. He sings an excellent song, "Sea shells," which is sure to catch on. Messrs. Walton and Lister, more popularly known as "The World's Worst Wizards," take the parts of First and Second Mates, and perform a conjuring act which created great amusement. Mr. J. A. Howitt (the energetic stage-manager) portrays the Old Man of the Sea in a manner most thrilling. The remaining rôles are all entrusted to most capable hands. There is a full chorus and ballet, and specialities are given by Miss Hope Trevelyan and little Nellie Denver. The last-named dances a hornpipe in quite captivating fashion. All concerned are to be heartily congratulated on the great success of the opening performances of Mr. Davidson's first pantomime.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Hy. Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. John Pellow. — This theatre was reopened on Saturday night with the pantomime of Dick Whittington. The production is under the supervision of Mr. James Kiddie, and from the opening performances it seems clear that this pantomime will take a good hold on the Sunderland public. There are ten scenes, and the setting is very fine. The music and costumes are also both worthy of special notice. Miss Lena Page, the principal boy, personates the hero, Dick, and earns the high appreciation of the audience both for her singing and her clever acting. Miss Nellie Merton, the principal girl, is charming as Alice. She sings delightfully in "The cat has killed all the rats" and "The lovelight in your eyes." Miss Florence Hilton acts admirably as Sir Algernon de Nash, and has a most attractive ditty, "The Merry Widow." Miss Lillie Storrie is a winning Fairy Queen, and proves herself a vocalist of considerable worth. Miss Edna Francis and Gipsy Ray also went through their parts in an excellent manner. The comedians were never idle, and never failed, and a burlesque fairy scene and card game were specially funny, and caused roars of laughter. Mr. Fred Spencer scored all along the line as the Dame (Fitzwarren's cook), his many absurd make-ups causing great hilarity. The Hannaway Brothers also seemed to have an endless fund of humour, and were continually appearing with some fresh drollery. Mr. George Rydon was an excellent Idle Jack and Mr. Denis McCarthy gave a splendid rendering of Alderman Fitzwarren, and both contributed liberally to the humour. Mr. Bert Hudson takes the part of the Cat, to the extreme delight of all, and more especially the children. There are numerous up-to-date songs sung in an excellent manner by many of the principal artists. The company is a strong one, and full justice is done to the piece by all concerned. There is a good chorus and ballet, and Miss Dorothy Dryden excels in special dances in a fairy ballet. The pantomime is well staged, and all effects are excellent.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company in Her Forbidden Marriage is drawing crowded houses this week. Miss Grace Lester gave a fine delineation of the arduous rôle of the Mother Superior; George Maddison was skilfully handled by Mr. Henry Lonsdale; and Lucy was sympathetically rendered by Miss Emilie Doone. The "villainy" was contributed by a very clever couple, Miss Florence Hunt and Mr. Louis Hector; Miss Rosie Leamore and Mr. Fred de Vere were a most amusing pair, the audience being kept in a continuous roar all the time they were performing; Mr. Wilfred P. Mansfield was good as Sir George Lancaster, and all the other parts were in most capable hands.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Hy. Esden.—At the head of the bill is a stirring Scottish spectacle, The Gathering of the Clans, produced under the direction of Mr. W. Selkirk. The scenery and music were most appropriate, and all the movements were creditably executed. A welcome reappearance was made by John Terry and Mabel Lambert, and their impressions of English types as seen through American eyes were clever; the old favourite Witty Watty Walton captivated the audience with his bright, rollicking ways and smart patter; Roma and Romani gave a refined and artistic musical turn, which was thoroughly appreciated; Charles Santon, famous for his double voice, sang his songs in an admirable manner; Miss Henriquette Maude, the little New Zealand Travelling Girl, is immensely popular here, and her entertainment is very successful: the Eight of Hearts all danced in clever style, and George Antill proved himself an entertaining comedian.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Lennox Barry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Hy. Curry.—Charcot with his automatic man is at the top of the bill this week, and, together with his medium, is creating unbounded enthusiasm and amazement; the Vays are most realistic in their scena Life in the Slums, and yet introduce comedy with good taste; Luis Hardt, "the mighty atom," performs some marvellous feats of strength and displayed great muscular development; and Cavalli entertained with a good ventriloquial turn. Jock Walker and Oliver Conroy, comedians, Otto and Olgar, and James Lowery are also in the bill.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Page.—Mr. Leigh Lovell, Octavia Kenmore, and company presented a répertoire of Ibsen plays at the Grand last week. On the Monday they presented A Doll's House in irreproachable style. Mr. Leigh Lovell as Tovvald Helmer was at all times excellent; and Miss Octavia Kenmore as Nora Helmer presented a perfect study of the character. On Tuesday Hedda Gabler and on Wednesday The Master Builder were played.

Holiday attraction is provided at the Grand by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company with Peter's Mother. Miss Violet Ley gives a humane and touching portrayal of the title-rôle and Mr. Vivian Gilbert's Peter is deserving of the highest praise. Mr. Drew MacIntosh is admirable as John Crewys, Q.C. Miss Hilda Sims as Sarah shows undoubted talent.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. F. Powell.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company was here last week with The Face at the Window. Paul Gouffet was played by Mr. Scott Leighton, who was decidedly successful; Mr. Gilbert Hall's delineation of La Loup made one shudder, so striking was his naturalness; Miss Elsie Marriot-Watson as Marie de Brisson was very clever.

Mr. Fredk. Melville's company with Her Road to Ruin is doing good business at the Star this week. Miss Beatrice Edwards as Jess is an immense success, and Mr. Harry Walston as the curate plays cleverly. May Willoughby is rendered by Miss Alice Bowes in a charming style. Fine acting is also done by Mr. Alex. Bradley as Philip Hardy, the villain.

THE EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—Last week Casey's Court, with Mr. Will Murray as Mrs. Casey, proved a great attraction; The Daughter of the Regiment was charmingly performed by Mlle. Adele Prescott and company; George Young, the blind musician, was another of the outstanding features of the programme; accomplished singers and dancers, the Imperial Russian Troupe provided capital entertainment; and the Sisters Urma gave a novel trapeze display. Sybil St. Elmo pleased all as a ballad and operatic vocalist; whilst Vanando's ventriloquial act was most acceptable. Tom Collins excelled at bright comedy; and Beattie Kent sang and danced well. The Bioscope, as usual, was good.

A fine holiday programme is headed by Fred Karno's Troupe in Mumming Birds, and real good is the humour they provide. Another feature of the programme is provided by Miss Mabel Mavis, whose skill on the piano is exceptional. The Meymotts give a rollicking sketch, Semi-detached, in amusing style. Ethel Newman gives a monologue, "Her Wedding Day," which commands attention. The Brothers St. Clair are clever comedy knockabout cyclists; Leonette Roberty and her transformation dancers give a pretty exhibition; the Three Sisters Grosvenor are heard to advantage in old-time ballads; and B. Williams is an accomplished ventriloquist. The Bioscope picture is a seasonable one.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—A seasonable exhibition of pictures was given here last week, chief of which is the pictorial pantomime, Donkey Skin. Messrs. Tom Jones, John Stephens, and Miss Beatrice Morris render vocal items.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr Alfred Manners.—The above theatre reopened on Boxing Day with Mr. Reginald Dance's company in Raffles. Mr. Dance occupies the title-rôle with great success; Curtis Bedford is capably taken by Mr. Edward Irwin, and the Harry Manders of Mr. A. P. Bell is good. Mr. Oswald Griffiths displays ability as Crawshay; Mr. P. Alexander makes an excellent Lord Amersteth, and Mr. F. C. Poole an amusing Lord Crowley. Miss Frances Tetheradge acts the part of Gwendoline with charm and feeling, and Miss Marguerite Unetta sustains Lady Ethel with distinct credit. The Lady Melrose of Miss Edith Lofting deserves mention; Miss Mollie Tremaine's portrayal of Mrs. Vidal leaves nothing to be desired, and Marie, the French maid, is well taken by Miss Ethel Grahame.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—The pantomime season is now in full swing here, and Mr. John A. Thomson's production of The Babes in the Wood promises to be even more successful than his previous ventures have been. From beginning to end the play is full of fun and frivolity, catchy songs, graceful and clever dancing, whilst there is not the slightest semblance of vulgarity in any shape or form. The dressing and staging of the piece are certainly excellent, and in particular should be mentioned the brilliant Flower scene at the conclusion of the first act, which is really a triumph of picturesqueness. Miss Pattie McCarthy as Robin Hood makes a dashing principal boy, and her graceful personality soon win her popularity. Miss Nina Carlton as Maid Marian gives a charming and winsome impersonation, whilst her vocal items are a great success, especially "Connemara" and "Ida from Devonshire," each of which earn her repeated applause. As the Babes Miss Cissie Williams and La Belle Sylvia are admirable, whilst the effective dancing of the latter is much admired; Mr. Frank Halpin is well placed as Will o' the Wisp, and his powerful bass voice is heard to considerable advantage; and Miss Norah Prendergast sings very sweetly of the Baron is extremely good; Mr. Lovell Rowland as Weary Willy is irresistibly funny, and is full of quaint sayings, whilst Mr. Herbert Walton is also very amusing as Tired Tim. A word of praise is also due to the chorus, each of whom does well, and contribute to the success which the opening performance achieved. The music, which is of a bright and attractive character, is composed by Mr. Arthur Sheldrake, who is also the conductor. Many specialities are introduced, amongst them being Les Millicent Frères, gymnasts, whose performance is really marvellous. The pantomime was produced under the personal supervision of Mr. John A. Thomson, with the services of Mr. Frank Medhurst in the responsible part of general-manager.

WAKEFIELD. — OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard's company in the drama Her Love Against the World, opened here on Christmas Eve and remains during this week. Mr. Fred Emery gives a fine and manly rendering as the Earl of Strathmere; the part of the Princess of Idalia is charmingly filled by Miss Grace Heywood; Mr. W. H. Hallatt is an impressive Prince Othmar; Miss Rosie St. John a good Lionel; Mr. Lewis Gilbert puts in some good work as the Prince of Ravensburg; Mr. Victor Rowland fills with distinction the part of Prince Maurice; and Miss Blanche Neele is clever as Shulah.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. Tolfree.—Last week the Columbia Comedy Trio provided a talented and humorous vocal turn, which was greatly appreciated; the Attila Brothers, strong men, appeared in a smart act; Miss Alma Curzon, comedienne, won great favour; Master Richard May, boy tenor, sang nicely; Mr. Frank Coyle, comedian, submitted an acceptable item; the Venola Brothers showed themselves to be clever comedy acrobats; and the Wambas were successful in a speciality act.

Mr. James Willard and company appear here this week in a powerful sketch, The Ace of Hearts, their clever acting evoking much applause. Miss Sara Rosebury, dialect comedienne, delights with sweet songs and amusing patter; Barney Noble, comedian, does well; Les Montaldos introduce some performing pigeons; Harry Taylor, versatile comedian, is a distinct success; Chant and Chant are a smart comedy couple; and Little Eileen, vocalist and dancer, provides an admirable turn.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. Joseph Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—Messrs. Pardoe and Miss Lottie Holland's company are again doing good business with Cinderella. Fresh songs and jokes are introduced, and the pantomime goes with a merry swing.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Franco-British Animated Picture Company; Managing-Director, Mr. Turner; Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—A first-class entertainment is provided for the patrons of this house, and the pictures especially are a delightful assortment. The Salestos are wonderful head and hand balancers; Dalton and Elston are capital comedians; and Dan Fraser, with his Scotch songs and patter, is always amusing.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D. Bradbury.—A capital programme is down for the delectation of the patrons of this house, and Adderley Howard's company, including Miss Dolly Elsworthy, score splendidly in the sketch The Orange Girl, a story reminiscent of the life of Nell Gwynne. The Waltons are clever and funny gymnasts; the Betsons, comedy cyclists, are very amusing in the sketch A Tramp's Holiday; Johnny Dwyer is a decidedly versatile comedian; Rose and Wold score in their wire act and the Hyde and Cody Trio are clever eccentrics; Julian Ross is a good comedian; and the pictures are excellent.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berson.—A return visit is being paid by Messrs. Lloyd and Frank Adair's company in the sensational drama Man to Man, which is being well received by full houses nightly. Mr. Frank Adair as the wicked Richard Ellerton acts with great ability; Mr. Edward Lloyd makes a manly and interesting George Gordon; Mr. Leonard Clapham is all that could be desired as the parson, Philip Ormond; a clever bit of character acting is displayed by Mr. Clifford Bown as the convict, Bill Burgy; the humorous element is in the hands of Mr. Bruce Williams, who does well; Miss Adeline Lester portrays the character of Miss Dove with talent; Miss Evelyn Warde is good as the Gipsy; Miss Ada Martin makes a smart maid, Mary; Miss Louie Adair proves herself the feature of the play by her accomplished acting of the character of Ethel Maythorne. The piece is well mounted.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. A. Withers; Manager, Mr. A. Ainsleigh.—A special holiday programme is put on here this week, the Five Sisters Warwick topping with their wonderful trick cycle act, which combines grace, beauty, and talent. Jack Heath is a good comedian, while the banjo solos of Casselli are well received. The audience appreciate the smartness of Nash and Noel; a clever turn of mystifying is submitted by Jean Seul; Daisy Silcott is a very versatile burlesque artist; roars of laughter greet the Madcaps in their speciality of singing and dancing. Some fine pictures conclude an interesting show.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—Tom H. Taylor's Worst Woman in London company again appeared here last week. The company was a capable one, and the artists handled their respective rôles in able fashion, particularly Mr. Geo. Gainford, who appeared as Jack Felton, Mr. F. Vernon Travers as James Milford, Miss Edith Bland, and Miss Dorothy Haigh.

Messrs. Holland and Wood's pantomime The Forty Thieves is paying a week's visit, and on Monday was received with unmistakable signs of appreciation by a well filled house. The pantomime is produced in some ten scenes, all of which are artistically executed and excellently staged. Bob Selvidge undertakes the rôle of the Captain of the Forty, and his popularity is more firmly established than ever; Miss Cecilia Gold as Morgiana and Miss Bertha Clifton as Ganem act and sing prettily; the antics of Clarence, the donkey, as played by Chris Le Brun are exceedingly funny, and create roars of laughter; Walter Bosco as Cassim and Robb Wilton as Cogia have between them some funny business, which never fails to take on; and speciality dances are successfully introduced by the Three Sisters Tree, who are old-time favourites here, and the Imperial Quintette.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—Some of the smartest juggling and club throwing it has been the lot of a West Hartlepool audience to witness was last week done by Emerson and Baldwin; the juggling by Cestria was smart and funny, but it was in his acrobatic work that he was particularly successful; considerable amusement was caused by Ross and Grayson in a mélange of music, singing, and dancing. The gentleman, while in some inconceivable positions, manipulated the keyboard of the piano skilfully; Walter Clyde, vocalist, was well received in a couple of songs; Les Elgonas performed some sensational feats on the rings; Harry Luck's songs were provocative of much laughter; Cherry Lass provided an attractive song and dance; and a new and interesting series of pictures was shown on Raymond's Bioscope. The management gave a special matinée for Boxing Day, and a concert on Sunday evening, in aid of the Mayor's fund for the relief of the unemployed.

WEST STANLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Manager, Mr. M. H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Angus.—Mr. James Bell presents Miss Annie Bell and a specially-selected company in The Idol of Paris. The part of Flare Flare is faithfully depicted by Miss Annie Bell; Mr. Gordon Robey is excellent as Prince Sergius Zoreski; Mr. Wilson Howard successfully portrays Philippe D'Esterre; Gustav Langlois, the notary, is in the hands of Mr. Alfred Glenville; Mr. Chris. Roberts is all that can be desired as Theo. Recline; the part of Victor Cashelle is played carefully by Mr. Phil Rivers; Miss Pharaoh Bernharth is well presented by Miss Rachel Anderson; and Miss Phena Powell is clever as Mlle. Sancterre.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. W. Montrose.—A fine company has been provided by the management here for the holiday week. Topping the bill are the well-known Glenroy Troupe of international dancers in their novel specialities; Miss Nellie Walton, the Lancashire mill-girl, has a hearty reception on her return visit; the Bros. Corcoran introduce musical effects and quick changes; Macintosh and Royal, clog-dancers, and the Ormsby Quartette have a good reception. The Vicoscope concludes.

WEYMOUTH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Nobbs.—Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime Sinbad the Sailor opened on Boxing Night to a crowded house, and universal approval was expressed. Miss Edith Wallis made a dashing Sinbad, and Miss Irene May as Zorilda won general favour by her charming acting. Miss Lily English played Hassan in a sprightly and captivating manner, and similar praise is due to Miss Violet English as Haidee. Mr. Syd H. Morton won rounds of applause as Captain Bluebottle, and Mr. Syd Godfrey created roars of laughter as Mrs. Sinbad. Mr. Ted Oak and Mr. Kit Elm had some capital knockabout business, and the singing and dancing of Sinbad's companions and mates was heartily applauded. Miss Amy Cooper, the Three Sisters Macrae, and the Spadonis all contributed to the success of the piece.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. R. Wallis.—The opening performance in this theatre took place on Boxing Day, when Messrs. Austin and Dixon presented Mother Goose to a crowded and delighted audience. Mr. Sydney James was simply perfect as Mother Goose, and was the life of the pantomime; Miss Mabel Austin was a typical Mother's Son; Daisy, the village belle, was charmingly represented by Miss Winnie Murray; the Squire was in the capable hands of Mr. Eric Dean; and Annabel, his daughter, was capitally played by Miss Cissie Astbury. Miss Gertrude Bond made a splendid Fairy Queen, and Mr. Nicklin Williams played the Spirit of Avarice with good effect. There is a ballet of forty, and the pantomime is well staged.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—The local operatic society have occupied this popular place of amusement for the last two weeks in The Geisha and A Country Girl. In the impersonation of the title-rôle Mrs. McNally made a capital country girl; as Mme. Sophie Miss M. Worwick was a great success; Barry found an able exponent in Mr. T. Wall; while Mr. S. Garratt was highly appreciated as Geoffrey Challoner. Miss McGill was a charming Marjorie; and Miss A. Worswick furnished a striking character as the Princess of Bhong. Mr. R. H. Layland was a typical Sir Joseph Verity; while the part of the Rajah of Bhong was in the capable hands of Mr. A. Ellis.

Large and appreciative audiences have assembled here this week to witness Mr. Edward Marris's company in Dick Whittington. Mr. J. Waldron scores more than ever as Idle Jack; Miss Ettie Waldron is a captivating Dick; Miss Doris Gilbert makes a charming Alice; Miss Nora Doone a vivacious Tinkabell; the part of the Emperor is in the capable hands of Mr. James Gordon; and Mr. H. Pearce deserves special mention as Alderman Fitzwarren; Mr. B. Watson (Captain Mainbrace), Mr. Will Naylor (the Mate), and Mr. W. Vester (Julia) also act exceedingly well in their respective parts.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's talented company, in The King and the Unknown Woman, was here last week. Mr. Stephen Scanlan acted with sufficient villainy the part of Prince Menski; Mr. J. Stillwell as Prince Loris and Mr. W. R. Winning as General Platz were also admirable in their respective rôles. Miss F. Conyers Radcliffe was a charming Zora; and Miss Muriel Inglis a vivacious Countess Melveitch.

Kartelli is a wire artist of no mean merit, and his entertainment is a most enjoyable one; Thora is a clever ventriloquist, his make-up and costume of a woman deceiving many; Heeley and Meeley are clever acrobats; and the Banton Franklin Trio contribute bright musical selections; Tom Lloyd receives quite an ovation for his songs; the Soho Trio dance themselves into favour; Wallie Gilbert is applauded for his vocal selections; and Maud Kaye is a smart comedienne. Other acceptable turns are given by Mark Anthony (comedian), Roland Bros. (equilibrists), and Bob Spencer (comedian).

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.—The usual high standard of living pictures was maintained here last week. The chief of these were The Greed of Gold, Sold by His Parents, and Love at First Sight. Sid Mayne, boy coster comedian, proved a very acceptable turn.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—The management are to be congratulated on providing such a fine attraction as Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in the new version of The Christian for the Christmas holidays, and were rewarded with a record attendance on Boxing Day. It would be difficult to imagine a finer conception of the part of John Storm than that given by Mr. Roy Redgrave, whose portrayal was thoroughly consistent throughout; the dual traits in Glory Quayle's character were cleverly delineated by Miss Daisy Scudamore; Mr. Wilfred Noy was excellent as Horatio Drake; Mr. Herbert Hewetson gave a well-studied rendering of Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Thomas Barry played with quiet dignity as Father Lamplugh; Mr. John J. Hooker made a capital Archdeacon Wealthy; Mr. Bruce Lindley was effective as Parson Quayle; and Mr. Royce Milton did well as Lord Storm; Miss Cora Dene presented a very pathetic picture of Polly Love, her acting where she parts with her baby exercising a great effect; Miss Muriel Marsden was convincing as Black Meg; Miss Molly Hayden made a motherly Mrs. Callender; Miss Kitty Symons did well as Lady Robert Ure; and the minor characters were all well sustained. The play is admirably staged.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—A very attractive bill is presented here, and crowded houses are the rule. The great Zerbinis Troupe are the principal turn, and present an elaborately-staged scena, entitled The Enchanted Glen; the Four Rubys are responsible for a really clever acrobatic-bending act; Takio causes considerable amusement with his mimicry; Wyotti is a dexterous juggler; George Collins's assumption of a merry widow is received with roars of laughter; Austin and Cowen are a smart comedy duo; and Ruby Emerson makes a hit with "I love only one girl."

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Opening on Boxing Day, and continuing throughout the present week, Clarence C. Corri's company are presenting The Dandy Fifth to good business. The company throughout is an excellent one, the chorus is extremely well balanced, and, with the orchestra agumented, a thoroughly enjoyable performance is provided.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER, The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.

Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR ALL THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled.

IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities.

ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

WILKIE BARD'S Drury Lane RIOT!

"PUT ME UPON AN ISLAND WHERE THE GIRLS ARE FEW."

What the Press says:—

The Weekly Dispatch:—Mr. Wilkie Bard is discovered sleeping peacefully among a pile of fabrics in the Alderman's shop. He wakes up, and sings a "catchy" Suffragette song, which threatens to be one of the popular ditties of the ensuing year. Its refrain is:—

Put me upon an island where the girls are few,
Put me amongst the most ferocious lions of the Zoo;
You can put me upon the treadmill and I'll never, never fret,
But for pity's sake don't put me near a Suffragette.

It is one of those haunting refrains that we know are going to be an obsession.

The Daily Mail:—Mr. Wilkie Bard has two great songs in the piece. "Put me upon an Island" he plaintively asks in the first, and he repeats its refrain with all the more fervour when he is surrounded by a band of violent ladies, for they give good reason to sing, "But don't put me near a Suffragette."

The Umpire:—But his Suffragette song is a gem.

The Daily Mirror:—Two of his songs get as much applause each as anything else in the Panto. One is about Votes for Women, "Put me upon an Island where the Girls are few."

The Daily Express:—One of his songs, "Put me upon an Island where the Girls are few," was rendered with rare and great comic restraint.

And a host of other notices too numerous to mention.

THE FISHERMAN'S FIANCÉE.

Code Word, "FACADE."

A pretty fisherwoman is engaged to a big Norman lad, but, having unwittingly attracted the notice of a young townsman on his holidays there, Mr. Ne'er Do Well buys of her a basketful of fish, and asks her to take it to his home. Charles, her sweetheart, having some misgivings as to the other man's designs, follows Kate from a distance. At last, impatient at her long absence, he comes in, just in time to give the impudent a lesson, which so rankles on the latter's mind that he orders two of his servants to dress up as fishermen and have Charles tied on to a rock shortly to be covered over by the incoming tide. Charles, however, is set free by a courageous child, and he arrives at the house of his fiancée to find that the girl's mother, a madwoman, has strangled the scoundrel in her endeavour to protect her daughter.

A TROUBLESOME TWITCHING.

Code Word, "FLECHE."

Mr. Rude is afflicted with the bad habit of always putting out his tongue whenever he speaks. On his way to the specialist he puts out his tongue in the face of everybody. This causes sundry and disagreeable incidents to take place. The learned professor makes him put out his tongue, and, after a few magnetic passes, commands him not to do so again. Mr. Rude must be a refractory subject, however, for on his way home he puts out his tongue more often than ever.

TRAGICAL ENDING TO A SHROVE TUESDAY.

Code Word, "FIL."

Disguised as an incroyable, Mr. Rave goes to the masked ball, in spite of Mrs. Rave entreating him to stay at home. This makes her suspicious, and, putting on a man's costume of the 1830 period, she also goes to the ball. While her husband is making love to an unknown lady, Mrs. Rave is hidden behind a bush, and she hears everything. Profiting by his short absence, she appears to the lady, and, thanks to her masculine attire, she can flirt with the "Merveilleuse." Mr. Rave, on his return, gives a slap to the bold "young man." Seconds are hastily summoned, and a duel takes place. Mrs. Rave is fatally wounded, and her husband, tearing away her mask, recognises her, with sorrow, and has just time enough to ask for her forgiveness before she passes away.

POLICEMAN IN SPITE OF HIMSELF.

Code Word, "FRAISIER."

During Mrs. Faraway's absence, Sarah, Peter, and Charles, her three servants, are having a good time in the dining-room, where they are enjoying their lunch. Suddenly Peter leaves the table, and, dressing himself in Mrs. Faraway's gown, after putting on her spare wig, he comes back to his friends, who are scared out of their wits by his appearance in such an attire. Meanwhile, Mrs. Faraway's nephews, just home from Chicago, come to pay the old lady a visit. Peter receives them, but the scamps, noticing that the would-be aunt is not a teetotaler, avail themselves of "her" inebriate state and help themselves to the money. Peter, however, catches them at their work, and they are astounded to find that the fragile-looking woman can grasp them both by their collars and march them off to the police-station.

DRUNKARDS' FANCIES.

Code Word, "FRAGILITE."

Having left their wits at the bottom of several bottles, three people jump out of the window. Polly, who represents the fair sex among the trio, is pulled to pieces by her friends, who make a small bundle of her scattered limbs. Presently two gendarmes arrest the drunkards. In their cells they dissolve into mere rags, which the gaoler throws away. As soon as they are in the street they resume their former state, and their erratic wanderings, not the least exciting of which is their journey in mid-air on a lamp-post.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d.

AN ANONYMOUS LETTER.

Code Word, "FOURMI."

A young wife is sitting outside her villa in Nice, in order to inhale the fresh air from the sea. She knows that she must die soon, but she feels sorry for her beloved husband who is to be left alone. This gentleman, however, has not been able to remain faithful to the invalid, and an anonymous letter informs her that he is carrying on a flirtation with her best friend. The thought of her approaching death makes her very lenient, and reconciles her to her fate, for her departure will mean the realisation of their dreams of happiness for the two beings she loves best in the world.

428ft. The Subject, £7 2s. 8d.

WHEN LOVE WILL.

Code Word, "FLOTTAGE."

"If you can gives roses human life, I shall be yours." So says the titled lady to her page-boy, who has been bold enough to tell her of his love. Love, the fickle, makes him discover in a far-away castle a bed of living roses, and in their hearts beautiful women's heads. The boy goes in search of the enchanted flowers, which are separated from him by a hundred-and-one obstacles. In the end the boy overcomes every difficulty, and takes possession of the roses, together with the hand of his beloved.

THE EVIL SPIRIT IN A GIRLS' BOARDING SCHOOL.

Code Word, "FLUXION."

A stern father sends his fifteen-year-old daughter to a boarding-school in order to prevent her from seeing her lover, for he thinks she is too young yet to think about marrying. The girl is very wilful, and she determines to have a good time in spite of everything. She heads her school friends whenever there is a prank to be played on the old school-mistress, and the pillow-fight which takes place in the dormitory is simply delightful. The plot the girl and her sweetheart have been hatching for her leaving the school through the window is discovered in time by her father, who at last yields to the young people's tears and prayers, and allows them to be married.

643ft. The Subject, £10 14s. 4d. Colouring, £5 17s. 0d.

BOBBY'S DRAWINGS.

Code Word, "FRENAIE."

Young Bobby is a skilful artist, who, after throwing a few outlines on a paper, cuts them out and pieces them together. In this way different people and things appear, which begin to move, to the delight of our little friend, as well as the audience.

180ft. The Subject, £3 0s. 0d.

AMAZONS OF DIFFERENT PERIODS

Code Word, "FLUIDE."

Women riders of all times are seen in this picture, and they appear in the full attire of the different periods. First, there is the pre-historic warrior, clad in the hides of wild beasts; then her sister of the Middle Ages, with high headgear and hanging veil; also the women of the time of the French Revolution, some of whom have won public fame; last, but not least, the gracious Amazon of the present era, sitting erect on her saddle, and forming such a charming picture of strength and grace combined.

352ft. The Subject, £6 0s. 8d. Colouring, £3 5s. 6d.

A DUEL IN THE TIME OF RICHELIEU.

Code Word, "FRESQUE."

This subject recalls the time of the "Three Mousquetaires," whose daring and recklessness is known to all. A boisterous French nobleman, skilled in the art of fencing, has been exiled from Paris for his disregard of the edicts against duels. This causes him to make a wager that he will fight in broad daylight in one of the most fashionable places of Paris. This is madness, however, for the Prime Minister, Cardinal Richelieu, is relentless for those who dare oppose him. The hot-headed youth had to pay with his life for his trespassing.

740ft. The Subject, £12 6s. 8d.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1908.
Morning Advertiser, Jan. 20:—
That very useful, one might with truth add indispensable, publication, "The Era" Annual, has once again made its welcome appearance, and once again it is crowded with information concerning the theatrical doings of the past year. Those who purchase it (it is sold at the modest price of 1s.) will have in their possession a complete and succinct history of the year's drama in this country, and a record of the plays produced in Paris and Berlin. As an appetising hors d'œuvre to the solid information, the book contains a number of interesting short stories and amusing anecdotes by well-known actors and theatrical managers.

MR. M. MONTGOMERY'S COMPANY

Presented at the Lyric Theatre, Liverpool, on Monday, Dec. 28, 1908,

"LADY LANIGAN, Laundress."

By J. RUSSELL BOGUE, Author of "Trip to Blackpool," "Trip to Rum, Fum," &c., &c.

Public Opinion stamped it as:

"AN INSTANTANEOUS SUCCESS."
"A DECIDED SUCCESS."
"A GENUINE SUCCESS."

Press Opinions.

On holiday occasions the management of the Lyric Theatre always make special efforts in the way of providing something particularly attractive for their patrons, and for this festive season of the year they have "put on" an entertainment which is bound to afford the utmost enjoyment to those who witness it, the principal attraction being a farcical comedy drama, entitled "Lady Lanigan, Laundress," by J. Russel Bogue, which created roars of laughter from beginning to end.—Liverpool Daily Post and Mercury, December 28th, 1908.

The wooing of the proprietress of a laundry—an Irish widow, very much in debt—by rival suitors, provides some excellent humour in a sketch, entitled "Lady Lanigan, Laundress," which is being presented at the Lyric Theatre this week by Mat Montgomery and his company. It is the chief feature of an attractive programme, the fun throughout being fast and furious.—Liverpool Courier, December 28th, 1908.

A splendid combination occupy the boards of the Lyric Theatre, and both houses were well patronised. As the "bill-topper," "Lady Lanigan, Laundress" (by J. Russell Bogue), was a regular "side-splitter," and afforded the keenest enjoyment. —Liverpool Echo, December 28th, 1908.

An excellent holiday programme is submitted to the Lyric patrons this week, and heading the list is a farcical comedy presented by Mr. Mat Montgomery, entitled "Lady Lanigan, Laundress." The piece was thoroughly enjoyable, and created roars of laughter.—Liverpool Evening Express, December 28, 1908.

G. H. ELLIOTT, ONE OF PACEY'S STAR LINES.

G. H. ELLIOTT
(Chocolate Coloured Coon),

Booked with OSWALD STOLL, Esq., for 9 COMPLETE TOURS, finishing the end of 1916.

One of the most pleasing features of the Prince of Wales' pantomime is the performance of Mr. G. H. Elliott, who has earned an enviable reputation on the music-hall stage as "the chocolate-coloured coon." His songs are well chosen, and comprise some of the most popular at the present time. "My Pal Bill" is a very catchy number, but when Mr. Elliott comes on and renders "Sue, Sue, Sue," he has the audience with him immediately. The setting for this number is delightful, he being supported by thirty children, all dressed in white, who take up the chorus and dance beautifully. They are Birmingham children, and their performance reflects great credit upon Miss Rose Tyrrell, of the Birmingham School of Dancing, who is the ballet mistress. This is not the first pantomime that Mr. Elliott has appeared in. I have seen him in pantomimes in Manchester and Leeds, when he was made quite the idol of the cities, but this year he bids fair to eclipse the remarkable success he achieved in the North. His general appearance and manners please Birmingham people. He has many friends here, and it is also interesting to record that his mother is a Birmingham lady.—Birmingham Dispatch, Dec. 30, 1908.

MISS MAIE HOEY.
Miss Maie Hoey is a perfect exponent of her delightful art. This charming lady presented a series of Eastern dances with such grace of movement and originality of conception that none could fail to appreciate the very high merit of her performance. It is not often that so finished a dancer is seen on the London stage.—Reynolds's, Dec. 27, 1908.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—H. M. THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The D'Oyly Carte company opened their second week on Monday with The Yeomen of the Guard. The house was packed in every part. Mr. Billington was exquisitely droll as Shadbolt; and Phœbe was charmingly impersonated by Miss Lillian Engholm, in the regrettable absence through illness of Miss Beatrice Meredith; Miss Ethel Morrison was also on the sick list unfortunately, but her part of Dame Carruthers was played with the utmost credit by Miss Ellen Whyte; Mr. Charles R. Walenn was delightfully amusing as Jack Point; and Elsie Maynard found a fascinating representative in Miss Clara Dow; Mr. Stratford Moss carried himself gallantly and sang most tunefully as Colonel Fairfax; Mr. Leicester Tunks was an ideal Sergeant Meryll, and among the other members of the company who deserve mention were Mr. Sydney Granville (Lieutenant of the Tower); Mr. Hugh Blackmore (Leonard Meryll); and Miss Mabel Graham as Kate. The choruses were sung with charming effect. Patience was staged on Tuesday.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The principal turn is that of Mr. John Clempert, the "Siberian Prison Breaker," who gives a most remarkable exhibition of his strength and dexterity; Barton and Bright are a couple of exceedingly bright and originals comedians; the finely-rendered selections from Il Trovatore by Miss Ethel Pender-Cudlip and Mr. Claude Askew are heartily appreciated; Mr. Harry Morris is a good character comedian; Lozell shows much skill as an equilibrist; Madison and Webb are certainly very clever in their line; and Mr. Francis Letty is successful, both as a singer and dancer.

ALHAMBRA MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. John Sinclair.—General-Manager, Mr. G. B. Lee.—Included in an excellent company are such capable artists as Mr. Percy Forde, female impersonator; Miss G. Stewart, soprano; Mr. Harry Martell, conjurer; and the Three Macs, burlesque comedians. The fine cinematograph display is followed with the keenest interest, and the house continues to be well filled nightly.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—The notworthy spectacular act, Peggy's Birthday Party, has proved completely successful. All the juvenile principals show quite remarkable talent, and the variety part of the programme is taken by a large company of capable performers, among whom Miss Marie Rose, comedienne, and Mr. Archie Murray, coon humorist and instrumentalist, stand out prominently.

GAIETY (St. Katherine's Hall).—Lessee, Mr. Dove Paterson.—The first-class cinematograph entertainments here continue to be very largely patronised. On Monday a deeply interesting series, The Auto-Heroine, was exhibited for the first time in Scotland. Miss Jessie Dudgeon, a remarkably expert and graceful young dancer, appears with unqualified success nightly.

Johnny Trundley, the "fat boy of Peckham," still continues the principal attraction at Humber's Waxwork. He is a great favourite with the spectatorate.

ABERTILLERY.—THE PAVILION.—Lessees, E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company are here for another week. For the first three nights The Man of Her Choice was played, while the remainder of the week was taken up by the production of Trilby. Mr. Ernest R. Abbott must be commended for his clever and difficult piece of work as Berkeley Hilderson; Miss Ada Abbott as Barbara Linley provided an impressive and altogether pleasing study; comedy was suitably represented by Mr Frank Stephens as Morris.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—Miss Marie Dagmar and company are presenting the drama, The Tyrant. The title-rôle is well sustained by Mr. Roy Fortescue, who performs his part with extraordinary skill; while Homedei, the Avenger, finds a capital exponent in Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh, who shows great dramatic power in his acting, for which he receives rounds of applause. A most praiseworthy performance is given by Miss Marie Dagmar, who gives a delightful impersonation of Tisbe, and creates quite an impression; while Lady Kathrine is excellently portrayed by Miss Margaret Frame, in quite a real and natural manner. Humour is excellently provided in the piece, and the remainder of the cast is taken by talented and clever artists. The mounting of the piece is really brilliant.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. Fred Granville's company opened here on Monday with the pantomime Little Aladdin. The house was packed to overflowing, and enthusiasm was unbounded throughout. The title-rôle is impersonated by Miss Minnie D'Aubyn with vivacity; Miss Belle Brocade proves an attractive Princess Badroulbadour; Miss Ethel Dunville makes a delightful Prince Pekoe; and Radia, the lady with the magic lamp, is played effectively by Miss Gladys Wells. Mr. Happy Attwood, a clever comedian, sustains the part of Widow Twankey, and his comicalities provide endless amusement; Mr. Harry Kirk appears successfully as Abanazar; Mr. Harry Keeble makes a hit as Wun Lung, and Mr. Herbert Lewis as the Emperor of China is worthy of praise. Messrs. Harley and Hardon are in their element as the two policemen, Bossi and Wrong Un, and Mr. Harry Hutin is a capital Wishee-Washee. Specialities are successfully introduced by the Sisters Dunville, Harry Keeble, Miss Minnie D'Aubyn, the Yorkshire Mill Lasses, and the Sisters Le Lar. The pantomime, which is well staged, was produced by Mr. Frank L. Hayter.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Miss Harriett Vernon heads the bill in her latest scena, A Yuletide Story, and was received with rapturous applause; Sam Richards' Eight College Girls provide a very acceptable turn; Marcel and Boris, a wonderful equilibristic pair; the Bros. Ford contribute a smart dancing act; Marlo is warmly applauded for a capital juggling performance; Cliff and Kean are very popular; Letine is an accomplished female impersonator; and Leslie Race delights with his song.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—The pantomime Cinderella is on a successful second week, the performance now running with a pleasing smoothness from beginning to end. Several new features have been added in the mirth-provoking acts by the versatile quartette of comedians, Messrs. Dan Harley, Fred Melton, Keane Harker, and H. A. Griffiths. New songs and dances have also been introduced, and the many capital evolutions by the well-trained chorus are a feature that enhances the success to no small degree. Miss Ella Willmer's is a delightful portrayal of Cinderella—a rôle she invests with a charm throughout—and she is indeed a past-master of the Terpsichorean art. Miss Victoria Carmen's dashing Prince Charming is another huge success, and her good soprano voice is heard to perfection in "My home is far away." Miss Ida Dorrie's Dandini is well played, and she appears as soloist with an armoured and helmeted bevy of young ladies in a musical march, which is excellently carried through. Miss Fairfax is good as the Fairy; while as the Ugly Sisters Misses Anna Beaumont and Fanny Wallace are helpful in keeping the ball a-rolling in the humorous scenes. Mr. Frank Lennard as the Demon Malignant sings and acts well. A host of others in minor parts and the brilliant choruses help considerably in bringing about a complete success. The pantomime is tastefully dressed and staged.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—The pantomime Dick Whittington is a great success, and is filling the house nightly. The principal contributors to the fun and frolic, and to the artistic features, are:—Misses Florrie Gallimore (Dick), Josie Delaine (Alice), Rose Alderman (Fairy Sunshine), Rose Tilley (Viscount), Dolly Victor (Molly), The Herald Comedy Four, Mr. H. O. Wills as Jack Idle, Mr. Jack Mackenzie as Sarah, Mr. Leo King as King Rat, Mr. Jemmy Wood as Alderman Fitzwarren, Mr. Ted E. Fields as Tarpaulin, Mr. Alf. King as the Cat, and Harwood's Juveniles.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Burslem.—The inimitable Zona Vevy appears in her dainty songs with catchy choruses. She is accompanied on the pianoforte by the celebrated Herr Max Erard, composer of all Zona Vevy's songs. "My Lady's Bower" is a specially-painted scene, which is used for extra illustration by the artists. Will Walton, the quaint comedian, is well worth his salt; the Victoria Troupe of instrumentalists, vocalists, and dancers command the interested attention of the audience; and Natalia and Diana, aerial gymnasts, are a daring couple of supple ladies, clever trapeze performers. Beattie and Babs, Johnson and Bert, present an extremely amusing act, A Queer Customer; Marlow and Manton (Harry and May) give a screaming comedy sketch, Winning a Wife, in which there is much to divert and amuse an audience; Pasquali Bros. are tumblers and equilibrists whose familiar business is done very expertly and cleverly; the Bioscope illustrates a railway scene, 10.40 Express.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Owen.—The Animated Picture Exhibition for the current week includes some entirely new films. Amongst others is a comedy trick subject. The Hand of a Wizard; Evil Spirit of a Boarding School is a coloured film; Love on a Farm is a love episode; Poor Girl's Christmas is a touching picture; among the screamers are A Barber's Christening, Domesticated Elephants, Small Seller of Plaster Figures, Collecting Rent, and Unlucky Jim. The Bridge of Sighs is a vivid depiction. The vaudeville artists are Jackson and Mart, a couple of eccentrics, very amusing in song, dance, and cross-talk; an operatic tenor, Mr. F. S. Gilbert, sings some good ballads; Beatrice Allen is a good vocal comedienne; Lewis's Mannikins are remarkably good.

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Manager, Mr. Jas. Marks.—The new films here exposed for the week are The Prima Donna, The Juvenile Ju-Jitsu, Flash James, a domestic drama; Tomkins Buys a Donkey, The Kaleidoscope, and His First Experience in Chemistry. The Blind Farmer Saved by His Dog is very good. That is a fine artistic set of pictures, A Modern Grace Darling. An excellent patter turn is given by a couple of juvenile artists; Miss Lalla Le Main impersonates marionettes in clever style, and songs are well rendered by the vocalist.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—This week there is a change from the usual "picture entertainments" here, and the boards are occupied by Messrs. E. C. Jazon and Richard Nightingale's pantomime, Dick Whittington, which is drawing crowded houses. It is a production full of fun and go, with tuneful music, pretty scenery and dresses, popular songs, neat dancing, interesting ballets, and a good all-round company. Miss Maud Beaumont in the title-rôle makes a splendid principal boy, with a captivating style; Miss Vera Snowden is winsome as Alice; the comedians work hard and successfully in their respective parts, and include Mr. William Miller (Fitzwarren), Mr. Fred Ward (Jack), Mr. Allen Amber (Sarah), the Willoughbys (Captain and Mate), and Mr. Pete Vone (Emperor); Miss Olive Audrey sings well as Fairy Bountiful; and a good performance of the indispensable cat is given by Mr. Willie Vanda. Interesting specialities are introduced by the Vandas, slack wire and globe performers; the Willoughbys, acrobats; Salida and Vone, Creole performers; Pearce and Ward, in a comedy act; and Misses Terry and Snowden, duettists. Mr. Wallie Spinner is an efficient stage-manager, and Mr. J. Haydn James occupies the conductor's chair.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—The principal feature of this week's programme is the excellent acting of Miss Renee Glendower and company, in a well-conceived, artistic playlet, entitled A Bit Too Clever; Scottie's Troupe, in a pathetic scena, "The Cry of the Children," meets with approval; Whizzing the Whirl, described as a "great sporting novelty," is the cause of hearty laughter, and in connection with it local contests for prizes are held at each performance. Other items are furnished by Miss Marie Stroud, comedienne; Nash and Noel, smart cross-talk comedians and dancers; the Prinellas, in a novel farmyard scena, "A Country Flirtation"; Mr. Herbert Rule, comedian; Mr. Jamie Piper, instrumentalist; the Bros. Lidville, comedians; and Mr. Clayton's "Attergraph" pictures.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Mr. George Edwardes's company opened on Monday in The Merry Widow. As Sonia and Danilo Miss Mysie Devine and Mr. Frank Greene were simply admirable, so pat and neat was everything that they did; Mr. Edward D'Arcy was inimitable as Baron Popoff; Mr. Fred Fowler was excellent in the part of Nisch, and provoked the audience to laughter; Mr. Rinley Evans acted the part of Jolidon well; while the same may be said of Mr. Clifford Seyler as General Novokovitch. Miss Ada Thomas was very clever as Natalie; Miss Kate May was smart in the dancing part of Frou-Frou; all the other members of the company give fine support, and the result was a most complete and enjoyable production. There are to be three matinées during the week.

TOWN HALL.—The Prince Edward Bioscope are having two shows daily in the Town Hall, and are drawing great crowds to each performance. There is a concert party, besides the pictures, and the entertainment is much appreciated.

TOWER PICTURE PALACE.—A cinematograph show is being run in the Wallace Tower Hall by Mr. J. McDougall, a local amusement caterer, and his exhibition is creating a good impression, as he is running the very latest and best films to be had, and he is having his reward in crowded houses at each show.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Miss Nancy Battersby's company is appearing here this week with The Empty Cradle. Mr. Urquhart gives a dignified impersonation of Sir Carnaby Bloodworth; Kenneth Bloodworth finds a clever exponent in Mr. C. H. Seaton; Mr. Walter Steele as Carnaby Bloodworth, the villain, portrays his character well; Mr. Fred Wells does full justice to the character of James Boswell; as Little Misery Mr. Wallace Black was all that could be desired; Miss Nancy Battersby depicted Ida Boswell with touching pathos; Mr. Kenneth Scott as the Hon. St. Clair Selby and Miss Connie Meadows as Sarah Puddicombe introduce a good deal of humour; Miss L. Earle ably sustains the rôle of Mary Barton and Mrs. Tom Wilson was suitably placed as Martha Boswell.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—The Franco-British Picture Co. furnish the attraction here this week. The programme includes Mr. John Wheelan, tenor vocalist; Mr. John Summers, who possesses a fine baritone voice; Miss Evelyn Geldard, a mezzo-soprano of pleasing quality; and the Haverleys, American song illustrators; Nick Carter and Mary Queen of Scots constitute notable features among a very fine selection of pictures.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in The Old Folks at Home is here this week. The dressing is beautiful and there are some very ingenious stage effects. Miss Maud Warburton as Dorothy has a splendid conception of the character; she is particularly good in the emotional parts; Mr. Frank Liston gives a clever portrayal of the part of Lord Kenilworth, a polished scoundrel; Mr. H. E. Herberte as Andrew Ross, makes a capital hero; Mr. Charles Hall as Hugh Robin and Mrs. Clara Santley as his wife leave nothing to be desired; the remainder of the cast is in most capable hands.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—Lessees and Managers.—Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company are appearing here in the revised version of The Christian. The company is an excellent one, and all the characters well sustained. Particular mention must be made of Mr. Henry Renouf, who gives us a superb John Storm; Miss Doris Gilham, who is a charming Glory Quayle; and Mr. Edwin Long, who is perfection as Father Lamplugh.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—The Delevines are the premier turn here with a comedy act, Flipp and Flopp. They are excruciatingly funny, and keep the audience in roars of laughter; Mr. Harold White, in a ventriloquial monologue, assisted by the most excellent mechanical figures, gives an entertainment of a very high order; Major Arnold gives a capital sleight-of-hand and magic turn; Walter Emerson is very quaint in his songs; Nellie Walton's songs are well rendered; Carl Colyer is an excellent comedian, and he scores with his hat trick; Vernon's Bioscope is, as usual, excellent.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D. Fenton.—A capital pictorial programme is provided here this week, interspersed by the Zeevens, who appear in a musical scena, and Miss Edna Carina, who renders some capital songs.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—On Monday Bathonians had the chance of starting Lady Frederick on her spring tour, and the critical audience that attended were enthusiastic in their appreciation of the piece and players. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison, under whose direction the tour is, have made a wise choice in engaging Miss Eleanor Delaporte to portray the title-rôle; the burden of the comedy lies practically upon her, and right well did she surmount the heavy task. Excellent support was given by Mr. Robert Minster, who, as Paradine Fouldes, added yet another character to his already long list of successes; Mr. E. F. Meads further enhanced his reputation as one of the best young actors of the day as Lord Mereston; and the part of Captain Montgomery was cleverly handled by Mr. Edward Bonfield. The two young lovers Gerald O'Mara and Rose Carlisle found capital representatives in Mr. Barnet Parker and Miss Lynn Fontaine. Lady Mereston was enacted in convincing style by Miss Celia Gordon. Captain Gerald Gamblier, in addition to undertaking the duties of stage-management, appeared as Admiral Carlisle with credit. A humorous performance was that of Miss Phillis Manners as Mme. Claude. Small parts were well played by Mr. John Orme (Thompson), Mr. Harry Winton (Pierre), Mr. Bruce Smith (Albert), and Miss Rita Ward (Angélique). A pretty little piece, The Peacemaker, proved a capital curtain-raiser.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth).—Several of the turns in this week's bill have been seen locally before, such as Feldman's Beau-Ideal Troupe of Juveniles, and Sable Fern, the popular comedienne, who by their talents are always sure of a cordial welcome; Norah Desmond, happily recovered from her indisposition, is rendering her illustrated songs with all her wonted effect; a most picturesque interlude is that given by Mlle. Sidy Nirvanah and her statue horse in pleasing and artistic poses; Bernardo gives a humorous comedy juggling act that causes the heartiest laughter; Avon and Crest prove themselves a couple of comedy artists that know how to make an audience enjoy themselves with merriment; Jim Cheetham gains applause for his whistling specialities; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux include The Salving of the Gladiator.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. F. R. Benson and company commenced on Monday the concluding week of their engagement here, when The Taming of the Shrew was performed. As Petruchio Mr. Benson achieved a great success, being accorded a capital reception, and Mr. W. Ribton Haines convulsed the audience with his humorous impersonation of Grumio; a most capable actress, Miss Dorothy Green, acquitted hereself with high distinction as Katherina; while the rôle of Bianca was charmingly played by Miss Olive Noble; Mr. F. G. Worlock must be congratulated on his perfect assumption of Lucentio; and the rôle of Baptista was in the skilful hands of Mr. E. A. Warburton; Mr. J. Moffat Johnston would, indeed, be difficult to excel as Vicentio; and Mr. H. O. Nicholson was all that could possibly be desired as Gremio. Other rôles were cleverly sustained by Miss Leah Hanman, and Messrs. G. F. Hannam Clark, J. P. Wilson, Guy B. Rathbone, &c. On Tuesday Romeo and Juliet was produced with every element of success, and during the week The Merchant of Venice, The School for Scandal, and Richard III. have also been performed.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The success of Mr. Fred W. Warden's Christmas pantomime Jack and Jill is assured, crowds being unanimous in their praise of such a gorgeous production. Mr. George Lashwood is the premier favourite, and such stars as Mr. John A. Warden and George Miller also command their quota of admirers; Miss Dorothy Ward and Miss Ethel Fink's rendering of many chorus songs have been rapturously encored nightly. The pantomime is certain to enjoy a most prosperous run.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Will Sley and Fred. Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Mr. Harry Roxbury, with his pantomime Mother Goose, arrived here on Monday, and the initial production in Belfast met with an instantaneous success. The scenery is good, while the company, which has been carefully selected, is a first-class one. Mr. Roxbury himself appears as Mother Goose, which he invested with much merriment, and he was ably assisted by Mr. J. W. Gallagher, who was undoubtedly very droll as Jack, his comic songs being much enjoyed; Miss Maud Prenton cut a dashing figure as Colin, her rendering of "I want you to see my girl" and other songs affording much delight; and Miss Lily Palmer was a vivacious Jill, her singing of "Sue, Sue, Sue," being excellent; Miss Lois Caris was a sweet Fairy Content, while the rôle of Demon Discontent was well played by Mr. Brian Henry; Mr. Fred Hutchings added to the general merriment by his inimitable impersonation of Muggles; while Mr. Geo. Castrey was good as Erie. The specialities include Towyn Thomas' Royal Welsh Entertainers, Sydney Russell's Four Sidney Girls, who dance well, and the Miltons, skating comedians, whose act is certainly very funny, being greeted with shrieks of merriment. The Hipposcope is also included in this fine programme.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The leading position here is held by Mr. Joe Peterman and his No. 1 company of singing servants, the various rôles being cleverly filled by Messrs. Frank Leedam, Walter Williams, Arthur Leyston, Will Jorden, &c., their vocalism being first-class. Florence and Lillian play a number of musical instruments to perfection, and Millie Payne's droll songs create much amusement; as a comedian Mr. Harry Bedford is one of the best; and the Trefelyn David Duo appear with much success in their musical scena. Also appearing are Torbay, comedy silhouettist; Miss Ida Kathrina, the Dolly Girl; and the Bioscope, which, under the direction of Mr. McGibney, exhibits some beautiful films.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Under the direction of Mr. Gerald Tweedie the following films have been exhibited:—The Shaughraun, He Who Arrives Late, The New Recruit, Custom House Officials, &c. Miss Bella White, a clever comedienne, who dances well, appears with success; also Mr. Chris. Masters, vocalist.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Under the direction of Mr. Hugh Beckett the following films have been exhibited here:—Snatched from a Terrible Death, Motor-Boat Race, Only a Dart, Artist's Model, Pirates' Honour, School Friends, &c. Also appearing are Mr. Bob Robinson, a droll Scotch comedian; and Mr. Wm. H. Carson, a capital trick cyclist.

CLIFTONVILLE HALL.—Resident-Manager, Colonel Fred T. Cummins.—The success of the Rink continues unabated, and the skating Cinderella announced by the popular manager is certain to command great favour.

BILSTON.—NEW ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Business-Manager, Mr. S. Hadskiss Dawson; Musical Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is here this week with A Royal Divorce. The Napoleon of Mr. Keith Fraser is a finished and impressive performance; Miss Margaret Watson wins unstinted admiration as the divorced Empress Josephine; her acting is marked by an earnestness and grace which is most acceptable. As Talleyrand Mr. Percy H. Vernon proves to be the right man in the right place; Mr. Ernest Plumpton is very good as General Augereau; and Miss Maud Lacy makes a pleasing Stephanie de Beauharnais; Miss Winnie Tempest successfully depicts the character of the haughty Austrian Marie Louise.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime, Cinderella and the Glass Slipper, is in the second week of a successful run. Magnificent scenery, beautiful costumes, funny comedians, pretty faces, charming music, and dainty dances combine to form a delightful entertainment. Miss Hettie Gale continues to maintain her popularity in the title-rôle; Mlle. De Rose wins general admiration by her elegant performance of Prince Perfect; and the drolleries of the page, Pimples, are well elaborated by Mr. Joe Huda. With customary liberality Mr. W. W. Kelly has generously entertained detachments from several local charitable institutions.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Albert Bellman and Lottie Moore, in their clever American comedy act, A Bit of Vaudeville, are a prominent attraction, and Mr. J. C. Piddock and his able company, in their musical fantasy, The Capture of Venus, are on a welcome return visit. A capital company also includes King's College Boys, accomplished vocalists; Sammy Shields, Scotch comedian; the Histts, in a smart musical act; Miss Rale Walters, a vocalist of exceptional merit; Mr. Gus Hindell, comedian; Mr. Charles Cordle, coon vocalist; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Mr. Walter Reynolds' company in a condensed version of that gentleman's drama, Sweet Innisfail, is the premier attraction here. Other prominent turns are those of Jena Pena, piano entertainer; Charles Sloman, comedian; Lanos and Montes, eccentric acrobats; Miss Ruby Emerson, comedienne; the Four Rubies, lady acrobats; Emerson and Baldwin, juggling comedians; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The success of Dick Whittington has exceeded all expectations, and Miss Sybil Arundale (Dick) and Mr. Tom Foy (Idle Jack), and the company, are enjoying the utmost favour.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Boy Blue has settled down into a huge success, its brilliant cast and lovely production being at once the wonder and admiration of all. The principals, as already described, include Miss Hetty King, Mr. Tom E. Murray, Mr. G. H. Elliott, Mr. Horace Mills, Miss Gladys Ivery, Miss Rita Everard, Mr. Jay Laurier, &c.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Energy and enterprise have once more scored here, and Little Red Riding Hood, Mr. Collingwood's latest, and certainly his best, pantomime up to date, looks like achieving another record. There is nothing wanting in the efforts of Miss Ellaline Thorne, Miss Dolly Denton, Miss Ivey Roze, Miss Joyce Stevens, Mr. Frank Blythe, Messrs. Stephens and Rennior, &c., while the dresses and scenery warrant high praise.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Her Nameless Child is here with Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company, under the direction of Mr. Sam Duckworth. Miss Pattie Hastings as heretofore keeps the audience rapt by her poignant personation of Phillis Ford; Mr. Sidney C Cranston gives a powerful, but tender, impersonation as Arthur Ford; Mr. Arthur E. Pringle's Lord Woodville has a consummate air of villainy; and Mongrole is portrayed with considerable effect by Mr. Frank Thompson. Miss Mona Gray delivers herself with striking success as Lady Sibil Woodville; and Mr. J. W. Evelyn, Mr. Larry Clements, and Miss Renie Douglas are very helpful to the success.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Josephs' very excellent production of Robinson Crusoe holds the stage here. Miss Stanton's singing dancing, and acting in the title-rôle have made her very popular, and the company and production enjoy favour.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Robertson. — Messrs. Van Praagh and J. Edward Whitty's company are performing here the new play, The Eyes of the World. Miss Ethel van Praagh as Helene carried her heavy burden supremely well, and the effect on the audience was electrical; Mr. George Daiper showed all the cynicism and sordid brutality of the husband, his gradual awakening to remorse at the conclusion of the second act, and his final act of reparation in the third, being graphically depicted; Mr. Will Casey as De Carnac acted with all the needed suavity and polish; Mr. Charles Sewell as Paul Roqueville was never at a loss; and Mr. Charles Stirling showed the manly characteristics of Octave de Carnac admirably. Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh as the mistress fighting to retain her lover, acted vividly; Miss Irene Stanhope gave a sweetly sympathetic portrayal of Avice; Miss Nelly Garside was very clever in mock-dramatic style as Susanne Pomfleure, and was ingenuous and sunny withal; Mr. J. Edward Whitty as Achille Fanfarade proved himself a light comedian of resource and power; and Mr. Bert Hendley as Brigard and Miss Ivy Courtney as the maid were successful. The play is handsomely mounted.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Bound to Win, played by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, has drawn largely here during the week. Miss L. Addison (Mrs. Kimberley), the authoress, plays Gladys Orme powerfully; Mr. Kimberley develops the traits of Harry Lindon in excellent style; Miss Cissie France shows dramatic ability as Winnie Oakley; Miss Violet Langley's Marion Forbes is a heroine to whom the audience warms heartily; Mr. Frank Harcourt gives a fine realisation of Philip Ayre; Mr. Allen Hope as Horatio Buffet acts with comic ability; and the support includes Miss Bella Power, Mr. Sidney Cooper, and Mr. Dick Thorpe.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone. — The Cingalee, very efficiently played by Mr. Haldane Crichton's company, is drawing good houses here this week. The title-rôle is in the able hands of Miss Mollie Wolstenholme, whose singing and acting are admirable; Miss Pauline Hague confirms the good impression she has made in former visits here by her accomplished representation of Lady Patricia Pane; Mr. Jack Crichton, also a great Blackpool favourite, scores a big success as Chambuddy Ram; Mr. Walter Wardroper as Harry Vereker and Mr. Douglas Munro as Boobhamba likewise make the most of their respective parts; special dances are introduced by the Sisters Amaranth and by Mr. Harry Edward Ray; and Mr. Herbert Ivey conducts a capable chorus.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner, Mr. T. Sergenson; Responsible Tenant and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—The New York Nippers top the bill here this week, and their turn gives great satisfaction; Charles M. Daly's company of comedians also give a capital entertainment; and A-Ba-Be's Picture Post-card Album is another pleasing act. Prince Schaboo, vocalist; Mostol, in a musical act; the Kymros, Welsh vocalists; Chiko, contortionist; and Nellie Martell, comedienne, are also well received.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—A very varied and pleasing bill of fare is provided here this week. John G. Brandon and company, in a dramatic sketch; Heeley and Meeley, in a comedy scena; the Sisters Redfern, clever drawing-room entertainers; Daisy Mayer in music, song and story; Cynthia, the marvellous midget; Maude Courtney, the talkative girl; the Cheers, with their performing cats; and the Natty Janowsky Troupe of acrobats, are all excellent in their respective turns.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The Little Breadwinner, presented by Mr. J. A. Campbell's company, has met with an enthusiastic reception here. As Lord Dorrington Mr. J. Monkhouse played the part well; and Mr. Reginald Brown acted with ability as Richard Lawrence. Mr. A. Maurice was a good Joseph Prior; and Little Irene in the title-rôle won hearty applause. Mesdames Josephine Richards, Millie Ford, and Kitty Melville were good in their respective parts.

EMPIRE. — Lessee, Mr. Arthur C. Moody. — The new arrivals include Stanto, musical comedian; Will Marsh, comedian; Lydia Rale, banjo queen; Fred Dice, song and dance artist; Will Punch, juggler; and Jarvis and Julian, comedians and dancers.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Aladdin, so successfully produced on Boxing Day, is running with perfect smoothness and drawing large audiences. Miss Lillie Blythe, who so brightly fills the title-rôle, is becoming very popular, and Miss Dorothy Dempster, the Principal Girl, is winning fame and the hearts of her audience. In his part of the Widow Twankey Mr. Victor Stevens is a source of much merriment; Mr. Tom J. Morton elicits hearty laughter as Abanazar, the magician; and the Brothers Hinson are a funny pair.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A daring cycle sensation in the Globe of Life, or Looping the Loop on a motor-cycle, is being performed here by Wizard and Irene Stone. Other turns appearing are the Levans, song illustrators; Phillips and Merritt, society entertainers; Dick, Thomas, and Lincoln Taylor, in their quick-change scena Fun on the Midland; Frank Cass, vocal comedian; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden, sketch artists; Geo. Russell, vocal comedian; Will Mitcham, musical comedian; Seener and Fridkin's Imperial Russian troupe of singers and expert dancers; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—Les Adoe, in "Olympian play," who top the bill here, perform some wonderful feats of strength; another good turn on the bill is Ada Gatley, in a pretty performance on the slack wire; the Rinders are good in illustrated song; Harry Wright, comedian; Three Grovini Sisters, tumblers, benders, and acrobats; Andy Fagan, comedian and dancer; Nellie Gannon, contralto vocalist; Clarke and Glenney, in their amusing sketch The Haunted House; Tudor's four highly-trained educated ponies (assisted by Tudora); and the Empire Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Wilmott; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Young.—This week we have a variety programme, with Mr. A. D. Adams, Mr. Stanley S. Gordon, Miss Nina Vaughton, and Miss Louie Heathfield, members of the stock company, playing a dramatic sketch, entitled The Iron Hand; a very clever and entertaining turn is done by Milner and Stacy, in comedy duologues. The company includes Sid Herman, Hebrew comedian; Lucy and May, patterers; Pinkie Wilmott, with illustrated songs; and excellent pictures on the Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROMES, LTD.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Clifford King.—The top-of-the-bill turn this week is Dutch Daly, with his inseparable concertina and stories, ancient and modern; D'Arc's Marionettes are life-like in representations of all the star artists of the day, and receive hearty applause; the Florias, in a neatly-executed equilibrist performance, and are well received; the Indento Bros. are truly eccentric jugglers; the Louisana Trio, in their dancing, are interesting; and Oliver Martyn, patter comedian, deserves mention. Flo Deighton, ballad vocalist, was unable to appear on Monday night owing to illness. The Hippo. pictures conclude an interesting bill.

BOSTON.—PALACE.—Manager, Mr. E. Cass.—The White Demon is being played this week by Messrs. Freeman and Geo. Derrick's London company. The acting is very good throughout the piece, and it is well staged. The company are also performing Sapho, and Current Cash during the week.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson. — Judicious pruning has enhanced the excellence of Mr. Hart's pantomime, Jack and Jill, which ranks as one of his many delightful productions in this direction. The lovely scenery and exquisite dresses are continual themes of admiration, and these adjuncts, coupled with the all-round capabilities of the exceptionally clever company, are sufficient for the guarantee of an unqualified success. The clever and versatile comedian Mr. Albert Le Fre is already a great and deserving favourite in his character of The Unknown; there is no end to his resources as a fun-maker, his burlesques are screamingly funny, and one of his best and biggest hits is "The dancing family." As Pomposo Mr. Charles Norton is a decided success, too, and his clever mimicry is one of the many good things in the pantomime; Mr. Jack Cromo's Dame Horner is a performance replete with humour, distinctly original, and irresistible; as Billy Badlot Mr. Josh Dixon is responsible for much of the hearty laughter; the Haytors are a clever trio of dancers, and amusing, too; Mr. Albert Chapman as Gloom wins favour with his vocalism; Miss Minna Merry is quaint as Mary-Mary; Miss Isabelle Dillon's vivacity and brightness are features in her performance of Little Jack Horner; and Miss Vere Vere is very charming as Jill. The stage effects and ballets are beautiful, and they elicit great applause.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Councillor Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Laidler has scored another big pantomime success with Red Riding Hood, which, from its initial performance, has held out the promise of establishing a record here as a money-maker; the brightness of the production generally, and a happy understanding and combination amongst the clever artists, are in the main responsible for this result. There is broad fun galore, and not a dull moment from the start to the finish of the performance. As Mother Hubbard, the clever comedian, Mr. Bert Byrne, is delightfully quaint and mirth-provoking; and Will Lindsay's Simple Sammy is a source of continuous hearty laughter. The Elvios are a smart couple, and very funny as Jimmy Green and Johnny Stout; and as Baron Wrumlotte Mr. Allan Carruthers contributes to the fun. As the Prince, Miss Florrie Forde is an outstanding figure, and the budget of popular songs she introduces are a leading feature of the pantomime; Miss Susie Belmore's natural charm and grace have established her a prime favourite as Red Riding Hood; Miss Victoria Cross is very quaint as Martha Ann Miggs; as Simon the Cellarer Mr. Walter Buxton contributes good songs; and Mr. J. A. Wilson dramatically fills the part of the wicked Wolf. The ballets and children's scenas are very attractive, and the stage effects are gorgeous productions of colour and lighting, which evoke applause.

THE EMPIRES. — Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—No comedian has ever scored a greater success here, or elicited heartier laughter with his songs, than Sam Mayo, who is appearing this week and convulsing the audience with his quaintness; the Ten-Ji Troupe of Japanese wonder-workers are clever, and they introdnce some remarkable tricks in the way of conjuring; Jeannie Mackay is a charming and cultured soprano vocalist; McCann's finely-trained dogs are put through a clever performance; a very striking turn by La Belle Nello, a graceful contortionist, wins applause; there is some fine violin playing in the humorous instrumental turn by the Dumond Trio; Bob Hamilton's Scotch comedy is of a very diverting order; Charles Stevens submits a good turn as a character comedian; and there are some very fine pictures shown by the Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Madge Gray, a popular comedienne and clever mimic, is winning applause well merited here this week; George Haley, a local baritone of quality, is deputy for Deans and Wilton, comedy acrobats; Olms and Carbeth are amusing with their comedy juggling; Brull and Hemsley submit a very bright and entertaining sketch, Fun in a Music Shop, successfully; there is some clever barrel jumping done by Clack and Clack; Margaret Radcliffe's songs are prettily illustrated; Poole and Maguire, comedy duo, submit a good turn with some claim to originality; the Four Pawles are clever acrobats, with feats novel in character; and there are some entertaining features in Raymond's Biotableaux.

BRIDGEND.—TOWN HALL.—Manager, Mr. T. D. Schofield.—Mr. Tom Owen, the famous Welsh comedian and his royal pierrot troupe are the attraction this week. The versatile principal proved as amusing and popular as ever, keeping the audience in a continual titter. Clever rag-time dancing is performed by Mr. Bert Crosline; Miss Lilian Therese's mandoline solos are sweet and pretty; Miss Esaline Thorne is a fascinating comedienne; and Miss Ethel Vere is an attractive soubrette. The songs by Miss Catherine May, Miss Molie Gwynne, Mr. Reginald Bale, Mr. Cecil Bradly, and Mr. Harry Vernon are of all-round excellence. The sketch, Chequers, by members of the troupe, goes with an excellent swing.

BRIGHOUSE. — ALBERT THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Beanland and Emerson; Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Beanland.—Variety once more occupies the boards here, the principal attraction being Ella's lions, in some marvellous tricks; Les Frères Babusio are clever head-to-head balancers; Carl Benme is a good ventriloquist; Beanland and Bath, in their novel speciality act Cartoons and Comedy are very successful. Although Mr. C. H. Beanland (the popular manager) was suffering from a severe cold on Monday, they were compelled to respond to a hearty encore. The Rowntrees are capital duettists and patterers, and the same remark applies to Hillitt and Hallett; Musical Keith gives a neat and refined musical act; Harry Gold, with his song-scena Cloudland, is well received; and animated pictures by the Loyal Dominion Co. complete.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Aladdin is running merrily here, and the pantomime, attracting large audiences, seems certain to enjoy a long and prosperous career. Miss Aimée Roberts is a vivacious Aladdin, and displays tasteful vocalisation; Miss Blanche Marion imparts grace and refinement to her impersonation of the Princess, and dances admirably; Miss Addie Love (Slave of the Lamp) is an excellent vocalist; she and Mr. Leo Sterling (Emperor of China), a clever solo instrumentalist, submit some warmly-appreciated musical specialities; Mr. Edwin Garth is very entertaining as the garrulous Widow Twankey; and Mr. Frank Dunlop affords much amusement as Abanazar; while Messrs. Bennett and Martell as Tip Pit and Wot Toe respectively, evoke the heartiest of laughter with their patter and droll antics. The Lottie Stone Quartet win great favour with their charming dancing.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith.—There is an excellent company here this week. Hilda and Beatrice are delightful instrumentalists; Spangles and Sawdust are very skilful and entertaining in their comedy aerial act; Vincent Kelway and company are well received in the romantic sketch, The Poet of the People; Abalo and Hurst are very funny comedians, and score heavily in The Sport and the Shoeblack; the Great Barton, mimic, is capital in Fun in a Farmyard; Willie Allan, Scotch eccentric, gives a pleasing turn; Herbert Waller is a good light comedian; Lily Kirton renders her songs in captivating style; Princess Pauline is highly successful with her songs; Gladys Whitton is a dainty comedienne; and the programme also includes the Alhambra Picturegraph.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—A high-class programme is sustained here this week. The juggling McBanns contribute a very clever turn with clubs, varied by some smart hat-throwing; Henry Helme, "the singer from the French Alps," achieves great success; Conway and Leland, "the Merry Monopedes," are skilful and very entertaining performers; the Three Garganis, comedy acrobats, win hearty applause; Elmo and Rego are funny acrobats; the Primrose Four furnish a rich musical treat with their artistically-rendered vocal quartets and solos; John Grun Marx, "the modern Hercules," displays some astonishing feats of strength; Arthur Prince's Mascots appear in a bright musical entertainment; Webb and Branston, operatic duettists, are cordially applauded; and the Two Woodwards, trick cyclists, win great applause with their balancing feat.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—The musical play Sylvia in Sunland has been considerably improved since its initial performance. New songs have been added, and the comedy element has been strengthened. Miss Alys Rees (Spirit of Kindness) achieves great success with her song "Little Miss Glowworm"; Miss Gladys Storey is a great favourite, and makes her Sylvia a charming and winsome impersonation; Mr. Donald Calthrop as Chivvy, the London street-boy, introduces some clever burlesques of well-known actors; Mrs. A. B. Tapping is excellent as the Queen; and other highly-effective portrayals are submitted by Mr. Trevor Lowe (King), Mr. J. Edward Pearce (Lord Chamberlain), Miss Clara Earle (Scratch-Jahr), Mr. George Howard (Jerry), and Mr. Edmund Baker (Josher). Songs introduced by Miss Lilian Henderson and Miss Daisy May are warmly appreciated.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford.—The animated pictures here prove highly attractive at the three daily exhibitions. Lorenzo de Medici is a thrilling drama; French and German Manœuvres, Victoria Falls, and Sports in Switzerland are very interesting; and much amusement is afforded by A Man of Many Falls, The Antiquary Burglars, and The Quick-Change Mesmerist; "Real Singing Pictures" by the Cinephone include "The miner's dream of home" and "In cellar cool," which are thoroughly realistic. The Barrasford Sable Operatic Minstrel Troupe are re-engaged, and appear with marked success in entirely new numbers. Mr. Arthur W. Briggs acquits himself admirably as accompanist.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Aladdin is proving very successful here; the scenery, dresses, and setting generally are much admired. All the principals are successful with their respective parts, including Miss Ouida Macdermott, Miss Deborah Volar, Miss Topsy Sinden, Miss Daisy Lloyd Wood, Miss Florence Foster, Mr. Bransby Williams, Mr. W. H. Powell, Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe, and Mr. Alfred Clark. The pantomime goes remarkably well, and bids fair to have a long and prosperous run.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Here also the pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, is highly successful. It is staged with much taste and liberality. The company is a capital one, including Miss Ethel Hall, Miss Marie Free, Miss Daisy Dennis, Miss Violet Gillis, Miss Gertie Hall, Mr. Frank Hemming, Messrs. Crosby and Walker, Mr. K. Scott-Barrie, Mr. Frank Victor, Miss Rose Challis, and Miss Nellie Danvers. Some pretty dances are given by the Silvan Quartette.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Seven Perezoffs amuse with their comic juggling pantomime An Animated Supper at Maxim's; Harry Tate's sketch company is successful with Motoring; Mr. Maurice H. Hoffman and company score with a good dramatic sketch, The Death of Chatterton; Champney and Rowe have a good musical comedy duologue, The New Housekeeper; Walter King, comedian, is appreciated; and Hicks and Hunter, vocalists and skate dancers, obtain applause. There are also some fine animated pictures, including, amongst others, The Interior of a Newspaper Office.'

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Rameses heads the programme with his Egyptian mysteries, for which he obtains much appreciation; Captain Felix and his Seventeen Gordon Highlanders present a capital turn of pyramid building, storming the fort, and various evolutions, &c.; Katie Weston is a pleasing vocalist and dancer; Bonetti and Corrie do some smart eccentric juggling; Nat Travers pleases as a coster comedian; May Day is a promising juvenile vocalist and dancer; Will E. Stoppit is smart as an eccentric tumbler, &c.; Phil and Nettie Peters, American-Dutch eccentrics, do a capital turn; J. W. Elliston, vocal comedian, has some excellent songs; and the performance concludes with animated pictures.

COLSTON HALL.—The "Joseph" Poole Myriorama is doing good business here. The panoramas, animated pictures, and dioramic effects are all of the very best, and there is also a good variety company and a capital band.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company had a very flattering reception on Monday, when they presented Tom Jones to a full house, and at the end of each act the curtain had to be raised several times. Miss Florence Smithson made an excellent Sophia Weston, and gave much pleasure with her singing; the title-rôle was acted and sung well by Mr. Harry Welchman; Mr. Geo. Elton simply revelled in the part of Benjamin Partridge; much merriment was caused by Mr. Ambrose Manning, who made a typical old English squire of uncontrollable temper; Miss Alice Oppitz cleverly presented Lady Bellaston; Mr. J. T. McMillan contributed to the fun as Gregory; Miss Joan Ritz as Honour danced and sang charmingly; Miss Cecilia Wilman was also successful as the Hostess. The choruses (under the direction of Mr. Edward Thornton) showed good training. The scenery was particularly fine.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Woman and Wine is being produced here this week by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds's company a big audience on Monday showing keen appreciation of the performance. An artistic rendering of the student, Dick Seymour, is given by Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds, and as his father, a blind artist, Mr. J. Milne-Taylor is no less successful; Mr. Harry Harrop as Charles Sauter, Mr. W. Manning as Prof. Sauter, and Miss Ethel Vinroy as Janet Marlow occasion great laughter; as Marcel Rigadout Miss C. St. Elmo appears with success, and Mary Andrews is capably portrayed by Miss Violet Sims. The Lottie Stone Troupe of dancers are smart.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—An appreciative audience filled the house on Monday. The Eighteen Lancashire Singers, ten of whom are ladies, under the conductorship of Mr. Thos. Grundy, scored a success; Mr. W. G. Webber, bass vocalist, sang ballads effectively; Mr. Walter Stanley caused much mirth; Mr. Walter Curtis's patter kept the audience in a good humour; and Miss Janet Hermann, a Burnley-lane young lady, made an encouraging début. Miss Ina Lorimer, Scottish comedienne and dancer, won warm applause for her dancing, and the Attilla Bros. as Olympian gladiators, &c., were loudly applauded for a capital display. The Auers have a clever speciality in Jumps, Bumps, and Rags, and Hugo and Smit, acrobatic and knockabout bar artists, perform a number of clever and humorous tricks. Rover's Christmas is an excellent series of pictures by the Theatrescope.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Jake Friedman is winning success in Happy Holland; Miss Florence Hunton as Gretchen is particularly pleasing; and the other parts are ably taken; Mlle. Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre is an elaborate and up-to-date show; as aquatic acrobats Kirk and Saraski gave a very creditable exhibition, and were greatly appreciated; the Milton Trio, vocalists, dancers, and paper manipulators, won encores; My Friend Boots, presented by Johnny Holland and company, created roars of laughter; the Waltons are a couple of smart eccentric acrobats; and Julian Ross is a comedian with two good songs. Flo Inman is a pleasing comedienne, and Charlotte Corday is thrillingly represented on the Cinematograph.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—When Knights were Bold, presented by Mr. Jas. Welch's capable company, is drawing crowded houses here this week. Roars of laughter greet each appearance of Mr. Hy. J. Ford, whose ability as an actor is equalled by his keen sense of humour; he is irresistibly funny as Sir Guy de Vere. Miss Agnes de Liana gives a dignified and spirited rendition of the romantic Lady Rowena; Miss Ethel St. John is a bright and pleasing Sarah Isaacson; Mr. Guy Lane (the Dean), Mr. Vernon Sansbury (the Jew), Mr. Cecil Clayton (the Jester), and Mr. H. Agar Lyons (Sir Brian) are eminently successful in their respective rôles; Mr. Reginald Hunter does extremely well as Barker; as does also Mr. Talbot Homewood (Wittle), Miss Mabel Younge (Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave), and her attendant ladies, Miss Maev O'Hea, Miss Ruth Bower, and Miss Marion Ryder add considerably to the success of the play, which is admirably staged.

BURY (Lancs).—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The Dairymaids, presented by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company, is proving a great attraction. Miss Empsie Bowman is a sprightly and captivating Peggy; as Winifred Miss Vera Crichton has an opportunity of displaying her vocal powers, and her singing meets with well-deserved approval; Miss Carrie Lacey is a stately Lady Brudenell, and Miss Lucy Edwin admirably fulfils the requirements of the part of Miss Pychase; a highly diverting performance is furnished by Miss Gladys Silvani as Eliza, of which she makes a clever character study; Mr. Johnny Osborne revels in the part of Joe Mivens, and keeps the audience in continuous good humour; his efforts are ably seconded by Mr. Nelson Keys as Lieut. Sam Bradenell, whose dancing is particularly good; Mr. Percy Marshall gives a clever performance as Dr. O'Byrne; Mr. J. Herbert Willis and Miss Hazel Saqui give valuable assistance. The play is splendidly staged and costumed, and the chorus, both from an acting and singing standpoint, are excellent.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The Five Vernons are splendidly received, and their selections on the xylophones are distinctly clever; Coram is a wonderful ventriloquist, and causes great amusement; Arthur Slater shines as a whistler, his bird imitations particularly, are capital; Bert Rayburn, comedian; McOleaveys clever jumpers; the Northcotes, duettists; Sadie Earley, in a pathetic scena, Memories; and Donaldson and Ferina, in a dramatic episode, entitled The Veteran's Birthday, are all good.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wilson.—Leonard Charburn's Troupe of Young Stars are attracting large houses, and their turn is much appreciated; Burns and Bentley are good simultaneous dancers; Ruhart submits an amusing exhibition of humorous juggling; Stacey and Williams are neat dancers; the other turns of Sidney Brandon, boy character impersonator; Harry Zetter, comedian and eccentric dancer; Leslie and Player, duettists; Wartana Trio, jugglers; Smith and Johnson, coloured artists; and the Bioscope pictures, all meet with approval.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in The Christian is drawing good houses here. Mr. P. Gedge Twyman plays John Storm with much dramatic power; the villainy of Lord Robert Ure is cleverly depicted by Mr. G. Montague Lane; Mr. Edward Ouston presents a thoroughly meritorious sketch of Horatio Drake; good performances of Father Lamplugh and Archdeacon Wealthy coming from Mr. John H. Batson and Mr. William Mallalieu. Miss Marjory Fane's acting as Glory Quayle displays considerable force; praise is due to Miss Alice Maude and Miss Gladys Vernon as Mrs. Callender and Polly Love; and Miss Grace Baring is good in the small part of Black Meg.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. Milton Bode's pantomime Aladdin is here for the week, and on the opening night created a very favourable impression. Mr. J. Hickory Wood is responsible for the construction of same, and he has done his work thoroughly. Miss Blanche Astley, in the title-rôle, is seen to advantage, playing the part with ability; Miss Elise Skillings has a nice voice, and gave an excellent representation of Princess Yo-San; Miss Bob de Loriere as Pekoi scored with her singing; Miss Eva Chadwick was a dainty Niese; Mr. John E. Conan was smart as Widow Twankey; Mr. Harry Morgan (Abanazar) worked very hard, and with success; as did Mr. Neville Delmar (the Grand Vizier). A comical exhibition was given by the Firmans, a pair of first-class comedians; Collins's celebrated troupe of dancers, and the Moxon Trio, speciality acrobatic artists, introduced some highly interesting turns. A special word of praise is due to Mr. Trueman Towers for his stage management.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The pantomime Cinderella has been acknowledged a great success, and full houses continue the rule. Miss Moya Mannering in the title-rôle and Miss Ida Stratham as the principal boy are considered the best duo at the head of pantomime that Cardiff has ever seen.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—The popular character-actor, Mr. Albert Chevalier, appears in a capital sketch, Behind the Scenes, and, supported by a large and talented company, creates a great success. At the conclusion of his most entertaining performance the continued applause accorded the clever comedian proves how popular Mr. Chevalier is with every class of audience. Miss Alexandra Dagmar is also on the programme, and a delightful turn this skilful comedienne introduces, her tuneful vocalism and amusing story-telling being particularly pleasing. A wonderful performance is provided by the Lukushimas, a clever troupe of Japanese acrobats, who win uproarious applause; another sensational acrobatic number is that given by the original Gaudsmidts, additional interest being taken in their turn by the remarkable tricks of the dog Wigon; the well-known comedian, J. W. Rowley, appears in a couple of his most successful songs; Gladys Hooley is accorded marked approbation for her beautiful violin playing in a most attractive scena; while Harry Herbert scores with a humorous female impersonation. J. P. Ling, a gifted mimic, and Lilian French, a smart comedienne and step-dancer, complete the list. On Wednesday, the 6th, a grand fashionable matinée was given, by kind permission of Mr. Stoll, in aid of Cardiff Lifeboat Fund.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the Management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—The pantomime Babes in the Wood has entered upon the second week of its run, and is now in full swing. All the artists have thoroughly mastered their respective parts, and are achieving great reputations in the district. The performances have been well patronised, and the production has every look of gaining unprecedented success.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—The Westgate-street house has literally been besieged at every performance this week by eager patrons to witness the famous Salome dance by Miss Ellen Roberts. Those who expected great things were not disappointed, as this talented young lady rendered Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" dance and the Salome dance with a grace and refined movement which delighted all those that were privileged to be present at such a clever and artistic representation. Miss Beaumont Collins has undoubtedly presented in The House of Terror the finest and best-acted dramatic playlet yet performed at the Palace, her rendering of Meg Harding being a triumph of histrionic ability, and gaining for her tremendous applause, never so well earned. Mr. George Ingleton is also great as John Dason, the facial expressions of the gentleman cracksman being perfect, and not by any means overdone. The other two rôles are most realistically portrayed. An unequalled cockatoo pantomime is presented by Irma Orbasany, the tricks and evolutions of these extraordinary birds reflecting the utmost credit upon their trainer; Chas. Lewis is a clever and novel ventriloquist; and Mi Yettmah, a Japanese conjurer, most mystifying. A charming and able speciality dancer is Cissie Lupino; while Rowlands and Ford, Scotch and Welsh comedians, cause many a laugh. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are an attraction.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Seymour Hicks's company in The Gay Gordons holds the boards this week. Mr. Charles Childerstone as Angus Greame gives a most finished and artistic performance, and Mr. Harry M. Johnson is exceedingly funny as Andrew Quainton; the part of Nervy Nat is well played by Edward Carlton; and Mr. Robert Rivers as Edmund Siddons makes the most of his opportunities; Miss Marie West is the Peggy Quainton of the piece, a part which she plays with delightful charm; and the comedy part of Victoria Siddons has a good exponent in Miss Florence Somers; Miss Sophie Lingwood is successful as Janet McLeod; and Miss Louie Emery is admirably suited as Charlotte Siddons; Miss Katherine Dighton as Mary McLeod and Miss Rosa Wynford as Lady Millicent do well. The whole performance goes with an exhilarating swing.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Walter Bellonini tops the bill here this week, and submits a most wonderful juggling act; Wills and Mackenzie in a vocal scene, Christina of Sketra, give some singing of a very high order; the Bros. Roland are very successful in a clever equilibristic act; Talbot and Pearce appear in a bright and lively little Jap scena, and meet with a most enthusiastic reception; Cumminger and Colonna are marvellous sand-dancers; Edwards and Dacre are appreciated in a comedy duologue, What a Life; Lilian Lowe, vocalist also appears. The Pepiscope completes.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman, J.P.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is on a return visit with Who is She? Some realistic scenery aids the performance, and the attendance is good. As Prince Vladimir Mr. Graham Woods is excellent, his soldierly bearing being combined with a good delivery; although suffering from a throat affection, Mr. Jerrold Heather presents the cowardly and unscrupulous brings down the house with his acrobatic dance in the third act; Mr. Geo. F. Story proves most amusing as Thedon Adolfo, and makes a hit with "Hello, people," in which he is ably supported by six lively ladies, impersonating the Touring Newspaper Beauties; the bulk of the comedy business is in the hands of Messrs. H. C. Barry, a very clever and droll Nix; and Mr. Tom Seymour quite an excellent Reginald Brown; and other rôles are very ably filled.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis.—Master Wilbert E. Blincoe, vocalist, opens the programme here, and is followed by Daisy Elphinstone, in some nicely illustrated songs; Jules Kiaro gives a very clean equilibristic display; Ford and Hanson please with musical selections and burlesque imitations of famous composers; Maud Lordy makes one of the hits of the evening with her cleverly trained dogs; Annie Braddan, with dialect and chorus songs in a prime favourite; plentiful applause is awarded to Frank Hardie and company for a capitally staged sketch, The Old Brigade; and the Edisonograph's films make an entertaining item.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—At the top of the bill we have Miss Carlotta De Yonson and company, who present an excellent playlet, entitled Sexton Blake, Miss Ida Barr has a fine stage presence, and the choruses of her songs are taken up by the "gods" with surprising readiness; there is much novelty in the rifle manipulation act contributed by the Amio Trio; Harry Luck's songs go well, particularly "The old black bag"; Wyotti proves smart and amusing in his juggling act. Others who appear are Ford and Maxwell, comedians and dancers, and Marion Armitage, low comedy vocalist; and Lacey's Erascope has new films, including The Little Fiddler.

CHORLEY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here with The Lancashire Lad. As David Elmore Mr. Alec Alexander plays with considerable strength and power, Mr. T. G. Vane undertaking Max Carlton with distinct success. Mr. W. Kenion wins entire approbation with his humorous interpretation of John Willie Wardle; Mr. Will Brereton well sustaining the character of Prof. Napoleon Boulanger. Miss C. Leyland is charming as Jessie Wincott; Miss Nell Oliver giving an admirable exposition as Lorna Wincott. Jane Alice Clitheroe and Mother Wardle are exceedingly well sustained by Miss L. Pearce and Miss Molly Monaghan. There is an excellent variety programme rendered in Act 3, in which Miss E. Rosette and Miss Gerty Gaye are conspicuous with clever dances and songs.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Charles M. Bestic's company in The Flower Girl opened a week's engagement here on Monday before a thoroughly delighted audience, a state of things accounted for by the extreme brightness and sparkle of the show. Miss Kitty Hyde sang nicely in the title-rôle, and her dancing, too, was much appreciated; Miss Georgie de Lara appeared in the topical part of the militant Suffragette; probably the most popular couple were Mr. Henry Adnes and Miss Lilian Drake as M. and Mme. de Racquet, and certainly there was an immense amount of fun created by these two. Mr. John J. McCallum gave a droll impersonation of Joe Wheeler; and Johnny was aptly portrayed by Mr. John Latham.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Colchester Hippodrome Co.; Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Quite an innovation, in the shape of a legitimate show, is being given at this variety house this week, to wit, Miss Emma Hutchison and company, in the three-act comedy, Mrs. Dot. Staged in accordance with the usual lavishness of the Hutchison companies, the piece has one outstanding feature, viz., the delightfully cynical, matter-of-fact man about town, James Blenkinsop, as delineated by Mr. Frank Lacy, his study being a most clever one; Miss Nancy Beresford, charmingly gowned, displayed the capricious impetuosity of Mrs. Dot in a really captivating style; Mr. Hugh Kennedy, well groomed, made a polished and natural Gerald Halstane; Miss Hutchison herself, though obviously labouring under the disadvantages of a cold, imparted the necessary worldliness to the part of Lady Sellinger; and as the daughter Nellie Miss Ethel Grahame appeared to be capitally placed. Mr. Philip Leslie showed real merit as Freddy; and Mr. William Midgley made an admirable gentleman's gentleman.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Her Love Against the World is being presented here this week by Mr. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard's company. Mr. Fred Emery in the part of Eric is accorded much applause; as Lionel Miss Rosie St. John is clever; Mr. Lewis Gilbert gives a convincing portrayal of Ulric; Mr. W. H. Hallatt is smart as Prince Othmar; General Gessler and Colonel Esterhazy are well taken by Mr. Chas. Hann and Mr. John Chesson respectively; and as Iris Miss Grace Heywood comes in for much appreciation. The part of Shulah is well sustained by Miss Blanche Steele. Mr. Henry B. Lewis and Mr. John Mill sustain the comedy efficiently.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Hardie and Von Leer's company in The Sailor's Wedding opened a week's engagement here on Monday, when the capable and clever company was well received. As Gordon Drake Mr. C. W. Standing scored a decided success; Miss Winifred Pearson filled the difficult part of Leonore de Gresac with distinction; Mary, the heroine, was sustained by Miss Mary Pemberton, whose acting was full of grace and tenderness; Mr. Hodgson Taylor, as Giovanni Ferici (the villain) played with great force and earnestness; Sir Victor Lascelles was admirably enacted by Mr. Cecil Klein; and the other parts were capably filled.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—Mike S. Whallen, comedian, proves his versatility; Mlle. Polo, a clever gymnast, performs a number of daring feats; Irene and Morton appear in a comedy act, which includes jokes, lively songs, and pretty dances; Mahatma gives an interesting exhibition of thought-reading while blindfolded; Tom Bassett, comedian, gives interpretations of Hamlet and Shylock, and wins great applause; Miss Frances McNulty is a clever change artist, and contributes some very nice step dances; George Adams possesses a good baritone voice, which he uses well; Moule and Nicholls' company, in a burlesque entitled The Battle of the Belles, are very laughable; and the Palascope shows some dramatic pictures which please.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—A stirring drama, entitled The Girl Who Lost Her Character, by Walter Melville, is again at the above house the company being the capable one of Mr. Bruce Douglas. Chief interest centres round the title-rôle, Molly Vernon, which part is ably portrayed by Miss Cecila Dare; Mr. R. Perrin as Captain Caversham, and Miss Lydia Mannington as Marian Franklin do full justice to extremely difficult parts. Amongst others who assist capably to the success of the piece are Mr. E. McLean (Rev. Robert Everton), Mr. Harold Macartney (Jack England), Mr. G. H. Asquin (Dick Punch), Miss Mabel Thorpe (Isabella Jones), Mr. G. Mitchell (James Sutton), and Miss Dalcie Greatwick (Rose Seymour). The piece is capitally staged.

THE EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—For this week the above house has been turned into a theatre proper, and the well-known piece The Girls of Gottenberg, by George Grossmith and L. E. Berman, presented, the company being one of Mr. George Dance's. Mr. Bertie Wright is well known in Coventry, and his interpretation of Max Moddlekopf was successfully received on Monday night; Miss Simeta Marsden gives a charming and successful rendering of Mitzi, an inn-keeper's daughter, her dancing being very graceful; Mr. Charles Berkley admirably portrays the character of Sergeant Britti Botti, the last two being responsible for some charming numbers. Miss Masie North is successful as Elsa. Other parts are as follow: Prince of Saxe-Hildershelm, Mr. Tom Shelford; Clementine, Miss May Marshall. The augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Otto Manns.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. Morton.—His Sister's Honour, staged by Mr. A'Dell's company, occupies the boards this week. Mr. Evelyn A'Dell as Frank Stanley acts with telling force; Miss Flora Leslie as Dora Stanley displays great histrionic ability; Mr. Walter Wilson as Sir Richard Redvers submits a careful study; Mr. Edwin Clarke makes a capital Dr. Godfrey; Mr. A. Preece as Timothy Timid, and Miss Maudie Vincent as Marie Mickle, prove themselves comedians of no mean order; Mr. Sidney Verner is a typical P.C. Worthy; and Miss Ethel Ashleigh as Ivy Merton acts with much taste and feeling.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alfred Cuthbert.—Mr. Wentworth's Croke's company is playing The Prodigal Son to full houses here this week. Miss Valerie Crespin is superb as Thora Neilson, and afterwards gains fresh laurels as Elin; Miss Barbara Gott gives a praiseworthy rendering of Anna, the Governor's wife; Miss Mildred Cottell is a clever Helga Neilson; and Miss Marie Harcourt an excellent Margaret Neilson. Mr. Hugh Montgomery gives a masterful portrayal of Magnus Stephenson; and Mr. Gordon Macintosh as his brother Oscar plays his part admirably. Mr. Bellenden Clarke makes an effective Stephen Magnussen, Mr. Philip Renouf a capable Oscar Neilson, Mr. E. Rivarz a good Sheriff, Mr. Bruce Lindley a commendable Dr. Olsen, and Mr. Charles A. Maynard a successful Neils Filsen.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Dick Whittington is in full swing, and is giving unmitigated satisfaction at two performances a day.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Harry Osmond.—The animated pictures are still a feature here, and are well worth seeing.

PUBLIC HALL.—Mr. Ernest Mansell's Graphic Life-Motion Pictures are in their second week. Many new and novel subjects are introduced, and the whole is a very enjoyable evening's entertainment. Mr. Hal Dane, versatile comedian, submits several amusing songs.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Carl Hertz, with the assistance of Miss Emeline D'Alton, proves himself an illusionist of no mean ability; Eileen Douglas, musical comedy artist, is exhilarating; Ted Cowan is an amusing comedian; Arthur Reece, comedian, makes a big hit in his latest successes; Lowenwirth and Cohan are Hebrew comedians who know well how to entertain; Amy Sullivan is a pleasing comedienne; Fielding and Hull are marvellous sketch artists; Harry Maxam is a side-splitting comedian; Selby and Myers are interesting comedians and patterers; Irma Lorraine causes a sensation in her series of artistic animated tableaux; and Ruffell's animated pictures are relished.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company is paying a visit here with Mr. H. S. Merriman's play With Edged Tools. Mr. William Grant is successful as Jack Meredith; Miss Marie Leonhard as Jocelyn Gordon is undoubtedly good; Miss Esther Belmore as Millicent Chyne is admirable; the part of Sir John Meredith is excellently played by Mr. J. A. Rosier; Victor Durnovo is in the capable hands of Mr. Campbell Goldsmid; Mr. Chas. Hartopp as Guy Oscard is good; and Miss Marion Fawcett is a typical Lady Cantourne.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Theatre, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—Appearing here are the Five Whiteleys in their acrobatic, wire-walking, and musical pot-pourri act; F. V. St. Clair, who makes a big hit with his up-to-date songs; Miss Sybil Montague, a fine soprano vocalist; Harry Cooke, comedian; Tate and Tate, in the sketch The Barmaid; Hunter and Mario, in comedy; and the Rangers, cycle performers.

DARWEN.—PICTURE PALACE AND THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—Polo and Florence are this week's top-liners in their head and hand-balancing feats, for which they receive rounds of applause; Ess and Hoey give an excellent turn of speciality dancing; the Brothers Esdale are clever patter comedians in addition to their novel musical glasses and whistling; and P. Rhodes, the singing miner, is well received. Among the best of the pictures are The King's Pardon and The Waif's Christmas.

PUBLIC HALL AND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Leivers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—Wyllie, tramp musician and story-teller, is both quaint and clever; Elsie Vane is well received in her songs; Joe Sterling, eccentric comedian, creates roars of laughter; and George Grayson gives two good baritone songs. The excellent pictures include The Hero of Valmy and Saved from the Sea.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—The pantomime of Aladdin entered upon its second week on Monday night, when a full house enjoyed the performance. There is much to commend in the entertainment, a clever troupe of comedians working hard to ensure its success. Of these, particular mention should be made of Mr. Fred Cary, whose representation of Abanazar, the magician, is one of the best things witnessed in local pantomime. Miss Lallah Davis scores a distinct success as Aladdin; and the other parts are equally well sustained. Several fresh songs have been introduced this week, and the choruses were all well received. The general effect is satisfactory, and Mr. Edwardes may be congratulated upon the result of his endeavour to provide an entertainment worthy of the theatre. For this he has to thank Mr. Arthur Carlton, under whose direction the piece has been produced.

PALACE THEATRES OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—W. J. Churchill occupies first position this week, and Monday night's reception testified to his popularity. Another capital turn is that of the Three Pirmans, pantomimic gymnasts, who achieve well-merited success; the Days cause no little wonderment with their exhibition of second sight; the Sisters Desmond, character duettists, have songs both smart and tuneful; the Two Eduns appear to distinct advantage in a vocal scena, The Garden; and Sira, a one-legged acrobat, performs his tricks with surprising agility; Harry Simms, light comedian, renders his chorus songs in a smart manner. The Bioscope, with a dramatic film, adds greatly to the enjoyment.

DEVONPORT.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, is now running smoothly, and the various artists have become general favourites. The comic side is particularly strong, and special mention must be made of the quaint make-up and demeanour of Mr. Fred Anderson as Tommy Tickles, the eccentricities of this capable artist being responsible for roars of hearty laughter.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Miss Helen Trio supplies a high-class drawing-room entertainment; Miss Dorothy Grimston and company have a highly-exciting dramatic episode in The Money Spider, which is followed with close attention; Carl Lynn, animal mimic, furnishes some realistic representations of different animals, his efforts being rewarded with hearty applause; and Rex Fox appears equally at home when performing either as a slack wire-walker, ventriloquist, or musician. Arthur Stacey, comedian, has an original style, which proves popular, his dancing being an additional attraction; the Claymores entertain with some interesting juggling; and Harry Bold contributes no small share to the harmony of the evening.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Her Forbidden Marriage is being presented here. Mr. Harry Lonsdale was convincing and incisive as George Madison; Mr. Louis Hector as Charles Devereux evoked warm appreciation; Mr. C. Davidson's interpretation of Geoffrey Broughton was clever; and mirth was provoked by Mr. Fred de Vere as Timothy Tuttut. Miss Isla Garnett-Vayne daintily presents Lucy, and Miss Florence Hunt forcibly sustains the part of Lady Lucretia.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland. — The pantomime of Robinson Crusoe is now running with a great swing and large audiences are attracted nightly. Miss Winifred Hare has become a big favourite, and her songs are loudly applauded; Miss Kathleen Gray is most successful as Jack Rattlins, and her singing is greatly admired; Mr. Barney Armstrong continues to cause plenty of fun in the character of Will Atkins, and with Mr. J. J. Dallas as Mrs. Crusoe, with his humorous songs, the laughter never ends. As Man Friday, Mr. Frank Gala is most successful; Mr. Harry Lappo as William Crusoe and Mr. Jimmy Steel as Little Jimmy also add some amusing scenes. The remaining parts are well sustained, and Kirby's aerial ballet is a most sensational performance.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company, Ltd., entered on their second week on Monday night. The Meistersingers was again performed before a very crowded audience. The orchestra was conducted under the able baton of Herr Richard Eckhold. Mr. Philip Brozel sang his music in a most artistic manner in the rôle of Walther Von Stolzing; and Mr. William Dever achieved a distinct success and acted splendidly the part of Sextus Beckmesser, and sang with excellent taste. Miss Kate Anderson's rendition of Eva was a very effective performance; and Miss Toni Seiter did admirably as Magdalene. Mr. Charles Magrath, although suffering from a cold, did full justice to the part of Veit Pogner; and Mr. Lewys James cleverly fulfilled the part of Hans Sachs. On Tuesday Il Trovatore was the attraction, when Mr. John Child appeared as Manrico; he was in excellent form, and sang with exquisite taste. Mr. Lewys James was particularly good as Count di Luna, and his rendering of "The Tempest of the Heart" was magnificent, gaining rounds of applause; Miss Kate Anderson makes a charming Leonora; and Miss Toni Seiter gave a very successful rendering of Azucena. The chorus and orchestra did their work well, and Signor Sapio conducted with his accustomed ability. During the week the following operas are announced:—La Traviata, Tannhäuser, The Star of the North, Eugene Onegin, The Jewess, and The Bohemian Girl.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. S. Pearce; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Hereford Jones.—The genial manager of this establishment has left nothing undone to provide his patrons with an excellent programme, on this, their last week here, after a long and most successful run. The pictures shown, which are both exciting and amusing, include Who Wins, The Modern Style of Housemaid, Constable Please, Follow Your Leader, William Tell, The Wonderful Lantern, The Baron's Crime, Caught Redhanded, The Caterpillar Engine, &c., and the artists appearing are Jolly Jack Murray, comic vocalist and comedian; Bayne and Murray, in their laughable sketch, The Midnight Apparition, and Bob Pearson, the popular humorist and guide.

EMPIRE — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh. — A most original and mirth-provoking sketch, The Clock Went Wrong, presented by Matthews, Cooper, and company, is the pièce de résistance of this week's bill, Mr. E. C. Matthews's humorous character study being especially enjoyed. The old Dublin favourite, Charles Coburn, enhances a big local reputation as a comedian; the Lashmars, in their speciality comedy act, Bits and Pieces, prove vastly amusing; Cull Pitt, the droll deceptionist, is deservedly popular; Harry Tomps is no less successful as a comedian and raconteur; Machnow, who claims to be the tallest man in the world, arouses great interest; Ross and Lewis are to the foré in their humorous dancing performance; as a mimic Leo Tell is a host in himself, and his turn is deserving of every praise; Dorothy Sephton is a pleasing vocalist; and the Empire Pictures are up to the usual standard.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Haley's Juveniles, in a charming carnival scena, head the bill here this week, and are accorded a flattering reception; another capital turn is provided by the Maddison Brothers, whose smart patter and comedy boxing act keeps the house convulsed with laughter, and is nightly encored; in a daring and sensational wire act Allas evokes rounds of applause; Kenway and Emery, in their comedy duologue, "Turtle Doves," give an amusing turn; and Corris Brothers, novelty balancers and jugglers, score a big success; as does also Jack Ramsey, a humorous Scotch comedian. Emil and Ediss secure unstinted approval for their clever banjo playing; and Will Brookes, descriptive vocalist, and Bertha Winder, the dancing marvel, also secure well-deserved recognition. The Bioscope picture is entertaining.

ROUND ROOM ROTUNDA. — The Irish Animated Photo. Company, who have entered on their third week, continues to fill the house twice daily. The change of pictures, which are of the usual high class character, include:—China of To-day, Scenes of Life in the Balkans and Brittany, The Rebellious Stick, The Manœuvres of Toy Soldier, The Mysterious Hand of the Wizard, View of Venice, &c., and the vocal items contributed by Mr. Patrick O'Shea (tenor), Miss Agnes Meehan (contralto), Mr. William Grant (baritone), and the selections by the Swiss Orchestra add considerably to the success of the entertainment.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The following artists are appearing here this week:—Glynn and Glynn, sketch artists; Harry Desborough, quaint comedian; Miss Neil Glennie, coon vocalist and dancer; Prof. Green and Sons' Punch and Judy Show; and the cinematograph depicting the pantomime of Beauty and the Beast.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. and Mrs. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company in The House that Jack Built is having a successful run here, opening their second week on Monday; Miss Florrie Taylor as Jack and Miss Evelyn Major as Jill have immensely increased their popularity; and Miss Gladys Wyse as Wee MacGregor continues to fascinate her audiences with her braw Scotch, and dances the true Scottish National dances in a fascinating manner. The pantomime goes with a good swing from start to finish.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. H. Waters.—Topping the bill this week is Yangar, the West African wonder-worker, who mystifies his audience and receives hearty applause; Lenton and Lane in Unconsidered Trifles, are smart and clever, and their patter has the virtue of originality; Mlle. La Freya, in her artistic visions, supplies a pretty and entertaining turn; Renee Grahame is a charming comedienne with well-rendered songs; Spencer and Marks are good comedians, with a good turn; Lizzie Hands is exceptionally fine in voice and figure; and Chas. Tempest, with his facial contortions, creates considerable amusement. The popular Empire pictures help to complete a strong programme.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Robinson Crusoe continues to attract crowded houses nightly. There is a fine combination of principals, with Miss Jennie Lynwood doing clever work in the title-rôle; Miss Lucy Coventry is a delightfully vivacious Polly, her fascinating manner and expert dancing winning her many admirers; Miss Rosie Bartlett gives a very spirited performance as Lieut. Bob, and renders her songs with much effect; Miss Luna Lyndon introduces a new song this week, "Waiting for a girl," which goes with a bang. Much of the success of the production is due to the versatility and amusing antics of those born drolls, Messrs. Keith and Mason; their comic business all through is highly diverting, their comic resources being seemingly unlimited, while their work has the further recommendation that it is not hackneyed. Larola, a remarkably clever equilibrist, has made a huge hit as Friday; Messrs. Harry Ugar, Percy Johnson, and Donal MacDougal work hard in keeping the fun going. A special word of praise is due to the Six Lancashire Lasses, whose agile and picturesque dancing is quite a feature of the pantomime.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—After three weeks of successful pantomime, this popular house once more reverts to vaudeville fare, a capital bill being this week headed by Fred Storey and company, in a magnificent production of Rip Van Winkle, in which some splendid scenic effects are introduced. In his scena, Flights of Imagination, Luis Hardt displays his wonderful strength with much effect; Ellis and Ellis delight the house with national songs and dances; Jack Harrison furnishes some enjoyable moments with his humorous ditties; Douglas and Clarke provide some mirth-provoking business, and score with their clever dancing; the efforts of Sibb and Sibb on the double trapeze are much appreciated; Hewitt and May's unique musical act is much relished; Reg Beauchamp, the new dame comedian, is decidedly quaint, and Jack Binns proves popular as a vocal comedian. Some interesting films shown by the Palascope complete the bill of fare.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mrs. Lillie Williams' great laughing success Dick Whittington continues its record-breaking career, and has fulfilled the highest expectations, both in respect to artistic excellence and as a drawing force. Miss Gertie Douglas and Miss Hetty Lind, the principal boy and girl respectively, are huge favourites, the audiences joining in the choruses of their songs with great gusto; Miss Cicely Kent as Fitzwarren's cook continues to win honours with her clever comedy creation, while Miss Osceola Martinek as the Princess is encored nightly for her artistic dancing. Mr. Sam Thomson, the leading comedian, has made a tremendous hit; everything he says or does sends the house into convulsions. The pantomime is certainly the most charming and tuneful production that has ever been staged at this popular house.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The Prince Edward pictures are still attracting huge crowds to this cosy hall. Amongst those shown this week are:—Raised from the Ranks, Buffalo Bill, Aladdin and his Lamp, Snow Shoots, Brave Children, and a side-splitting film entitled An American's Trip Through Europe. A fine variety programme is provided by Le Wist, a clever ventriloquist, and Reno, whose smart conjuring performance is mysterious in the extreme.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—In addition to a very fine cinematographic programme Johnny Beveridge, the blind comedian, appears with success in several new songs, and Ryde and Beeman provide much amusement with their patter and songs.

KINNAIRD HALL.—Hamilton's Diorama is being well patronised, the pictures being of a most enjoyable and instructive nature. Some fine films are shown by means of the Eragraph, while several variety turns of much excellence further contribute to the enjoyment of the entertainment.

GILFILLAN HALL.—Quite a feast of cinematograph and variety business is provided here by the Dundee City Concerts and Entertainments Company, Ltd. Some excellent pictures are shown, Christmas—from the Birth of Christ to Present Time being a remarkably good film. Over the Sticks is a thrilling picture of a steeplechase, while among the comic pictures The Depilatory Powder and The Treacle Dodge are ribticklers. Varieties are introduced by Wilbert and Warner and the Poole Family, instrumentalists, while Mr. Ernest Jones makes a delightful accompanist on the piano.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE. — Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts. — Robinson Crusoe and His Man Friday is to be added to the list of successes. Since the first night of its production here, on the last day of the year, crowds have been unable to gain admission. Miss Amy Randolph proves herself a very capable principal boy, and is a general favourite; Mr. Fred Davies as Will Atkins plays drolly throughout, and his methods of fun-making are much appreciated; Mr. Tom Gilmore as Captain Skuttle and Friday is quite equal to anything that may be desired in his dual part; Justin and Mantel as Bailiff Bom and Bailiff Bim put in some excellent work; the Sisters Selwyn as Tom Bowling and Bessie Barr may be highly commended, and the Sisters Poole Pelham as Jack Taffrail and Sally Sauce also deserve praise. Miss Cecilia Maynard makes a good Sam Spar; Mr. Brete Harte as His Majesty Kernoodlum contributes largely to the success of the pantomime; Mr. J. Telly Dillsen is irresistibly humorous and creates much laughter; Polly Perkins finds a clever exponent in Miss May Carter; the Ten Dixie Girls contribute skilful dancing; Mr. Edward Benson as Davey Jones and Miss Dora Lindsay as Fairy Pearl distinguish themselves; specialities are contributed by the Ten Dixie Girls, Sisters Selwyn, Sisters Poole Pelham, Fred Davis, Justin and Mantel, Lindsay and Harte, and the Marvellous Bounding Peps. The dresses and stage effects are elaborate, the new electrical installation adding greatly in the effect.

ECCLES. — CROWN THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Thompson Carruthers' sensational novelty, "Master Card," gives great satisfaction; Coverdale and Huxley's Juvenile Troupe in musical scena, entitled Pansy's Birthday, prove themselves well trained; the Godfreys (Didie and Kate) are very amusing in musical sketch The Slavey and the Cook; Playfair and Vera, in their paper speciality, are clever; Clifford Stuart, comedian, gives a good account of himself; Ted Waite renders several side-splitting songs, and calls forth repeated applause; Bennett and Stirling, comedy duo, please; Alman Correze gives a smart exhibition with heavy weights; Frank E. Solbey, child mimic and novelty comedian, meets with warm approval; The Shipwreckers are depicted on the Bioscope.

EDINBURGH.—COOKE'S CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. C. Burns.—The pantomime King Gold and the Lucky Little Lassie continues to attract crowded audiences to Mr. Cooke's popular place of amusement. The spectacle, while interesting to persons of all ages, makes a special appeal to children, as more than one hundred juveniles take part in the production. The dresses are gay and bright, the fun, for which those genial drolls, Talberto and Douglas, are largely responsible, is highly entertaining, and the pantomime goes to the accompaniment of hearty laughter and applause. Mr. Cooke has added another triumph to his many past successes. The equestrian programme is admirable, as usual, the balloon polo matches by international teams being particularly exhilarating. Alphonso, a smart foot equilibrist, does some very neat work; the Brothers Hennessy are graceful and daring performers on the bar; and Whillet and Joseph, club manipulators, give a very clever and tasteful exhibition.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Edinburgh Construction Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—For the closing week of the Aladdin pantomime season extra attractions introduced into this lively performance have included Mr. Mike Cray, the eccentric comedy juggler, with his dog Dooley, whose joint antics have provided considerable amusement. The efforts of the principal players have been cordially appreciated during the run of the piece, the honours among the ladies being pretty equally shared by Miss Minnie Olive, Miss Alice Digby, Miss Daphne Gelstone, Miss Kitty Clare, and Miss Gwen Clifford. To the comedians, Mr. Charles Adeson, Mr. J. Harrington Weeks, and Mr. Bert Danson, praise is due for much excellent entertainment. In the absence of Miss Olive on Monday evening, Miss Josephine Ellis sustained the part of Aladdin with pleasing success.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Mr. Morris Cronin and his troupe in their weird and novel performance provide the leading turn in a popular holiday programme, which is also notable for the very enjoyable sketches of sundry British types of character presented by Terry and Lambert, two of the brightest entertainers America has furnished to our variety stage. The bioscope pictures of a local Marathon race, from Falkirk to Edinburgh, were increased in interest by the appearance of the young French athlete H. Saint Yves, winner of the cup, who made a short speech. Of the single-handed turns, Mr. Harry Leybourn and Mr. Chas. Santon were both highly successful in their respective vocalisations; as was also Mr. E. J. Sheldon in his whistling songs; and the exhibition of Silveter's gigantic mechanical working head was a quaint novelty. In Brix and Annie's pantomime show Brix displayed his talents as a lightning artist, using strange materials; the Gems gave a bright musical mélange, which was enthusiastically received; and the Eight of Hearts combination of singers, dancers, and posturers gave a characteristic display of their abilities.

Moss's CARNIVAL. — A fresh programme at the Waverley Market this week introduces, amongst other clever artists, Mr. Yukio Tani, a well-known exponent of ju-jitsu wrestling, who offers the sum of £100 to the man who defeats him, £20 to the one who stands before him for fifteen minutes, and a solid silver cup to any amateur athlete who lasts that time. Mr. Tani has so far been successful against all comers, although several of the entrants have made a good show, notably Mr. C. Lawrie, of Glasgow, who was only overcome after a splendid effort lasting 10min. 30sec. Mr. Fred Lindsay gives his remarkable performance of whip manipulation, disarming a man with a revolver, and overturning him at the same time; flicking the ash from a cigar in a smoker's mouth, cutting a cigarette in two, and accomplishing many other extraordinary feats. Merrill and Ward are both daring and amusing in their cycling performance; Leoni Clarke's ponies, cats, monkeys, and canaries evince the wonderful results of patient training; the Five Kayton's perform some surprising feats in their somersaults from a spring board; the Victas, in their barrel-jumping act, are extremely clever; the Attilas give an exhibition of marvellous balancing; the Resas are expert jugglers; and Bostock's Baboons are seen in their unique and interesting entertainment.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford. — The second week of the Christmas pantomime Cinderella opened on Monday before a large and appreciative house. The production has been very successful, and Mr. Mouillot's company is to be congratulated on its efforts. The principal artists have settled down to their parts, and they are ably assisted by the well-balanced chorus. Miss Violet Hollom in the title-rôle and Miss Edith Housley as the principal boy have quite established themselves as favourites; as the second principal boy Miss Minnie Love renders some good songs, and is regularly recalled for her song, "Sue, Sue, Sue"; while Miss Ethel Monks as Lord Chamberlain is encored invariably for her song "Mary." Mr. Kennedy Allen as the Baron continues to keep the house in roars of laughter, and he is especially good in the parody song, "Mary of Argyle." Mr. Willie Atom as Buttons ably assists in the laughter-making.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frederick Dandy.—The top of the bill this week is Miss Esther Palliser, the prima donna; her songs are "Don't come in, please," "Lulu and the bee," and Gounod's "Waltz Song," and she is loudly applauded by the large houses for her efforts. The Romps, the juvenile lady entertainers, sing some very tuneful songs and choruses; the Creo Brothers in their comedy acrobatics do some smart work; Smiler Lee is distinctly funny in his latest London successes; and the Xentrica in the Garden Terpsichore are entertaining. Dot Hardy and Queenie May, character comediennes, are quite in keeping with a distinctly all-round turn; the Hippodrome Pictures conclude.

POLKESTONE. — THE PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Alfred Paumier and Mr. Walter Howard this week present their No. 1 company in that excellent drama The Prince and the Beggar Maid. Miss Annie Saker thrilled a large house with her powerful and dramatic impersonation as Monica, the Beggar Maid; Mr. Walter Howard as Prince Olaf seemed quite at home fulfilling the part of a chivalrous soldier and gentleman; excellent support throughout was given by Mr. Graeme Campbell as his brother, Prince Michael, in a somewhat difficult part of the play; Mr. Ivan Cleveland as the third brother, Prince Hildred of Silvania, the evil genius, kept the spirit of animosity in the piece ever alive; Captain Hector, Mr. Reginald Stevens, was all that could be desired in his representation of a faithful soldier in Princess Monica's bodyguard, and was ably assisted by Mr. Reginald Payne as his lieutenant, who falls in love with Captain Hector's sister, Viola, represented by Miss Elsie Walton, who played her part with a naïve simplicity that left nothing to be desired; Miss Ivy Millais as Camiola rendered a touching portrayal; Mr. Kendal Chalmers as Nathan, Prince Michael's faithful dumb servant, was an interesting study.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Gainsborough Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Leighton.—Mr. Ernest Adrian's pantomime company opened on Monday to a good house with Dick Whittington and His Cat. Miss Violet Oram played the title-rôle in a capable manner, and Miss Madge Carew was a pleasing Alice; Mr. Bert Warner gave a clever rendering of the Cat; Mr. Will Daniels as Fitzwarren and Mr. Adrian as Idle Jack were amusing; Messrs. Frew and Frew were comical exponents of Bill Buttercup and Captain Cowslip, and Caraline, the cook, was played by Mr. Mark Mooney; Miss Mary Alexander sang sweetly, and gave an excellent representation of the Fairy Queen. Amongst the specialities, which included Eventu (mad juggler) and the Tina Trio (clever acrobatic dancers), the principal honours were taken by the De Wynne Bros., who gave one of the cleverest and most effective acrobatic turns which we have seen. Dresses pretty and scenery and general appointments excellent.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager

comedy element is in safe hands. Messrs. Richard Telford, Frank Barclay, and Horace Manger give able assistance; and the mounting, as we have previously recorded, is on a specially lavish scale.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—The Strolling Players give a bright and breezy performance here of their musical pot-pourri. Some wonderful feats in the cycling line are shown by the Daunton-Shaw Troupe, a clever combination; Hermann Melot's conjuring again mystifies the audience completely, his dexterity being wonderful; Bertha Stuart's Scotch songs are received with much favour; and another enjoyable turn is that of Les Voces, in their operatic selections. Miss Marquis and her trained ponies make an excellent item on the programme; Geo. Antill's "Scarecrow" song and dance is a weird turn; Frank Hartley, the boy juggler, Miss Carrie de Mar, and the Bioscope complete a diversified bill.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—Another pantomime occupies the boards here, Mr. Jack Haddon's Babes in the Wood opening on Monday last. Miss Millie Engler is a dashing Robin Hood, full of energy and go, and is provided with a good selection of the popular songs of the day; Miss Dorma Morgan is a fetching Maid Marian; and the Babes are cleverly acted by Misses Madge and Dolly McCallan. Mr. Charles May is very amusing as Baron Skeemalot, and is well supported in the fun-making by Mr. Harry Elliston as the Dame, and by Messrs. August and September as the Ruffians. Miss Winnie Usher makes a smart Little John; Miss Maude St. John acts well as Marjery May; and as the Fairy Miss E. Parry is extremely good. The pantomime is well staged, and the fun is brisk throughout.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—A clever and varied musical, dancing, and comedy turn is contributed here by the Ten Dark Knights, and proves to the taste of the holiday audiences; Dolly Elsworthy and company repeat their previous successes here with The Orange Girl, in which Miss Elsworthy as Nell Gwyn gives a very clever performance. The Schiavonis Troupe of acrobats are seen in a specially clever turn, the work of the ladies being particularly smart; Dave Samuels, the quaint Hebrew comedian, who was so successful here a few months ago, is again delighting the audiences with his humour in song, dance, and patter; Nellie Farrell is a smart little serio; Gertrude Moore takes well in her songs and dances; and a most enjoyable turn is that of Slippere, the blind pianist and 'cellist, in his musical items and imitations.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—A strong holiday bill is headed by Gertie Gitana, a deservedly popular artist here, and she again scores a big hit in all her various songs; Jas. Willard's company, in the thrilling playlet The Ace of Hearts, give an excellent performance, and the sketch is received with rapt attention; Columbia Comedy Trio take well in their vocal comedy items, their singing being good and the fun kept going briskly all the time; Otto and Olga, in their mock operatic duets and instrumental selections, contribute a most interesting part of the programme, and are much enjoyed; Parker and Parr give several duets, interspersed with Welsh comedy; Vincent, in his daring acrobatic somersaults from a height, Cavalli, a clever ventriloquist, and some new films on the Bioscope all provide enjoyable turns; and the performance concludes with the musical and vocal selections of the Five Tritons.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—After an absence of some years, Fred Walton is again giving his impersonation of the "Toy Soldier" here, and his silent comedy is very amusing; Mary Mayfren and company appear in a powerful sketch entitled The Yellow Fang; the Albert and Edmunds Troupe give a lively interlude, called Neighbours, with lots of knockabout fun in it; Larry Lewis as a comedian increases in popularity each visit; and another favourite is Violet Stockelle, a clever comedienne. The Coloured Meisters contribute several harmonious songs, and enjoyable turns are also given by Nance Elder, Bennie Barrow, and the Beautiful Lillian.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—The pantomime of Dick Whittington is proving a first-rate holiday attraction here, and the management have reaped the reward of their enterprise. Miss Dinah Morris as Dick plays with lots of dash and energy, and Miss Frances Drew is a charming Alice; Mr. Sam Morris as Idle Jack, Mr. George Reeves as the Cook, and Mr. George Bailey as Fitzwarren look well after the comedy parts, and the fun never flags for an instant. Handsome dresses and a large and attractive bevy of choristers complete the ensemble.

PANOPTICAN.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Phenomenal business has been done here during the holidays, as many as 37,000 people being recorded by the turnstiles on New Year's Day. The variety turns this week include Grace Darling, a vocalist with a taking style; Bros. Starr, two clever instrumentalists and cross-talkers; H. M. Sommers, a neat exponent of clog-dancing art; and Murray Bros., negro comedians. The Bioscope films are kept well up to date in humorous and dramatic subjects.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Miss Violet Osmund presents, for the first time in Glossop, the successful musical play, The Belle of the Ball. Mr. J. W. Morton, in the rôle of Sir Francis Lake, creates a good impression; Mr. F. Lloyd makes an admirable Gussie Maitland, his dancing being well received; Mr. Gomer May is a typical Farmer Jones; and Mr. Alexander Loftus gives a humorous rendering of Timothy Timkins. Miss Gladys Carlton, in the title-rôle, is responsible for a charming performance; Miss Vera Grafton as Queenie Trevors, a Suffragette, meets with approbation; and Miss C. Norreys and Miss C. L'Estrange create endless laughter by their ludicrous appearances as the two ugly stepdaughters of Farmer Jones. The chorus, which is well balanced, is under the direction of Mr. W. Mendows.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—The Mohamed Troupe of Arab acrobats give a characteristic performance, and Corbin's clever dogs win rounds of applause for their smart act; Mr. J. H. Milburn is as agile as ever, and goes great with his facial business; Messrs. Haig and Novel are decidedly funny; and Joe Humphries does excellently with a descriptive song. Zeta Grey and company in The Lancashire Lass have a good sketch, which is enhanced by the lady's capital vocalism; St. George Sylvesta, conjurer, gets on good terms with the audience, and Messrs. Henny and Blanche prove their ability as comedy acrobatic dancers. The Palacescope shows good films.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—The animated pictures and illustrated songs are still popular.

AMONGST the first to give a matinée in aid of the sufferers by the Italian earthquake are Messrs. Poole, who announce a performance on Jan. 7, under the patronage of the Mayor, Mayoress, Mr. Russell Rea, M.P., Mr. Henry Terrell, K.C., and many county families.

GRAVESEND.—GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—Mr. Edward Cranston and Mrs. Bennett appear in an intensely dramatic sketch, The Moreton Pearls. The former proves herself a really capable actress, and the latter gives evidence of considerable histrionic power. Percy Maye scores a great success as a female impersonator; Harry Oxberry does well as a comedian; Jessie Starr is a bright and dashing comedienne; Dowers and Bardell evoke roars of laughter in their comedy act; and Mr. Leslie Pearl and Miss Lily Pearl, in their comedy, A Bit of String, keep the audience in a perfectly happy state from the commencement to the end. Miss Lily Pearl also scores in her extra turn as a comedienne.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Owing to the success of Mr. Charles Macdonna and his company in Mr. Popple, it is running for another week.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Gilbert.—The beautiful building has been this week transformed from a Hippodrome into a smart and comfortable music hall, and the crowds that attended on Monday and Tuesday show it has evidently caught on. Excellent and remarkably steady pictures are being exhibited, the one entitled The Shipowner's Daughter being worthy of special mention. Excellent variety turns intersperse the pictures. E. V. Barr, a local comedian, has created quite a furore with his funny songs and quaint stories, and Harry Sullett is very popular with his songs and dances.

THE GEM.—Proprietors, The Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. C. B. Cochran; Manager, Mr. Sidney Lawrence.—Excellent pictures are being shown here this week, the one entitled Santa Claus being very popular with the juvenile patrons. The illustrated song "Just some one" has caught on.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. John Leopold's company is causing much diversion here this week in New Frivolity. Oliver Buckwheat is played by Mr. Watson Hume with conspicuous success; Mr. Tom Leopold makes an excellent Professor Fumble; Mr. J. Hardie as Jules Vermiglio gets as much out of the part as possible; Samuel Vermiglio is humorously depicted by Mr. Willie Leopold; and Daniel Teething is ably taken by Mr. John Leopold, jun. Miss Amy Hall makes a graceful Lucy Buckwheat, Miss Gertie Winter a charming Vinnie Moore, and Miss Cathleen Cavanagh a successful Mme. Cobweb. New Frivolity is preceded each evening by The Houseboat, which proves highly amusing.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—The Tokio troupe of Japanese performers give a capital exhibition of remarkable equilibristic work; Pete and Minnie Lee again present that entertaining item A Scotchman in London; Pueblo and Cropp submit a clever pot-pourri act; Barney Noble, vocal comedian, makes a most welcome reappearance; whilst Lottie Leighton, comedienne and dancer, Arthur Lynn, tenor vocalist, and the Bioscope all add to the success of the entertainment.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—The principal attraction here this week is undoubtedly the Six Brothers Luck, Ltd., in their well-staged farcical sketches The Demon of the Cellar and The Hermit. Florence and Rose Showell are popular duettists; the Three Comedy Chanters submit humorous and harmonious interludes; Lily Arthur is an attractive comedienne and dancer; and Sim Maree is a wonderful contortionist. The Dromscope shows up-to date pictures.

TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, the Greenock Corporation.—The B.B. Picture company is here on a return visit. The excellent pictures continue to be well abreast of the times in cinematograph work. In addition to the pictures good variety turns are provided by the Boston Twins, Flora Macdonald, and Daisy Sloan.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—A White Man is proving highly popular. Mr. Frank E. Petley plays the fine character of Jim Carston with becoming dignity; Mr. A. R. Richardson, in the difficult part of the Earl of Kerhill, accomplishes excellent work; Mr. Gerald Earle portrays vividly the desperado, Cash Hawkins; Mr. Eric Hudson gives a capital character study of the Ute chief, Tab-y-wana; Mr. Henry Hare does well as Bud Hardy, the sheriff; Mr. R. A. Brandon gives an interesting portrayal of Big Bill; and the other cowboys are cleverly represented by Mr. Cecil Yapp as Shorty, Mr. Martin Henry as Andy, and Mr. Andrew D. Molony as Crouchey; whilst Mr. F. Martin Thornton is equally good as Baco White. Miss Eleanor May wins complete approval as Diana, Countess of Kerhill; Miss Gertrude Price is good as the Dowager Countess; Miss Margaret Fairleigh is responsible for excellent acting in the pathetic part of Nat-u-ritch; and Miss Bessie Jukes is pleasing as Little Hal.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—The Musical Courtiers are a very popular combination of operatic vocalists, and their condensed version of The Bohemian Girl is a delightful speciality; Stewart and Morgan also provide an entertaining musical turn, their vocal scenas being warmly appreciated; James Brady is a droll comedian with an ample fund of witticisms; the Dorians, a quartette of trapeze performers, give a smart display; a capital burlesque is provided by Eva Lumley and Freda Ettrick's company in Jimmy All-of-a-Twist; Gladys and Alber combine good comedy with clever acrobatics; and Ethel Dancy is a balladist with a pleasing voice and good songs.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN'S.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—This week Mr. A. Clifton Alderson has presented It's Never Too Late to Mend. Mr. Escott Robson gives a finished performance of George Fielding; Mr. A. C. Alderson adds to his reputation by a clever portrayal of Tom Robinson; Mr. Leslie Vyner makes an ideal Chaplain; Mr. Frank Dalton a good Levi; Mr. Ulick Burke represents with much force Mr. Meadows; Mr. Henry Williams is a satisfactory William Fielding; and Mr. Sam Roberts's depiction of Peter Crawley merits praise. Miss Max Hinton successfully appeals as a poor waif.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Miss Hook of Holland is the attraction at the Royal this week, and has drawn big houses. Mr. Alfred Wellesley's Mr. Hook is a fine performance, the "house" appreciating every point; Mr. W. Balfour sings and acts well as Captain Paap; Bandmaster Van Voyt has an able and praiseworthy exponent in Mr. Frank Crimp; Mr. Fred Lyne's Simon Slinks is a noteworthy performance—his comedy is good and his acting natural; Miss Gertie Melville makes a fascinating Sally; Miss Cissy Sefton meets with a hearty reception, but she has not enough to do as Mina for a lady of her talents; and Miss Tattie Leonard leaves nothing to be desired as Gretchen.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks. — A Country Girl in London is being played here. Mr. W. V. Garrod gives a good account of the part of Frank Gordon; Mr. Leonard Booker is effective as Godfrey Clinton; Mr. Clifford Marle gives a fine character study of the somewhat secondary part of Job Smithers; Miss Josephine Colona gives a realistic performance as the discarded mistress of a German swindler; and Miss Bertha Kingston is effective as Marjorie Hamilton.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—Mack Ollive, of The Belle of New York fame, gives an interesting whistling turn, assisted by Miss Daisy Baldry; the Spanish Juanitos are marvellous tumblers; the Sovereigns, two one-legged artists, give a wonderful exhibition of balancing and jumping; the Two Lilies give a novel and clever simultaneous dancing act—they are young, pretty, and exquisitely dressed; Harvey's American Boys and Girls give another acceptable turn, ably assisted by a clever juvenile, Daisy Dennis; George Acre, character comedian, is well received; Cissie Esdaile, comedienne, and Amost Howard, a capable coloured dancer, also appear.

VICTORIA HALL.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company completed a successful round of nine performances here last Saturday. On the Friday evening there was a most enthusiastic audience to see Esmeralda. Miss Burgess was splendid in the name-part, and had a rousing reception; Miss Cartwright has a sweet voice, and was eminently successful as Fleur-de-Lys; Miss Wilson was admirable as Mme. Lois; Mr. Wheatley (Phœbus) was in magnificent voice, and did well throughout; Mr. Winckworth's fine voice was heard to advantage in the part or Frollo; as Quasimodo Mr. Victor did well both in singing and acting; Mr. H. Foster (Chevrbuse), Mr. O'Connor (Gringoira), and Mr. Clendon (Clopin) were all successful.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—The Four Royal Scots, in a medley of vocal and instrumental music, are topping the bill here, and proving a big draw; Mr. W. T. Murray does a most interesting and artistic turn, in which his wonderful muscular development is seen to advantage; Radie Farman is a big favourite with her extremely quaint singing and dancing; G. A. Cassels is applauded; and Alf Lester is well received in a couple of songs. The Leotard Brothers do some clever hand balancing and hat throwing; S. Bedford and company are excellent in a clever little sketch, The Second Mrs. Chester; and Rich. Taylor, whistling ventriloquist, and the Hippodrome Bioscope conclude a very excellent programme.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mother Goose continues to attract packed houses, both at matinée and evening performances, and a successful run is absolutely assured. There is not a dull moment from start to finish in the pantomime, which is finely staged and admirably acted; Miss Lola Patey's Gretchen, a Dutch servant, is the talk of the district—she is truly fascinating in song and manner. Miss Beatrice Felsted is a winsome Fairy, with a splendid voice; Miss Margaret Ruby is a clever principal boy; Miss Millie Doris as Jill is a picture of daintiness; Mr. Harry Rich is responsible for continuous laughter by his magnificent impersonation of Mother Goose; Mr. Fred Barnes, who plays Lord Pudsey, is a perfect picture of the part, and his vivacity, splendid voice, smart dresses, and original style all go to make his portrayal a huge success; Mr. Leonard Maitland's dude interpretation is quite unique; Mr. Charles Homer is the Demon Malignum, and he does it well; Mr. Douglas Campbell is a fine Goose; the Brothers Smarte are highly commendable for their animal business; Mr. Chas. Rich as Jack makes a hit; and Mr. J. C. Scattar has a part to which he does himself justice. Miss Edith Cornish and Miss Marie Clifton have small parts, which they play perfectly. Now that the pantomime has been properly condensed it is truly magnificent. Mr. Frank Parker is the manager for Mr. J. F. Elliston, Mr. Claude Agnew stage-manager, and Mr. Frank Seddon musical-director. The scenery and dresses furnish quite a dream of harmonious blending of colours. Messrs. Elliston and Elphinstone and all concerned are to be congratulated upon a production which is certain to bring them well-deserved reward.

GRAND. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls return with an entirely new repertoire, and their success is remarkable. The Spy, a thrilling sketch, is received with great favour; Hunt and Thomas appear in His Birthday, and are tumultuously applauded; Lennie and Hast present the Sea Nymph with great success; Raymond's Bio-tableaux shows how Arabian pottery is made and a real screamer; the Carpos Brothers are good; Fred Walmsley is a clever comedian; Rosie Lloyd is a chic comedienne; and My Lady Dainty is also an artist of decided merit. The management of Mr. Arthur Rand is splendid, and the great houses testify to his excellence in skilful booking.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Kennedy and Moore; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—Extraordinary business is this week attracted to witness a magnificent series of films. Blue Beard was followed with intense excitement. Flight from the Harem and A Servant to an Acrobatic Family were loudly applauded. Amongst others are The Unlucky Bridegroom, The Magic Tinder-box, Bear Hunting in Russia (very fine), and The Lost Picture. Sabino returns and again wins great favour by his clever instrumentalism.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—An enjoyable evening may be spent by lovers of the twice-nightly fare at the Opera House this week. The Four Rubys are the acme of skill and graceful in their marvellous contortionist act; Estrella is a clever barefoot sand dancer, and also gives some pretty national dances; Harry Meegan is a comedian who deserves a good word, his facial expression and patter being very smart; Zasma, in a gymnastic scena, An Evening's Pleasure, is highly entertaining; Miss Rachel Lowe, who tops the bill, is a charming singer of novelty songs; Godfrey quite comes up to the average illusionist; and J. H. Ellis is an amusing and entertaining comedian. A capital little sketch by the Aeronauts entitled An Airship Elopement, winds up the bill.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Matham.—Some excellent films entirely new to a Hartlepool audience are being shown by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. Considerable amusement is caused by Why He Signed the Pledge and Following in Father's Footsteps.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's pantomime company on Monday opened a week's visit with Robinson Crusoe; or, Man Friday and the King of the Cannibal Islands. Mr. J. La Fane stage-managed, and Mr. Michael Dwyer, who composed and arranged the pleasing musical numbers, had the direction of the capable orchestra. The dresses and scenery are bright and pleasing, and fine stage effects are provided in the scene depicting Under the Sea and that representing Cupid's Palace. There is much merry fooling by Mr. Oliver J. Round as Dame Crusoe and Mr. Ernest Sefton as Will Atkins. As principal boy Miss Mina Green achieves a great success, her songs being very well sung; Miss Daisy May as Polly dances prettily, and quickly gained the approval of her audience; Mr. Charles Resti makes an acceptable Friday, and gives a clever conjuring display in the Hut scene; Mr. Edward Pleon is an agile Monkey; Miss Mary Hope sings well in her rôle of Princess; the Fedora Quartet and Viviana and company, in the Toy Shop scene, contribute some clever dancing; and the chorus acquit themselves exceedingly well.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Mr. Hesketh Heath, an excellent baritone, renders his songs with animated pictures; the rifle-shooting of Winona, the American artist, is remarkably expert; T. W. Barret, the vocalist, is very droll as "the nobleman's son"; the Two Dalgarnos introduce an interesting and well-acted comedy act, Caught Napping; a versatile vocalist and pleasing dancer is found in Miss Winnie Stanhope; the patter and comicalities of Grogie are highly amusing; Wilson's Miniature Circus is a great success; some of the dogs which appear Mlle. Rosini has trained to perfection, responding to her every word or gesture with amazing quickness and docility.

PIER PAVILION. — General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter. — Good audiences are still patronising Mr. J. D. Hunter's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, which is holding the boards here. Repetition only serves to ensure a decided gain in finish and smoothness. The musical director and conductor, Mr. Surtees Corne, has been exceedingly happy in his selections of songs and lyrics. The duets, by Mr. Matt Melrose and Miss Lallah Melrose, are delightfully rendered; humorous songs are introduced full of mirth and fun by Messrs. Arthur Lenville, Dennis, and Morris; an excellent vocalist is found in Miss Flo Macdonald as the Fairy; Miss Judith Espinosa as the principal ballet dancer exhibits some graceful and delicate movements. The scenery is, as before, a marked feature. The Port of Hull, The Deck of the Saucy Sally, The Open Sea, with Crusoe steering his raft to the shore, are distinct and well-defined pictures. The old-fashioned harlequinade is dispensed with, but a more rational conclusion inspires the writer, and the artists and the ballet associate in a pleasing final dance.

On New Year's Eve, Mr. Walter Norman, assistant-manager to the Hastings Hippodrome, was requested to appear on the stage to sing. With characteristic geniality he responded, and sang "Auld Lang Syne," the chorus being heartily taken up by the band and audience.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. P. Barnsley.—The attraction here for this week is being provided by Clarence C. Corri's company, with The Dandy Fifth. Mr. Coningsby Brierley as Trooper Brown gained much applause for his exhilarating comicalities and agile dancing; Mr. Percy Baverstock scores a great success with a fine representation of the Colonel, being an actor of more than average ability; Mr. Charles Sims brings the freshness of the "Ould Counthry" over the footlights whenever he is upon the stage as Sergt. Major Milligan; Mr Arthur Radcliff as Dick Darville is favourably received; Mr. Jack Leyland makes the character of Sir Victor particularly enjoyable, his easy acting and singing are thoroughly appreciated; Miss Norra Morra is very smart, and enters into the spirit of the part with great gusto; Miss Maud Nicholls as Mrs. Von Blitzen was very well suited; and a word of praise is due to Miss Una Palmer as Kate Lorimer.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company opened on Monday to a packed house with The Love that Women Desire,, and received quite an ovation. The scenery and accessories are very fine. The company is an exceedingly good all-round one, and includes Mr. J. O. Stewart, Mr. Thorpe Courtney, Mr. Herbert Pearson, Mr. Francis Cavanagh, Mr Sydney Rudge, Mr. Wilton Read, Mr. Richard Oliver, Mr. B. Morris, Mr. John Hignett, Mr. J. W. Wilkinson, Mr. George Singleton, Mr. Arthur King, Mr. Bert Butler, Mr. S. Dale, Mr. Stephen Willis, the Misses Maud Hastings, Annie Grattian Clyndes, Dorothy Hildebrande, Violet Young, and Vere Rose.

HUDDERSFIELD. — HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Fred Granville's pantomime Babes in the Wood is being presented here twice nightly. The principal parts are played by Miss Cissie Paris, who is a dashing Robin Hood; Miss Marie Elsie, a vivacious Maid Marian; Violet Wilson and Baby Boden as the two Babes (of great precocity); the Kimberley Boys, a pair of diverting comedians; Mr. Norman Hall as the wicked uncle; Mr. Alf Brooks, with some taking songs, as Araminta Koffkake; Mr. H. Val Morgan, singing well, as Aconita; and Miss Hilda Brent as the Fairy Queen. A lively chorus, the latest songs, and some pretty scenery make up a bustling entertainment.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The Fair One With the Golden Locks has entered upon her second week with much éclat, and the reception accorded her has been very hearty; a great part of the success of the pantomime is secured through the efforts of Green and Wood, one a wonderful tumbler; Mr. Jas. Chippendale, the Dame, is one of the best ever seen in this city; he has the gift of humour, so often lacking in pantomime comedians. Miss Mimi Fisher and Miss Madge Browne meet with success as first boy and girl; the Monte Carlo Girls are dainty dancers.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—Toddles has drawn big houses to the Royal this week. Its farcical comedy rôles are very efficiently filled. Mr. Murray King is a fine representative of the fatuous lord; Miss Naomi Neilson plays the part of the "marriage machine," Lady Dover, with considerable skill; Miss Evelyn Shelley succeeds admirably as Mrs. Joblyn; Miss Doris Langdon was a very captivating Constance Constance. The play is well mounted, and has an attractiveness all its own.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Two Little Vagabonds, an old favourite here, is doing fine business. Wally and Dick are cleverly portrayed by Miss Josie Beltram and Miss May Hart. The remainder of the cast do good work.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr. A. E. Smith's pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk is here this week. Miss Kathleen Garnon as Jack wins much admiration, Miss Frankie Barton being equally successful as Jill; the Sisters Holman as Margery Daw and Tommy Tucker give charming characterisations; Miss Gertie Leno as Queen of Light sings nicely; the excellent comedy is one of the leading features of the pantomime, in this respect great praise being due to Mr. Billy Taylor (Dame Durden), Mr. Bert Boothroyd (Squire Scarperletty), and Messrs. Foley and Francis (Simple Simon and Johnny Horner). Specialities are given by the following:—The Bendenes, clever contortionists and balancers; the Sisters Holman, smart duettists and dancers; Foley and Francis, comedians of more than ordinary merit; and Miss Ellie Verrier, a highly commendable toe dancer. The strong and capitally trained chorus is an acquisition, Mr. Charles Pearson being the musical director.

ILKLEY.—KING'S HALL.—Proprietors, The Ilkley Urban District Council; Licensee, Mr. Frank Hall.—Mr. Allan Wilkie's company continued their stay at Ilkley until the end of last week. On Thursday Julius Cæsar was played, with Mr. Wilkie as Mark Antony, Mr. Alexander Marsh as Brutus, and Miss Haidee Gunn as Lucius. On Friday She Stoops to Conquer was a great success. Mr. Wilkie gave a very good impersonation of Mr. Hardcastle; Mr. Alexander Marsh as Young Marlow was excellent; and Miss Haidee Gunn was coquettish and sympathetic as Kate Hardcastle. The last night (Saturday) opened with The Sleigh Bells, with Mr. Wilkie in the part of Mathias. In Davy Garrick Mr. Alexander Marsh played the title-rôle.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Cameron Burgess.—Mr. Lingford's Carson's company is this week presenting A Fight for a Throne. Mr. John S. Millwood as Captain Jack Fortescue plays well and scores continuously; Mr. Jerrold Reed as Nicolai I., King of Saxovinia, gives an excellent interpretation; the part of Prince Otto is capitally played by Mr. Charles E. Linney; as Tom Ferret Mr. Charles H. Hughes provides capital comedy; Miss Dora Hammersley as Princess Esmee wins much approval; Miss Margarette Tueski gives a powerful impersonation of the exacting part of Countess Voleska Lorenski; as Lady Pat Miss Emmeline B. Lewis is good; and all the other rôles are well filled. The mounting is excellent.

IPSWICH. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is drawing crowded and enthusiastic audiences this week with Brewster's Millions. Mr. Percy Hutchison in Monty Brewster has a part that suits him to the life, and in his racy impersonation he never loses an opportunity. He is well supported by Miss Cicely Stuckey in the part of Margaret Gray; Miss Lilias Earle (who is well known in Ipswich) is excellent as Mrs. Dan de Mille; Miss Frances Davie is an emphatic Janice Armstrong; Miss Eva Stuart and Miss Sybil Walsh are respectively Barbara and Trixie; and Miss Mary Seton is a good Miss Boynton. The parts of the numerous friends of Monty Brewster are all well filled. They include Mr Cyril Rawden as Charlie Harrison, Mr. Robert Forsyth as Mr. Grant, Mr. A. Andrews as Colonel Drew, Mr. Henry Hampson as Archie Golding, Mr. Aubrey Mather as McLeod, Mr. Charles Esdale as Frank Bragdon, Mr. Otho Hazlewood as Horace Pettingill, Mr. Douglas Greet as Tommy Smith, Mr. W. S. Haye as Jack Gardiner, and Mr George Salver as Captain Perry, and Mr. A. P. Kaye as Mons. Bargie. The staging is excellent, and the celebrated Yacht scene, with its beautiful cloud and electrical effects, caused a sensation, which culminated in enthusiastic plaudits.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company, in Jack and the Beanstalk, is playing to crowded houses and delighted audiences. It is a very bright production. Miss Allina Obrey as Jack sings and acts well, and is assisted by a good chorus. Mr. Dave O'Toole as Dame Trotter and Mr. Bob Baxter as Silly Billy cause endless amusement; and Messrs. O'Malley and Brown are good and active comedians. Mr. Hal Forde is the Squire Musty; and his niece Dora is prettily played by Miss Bessie Knight. The Giant is well represented by Mr. Tom Packer; Miss Marie Rayner is good as the Wicked Fairy; and the other parts are well filled. The quartette of lady dancers are particularly graceful. The scenery is effective and pretty, and everything works well.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Locke. Mr. W. Maclaren and company are presenting Claudian. — In the title-rôle Mr. Maclaren is powerful and impressive; Miss Lily C. Bandmann is simply charming in the part of Almida; Miss Ruth Trafford as Edessa is well received; Mr. Bernard Elliott plays with force and skill the part of Thariogalus; Mr. Douglas Earle is seen to advantage as Agazil; and Mr. C. T. Chaloner does full justice to the part of Belos.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—This week Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company is presenting the late Charles Reade's famous drama It's Never Too Late to Mend. The all-important rôle of Tom Robinson is admirably played by Mr. A. Clifton Alderson; Mr. Escott Robeon appears as George Fielding; Mr. Leslie Vyner is good as the Rev. Francis Eden; Mr. Sam Roberts is an amusing Peter Crawley; Mr. Frank Dalton is an able Isaac Leir; Mr. Charles Wentfield does well as Mr Hawes; Mr. Ulick Burke sustains the unpopular part of Mr. Meadows; and Mr. Henry Williams undertakes William Fielding. Miss Max Hinton figures as Joseph; Miss Susie Emerald appears as Mary; Miss Joan Wellman plays Mrs. Morton; and Miss Winifred Love is a charming Susan Morton.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. R. S. Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Carson.—Miss Edith St. Clare's Aladdin company is here. Miss Edith St. Clare is the principal boy, and proves very successful. She is a local favourite, and her songs go with a swing, especially "She is a Yorkshire girl." Another charming vocalist is Miss Lily Lonsdale, and her Princess is a delightful performance. The comedy is in the excellent hands of such well-known comedians as Mr. Fred Graham, Mr. Ernie Myers, and the Bros. Brooks. Mr. Frank A. Wood is well suited to the part of Emperor, and his singing is very artistic; Mr. George Parry is seen to advantage as the Vizier; and the Sisters Brand are much appreciated. Specialities are provided by the Krakes and the Canton Girls. Mr. Ed. Landor is an excellent conductor and Mr. B. Haldane is the courteous business-manager for Miss St. Clare.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. T. Edward Ward's company in Second to None, a story of the Royal Scots Greys. Mr. C. W. Spencer ably portrays the character of Sir Reginald Greystone, and Mr. Frederick Loyd that of Captain Philip Mannering. Miss Ward gives an excellent display of acting as Nell Greystone. The play is well staged.

KIRKCALDY.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. W. Walker.—Variety is giving place to drama this week. Jeannie Deans, in the capable hands of Mr. John Clyde's company, had a warm reception. Mr. Clyde, who is well known in these parts, appears with much success in the rôles of the Duke of Argyle and the Counsel for the Defence; he acts throughout with histrionic skill, and in a way that is very convincing. The comic element is ably treated by Mr. Geo. Robb, of whom we cannot speak too highly, as the Laird of Dumbiedykes he is thoroughly amusing; Mr. Robert Graham as David Deans portrays the old man wonderfully, and as his daughters, Effie and Jeannie, Misses Ella Sennet and Lena Levenstone suit admirably. The smaller parts are in good hands.

ADAM SMITH HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. W. Walker.—Mr. David Thomson, Scottish comedian, heads the bill, and justifies his position; Li-Chang-Hi is responsible for some clever illusions, and Mr. Sydney Lochlynne, the farmyard mimic, is paying a welcome return visit; Vulcaris is a society entertainer of no mean order, and Jack Easy as the football comedian scores a success; Daisy Taylor is a smart juvenile comedienne, and dancer, and Little Minnie Halford as music hall star impersonator has a great reception; the Real Mackays, singers and dancers, who are always favourites here, make a hit; Mr. Scott Skinner, the renowned violinist, Mr. Geo. A. Park, vocalist, and Miss Violet Davidson, vocalist and mimic, are also successful.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—Mr. Chas. Constant's pantomime Blue Beard is the attraction this week, and is of all round excellence. The songs are popular, the scenery and dresses elaborate, the gags good, and the dancing and singing clever. Mr. Johnny Clegg as Sister Ann, the dame, is exceedingly funny; Miss Daisy Lake is a dashing Selim; and Fatima is daintily portrayed by Miss Marie Duncan. Mr. Jack Parker as Bamboozlum is eccentric; and Mr. Ellis Carlyle is a stately Blue Beard. Specialities are introduced in a pleasing manner by Harlin and Hanlon, the Florodorians, Russell and Gage, Sandow Girls, Walter B. Frear, and Dolly Moore.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—Miss indication of a very successful run. Capable acting, brilliant stagecraft, and gorgeous dresses combine to make a most enjoyable performance. Miss Daisy Dormer has established herself a prime favourite as principal girl, her style being bright and refined, whilst she has a good voice; Miss Nell Emerald's conception of Sinbad is a triumph for that vivacious and versatile lady, and she comes in for a big ovation nightly; of the comedians, Mr. Rowland Hill as the Dame is making a big impression, and deservedly so; and Mr. William Stephens is also responsible for much genuinely funny business.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Aladdin, revised and improved, now goes with a delightful swing. Than Miss Adela Crispin it would be difficult to imagine a more attractive Princess, and her vocal numbers make her an immense favourite; Miss Lillie Soutter, the idol of a previous pantomime here, is quite at home as Aladdin, and her singing and dancing cannot be too highly praised. Another popular performance is that of So-Shi by Miss Lizzie Hay, whose rendering of "My girl's a Yorkshire girl," with the tiniest of the Manchester Mites by way of chorus, creates quite a furore. The comedians are untiring in their efforts to please, Mr. Martin Adeson as Dame, Mr. Sydney Vincent as Grand Vizier, and Mr. Will Bishop as Emperor in particular catching the eye on many occasions.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—George Gray, with his Fighting Parson, is this week's principal attraction, and an ovation is accorded the sketch nightly; a clever turn by the Musical Jees goes well; an old favourite, Witty Watty Walton, scores again with comedy items; Duncan and Godfrey, in a neat sketch, are well received; Hayes and Wynne do well in a similar line; the work of the Crown Trio is interesting; and capital turns are also forthcoming from Dennis Drew and the Eight Lancashire Lads.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—A bright and attractive compressed pantomime, The Forty Thieves, is filling this popular hall, pretty scenery, a capable chorus, and plenty of fun being leading features. That popular comedian Bob Selvidge is at the head of affairs as Ali Baba, and he again achieves a personal success. La Belle Greta and Hersleb Brothers are particularly prominent in the variety company which supports.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Mlle. Adele Prescott is here, engaged in the presentation of abbreviated versions of The Daughter of the Regiment and The Last Rose, and her fine vocal work has aroused the enthusiasm of full houses; the Gladenbecks, in acrobatic speciality, are doing well at the bottom of the bill; Baker and De Sales are amusing on novel lines. The programme includes other acceptable comedians in Frank Leslie and Fred Melford; whilst Carlo Cestria, comedy juggler, Amy Russell, vocalist, and Ruby Bijou, speciality dancer, are also vastly popular.

CITY VARIETIES.—A clever turn by Abel and Welsh secures prodigal applause here; Wyze and Adna get a big reception for a comedy sketch; Fred Land, the popular comedian, is having a big week; and of the rest, Billy French Karoly Cynski, and Silly Billy Elliott are particularly prominent.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccluch.—At the head of a good all-round "show" this week are the Elliott-Savonas, in their delightful musical creation, The Palace of Orpheus, which affords this talented troupe full scope for the display of their well-known abilities as musicians, and wins for them the greatest admiration and applause from all sections of the audience. At the other end is Mr. F. W. Purcell's excellent company, including Miss Margaret Murch, in the intensely interesting Sicilian miniature drama What Women Do for Men, which is accorded a very good reception. Another favourite turn is provided by Charles Fisher's Pocket Opera Company, in excerpts from Il Trovatore, the singing of Miss Zelia Lusano as Leonora Azucena, Mr. Chas. Fisher as Manrico, and Mr. Alec Johnstone as Count di Luna evoking unstinted approbation; the Three Sisters Jerome display great vivaciousness and clever dancing in their novel act, Aunty's Maid; Takio is a remarkably smart Japanese mimic of sounds; the Sisters Urma give a clean and pretty performance on the trapeze; Fred Keeton, an excellent comedian, sings his songs to the accompaniment of hearty laughter; Tom Collins, a capital light comedian, is popular; Beatie Kent, comedienne and clever dancer, is entertaining. The Bioscope shows a good film, entitled After Many Years.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—The principal item in this week's bill is Mr. Wilfred H. Benson's company, in the episode The Last Halt, which is meeting with a full measure of deserved success; Miss Mabel Wynn plays admirably as Rebecca Marstien; and Mr. Wilfred H. Benson as Prince Paul Lerkoff and Mr. Harry Gilbey as Captain Marakoff are others in the cast deserving of special commendation. Sergeant Brennan, the gyroscopic marvel, is remarkably smart, and is making a splendid impression; the Sisters Della, the ladies in black, who are possessed of a good stage presence, are great favourites, their song "Girls" being taken up all over the house. Other artists who appear with success are Fynn and Fayne, patter comedians; the Fordyces, a couple of clever youngsters, in a comedy and dancing act; Fred Wright, eccentric comedian and speciality dancer; and Maud Garland, vocalist. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope retains its great popularity with Birds of St. Kilda and the Morning Leader picture, a most interesting film.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; acting-manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—The usual excellent and diversified show of pictures are displayed here this week, the best being Customs Officer's Revenge, In the Shadow of the Law, The Jilted Woman's Revenge, and Brothers in Arms, which are interspersed with De Vere's Marionettes, a cleverly-worked and well-staged and popular puppet show, and Charles Relph, a good chorus vocalist.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The melodrama of circus and sporting life entitled The Way of the World is the attraction this week, being well presented by Messrs. Herbert Skardon and H. Sherwood Martin's company, in which Miss Sidney Crowe as Lady Adela Hardy scores a pronounced success. Mr. Herbert Skardon plays extremely well as Cecil Hardy; and Miss Violet Lytton is also very good as Kate Montague. Mr. Edward Avinal is most effective as Captain Fred Slade; Mr. Clarence Temple is excellent as Matthew Malyon; and Mr. Victor Gordon as Horatio Bluff, Mr. D'Arcy Kelway as Joe Sparrow (with song), and Miss Violette Vivienne as Pollie Belle are each responsible for humorous and popular embodiments. Mr. Pat Quinn is capital as Sir John Hardy; and Miss Marie Marsh acts well as Little Eric Malyon.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. George Stanyon.—Mr. Walter Jeffs' New Century Pictures still retain their great popularity. This week's programme includes the Cinephone (with pictures that talk, sing, and act), Motoring Over the Alps, Butterflies, Christmas Eve Dream, The Hostage, The Last Bullet, Faust, The Great Moscow Floods, The Little Mother, A Day at the Races, Ski-ing at St. Moritz, Rival Cyclists, Tompkins Buys a Donkey, Indiarubber Shoes, &c. Miss Leah Pinnick retains her popularity with new illustrated songs; and Mr. Walter Roselle, the cicerone, scores his usual success as an entertainer. Mr. Fred Jeffreys is the most courteous of managers.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. W. Heath.—Messrs. Pardoe and Miss Lottie Holland's company opened here on Monday in a highly satisfactory version of Cinderella. Miss Lottie Holland made a dashing Prince Charming, her singing being highly appreciated; Miss Beatie Howard was a winsome Princess Rosala; Miss Ronad Dora works hard as Dandini, and her efforts meet with success; Miss Nellie Rose charmingly portrayed Cinderella, although she was suffering from a bad cold; the Ugly Sisters were ably undertaken by Messrs. N. and J. Dench. Too much praise cannot be bestowed on Mr. George Hyam for his untiring efforts as Scott. Messrs. Alf Grady and Mike Hastings (Blobbs and Blabbs) and S. Dorma (Baron No Cash) also assist in the fun-making. Mr. Tom Griffith sings a couple of songs in good style; the Edingale Trio contribute some pretty dances; and the Marvellous Pardoes, gymnasts, receive great applause. The scenery and dresses are excellent.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Leigh Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Woolstencroft.—Ben Harris and his nippers head the bill here this week, and are very successful in a dancing, singing, and boxing act, entitled A Promising Pupil; Ellis and Son, in their musical act, are very good; the Sisters Judge, with their performing birds, are deservedly applauded; Jiff Dixo, swell comedian, is most acceptable; Messrs. Evelyn and Norrie provide an excellent sketch, entitled Set a Thief, which is well received; the Jackley Trio are clever and amusing, especially George in his whistling act. Other turns are Blarney and Kennard, comedians, and Miss Flo Warner, comedienne, and the Bioscope pictures.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—In the production of The Prince and the Beggar Maid, from the Lyceum Theatre, London, as presented here by Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's principal company, playgoers have found a most interesting and enjoyable holiday-week's entertainment. The piece is admirably staged, and the cast strong all round. The three feminine rôles are most happily filled by Miss Ethel Bracewell, who makes a winsome Princess Monica, by Miss Jessica Black, whose Viola is a bright and sunny little personage, and by Miss Gertrude Branscombe, singularly successful as Camiola; the three Sylvanian Princes, Hildred, Michael, and Olaf, are cleverly differentiated by Mr. Alfred Brandon, Mr. Melville Bickford, and Mr. Ernest Cox, each of these powerful characterisations being deserving of high praise. Other important parts—the Bishop of Illyria, Captain Hector, and Lieut. Karl Stromberg—are effectively acted by Messrs. Kenneth Black, Robert Noble, and J. H. Vyvyan; the dumb attendant, Nathan, is made needfully grim by Mr. H. Burton; and the many minor rôles receive careful and spirited interpretation. Crowded houses have testified to the excellence of this attractive drama.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Seddon and Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Pope.—Mr. Reginald Dance is here for three nights with a return visit of Raffles, in which he is scoring heavily in the rôle of the amateur cracksman; Mr. Edwin Irwin is again au fait in the rôle of Bedford, and helps to make the exciting scenes go with a snap, and the support is excellent. A Woman Worth Winning finishes off the week.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Miller.—Minerva, the handcuff queen, creates a furore with her act of shedding manacles while in a butt of water; the Gallimore Trio present a lively comedy turn; the Royal Temples sing effectively; and Fred Herbert, Colin Main, Zeta Russell, and Mamie Morris all score, Raymond's Bio-Tableaux winding up a capital show.

LIVERPOOL.—ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—A very smart little pantomime, entitled Cinderella, opened here on Monday evening, and afforded the utmost enjoyment to a crowded audience. Messrs. Jayon and Nightingale sent an all-round capable company, which included several comedians of especial merit. Miss Molly Doon held the title part, and acted and sang in a manner which earned for her the entire approval of her hearers; Miss Vera Mayne looked exceedingly well as the Prince, and rendered several numbers with taste; Dandini found a worthy and vivacious exponent in Miss Beattie Foster; Miss Flo Burnett had a good appearance as the Princess, and earned applause for her delightful singing; Leo Fields caused endless laughter with his antics as Buttons, in fact, he was very prominent in keeping the audience merry; the two ugly sisters were most admirably impersonated by Wallace Whitney and Harry Plowden; the Danbys, in the rôles of the court bailiffs, helped greatly with the fun; and the parts of the Marquis of Taxes and Dorothy, the pet of the village, were well presented by Miss Beatrice Sinclair and Miss Lily Hales. The whole production was a good evening's show.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's clever and pretty pantomime, Babes in the Wood, has put in a third and last week. The patrons of the popular Star appreciated the change from the usual dramatic fare, which is to be resumed on Monday.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—An attraction here this week was the intelligent monkey Consul, whose tricks afforded delight; the giant actor, George Auger, and his little company went through a pleasing playlet, Jack the Giant Killer; the very diverting sketch That Brute Simmons, given by F. W. Purcell's company, was richly enjoyed; the Ten Zerbinis provided a pretty and clever novelty, The Enchanted Glen, into which sweet music and living tableaux were appropriately introduced; Nellie Falco and S. K. Eida gave an exhibition of ju-jitsu, and danced excellently; an amusing comedy acrobatic act came from Cornalla and Eddie; the Three Welsh Girls pleased generally with their harmonised illustrated songs; and there likewise appeared Charles Vincent, comedian, and Victor Travers, eccentric comedian.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—Here during the week A Message from Mars occupied the stage, among the principal artists being Messrs. W. Widdicombe and W. H. Brougham and Miss Rose Helene.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—The principal item here during the week was a condensed form of The Grip of Iron, presented by Messrs. George Blount and E. H. Knight's company, with Mr. Fred Powell as Simmonet; Vasey and Ramsey were a couple of very amusing comedians and good speciality dancers; Baddow went through a neat ventriloquial turn; Probyn and Bates gave a funny skit, The Dude and the Soubrette; Massoni showed much skill as a juggler; Stiddar and Dunbar, comedy artists, did well; and Charles Rose, comedian and expert dancer, and Gena Marion, comedienne, also provided acceptable contributions.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Top of the bill here this week were the droll comedians Friend and Downing, "Rosenthal and Harrigan," who caused roars of laughter; in their Music Mad act Leslie Brothers showed ability as instrumentalists, and proved diverting; a novel sporting scena, From the Times of the Crusades, was provided by the Three Croisits; Mooney and Holbein had a lively comedy sketch, which was received with every pleasure; Gus Garrick, assisted by the Slipinski troupe of Russian dancers, gave his appreciated music-hall tit-bits; as comedy acrobats Honors and Le Prince amused greatly; the Stowe Brothers had a smart turn as novelty equilibrists; A Whirl of Dance was the title of a smart quick-change creation by the Ongars; Raven Wood, assisted by Miss Vivian Bell, showed great skill as a conjurer; and Robbie Roy, comedian, was also in the list.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Lady Satan, from the pen of W. P. Sheen, has during the week been given here by the stock company Mr. Sydney Grant held the rôle of Captain Clive; Mr. David G. Noble acquitted himself as Lieut. Rutherford; Mr. Tom H. Solly proved a humorous Zachariah Touchit; Miss Florence Palmer was Dora Forrester; and Miss Lilian Radbourne played effectively as Isola. Some pleasing bioscope pictures were shown by Mr. Anthony Brown.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to a series of fine cinematograph pictures exhibited here this week the following artists appeared:—Dorien and Doritz, with their amusing auto-mechanical novelty act, The Erratic Hotel; Frank Wever, coloured comedian and sand-dancer; and Harry Barclay, vocal comedian.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—That fine spectacle The Volcano put in a third week here; Captain J. Woodward's sea lions and seals were watched with interest; W. J. Ashcroft, the original "solid man," appeared with his latest songs; Campbell and Barber showed themselves to be a couple of clever acrobatic comedy cyclists; Luis Alvarez, a Spanish tenor, with a fine voice, sang several pieces in a manner which earned for him loud applause; the Liliputian Mayvilles pleased immensely with a novel act; Percy Farrimond, the singing collier, was appreciated; and also in the list were the Rawsons (Miss Margaret and Master John), entertainers; and Jack Lane, "the Yorkshire rustic."

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—After a remarkably successful run of three weeks at the Belfast Hippodrome Mr. John Tiller's brilliant pantomime, Jack and Jill, commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, giving three shows daily. The general opinion of the crowded audiences that came forward to witness this latest production was that nothing like it had been seen in Liverpool for many years. From the start to the finish there was not a single dull moment, and the audiences fairly shrieked with laughter. The costumes were pretty, the dialogue packed with plenty of fresh witticisms, while the principal artists were of an unusually capable body of vocalists, &c. Mr. Bruce Green made as humorous a Dame as could be desired; Harry Cotton, in the rôle of the Baron, and Horace Jones, Ginger, aided immensely with the fun; the Two Le Creus stood out specially with their own particular tricks of arousing merriment, one being the commanding-general, and the other representing the whole of the army; Miss Nellie Rodney was a sweet Princess, and gained much applause for her able rendering of several of the most popular pantomime songs; Miss Harriett Fawn personated the Prince, a part in which she excelled, her songs being received with warm approval; Jack and Jill were most intelligently interpreted by Misses Cissy Iris and Nelly Grimshaw; Jean Gaynor was a humorous Prime Minister; S. Oscar Karno acted well as the Evil Genius; and Miss Jessie Vernon looked pretty and graceful as the Fairy Godmother. Some of the specialities introduced were greatly appreciated, particularly the gorgeous Scotch ballet, consisting of fifty handsome girls, dressed in military tartan costumes and armed with bucklers and swords, whose evolutions in the brilliant episode The Gathering of the Clans called forth thunderous applause. This was the greatest feature of the pantomime. Mr. William Corri specially conducted, and the production ran smoothly and smartly.

GRAND TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—The fine series of animated pictures shown at this newly-opened place continue to draw the public During the week the following artists also appeared:—Daly and O'Brien, a smart American "tanglefoot" dancing comedy duo, who made a first appearance in this country; the Two Kays, with their operatic vocal scena; Les Tripellos, musical instrumentalists; Maro duo of bar comedians; the Itrams, equilibrists; Herbert and Lynden, dancing comedians; and the Four Scoreys, with a musical mélange, introducing a capital lady acrobatic dancer.

NEW CENTURY PICTURE HALL.—Proprietors, The New Century Animated Picture Company, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter H. Hook.—At this hall in Mount Pleasant a new series of pictures are given weekly, the latest to be presented being Nick Carter, King of Detectives; The Energetic Woman; Sunshine after Storm; The Magic Wand; Wonderful Horsemanship by Officers of the Italian Cavalry; The Elixir of Youth; and The Bargain Sale. Public patronage is good.

REYNOLDS'S EXHIBITION.—The fifty-first annual pantomime by means of marionettes is now being given at this old-established and popular resort in Lime-street. East year the enterprising proprietor provides his youthful patrons with a capital miniature show, and this year's, under the title of Red Riding Hood, promises to surpass all others. The work of manipulating the little actors is again in the able hands of Mr. Jennion, whose fame is widespread, and who can cause his dolls to exhibit movements that, to the youthful eye, are exceedingly lifelike. The scenery and dresses are artistic and striking, and the pretty music provided by Mme. de Gray meets with warm approval. One of the special features introduced is the Salome dance, which is cleverly executed by a puppet. Business with Mr. Reynolds is very satisfactory.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—The Woman Pays is staged here this week by Mr. Frank M. Thorne, the author, who appears with success as Micky Maloney. In the part of Sid Armstrong, Mr. Phil Harper does exceedingly well, Miss Maud Russell sharing his success as Madge Armstrong; Mr. Beresford Innes as Cyrus Treadgold and Mr. J. Davidson as Roger Marchant both work well; the Misses Kate Blair, Anena Walton, and Florence Thorne are much to be commended for intelligent interpretations of the parts of Nell Morland, Polly Stokes, and Tabitha respectively.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Louis Calvert's fine comedy drama Sunday is proving a great attraction here this week. Miss Janet Lind as Sunday plays the rôle with great power and pathos, her efforts being applauded time after time; Mr. Wm. Giffords as Colonel Brinthorpe was most successful; Mr. B. Williams as Arthur Brinthorpe made the most of an ungenerous part; whilst Mr. Richard Treve as Tom Oxley played grandly; the "Boys" receive due treatment in the hands of such capable artists as Mr. Richard F. Symons, Mr. A. Cotton Holmes, Mr. James Hussey, and Mr. George Marriott, jun. Miss Lila Barclay as Mrs. Naresby and Miss Jessie Stone as the Nun fulfil their respective parts with great ability.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—This week we have Miss Mary Neil and her company in the drama From Shop Girl to Countess. In the leading rôle Miss Neil gives a careful study, and makes full use of her opportunities. Other parts are ably treated, and the scenery and dresses are in thorough keeping with the play.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Frank Elliston and company are again included in the bill with a comedy episode, My Lady Betty, a story of 1770, which is exceedingly well done. De Lilo and Metz contribute a smart juggling act; Morander and Darius present a fine athletic turn; and Jessie Ward does well as a juvenile soprano. Wilton Heriot and company are also in the bill, and the Biograph contributes, amongst other subjects, On the Road of Life and A Spanish Bull Fight.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Allen Wilkie's Shakespearean company is paying a welcome return visit here. The Sleigh Bells and David Garrick were both successfully presented on Monday. As Matthias Mr. Allen Wilkie created great enthusiasm by his brilliant performance; Mr. John Paley as Hans and Mr. F. J. Fay as Walthar are thoroughly appreciated; Mr. Ernest Digges as Christian gives a spirited impersonation; Miss Hunter Watts' performance of Annette is decidedly clever; and Miss Agnes Gagan as Catherine does well. In David Garrick Mr. Alexander Marsh handles the title-rôle with ease and refinement; the Alderman Ingot of Mr. Houston Meharry was a clever study; Miss Haidee Gunn is received with especial favour as Ada Ingot; and Miss Mildrd Surrey does full justice to the part of Tabitha Crabshaw. The week's bill also comprises Hamlet, The Merchant of Venice, Julius Cæsar, She Stoops to Conquer, and Two Orphans of Paris.

MAESTEG.—TOWN HALL THEATRE.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. F. Knowles.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare Devil Dorothy occupy the boards here this week. Miss Nellie Valentine takes the title-rôle in a manner which charms the audience, while Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith scores a great success. The part of Captain Geo. Fielding is enacted in a gentlemanly and refined manner by Mr. Walter Ashby; Mr. Will Brereton causes much amusement as Silas Crump.

MAIDSTONE.—PALACE.—Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—Mr. Geo. D'Albert, the popular comedian, has some well-sung songs, and is accorded a flattering reception; Pat Mattock scores a success in the sketch The Cert; the Elite Harmony Boys sing and dance admirably; Chas. Lilburn, comedian, and Ronald George, instrumentalist, do well, and others appearing are Harry Anderson (vocalist), Miss Winnie Derson (comedienne), and the Bioscope.

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manger, Mr. J. Mason.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's excellent company in The Christian are attracting good houses here this week. Mr. Roy Redgrave as John Storm acts with great force, and Miss Daisy Scudamore imparts the necessary passion and levity to the rôle of Glory Quayle. Mr. Thomas Barry makes a very good impression as Father Lamplugh, Miss Cora Deane gives a charming impersonation of Polly Love, and others conspicuous are Mr. Herbert Hewitson, Miss Molly Hayden, and Miss Kitty Symons.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Variety rules here, a brisk programme being headed by Billy Williams, the popular Australian comedian. Sandy McNab and Co. in The Egyptian Mummy are also prominent and amusing; Captain Roberts and his company give a smart and comic athletic act; and Lily Hayes, comedienne and dancer, is neat and dainty. Other enjoyable items are Graham's Juveniles; Les Zelovas, equilibrists and acrobats; Fame and Fortune, patter comedians; Frank E. Ford, coloured dancer; and Braund and Davies, comedy merchants.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Hibbert and Bulmer's human drama The Girl Who Went Astray is proving an attraction here in the hands of Mr. Bulmer's company. It is a capital play, well staged, and very capably presented. Miss Gwynne Warren as Madge Harvey, the title-part, is quite realistic and convincing, and as Violet, the girl who stayed at home, Miss Ada M. Ryder gives a clever and natural delineation. Mr. John B. Shinton as the heroic Captain Frank Julian plays admirably; Mr. Fred Lloyd makes an effective villain as Rupert Murdoch; and very amusing business is provided by Miss Mary Dalby as Molly Smart, Mr. Evan Roland as Adolphus Boomer, the detective, and Mr. Tod Squires as James Yellowsocks.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The principal attraction here this week is Van Biene, the well-known actor-musician, in a playlet, assisted by Mary Mannering; the Andos Happy Little Japs are also large on the bill, and are successful in their sensational acrobatics and equilibrism; Percy Honri, concertinist, gives a neat, pleasing, and popular turn; Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer, provides some very fine little examples of mimicry; and Vanando is a clever and amusing ventriloquist. Other good turns are Fred Wilkinson, a sensational illusionist; the Three Cape Girls, comediennes and long-boot dancers; Phil Parsons, comedian; and Alice Maydue, character comedienne.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The Sands of Dee remains one of the attractions here; Lydia Yeamans, the well-known actress-vocalist and baby impersonator, is to the front, and is greatly appreciated; Howell and Scott score as Hebrew patterers and dancers; Karl Reinsch and Miss Lucie are seen to advantage in a neat equestrian act of great merit; Harry Grey, eccentric comedian, makes a big hit; the Brothers Bright are smart athletes; and other entertaining items are given by Belle Davis and her Pick-chicks, Rosa Leader, the merry musical mimic, and Olive Armidale, dainty comedienne.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Fred Karno's latest creation, The Yap Yaps, is the attraction here this week, and is excellently presented. Gus Le Clerq is capital as the Hon. Charlie Chinn, and H. V. Surrey is particularly effective as a dude of the G. P. Huntley order. Incidentally, Johnny Summers and Young Josephs, champions of the art of self-defence, have a good set-to. Another big item is the Gotham Quartette, comedians and vocalists, who are loudly applauded; Minnie Leslie and Edgar Stevens are very pleasing in their delightful vocal comedy sketch Love Levels All; Harry Carsdale scores as a farmyard mimic; Marie Glenn is a good character vocalist; and Gicardo is a very promising juggler.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's excellent pantomime Little Bo-Peep is a big attraction here this week, packed houses being the rule. The company is a strong one, the scenery is good, the dresses pretty, and the dancing of a high order.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Herbert Lloyd, the "King of Diamonds," is highly diverting, as usual; Helen Charles in her drawing-room entertainment is excellent, particularly in her child imitations; May Clarke, comedienne, is pleasing and sings well; the Custances score in a brisk sketch, A Game for Two; Rose Gower has a good voice; Albert St. Clair, double-voiced vocalist, makes a hit; and other good turns are offered by Rose and Wold on the tight-rope; Violet Fernie, serio and dancer; and the Vanderbilts, comedy duo. Ruffell's Bioscope pictures are capital.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Leo Dryden, the popular actor-vocalist, scores a big success here this week with his excellent character-studies; Marie Jones, in a quick-change scena, The Way to Win a Bet, shows much talent; some exceptionally smart gymnastic and acrobatic feats are gone through by the Rizarelis and Recar Trio respectively; The Kilties' Camp, a Scottish military sketch, introducing national singing, piping, and dancing, gains great applause; Williams and Warden have some neat patter; M. H. Thiessen introduces successfully two very intelligent dogs; Corman's Juveniles are a pleasing troupe, the statue act being particularly effective; Dalston and Euston are good dancers and patterers; and Will Sullivan gives an amusing song. The Wrong Lottery Ticket is shown on the Bioscope.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—An excellent all-round programme is offered here this week, including Leslie's Comedy Cadets; Charles Parker's Six Aelonians in vocal and dancing act; Carl and Mary Ohm's Animal Circus; and Diana Hope, supported by Monte Bayley in the society episode Her Good Name. Lalie Brooke, the old-fashioned girl, is pleasing in the scena The Old Sundial; Cara Magda, a clever lady gymnast, gives a daring act; and Sullivan and Edwards are astonishing dancers. Other smart turns are those of the Rose Trio, acrobatic waiters; Tod Lowen, comedian; Charters and Clare, in mock drama scena; and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde in novel speciality. The Fisherman's Daughter is a good Bioscope subject.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Capt. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company presented The Prodigal Parson here on Monday to a good house. Mr. Logan Darra was very successful as the Rev. Tom Godley; Mr. Alfred Northway was capital; the Ben Juggins of Mr. Chas. Ashwell was excellent; the Phil Drive could not have been in better hands, Mr. Owen Remonde being very humorous; Mr. R. A. Bridge did well as the detective; Miss Violet Hammersley played Fern Godley sweetly and sympathetically; Miss Alice Buckland was excellent as Gretchen Van Cramio; and Miss Madge Gillard was very pleasing as Myrtle, the blind child.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Peter's Mother, presented by Miss Emma and Mr. P. Hutchison's company, is here this week. Miss Violet Ley acts in a captivating manner as Lady Mary; Mr. Vivian Gilbert as Peter delivers his lines admirably; Mr. Drew Mackintosh figures to advantage as John Crewys, Q.C.; Miss Mary Griffiths displays skill in the character of Lady Belstone; and a like compliment is due to Miss Josephine Rae, who, as the funny spinster, Miss Georgina Crewys, is also good. Mr. Walter Russell as the Canon seems quite at home in the part, and Mr. Edward Jephson as Dr. Blundell invests the part with due dignity; Mr. Townsend Whitling ably depicts the unsympathetic Sir Timothy Crewys; and Miss Hilda Sims is excellent as Sarah.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Mrs. John Lawson and company, who top the bill in the playlet The Devil's Sunday, in which Mrs. Lawson figures as Fay Faber, thoroughly deserve the loud plaudits greeting their efforts; Casey's Court, with Will Murray as Mrs. Casey, is another popular item; the Brothers Dean score as dancers; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud are paying a return visit with increased popularity; the Woellhafs are clever comedians. Other good turns are Fred Austin, comedian and acrobatic dancer; Ida Evilo, in a trapeze act; and animated statues by Mons. and Mlle. Fransoli.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Company, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. J. Burnett.—Mr. Howell Webb is here this week with a large company, and is presenting The Two Orphans and East Lynne. The former had a good reception from a crowded house and proved full of interest from start to finish. East Lynne was reserved for the latter part of the week.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. J. P. Moore's Pantomime Dick Whittington is the attraction here this week. Miss Bessie Willow is delightful in the title-rôle; Miss Madge Locke, as the principal girl, wins general favour; Miss Lilas Gray is a clever second boy as Viscount Piccadilly; and a pleasing second girl, Princess Charming, is Miss Ena May. Ald. Fitzwarren is played with much energy by Mr. Percy Victor; a capital Dame is found in Mr. Fred May; Messrs. Ernie Victor, Willie Oswald, F. Street, and Doyle and Massey help the fun along admirably; while the Cat is cleverly played by Mons. Pauletti. The specialities are a strong feature, and include Victor's Musical Dogs, Street and Round (duettists), Doyle and Massey (boxing bout), Oswald and Locke (comedy couple), Victor Bros. (athletes), Serpentino (contortionist), Pauletti (in a clever bicycle act), and the Sisters Derville (graceful dancers).

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Ed. Jowsey; Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime, Humpty Dumpty, continues to draw good houses here, and the performance is affording everyone considerable pleasure. As the principal boy Miss Florence Wix has won the hearts of all by her tasteful singing and acting, while Miss Dolly Ross is successful as Prince Spritely; Miss Audrey Esmonde is a captivating Princess Aurora, and Miss Nell Carmichael as Cherry is also delightful; the laughter-making is undertaken by Mr. George Danvers, Mr. George Campbell, Mr. Willie Black, and Mr. Rex Kempton. The pantomime is magnificently staged, the dresses are lovely, and some very clever dancing is introduced.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company present for the first time in Middlesbrough the romantic play The Flag Lieutenant here this week. The staging of the play is magnificent, and from beginning to end there is not a dull moment; Mr. Lionel Atwill gives a remarkably fine portrayal of the part of Richard Lascelles, and Mr. Montagu Love makes an admirable Major Tesiger; Admiral Wynne could not have been in better hands than those of Mr. Geo. Mallet, while an excellent impersonation of Capt. John Penrose is given by Mr. Claude Little. A good deal of the success of the play is due to Miss Florence Jackson, who gives a charming representation of Mrs. Cameron; Miss Viva Birkett's acting as Lady Hermione Wynne is well worthy of special note.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges.—The Boisset troupe cause much laughter here this week in The Bricklayers, and Adam Tomlinson is responsible for much amusement with his songs and patter; Marie Santoi and company are good in a musical comedy, and some clever dancing is given by the Glenroy troupe; Harry Webber, comedian; Geo. Hall and Minnie Whenton also provide excellent turns.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. C. E. Nicholls.—The Ten Loonies, the famous mad musicians, present their sketch, Dotty, here this week, and score a great success: F. A. Martell, equilibrist, gives a wonderful exhibition, and Shirley and Ransome in 'Arf a Quid are well received; Miss Ada Fawn is a delightful burlesque actress; and other items are given by Alex Kennedy, actor-vocalist;

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr Horace Lee.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company with Are You a Mason? is attracting large and delighted audiences here this week. As George Fisher Mr. H. Langdon Bruce is very smart; Mr. E. H. Paterson makes a clever Amos Bloodgood; Mr. Stanley Groome makes a hit as Frank Perry; Mr. G. P. Polson is well suited as John Hylton; and Mr. Erskholme E. Clive makes the most of Hamilton Travers. Miss Adelaide Grace as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood is worthy of the highest praise; Miss Mary Kilpack makes a capital Lottie; Miss Rita Narcelli is smart as Ena Perry; and the remaining parts are well sustained.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The Gregson Comedy Duo in The Dummy meet with great success here. Miss Rose Dawn, Scotch comedienne and dancer, has many admirers; Messrs. Hearn and Palmer, comedians, are clever; the Sisters Russell, comedy artists, are popular; the Morellis provide an enjoyable vocal and musical act; Messrs. Alvenox and Cleo in their ladder act are loudly applauded; and the Mouldoscope still retains its popularity.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Mr. Coleman Davies' company, in the drama, entitled Beneath the Stars, is here this week. Mr. Harry Reynolds does well as Lord Sylvester; as also does Mr. B. Halley as Mathew Marsden; the villainies of the play are entrusted to Messers. Terry Davies and Arthur Prescott as Major Blonson and Silas Clipper respectively; a manly and telling portrayal is the Stephen Harcourt of Mr. Harry Harrald, and Mr. Coleman Davies as Jemmy Hopblossom carries all before him with his life-like delineation. Becky Wiggins is a lively and chic impersonation by Miss Ennice Udall; Miss Maurice Winter does exceedingly well as Paulina Petrovski; whilst a more charming or sweet depiction of Angel Marsden could not be than that of Miss Edna Earl. Jerry the Tramp was billed for Thursday and Friday.

THE PAVILION. — Proprietress, Mrs. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Phil Royston.—A strong feature of the programme this week is the singing and dancing of Edie and Doris, two very attractive juveniles; Harry McKenry is bright and breezy; Miss Amy Taylor sings with taste and feeling; Warren Fane seems to be boneless, and can twist his body into all shapes; Miss Edie Doranti does well in her songs; and the New Bioscope pictures are wonderfully good.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—This week we have the musical comedy, entitled Gay Bohemia, the libretto by Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and the music by Mr. John Crook, the latter a native of this city. Miss Rose Herzec as Molly Ogilvie was most pleasing, and her singing much appreciated; and Miss Ellice Rayne was heartily greeted as Maime Ship. Mr. Lester Carey, Mr. Ernest Stanley, and Mr. Tim Ryley were very good in their respective parts. Mr. Arthur Roby ably conducted.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—There are some good turns here this week, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas in scenes from the writings of Dickens, which they present with much discernment, and receive hearty applause. J. W. Wilson and Nellie Waring are very vivacious, and create great laughter in their comedy act, An Ugly Duckling; Fred Maitland is also humorous as the latest Parliamentary candidate, in Talked Out; or, Should Women Have Votes? Paul Vaudry is a clever juggler; Mysticus gives an interesting performance; Musical Silvo, on the musical glasses, &c., is most entertaining and deservedly appreciated; Camilla Feo, in song and dance, with the Hippo. Bio. completes a pleasing programme.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The New Era pictures have a change each week and continue successful.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.—The great winter carnival, under the management of Mr. Charles Thurston, is still continuing its success, and the side shows of Mr. J. Holmes and others are well patronised.

NOTTINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The early promise of Cinderella is being abundantly maintained. Songs are encored, and laughter is the outcome of each appearance of the comedians. All the artists enter fully into the spirit of their respective parts, and each performance gains in excellence.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Aladdin is running smoothly and well. Crowded houses evince hearty appreciation of the efforts of each member of the cast, whose popularity increases nightly, and deservedly so.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Fred Karno's comedians in The Football Match are given ample scope for manufacturing merry moments, and the results attained are ample proof of their ability in that direction. Syd May's wrestling match with a dummy figure is a screaming absurdity, and he is no less clever in his mimicry; a skilful acrobatic troupe is seen in the Stein-Erettos, who perform their feats while walking on their hands; Carney and Armstrong gain a warm welcome for their whistling and singing; Maizie Hibbs dances aceptably; and Sybil St. Elmo proves a pleasing vocalist; Arthur Albert is well rewarded for his singing, and the comicalities of Tom Moore draw applause. Films are shown on the Bioscope.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Manging-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Lockwood; Treasurer, Mr. A. V. Carnell. — Tremendous houses have greeted the apearance of Mme. Albani this week, and the gifted artist, who was in splendid voice, has been accorded a reception that was a veritable triumph. Herr Zakovsky has also gained the greatest appreciation for his skilful solos on the violin; the hoop-rolling of Frank L. Gregory and his assistants made an attractive as well as dexterous performance; and the Krags Trio were responsible for some daring and clever gymnastic feats; amongst xylophonists the Brilliants assuredly take a high place; and the mimicry of the Radford Duo is an expert turn; uproarious laughter greeted the antics of the Three Lyons; and the programme also contained A. E. Clifford, vocalist, Ada Parker, dancer, Jack Hayworth, comedian, and films on the Barrascope.

OLDHAM.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Mayall.—Aladdin is now going into its third week, and all the artists have settled into their respective parts. Miss Ray Wallace, in the title-rôle, acts in her clever manner, and receives excellent support from Miss Mildred Bryan as Princess So-Shi, who uses her fine voice with good effect; Miss Flo Collier as Sau-Cee is highly successful, especially in a speciality act with Mr. Joe Robins. The latter still appears as Widow Twankey, and his appearance causes hearty laughter. As a mirth-provoker Mr. Bert Harrow, in the rôle of Abanazar, has endless opportunities, which he takes full advantage of. Miss Isa Gibson as Nicee is a dainty artist, and she sings and dances in a capital manner, along with Miss Phyllis Seymour as Prince Tokay, who is also very smart. Miss Marion Walker as Wan Lung does smart work, and also appears with success in a Suffragette act with Mr. Harrow, causing much merriment. Miss Jennie Hallworth makes a dashing Pekoe, singing her songs very cleverly. Miss Nellie Duval again does well as the Genie of the Ring. Elgar and Cedar also do well, their old-time act being well received. Mr. Leonard Russell, the Emperor, sings his numbers in a masterly manner, and Mr. E. W. Avery makes a capital Ching Chang. Maxford and O'Neill cause much amusement as Coppa and Stoppa. Mlle. Pauline Rivers' juveniles continue to add much to the success of the show, the singing and dancing being heartily enjoyed, and they receive much applause. Mr. Herbert King stage-manages the production, and Mr. Walter Scott is the musical director.—Miss Ray Wallace, who appears as Aladdin in the Grand pantomime, was unfortunately taken ill after the first show on Christmas Eve, and Miss Rosie Ray played the part at short notice, and during the week, with excellent results. Miss Wallace, now happily recovered, resumed work on Saturday last.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's juvenile pantomime company continue to draw good houses. Wee Georgie Wood and Little Peggy McDonnell as the Babes Leslie and Marjorie are exceedingly clever with their singing and dancing; Dolly Dodds is a great favourite as Marion ,and Miss Daisy Wood as Robin Hood is a smart boy. Misses Trixie Wyatt, Annie Brumby, Marie Lumberg, and Annie Adamson are highly successful in their respective parts. Miss Jennie Hughes sings in a delightful manner as Fairy Dewdrop. The comedians work well together, and provide much amusement. Mr. Jimmie Watson as Lucinda is very good, and Mr. J. G. Aitken sings his Scotch songs with good effect. Mr. Neil Hardy makes a humorous Baron, and Master Jack Harrison does well as Grinde. Messrs. Graham and Barron as the two ruffians introduce some extremely clever dancing. A feature of the show is the bird ballet, with suitable dresses, and a fine statue ballet. Mrs. Levy ably stage-manages and Mr. Levy wields the baton with effect and directs a capital chorus.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—The Four Holloways give a marvellous display of trick cycling and acrobatic feats on the wire; Arthur Dandoe's company in a musical burletta, The Phonograph Belle, provide a turn full of good jokes and good singing; V. L. Granville is smart in a protean act, 'Twixt Dawn and Daylight; May Audrey sings some refined songs in a capital manner; Fred Mason is smart in good songs and whistling solos; Cynthia Brook is an excellent comedienne; Bert Lytton is very good as a swell comique; and a very funny picture on the Bioscope completes the bill.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—La Belle Duchess presents some cleverly-trained stallions, ponies, and dogs with success; The Maid of the Alps, a well-acted dramatic sketch, is ably done by Mr. George M. Marriott and company, including Miss Edith Finlay; David Poole again proves a most capable ventriloquist; Seeley and Rhodesia are smart novelty entertainers; King and Derwin are good in a refined burlesque; Alice Blamford has a fine voice, and she sings nicely; Jeannie Alexander is a clever child mimic; Sidney and Elvo provide a good comedy cycle act; and the Dottoscope concludes.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall. — Mark Adams and company in The Wanderer provide a capital musical act; De Vere and Oakes are a capital comedy duo; C. H. Charlton in a conjuring turn is most capable; and the Orchids introduce good vocal comedy; Will Dalton sings some funny songs in good style; the Sprees are very good as the rustic and the maid; and E. Kershaw, the boy soprano, sings well. A feature of the bill is the fine picture shown on the Dottoscope.

THE PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Thorne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—Joe Peterman and company top the bill in The Pawnbroker, a really humorous sketch, which is heartily enjoyed; Harry Taft is smart as a whistling comedian; the Harvey Boys cause screams of laughter with their comedy boxing act; Elmar sings some capital songs with good results; Jenny Lynn is a smart character comedienne; and the Sisters Ford, duettists and dancers, are very good. Langslow gives a smart display as a marksman and wire expert; the Three Orleans are excellent in a good singing and dancing act; and the Palace pictures are again very good.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr G. T. Lucas.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark B'ow's company are giving excellent performances of At Cripple Creek, which was received with the utmost enthusiasm by a full house on Monday. Mr. Austin Milroy is a manly and interesting Joe Mayfield; Mr. Roy Jackson is admirably suited as the villainous bully Martin Mason; Mr. Valentine Hervey is equally good as his accomplice, Alveraz; Mr. R. Harley-West ably depicts the faithful Indian Wahketah; and Messrs. H. Stewart and Will Hook contribute plenty of fun as Ben White and Reggie Harwood. Baby Betty acts with intelligence, and sings delightfully as Little Tatto; Miss Daisy Carlton acts in bright fashion and dances gracefully as Maggie Mason; Miss Dorothy Lart is a good Belle Gordon; and Miss Agnes Verity plays with wonderful power and quite thrills the house as Dynamite Ann.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE .— Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here with A Girl's Cross Roads. Mr. Norman B. Cannon gives an excellent rendering of Jack Livingstone, and is ably assisted by Mr. Edward Valentine as Dr. Weston; Mr. Harry Cane as the old farmer, John Meadows, is admirable; while Mr. W. J. Butler is effective as Cuthbert Lumley, and Mr. Fred Withers is natural as Luke Ramsden. Mr. Fred Hodson is a clever and convincing comedian as Toby Turvy; Miss Muriel Dean is a winsome Constance; and Miss Jeannie Thomas a sprightly Tilly Vane. Miss Nita Langford does well as the abandoned Nellie Meadows; while Miss Hilda Beverley presents a thrilling study of Barbara Wade.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Puss in Boots continues to improve in popularity, and the undoubted merits of Mr. Savile's pantomime, both as regards spectacular display and lively fun, entitle it to a foremost place. Miss Daisy Morell is excellent as Colin, both her singing and acting being highly commendable; the part of Princess Ivy is charmingly played by Miss Katie Yates, whose songs are greatly appreciated; Miss Florence Lewis makes a handsome Prince Rudolph, with a fine appearance and a good voice; Miss Moyna Hill is a dainty and charming Phyllis, pleasing all by her singing and artistic methods; Miss Mabel Earle and Miss Jessie Jukes are an attractive couple, and work cleverly together as Jack and Jill, their singing and dancing being much enjoyed; Miss Topsy Johnson makes an excellent Felina, speaking her lines and singing exceedingly well; as King Grabbus Mr. Walter Kooney is a quaint comedian, whose dry, effective style never fails to elicit laughter; Mr. Harry Karr as Dame Shortly works hard and successfully, and has already made quite a hit in his personation of the part; Mr. Fred C. Fields has all the necessary qualifications for the part of Baron Rumphiz, whom he endows with many whimsicalities; Mr. J. K. Macfarlane is a Scotch comedian of the most convincing kind, and his Sandy Macmuggles is full of quaintness and humour; Mr. Glen Alva must be awarded praise for his decided cleverness as Slyboots, the cat; and Mr. Arnold Harley is to be complimented upon his assumption of Digestus. Mention must be made of an exceptionally clever trio, Misses Edna Evelyn, Becca Stirling, and Lily Bell, who dance with commendable vivacity, and whose exhibitions are a feature of the pantomime. Mr. Bernard A. Leslie's stage-management is, as usual, excellent.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—The Pichel Troupe, Risley acrobats and tumblers, head the bill here this week, and submit a marvellous performance; a comedy scena, The Editor's Imp, is one of the best that has been seen here, and is contributed by Reg. Bolton; the New York Comedy Four, as a vocal and comedy combination, receive unstinted and well-merited applause; Ryan and Hall, funny acrobats, eccentric comedians, and burlesque wrestlers, are vastly entertaining; the Four Kurios give a delightfully humorous concoction of pantomime, art, and mystery; as characteristic singers and specialty dancers the Society Quartette are flatteringly received; the Milner Trio are responsible for an excellent pot-pourri act, H. P. Milner giving one of the smartest and most original performances on the single-thread wire; Jimson's Pets at Home introduces three dogs, which perform in a marvellously clever manner; and the Bioscope concludes with really humorous pictures.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Barger; Business-Manager, Mr. Norman Barger.—Mr. Harry Starr is presenting to large and appreciative audiences Otto the Outcast, and Carl the Clockmaker. In the title-rôle of the former piece Mr. Harry Starr gives a fine performance, introducing in the course of his performance a well-trained parrot; Mr. Will Hee as Vidocq, with several aliases, is a sensational villain; as Daddy Bruneau Mr. Alvin Sawyer is very successful; the Marquis Marcella de Laporte is in the capable hands of Mr. Edwin Firth; plenty of fun is provided by Mr. Arnold Allen as Augusten Carrotte, ably supported in his efforts by Miss Effie Macintosh as Susette; Miss Madge Blundell as Corinne Jarbeau infuses much sympathetic power into her part; Miss Kate Norris as Lara achieves undoubted success.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Miss Inez Howard's company, under the management of Mr. Henry Chattell, paid a successful visit here the latter end of last week, presenting The Midnight Wedding. Miss Ethel Savill displayed undoubted ability in the dual rôles of Princess Astrea and Second-Lieut. Karl Helsburg, Mr. Frederick W. Freeman giving an excellent impersonation of Paul Valmar; Mr. W. H. Baker as Crown Prince Leopold, Mr. W. J. Res as Lieut. Eugene Von Streisburg, Mr. Cyprian H. Matthews as Captain Rudolph von Scarsbruck, Miss Ruth Wingrove as Rozel, Miss Elsie Dene as Kathie, Mr. Will Gluze as Bobo, Mr. Will Charlton as Sergeant Max, Mr. Alfred Richards as Corporal Otto, and Mr. James Winter as Father Gerard completed a well-chosen cast.

PERTH.—PERTH THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company provides the entertainment here this week with the musical comedy absurdity Fun on the Bristol. Mr. Chalmers Mackey as Widow O'Brien is very humorous; Mr Edward Warden is excellent as Captain Cranberry; Mr. St. John Stewart as Tom Cranberry and Mr. Richard Hutton as Dick Sparkes give good performances; Mr. J. P. McBride as Count Menaggio is successful; Mr. Henry Sainsbury as Jerry contributes to the fun; and Mr. Edward Jeffs plays the part of the detective with acceptance. Mme. Constance Bellamy as Nora O'Brien shows great capabilities, her singing being very good; Miss Nana Flensberg makes a charming Dora McAllister; and Miss Adele Liddon as Bella gives satisfaction.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Cinderella is now going very strong, and crowded houses are nightly testifying their appreciation of the capable company's efforts. Miss Maisie Ellinger is making a bold bid for first favourite, while other very popular members of the company are Miss Lucie Caine and Miss Nellie Sheffield, the dancing of the latter being a particularly strong point. Mr. Devereux's trap-door business holds the numerous juvenile patrons of the pantomime spellbound, and the particularly pretty staging is a source of universal admiration.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—De Gracia's Royal Assam elephants form a unique star turn, and after the animals have displayed their almost human intelligence in a variety of ways their trainer receives hearty applause; Edward Crossland's Melody-makers supply an original and tuneful song-scena entitled The Burglar's Dream, which proves generally popular; Teddy Edmonds and company in The Lady Jockey submit a smartly executed sporting sketch, in which Mr. J. Rous distinguishes himself as a tipster and Mr. J. Almasio and assistant perform some jugglery feats, both humorous and clever; Gene Selby furnishes some skilfully executed bone manipulation and juggling, and Leo and Roland earn plenty of commendation as equilibrists. The Palascope's interesting films continue to attract, and Tiny Arnold proves of material assistance to the success of the programme.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—The sensations of the patrons of this popular hall are startled by the extreme daring of Le Diabolo, who rides an ordinary bicycle round and round a huge revolving wheel, and the feat renders the spectator breathless. Morrin and Cardiff serve out most humorous patter and are smart dancers; Miss Carmer Barrie is a dainty and chic comedienne; the Deuchars sing duets and dance very daintily; Venola Brothers are really quaint and funny in their gymnastics on the rings and bar; whilst Will Beanland is as like to woman as it is in man to be, and makes those of his audience who are without a programme believe that he is in reality what he assumes to be; Mueller and Cozue give a bright and brisk comedy duo; and the pictures are particularly good.

PORTH.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—The chief place is taken by the Four Burnells, who contribute excellently to the evening's enjoyment in their comedy sketch Playmates; Harry Hayton, comedian, meets with a good reception; he is undoubtedly comical. A turn which deserves much credit is that of Theresa and May in their protean singing act; Nellie Coleman makes a capital hit as the female comedian, her various representations being really good; Oakdene gives an excellent ventriloquial entertainment; the Sisters Gerretti trapeze performers, are accorded an enthusiastic reception, receiving rounds of applause for their exceedingly smart and daring performance; Jim Topping is most amusing as a comedian; Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Bentley are seen to advantage in the sketch entitled The Terror of Turney's Rents, the acting meeting with the greatest approval. The Palascope with its fine pictures concludes.

PORTSMOUTH.—ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is paying a return visit with The Merry Widow; it is just a year ago since the same cast, with some few exceptions, created quite a furore here, and, judging from Monday night's reception, its fortnight's engagement should be a pronounced success. The piece is richly dressed and elaborately mounted, the chorus is particularly strong, and a considerably augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Harrison Frewin. Sonia has a charming and dainty representative in Miss Nora Barry; while Miss Octavia Burry continues in her old part of Natalie, whose vocal numbers were rendered with her usual taste; Mr. Haigh Jackson's cultivated baritone was heard to great advantage as Viscomte de Jolidon; the two comedians, Messrs. Lionel Victor and Tom Redmond, were irresistible as Baron Popoff and Nisch, while the hero, Prince Danilo, was adequately impersonated by Mr. Leonard Mackay; the dancing of Miss Dora Langham and Mr. Alfred H. Majilton was warmly applauded; and others rendering effective aid were Messrs. Somers Bellamy, Norman Green, Grafton Williams, J. S. Durant, Misses Pollie Edwards, Kathleen Courtenay, and Beryl Vaudrey.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—Cinderella is further entrenching herself as a favourite here, especially among the juveniles. Miss Connie Leon is still a great favourite, her song, "The bubble and sunbeam," exciting the attention of the audience; Miss Maude Mortimer as the Prince continues to captivate the audience, and her songs are whistled in the street. A feature of the production is the "Swing" song by the Six Monte Carlo Girls; the Broker's men are amusingly impersonated by Messrs. Victor and Lewis, and, with Mr. Stanley Vandyke (the Baron) and Mr. W. T. Thompson (Buttons), fun waxes fast and furious when these gentlemen are on the stage. The Harvard Sextette, attired in Eton jackets, do well in their song "Gay little girl"; the pretty scenes, the Vision of Cinderella and the Ballroom at the Palace, are charming; and the handsome dresses and effects help considerably towards the success of the performance.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—An exceedingly clever turn is that of Charles Aldrich, who is very versatile; Signor Barba Longa's powerful baritone voice delighted the audience with "The Toreador" &c.; Gerard, termed the herculean juggler, displayed his immense strength in the approved style; music had pleasing exponents in Norman and Leonard Trio; another clever juggling act was the Wallys; Horace Porlock's company provided the sketch, Hester's Mystery; the Broadway Girls danced; and Bains and Reed displayed their skill as acrobats.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Capt. E. H. Warren-Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Crowded and enthusiastic houses testify to the excellence of the programme provided this week. Vonetta, the lady illusionist, tops the bill, providing an act lasting twenty-six minutes, during which, besides, executing some highly-amusing and diverting tricks, she arrays herself in no less than twenty-four costumes; Emma Don as a male impersonator scores a distinct success in her songs; the Musical Palmers prove themselves expert players upon the post-horn and hand-bells. Their "Village Blacksmith," aided by the Cinematograph, being much appreciated; Munroe's Comedy Team are well received, the smallest member proving himself a vocalist of no mean order; T. E. Hughes is very popular in his songs; Ted Karno and company provide ten minutes of excellent fooling; and Daisy Hicks and Payne's Bio-Photoscope complete an attractive bill.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Harris; Assistant-Manager, Col. F. W. Roberts.—A wonderful exhibition of the magician's art is given this week by Chung Ling Soo, whose dexterity is little short of marvellous; Will English's funny business and songs hit the taste here; in Black Justice Big Ben Brown, Little Geo. Le Clerq and company evoke much laughter; Bert Marsden, Ethel Walker, Jessie Lee, and various up-to-date films from Ruffell's Bioscope complete a good entertainment.

PRESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. Leonard Boyne's West-end company is this week presenting Raffles, which obtained a hearty reception on Monday. As Raffles Mr. Eille Norwood displays much dramatic power, calling for the highest praise; no less noteworthy is the excellent portrayal of the cool and collected American criminologist Curtis Bedford by Mr. E. W. Thomas; Mr. Arthur Willoughby is a quiet and dignified Earl of Amersteth; and Mr. Cecil Brymer displays much ability as Viscount Crowley; another clever actor is Mr. Harold West, who as Harry Manders (Bunny) comes out strong, especially in the scene with Raffles (his friend) in the fourth act; Mr. Dalziel Heron gives a clever bit of character acting as the burglar, Crawshay; Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald is a winsome Lady Ethel, and plays her part naturally; Miss Agnes Knights is excellent as Lady Melrose; Miss Lucie Milner is a bright and vivacious Gwendoline Conran; Miss May Brooke must be congratulated on her clever portrayal of Mrs. Vidal; and Miss Dorothy Gordon is a capable Marie. In the minor parts of Golby, Merton, and Barraclough Messrs. James Williams, H. Allen, and Arthur Fitzgerald are very capable; Lord Ronold Corfe, by Mr. Harold West, and Lady Cynthia Corfe, by Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald, being also excellently rendered, and causing much laughter. The staging of the play is perfect. Mention must be made of the very clever presentation of Langton Matravers by Mr. Dalziel Heron in the curtain raiser, A Lesson in Shakespeare.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff. — Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is appearing in The King and the Unknown Woman. Mr. James Stillwell is a manly Prince Loris, and acts well throughout; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan displays the necessary villainy as Prince Menski without overdoing the part; Mr. W. R. Winning is a typical General Platz; and Mr. Cyril Harrison is clever as the nonchalant Captain Garda; Mr. William E. Passmore causes much amusement as Corporal Stack, and receives able support in the comedy parts from Miss Cissie Podmore as Schnapps; little Elsie Clark shows much careful training as Cascar; Miss F. Conyers Radcliffe as Zora is excellent, and Miss Muriel Inglis is most refreshing as the Countess Melvitch. Miss Norna Damayne wins much sympathy as Else, and Miss Ada Douglas is a sprightly Maid. As Kiloff and Petra Messrs. Fred C. Roper and C. H. Henderson are good. The play is lavishly mounted, and the uniforms and costumes are handsome.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Messrs. Sidney Dooley and Charles Seymour are paying a return visit with their condensed musical comedy A King for a Day, in which appear Messrs. Bert Atherton, Fred Danvers, Sidney Dooley, and Robert Barbour and Misses Edith Watkins and Vera Vizard, and a smart and sprightly chorus of pretty girls, and meets with an appreciative reception. The Faludy Troupe of Royal Hungarian acrobats perform some remarkably clever feats; Allsopp and Bekwith, the comedy couple, contribute some smart dancing and songs; Horace Sade is a clever characteristic dancer; Lester and Moure, in an eccentric comedy act, A Day at the Beach, causes much laughter; Lew Peterman is a Hebrew comedian, and Mi-Narom is a clever comedienne, and contributes some comic songs which create much mirth; Will and Alicia Frohmann give an artistic and clever musical act. Uncle's Picnic on the Bioscope concludes a capital programme.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Messrs. Sidney Rennef and G. M. Copping's company is here with How Women Ruin Men. Mr. Sidney Rennef does ample justice in the dual rôle of Jack and Maurice Fairclough; the treachery of Bruno Schlag is ably depicted by Mr. Richard Vane; Major Bagstock has a fine exponent in Mr. Stephen Langton; Mr. Alex. Wilson Wynne is acceptable as Freddy Fonheart; and Mr. Fred Elvin causes some amusement as Jimmy Chucket, being ably assisted by Miss Kitty Russell as Jennie Chucket; in the heavy part of Sylvia Grey Miss Doris Brookes scores a success; and Miss Gracie Jones as Mercy Grey is all that can be desired.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General-Business-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Dr. Walford Bodie is here this week with his exceptionally clever vaudeville company, and opened on Monday night to a crowded and delighted house. The variety turns included Bella Skene, burlesque actress; the Great Fransisgo, a truly marvellous equilibrist and juggler; Tom Neville, comedian; Nan Macduff, lady ventriloquist; Little Dolly Robson, who sang charmingly; Stella de Vere, comedienne; Helen Henri, vocalist; the Three Delaries, with a fine and sensational trapeze act; and Hyam Long, a most amusing and original versatile musical turn. Dr. Bodie also gave his usual wonderful exhibition of his powers as a paralysis and bone specialist, the building resounding with cheers at his marvellous performances. Altogether a most exceptionally brilliant and enjoyable performance was witnessed, not a single turn being without considerable merit, whilst many were of the highest class ever seen in this theatre.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Messrs. F. J. Little and Fred Darcy's pantomime of Dick Whittington and His Cat is still proving a great attraction here. Miss Beatrice Varley continues to please as the hero, and Miss Ida Brophy is still a great favourite in the part of Alice Fitzwarren. An additional attraction is provided this week in the appearance of the Four Eugenes, who achieve a great success in their speciality act, in which they perform some extraordinary gymnastic and acrobatic feats. The other features of the pantomime continue to meet with popular appreciation.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—A novel attraction is provided this week in the form of a "tabloid" pantomime, with two shows a night. The company is under the management of Mr. J. Collins, and the subject is Puss in Boots. The plot is necessarily a slight one, and the scenes and business briefer than usual, but a very bright and enjoyable entertainment is the result. Miss Ethel Beech makes a dashing and attractive impersonator of the hero, Juan; Miss Eva Ellis is a charming Princess Carita; Miss Elsie Don acts and sings well as Lola; Miss May Otto is a very dainty Fairy Queen, and sings with much artistic taste; Mr. Wyn Weaver makes the most of the part of the King of Pandalusia; Mr. William Benson is good as the indispensable masculine Widow; Mr. A. Watts as Sancho, Mr. Algernon Lea as Pancho, and Messrs. Ferris and Farnley as Bill Balio and Jo Bailo are all exceedingly funny; the Cat is well represented by Mr. Harry Seymour; Collins's Sextette of expert dancers introduce some graceful dances; and the Eight Gems are aptly described as "children of exceptional merit." The other members of the company are all well up to the mark. The pantomime is well staged, and the scenery is highly effective.

LARGE TOWN HALL.—Mr. Joseph Poole's Myriorama is still being exhibited here to crowded houses. This is the last week of the season, and several novelties are introduced into the programme. There is an entire change in the animated pictures, and the variety entertainment is well sustained.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—Butterflies is fulfilling a welcome engagement here this week. The play is full of sparkling humour throughout, and is lavishly mounted. Mr. Harrison Brockbank is a host in himself as Puck, his vocalism and acting being of a very high standard; Mr. Johnnie Wilkinson is amusing with a capital impersonation of Yarker; Mr. Edwin H. Wynne fulfils the difficult rôle of Christopher Podmore with distinct success; Mr. Alan Mudie as the irrepressible Peter plays his part to perfection; and Mr. Cyril Biddulph is all that could be desired as Max Riadore. Miss Lilian Wesson is an attractive Elsie Podmore; Miss Ada Davidson enacts with success the part of Nora Podmore; and Miss Annie Heenan wins all hearts with a charming presentment of Rhodanthe. Miss Millie Gordon scores heavily in the classic Danse du Papillon; and a capital chorus renders valuable aid.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves. — The Piccolinos, miniature cyclists, acrobats, dancers, wire-walkers, &c., fairly bring down the house with a capital performance; Austin and Cowan present a very acceptable musical act; Ernest Montefiore and Co., in a dramatic and musical sketch, The Little Colonel, win deserved applause; and other artists include Alf. Penny, comedian; Clarice Clarke, character vocalist; Jack Rae, comedy gymnast; Arthur Holland, character vocalist; and the Bioscope pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Jackson Family; Business-Manager, Mr. Jno. Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson, senior.—John Warren and company introduce in The Magic Carpet a series of illusions served up with dramatic mounting; the McConnell Trio, in a musical comedietta, The Airship, are amusing and clever vocalists; the Three Cunards submit an exceptionally smart dancing act; Miss Elly Adair, Irish comedienne and dancer; Three Seabournes, equilibristic wonders; Miss Zaida, on the slack wire; Arthur Woodville, comedian; Pongorila, in The Man of the Woods; and the Hippodrome pictures complete a most attractive bill of fare.

ROTHERHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Miss Dorothy Granville's company is here this week with an interesting domestic drama, The Better Land, and excellent houses are the result. Mr. Leonard Faredale gives a clever portrayal of the part of Philip Radcliffe, and Miss Nina Blake is both pleasing and sympathetic as Doris, a most difficult rôle.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Joe Reichen's dogs give brilliant evidence of careful and successful training; Miss Effie White is deservedly applauded for her kaleidoscope dance, "The Spirit of the Cave"; Lina Leslie is a pleasing comedienne; Taylor and Bridge are well received as singing Lancashire mill lads; Les Zanonis are very clever juvenile jugglers; Fred Eustace and company produce an interesting sketch, The Amber Light. Mr. Fred Eustace is a typical Yankee as Hyram P. Fletcher, and Mr. Alfred Harding does well as James Dalton, Mr. Charles Gordon scores as Sir John Montague, M.P., and Miss Mary Eustace is very pleasing as Mary Montague. J. H. Carney gives a clever turn as a quick-change artist; and the Brasques present a very smart playlet, A Society Butterfly, which receives well-deserved applause.

SALFORD.—P. O. W.—Proprietor-Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—A good house on Monday welcomed Messr

Helen G. Edwins is a capable Mrs. Naresby; and Miss Nance Stone as the Nun does well.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The second week of Miss Marie Studholme's engagement opened on Monday, when a crowded audience again received this popular Sheffield favourite with enthusiastic applause, when she repeated her charming performance in Rubens and Hurgon's delightful musical play My Mimosa Maid. The talented members of Mr. Frank Curzon's strong company were all successful, and the chorus and band conduced greatly to the perfect ensemble of the performance.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey Aldred.—Mr. Hart's third Royal annual, Goody Two Shoes, is being played nightly to a large and admiring audience.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden have again "struck oil" with the magnificently-staged and funny pantomime Robinson Crusoe, and the big theatre is packed at every performance EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The honour of "topping the bill" is shared this week by Miss Nellie Wallace, the funny eccentric comed-d'enne and clever dancer, and Mr. Fred Earle, a mirth-provoking comic singer. The pièce de résistance is Mr. Herbert Darnley's funny, spectacular, and pantomimic absurdity The Brigands of Tarragona, which, well mounted and smartly played by a company of forty comedians, vocalists, and dancers, proves very acceptable to the Empire habitués. Mr. Theo. Bourmeester, a clever quick-change actor, is heartily applauded, and Fayre and Manning, Miss Maggie Walsh, the Carina Sisters, and Miss Mabel Bright are all very well received. An interesting and pathetic film, Educating Blind Children, by Pathé Frères, is loudly applauded.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—A splendid company is here this week, and this big house is nightly crowded. 61, Prospect Street, in which Mr. Caryl Wilbur and company appear, is well received; Miss Dorothy L. Clarke brings down the house with her pleasing vocalism; a very original and daring acrobatic act by the smart Denmartz Troupe is received with enthusiastic applause; My Fancy, the expert step-dancer, is a favourite here; the Havanna Troupe appear in a laughable comic ballet, and introduce some marvellous tumbling and acrobatic tricks; the Alexandra Operatic Trio in the Prison scene from Faust delight lovers of high-class music; and other pleasing turns are the Edwards' Sketch Co.; St. Ruth and Conyers, duettists; Andrews and Thompson, ballad vocalists; and the Barracscope, with a series of new pictures, including a seasonable photographic fantasia, The Nightmare, which causes roars of laughter.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. S. Turpin.—Illustrated songs and first-class moving pictures continue to please large audiences.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Jasper Redfern and Co., Ltd.—Up-to-date animated pictures and vaudeville are received nightly with hearty applause.

THE PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Peach.—A fine programme of comic, romantic, and dramatic bioscopic pictures is submitted here this week.

ALBERT HALL.—The "Charles W. Poole" myriorama and variety company continue to do good business.

MONTGOMERY HALL.—The Imperial Picture Co.'s artistic films, and the second-sight experts, Collin and Irene, are delighting and astonishing crowded houses.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—Mr. F. R. Benson's fine north company is here this week—an agreeable change after a run of vaudeville fare—playing The Merchant of Venice, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Othello, The School for Scandal, The Taming of the Shrew, Twelfth Night, and Richard the Third. The Merchant of Venice was beautifully staged and admirably performed on the opening night. Mr. Henry Herber gave a remarkably good exposition of Shylock, artistic and faithful throughout; Mr. James Berry as Antonio acted with dignity and talent; Mr. Cyril Sworder infused plenty of spirit into the part of Gratiano, his touch of comedy in the trial scene being a pleasant bit of relief; Mr. Evered Vanderlip as Bassanio merited high praise; Mr. Lewis as Lorenzo rendered the sympathetic passages of the rôle with refined expression; Miss Gladys Vandersee made a sweet and cultured Portia; Miss Violet Farebrother was attractive and successful as Nerissa; Miss Jean Graeme as Jessica acted most creditably; Mr. Chas. Trail made a dignified Duke of Venice; Mr. Robt. Atkins as Prince of Morocco was deserving of encomiums; Mr. Victor Wiltshire and Mr. Chas. S. Sparrow as Salanio and Salarino were sympathetic friends of Antonio and Bassanio; Mr. Andrew Leigh was satisfactory as Clerk of the Court; Mr Bishop played well as Tubal; Mr. A. Fayne was a very creditable Launcelot Gobbo; Mr. Sam Cohen made a capital Old Gobbo, and the parts of servants were filled in a capable fashion by Miss Palgrave and Miss Hilda Gonne.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Messrs. Conquest and Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lingham Power.—New features are introduced in the production of Aladdin, which makes this pleasing pantomime more enjoyable than ever. Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company please at every performance. The two most favoured specialities are those furnished by the La Dor Troupe, a sextette of acrobats who entertain with skilful feats in an easy and commendable manner; and by Mr. Percy Galino, with bone solos, whose imitation of the Village Blacksmith is cleverly and successfully rendered. Miss Amy Bellwood maintains her reputation in the name-part, and with Miss Daisy Kersey as the Princess shares honours in both singing and dancing; Mr. Ernest Carlton as the magician (Abanazar), and Mr. Will Burton as Stonee-Brokee, also maintain last week's success; while Mr. Albert Laurence in his humorous characterisation of Widow Twankey is heartily received, and who creates real good fun. The dancing girls—Misses Carrie Warner, Amelia Graham, and Lorrie Wells—are seen to advantage in pretty songs and dances.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's successful pantomime Puss in Boots, which entered on its second week here on Monday, continues in public favour, and is enhanced by several new features and some smart topical local hits. Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie, who has become quite a favourite here, depicts the rôle of Colin with much piquancy, and repeats her former success; Mr. Fred Lincoln creates no end of merriment by his droll impersonation of Dame Shortly; Mr. Harry Edlin as Baron Rumphiz has plenty of scope for his display of comedy, of which he takes full advantage; Mr. Harry Rogerson, Mr. Bert Hall, Miss Gladys Christoe, Miss Issa Steel, Miss Bessie Herbert, and Miss Zona Joy are each more prominent and attractive in their respective parts.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—A visit is being paid to the above theatre this week by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott's répertoire company, the following pieces being played during the week:—The Octoroon, The Shaughraun, The Colleen Bawn, The Stolen Birthright, The Shadows of a Great City, and It's Never Too Late to Mend.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. C. Algie; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Sleep.—An excellent company is at this house, with the Royal Ohmy's topping the bill.

STALYBRIDGE. — HIPPODROME. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—Mr. Harry Benet's company is drawing crowded houses with Sergeant Brue. Mr. Denis Lyndon in the title-rôle worthily sustains the eccentricity of the part; the Lady Bickenhall of Miss Ray Anderson displays ability; Mr. H. Quiningborough as Crookie Scrubbs is responsible for clever character acting; Mr. Lister Morrah as Michael Brue acts and sings effectively; and Mr. T. G. Warren is unusually quaint as Mr. Crank.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. E. Johnson.—The second week of Mother Goose is in full swing. As usual, the principal artists have become great favourites, and have worked hard to gain their popularity. Everything goes smoothly, and more amusing items have been introduced. Miss Ethel Dunford as Prince Lothario continues to charm with her gay manner and sweet voice, and Miss Ray Ford, the pretty Jill, is as delightful as ever; Mr. Leo Bliss makes the character of Mother Goose very amusing, and Mr. George Bliss as Septimus is the pantomime villain to the life; Mr. Louis Kerno's dancing and singing as the King are much appreciated, and applause always greets the efforts of Messrs. Pete and Juno.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—A sketch, entitled Lady Lanigan, Laundress, heads the bill this week, and is played with much spirit by Mr. Matt Montgomery and his company, and plenty of laughter is the result. The Sisters Trentanovi's trapeze act is pretty, effective, and clever; Princess Pocahuntas has a voice of splendid range, and her return is welcome; the Olmars pose excellently; and Kenneth and Kane are amusing. J. P. Carroll knows well how to rattle the tambourine, and the bar act of the Ramlos is good; Lennard and Verriker's pictorial songs are very fine, the lady being possessed of a sweet, powerful voice.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The pantomime Little Red Riding Hood continues to attract large audiences, who are delighted with its many entertaining features. Miss May Gibson, the principal girl, has gained in favour with her sweet rendering of "Shadowland"; the comedians, working well together, are as funny as ever; and a distinctly pretty scene is the Snow Ballet.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Les François, in their equilibristic act, are the chief attraction here, and are warmly applauded for their marvellously clever feats; most entertaining are the Colonials in their musical comedy scena, Unexpected Guests; Rose D'Aulby sings well-chosen songs in excellent style; Ajax and George accom-lish much that is wonderful in their gymnastic act; Dan Robans is a baritone vocalist of ability; abundant laughter is provoked by R. Cameron Matthews and company in their comedy sketch, The Honeymoon Baby; the Royal Delomes are pleasing duettists and expert dancers; and the Cameo Troupe in Rustics at Play meet with satisfactory favour.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — CASTLE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime Aladdin commenced its second week on Monday. Miss Marie Beresford as Aladdin has a fascinating style, and her singing is well appreciated; Miss Lyc Jeffries is a charming Princess, and does full justice to the songs; Miss Emmie Milsted as Darkie Diabolo is a dainty dancer, and wins loud applause for her vocal efforts; Miss Lily Ennes makes a charming Pekoe; Miss Mabel Milsted as Frou-Frou is a skilful dancer; Mr. J. Burgess is well suited as the Emperor; Mr. Harry Pleon as Widow Twankey is very funny, and keeps the house in a constant titter; Ray and Ross as Spy and Kop are clever comedians; Mr. Joe Bell does well as Wishee-Washee, and has become a great favourite; Miss Rose Parfezer makes a charming Fairy Queen, and does well with her singing. The company is supported by a powerful chorus and ballet, under the direction of Mr. John S. Kirshaw.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—A Beauty and Hair Competition is attracting crowded houses; Newmann and Browne, in a musical episode, What Might Have Been, do well; the Lovelaces, song illustrators, are good; Tom Lloyd, comedian, is very popular; the Three Calbos are daring in an acrobatic feat; Dancit is responsible for some clever clog-dancing; Farrell and Dunn, comedians, create much laughter with their patter, and are clever dancers; Kartelli gives a thrilling and novel slack-wire act; and the Bioscope concludes with a funny film, The Tricky Convict.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company is producing here this week the romantic drama Denounced. The leading characters are in the able hands of Messrs. Ernest Wingfield, Fred Terris, and Arthur Byron, the Misses Lilian Beaumont, Lina Nazeby, Daisy Norman, and Violet Wingfield. Some entertaining Bi-photoscope views are shown.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Moroney.—The musical comedy sketch, The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory is presented by Arthur Watson and company. The playlet is well staged, and the parts are admirably filled. Miss Flo Stanley is most natural as the lost heiress; Arthur Watson as the sailor Detective is a smart and clean comedian; and Miss Nellie Grant is a stately Lady Teasum. The Paul Kramer Trio appear in a clever gymnastic act, one of the troupe performing some exceptional head-balancing feats on the flying trapeze; Harry Friskey, American comedy juggler, is very funny; Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene play the society sketch My Lady's Chamber to the life; Harry Heath, coon vocalist, is a fine dancer. Also contributing are Miss Indiana, Lambert and Butler, and Les Currys. The Bioscope shows a comic film, which causes much laughter.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps.—This week we are receiving a visit from Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Joseph's company, with the pantomime Aladdin. Miss Janet Lawton undertook the title-rôle. Her singing and dancing greatly pleased the audience. Miss Kitty Avey provided a most winsome Princess. The fun of the piece was ably carried out by Messrs. W. and F. Shepherd, in the characters of What Hi and What O; Mr. Harry Harcourt was an acceptable Mother Twankey, and his song "Study your cookery book" caught on finely; Mr. Will Terry as Abanazi proved a splendid character, and his performance added greatly to the success of the opening performance. The chorus and scenery are very good.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Alexander Telford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Reach.—Sinbad the Sailor is now in full swing. Miss Jessie Wilton as Sinbad does full justice to the part, and for her rendering of The White Man is being recalled time after time. Miss Christina Joy plays with charming grace as Zobeida; Miss Madeline Rossiter is an unqualified success as Princess Zorilda; Miss Sissie Brand as Heesatoph, who plays with great energy, is scoring well with her song "My pal in the gallery"; Miss Roberta Svensden completely captivates her audiences with her sweet voice; Mr. Will Johnson as Mrs. Sinbad has an inexhaustible fund of humour; the humorous rôle of Captain Bowline is in the capable hands of Mr. F. Beck; Mr. Frank Lynne, an excellent Binbad, has a great hit in his song, "Sea-shells"; Messrs. Walton and Lister, "the world's worst wizards," are extremely popular as the First and Second Mates, and their burlesque conjuring act continues to amuse; Mr. J. A. Howitt portrays "The old man of the sea" in a most stirring manner; and Little Nellie Denver continues to be popular.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Hy. Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Pellow.—The pantomime Dick Whittington is now in its second week, and is having a good run. A more dainty and charming actress than Miss Lena Page could hardly have been found for the title-rôle; Miss Nellie Merton as Alice is also a graceful and winsome artist; than Miss Florence Hilton as Sir Algernon de Mash there could not have been a more popular suitor for the hand of Alice; the gyrations of Salome are cleverly done by Miss Dorothy Dryden; heaps of fun are forthcoming from the Hannaway Bros. and Mr. Fred Spencer; while Mr. Dennis McArthy has established himself in favour.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Hy. Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Geo. Dunn.—Mr. Walter Melville's company in A Soldier's Wedding had an exceedingly attentive hearing on Monday night. Mr. Wingold Lawrence played the soldier, and his finished portrayal brought forth warm praise; Nancy Lee was sympathetically presented by Miss Dorothy Richardson; the adventuress, Julie de Beauvris, and her accomplice, Charles Courtney, were in the capable hands of Miss Mary McAnley and Mr. Gerald Jordan; David and Peggy Munroe were well looked after by Mr. Frederick Biron and Miss Mabel Lowe; and Teddy was capitally played by Little Albert. The comedy was in the capable hands of Miss Mattie Everett and Mr. Johnny Chippendale; Mr. Beresford Whitcombe was a satisfactory Colonel Graham; and Mr. Fred Yarnold an excellent Nathaniel Lee.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Miss Marie Loftus figures at the top of the bill this week, and has had most enthusiastic receptions. Her songs are heartily applauded, and her burlesques cause roars of laughter; The Gathering of the Clans, under the direction of Mr. W. Selkirk, retains its popularity; admiration is also won by the Four Figaros, international vocalists and dancers, with their trained goose; the Four Jumels give an entertaining musical act; the Vetter Bros. prove themselves intrepid gymnasts; Miss Vio Lette is a capital juvenile male impersonator; Blanche Vincent gives pleasure with her pleasant singing; and Mr. Victor Newman's impersonations of the late Mr. Wilson Barrett and Beerbohm Tree are interesting.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Page.—Mr. E. Oswald Brooks's company is to be congratulated on an excellent performance of The New Housemaid. Mr. Howard L. Tracey, in the title-rôle, is so irresistibly funny as to ensure the success of the piece, and Miss Babs Stuart as Dulcie, by her pretty personality and charming acting, deserves the applause given her; Miss Renée de L'Estrade charms the audience by her delineation of Lucie Merton, and Mr. Reginald Hargreaves' impersonation of Frank Pinkerton could scarcely have been bettered; as Roseberry, the amorous butler, Mr. Herbert Colley makes a decided hit, and similar distinction is won by Miss Dot Seilby as Caroline Pinkerton. A carefully-selected company renders great support.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company is accorded a hearty welcome at the Star this week in Send Him Victorious. Mr. Frank Holyoake gives an impressive impersonation of the King of Ravonia; Mr. G. M. Montanini plays cleverly as Col. Heinrich Kaufman; Mr. Bert Woodin keeps the audience in good humour as Geordie Walker; Miss Madge Palmer is exceptionally clever as Gretchen Holtz, her dancing being capital; and Miss Katherine Herbert makes a lasting impression by her portrayal of the Countess Kara van Mechlenberg.

EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—A good all-round programme is headed by George Leyton, who, in his effective scena, The Last Muster, is heard to great advantage. The Auto Girl is a really marvellous exhibition. A musical turn of exceptional quality is given by the Jackson family, whose skill elicited the loudest appreciation. An excellent quick-change turn is given by Randolph King, and Spry and Monti, with good dancing and patter, are acceptable. The Lyric Mummers contribute a turn quite out of the common; Maude Vera and Edie Endon do well; and the Bioscope completes.

TON-Y-PANDY. — ROYAL. — General-Manager, Mr. S. Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy and company are paying a welcome return visit with In Holy Russia. Mr. H. Compton gives a breezy picture of Colonel Richard Forest; Mickey Nolan is, as usual, capably undertaken by Mr. Cassidy; Mr. P. Copeland does well as Sir Harry Beresford; and the Count Gregory Petrolski of Mr. R. Leslie is praiseworthy. Mr. St. George Frere scores heavily as Michael Natolski; and Baron von Pleve is well played by Mr. Carl Beechy. Mr. G. Lawton displays considerable skill as Ivan Overitch; Mrs Cassidy as Rubee Rubinoff creates great enthusiasm; and Miss A. McNeill is suitably cast as Catska Lavotsky.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager and Lessee, Mr. Will Stone.—Heading the bill here is Clive Watts, eccentric dancer; Jean Kram is amusing as an "erratic juggler"; Harry Bland is well described as an eccentric comedian; Master Trevor Watkins, boy soprano, and the Raynors add to the evening's enjoyment. The leading films are The Clockmaker's Secret and A Modern Grace Darling.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime The Babes in the Wood continues to attract good audiences. Miss Pattie McCarthy enhances her popularity by her energetic impersonation and pleasing singing as principal boy, and Miss Nina Carlton also wins frequent applause as Maid Marian. Mr. Frank Halpin is well placed as Will o' the Wisp, a rôle which affords plenty of scope for his excellent bass voice; La Belle Sylvia introduces some pleasing step-dances as the Babe; and Miss Cissie Williams in a similar capacity does well. Mr. Gus Walker as the Dame is as funny as ever; Mr. Lovell Rowland brings in new patter, and thoroughly delights the audience by his quaint antics; and Mr. Herbert Walton is equally amusing.

TREHERBERT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole's, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stephens.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company in the Two Little Drummer Boys was accorded a hearty reception on Monday by a crowded house. Mr. Ed. Bikker made an ideal General Kingsley, Mr. Harry Scott a capital Capt. Frank Carsdale, Mr. Oswald Douglas an effective Capt. George Darrell, and Mr. Will Percy a humorous Quiney O'Quirke, being ably assisted by Mr. Dick Seddon in the part of Tim Trimmer. Miss Maggie English as Eric Wilson and Miss Maudie Douglas as Jack Smith were excellent. Miss Violet Ingram as Margaret Rivers was good; Miss Mary Ainslie gave a fine reading of the part of Alma Kingsley, and Miss Edith Dene caused roars of laughter as Molly Meadows.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Welton Dale.—Hippodrome season, Mouillot and De Frece Circuit.—In addition to the production of a new sketch by Mr. Ginnett, entitled Claude Duval, the programme at the Hippodrome this week includes some excellent turns, notably the Alberto Trio, in a skilful athletic and balancing act; Mme. Dalmere, with her educated family of dogs, cats, and birds; Joe Mac, comedian, whose patter fairly caught on with the house; Ethel Arundel, a pleasing young vocalist; and last, but not least, the upside-down marvel Almon, who was deputising in the absence through illness of De Lilo and Metz. The Bioscope, owing to its popularity, is now shown twice at each entertainment. The new sketch had a very cordial reception. Three episodes in the life of the famous highwayman are given in three scenes, in which Mr. Arthur Max as Duval introduces the famous trained horse Roy, a cream gelding, who is a marvel of animal sagacity. The first scene is the arrival of the Windsor coach at a wayside hostelry, and is full of bustle and animation; the next scene is the stopping of the coach by Duval on a lonely moor, and the gallant highwayman dances a minuet with one of the fair passengers, and at the same time loyally returns a portfolio to Lord Leicester on learning that he is the King's messenger. In the third scene mine host of the inn has decided to betray Duval for the fifty guineas offered for his apprehension, and just as Duval is at close quarters with the constables a Royal pardon arrives, obtained through the intercession of Lord Leicester, and handed to Duval by the Lady Doris, with whom he danced the minuet. Mr. Harry Calver took the part of Lord Leicester and Mr. G. Hammond of the Innkeeper, while Miss Ray Heyden was a charming Lady Doris. Some excellent comedy was introduced by Mr. Jack Collinson as Fritz Blickenhausen, a comic passenger on the coach, and by Miss Bob Catto as Polly. The sketch is full of life and animation, and promises to be a very popular addition to Mr. Ginnett's list.

TYLDESLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company in The Power of the Cross is drawing good houses on a return visit. Mr. George A. de Gray retains his force and skill as the evil genius Baron Curzola; Dr. Leslie Fairfax has a capital representative in Mr. A. J. Haviland; Mr. Robert Hall has a fine conception of the part of Gerald Fairfax; Mr. T. Bowson presents an accurate portrait of the unscrupulous lawyer Benjamin Hawke; Miss Annie Hylton is a sweet and graceful Margaret Seaton; Miss Stella Carmichael gives a skilful performance as Rita Lascelles; Blanche Kingsley has a delightful exponent in Miss Phyllis Vaughan; Miss Etta Turner is a lively Dolly Gray; and Mr. Tyrone Power as Timothy O'Dowd is exceedingly funny.

WAKEFIELD. — OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here this week in the drama The Beggar Girl's Wedding. Mr. Otto Minster submits a fine portrayal as Jack Cunningham; Mr. James C. Taylor exhibits strong dramatic power as Dr. Millbank; the humorous element is well provided by Mr. Herbert Lloyd as Derby Storm; and Miss Daisy Maynard as Tina Torkington. Mr. Ernest G. Batley is effective as Norman Marsh; Miss Olive Warne is successful as Maud Villiers; and Mr. Herbert Morgan does full justice as Gilbert Lindsay. Mr. Harry Playfair well sustains the rôle of Joe Webster, and Mr. Horace Kenny is good as the Dodger; Mr. Doris Whyte acts charmingly as Elsie Cunningham; and Miss Vashti Wynne merits praise for her clever impersonation as Bessie Webster.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Miss Agnes Molteno and company present a beautiful musical scena which evokes hearty appreciation; the Paul Hesse Trio appear in a smart wire act; Phillips and Bristow are expert dancers; Rousby and Rene, comedy artists, are amusing; the Menzies, sketch artists, prove popular; Charles Ulrick, equilibrist, is a distinct success; and Ivy Aberdare, comedienne, dances well.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. Joseph Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is reappearing here in Hall Caine's play The Bondman. Miss Georgina Wynter scorés a success as Greeba, her acting always having that charm and naturalness as to win all hearts; a sprightly Christian Ann is Miss Emilie Mayhew, and a matronly Mrs. Fairbrother is Miss Madge Laverton. Mr. R. Scrope Quentin as Jason developed all the morose nature requisite to make the part a success, and his elocution at times reached the hall mark of perfection; Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves submitted a clever study of Michael; Mr. Oswald Lingard with his Scriptural quotations was a complete success; and in the dual rôle of Father Ferrati and Grandfather Mr. W. H. Rotherham was seen to advantage in smart character sketches. Mr. Wilfred Beckwith was a dignified Governor, and the two juveniles, Miss Gertrude Helme and Master Walter Neville, caused much merriment in the respective parts of Mona and Danny. The two Callow girls were ably represented by Miss Marie Greenhous and Miss Julia M. Willis. The minor parts are all in adequate hands and the staging up to the Court's high-class reputation.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Turner; Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—Good business is again the order this week, and an excellent entertainment is provided. The Sages are capital sketch artists, and their act, If You're Going I'm Coming Out, is a most laughable absurdity and well acted; Ena Compton is a charming comedienne, and she has a choice selection of songs; E. Morrisey in an equilibristic musical act also scores, and the pictures are good.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D. Bradbury.—Lockhart's elephants top the bill here this week, and form a splendid addition to a good all-round entertainment. They perform some wonderful tricks. The Three Alskarnos are capital Risley comedians, and the songs of Mollie and Winnie Brooke are much enjoyed. Russell Brandon is seen to advantage in a song and dance turn, and J. H. Greener has a capital voice, and his songs are all well received. John Donald scores a great success in a song scena, A Scottish Exile's Dream. The Garricks (four) are also applauded for a novel and delightful vocal act; Les Elgonas are clever gymnasts, and the pictures are good.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Kuner.—Mr. Wilson Benge is presenting The Eve of Her Wedding. Mr. Wilson Benge, in the important part of George Tremain, plays with artistic taste, and as Squire Leverton Mr. Arthur Keand sustains the part with admirable effect; a powerful interpretation of Dick Leverton is submitted by Mr. Harry Wanson; Mr. Chas. Digby as Rudolph Earle gives an interesting performance; and Dean Clifton is cleverly enacted by Mr. Wallace Campbell. Valuable assistance is forthcoming from Mr. Chas. Groves in the rôles of Paul Cairshaw, alias Hyram P. Younger. A charming and interesting representation of Mavis Leverton is furnished by Miss Sadie Smith; Miss Amy Milsted as Edith Trevanion and Miss Daisy Cook as Gwendoline Younger prove highly capable in their respective parts; and the characteristic rendering of Renie de Telle by Miss Effie Bartlett is a complete success.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—A hearty welcome is being accorded this week to G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company, which is appearing at this place of amusement in The Silver King. The part of Wilfred Denver, made famous by the late Wilson Barrett, is ably sustained by Mr. Fred. D. Daviss, Mr. Edward J. George is admirable as Daniel Jaikes, the part of the "Spider" is in the capable hands of Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp; Miss Madge Morley gives a very fine presentation of Nellie Denver; Miss Flossie Daviss as Cissy, Denver's daughter, is also very fine; and special mention should be made of the admirable acting of Mr. W. Leslie Ellis as Henry Corket, Mr. Arthur Wright as Elijah Coombe, Mr. E. Stidwell as Samuel Baxter, Miss Margaret Rooke as Susie, and Miss Mabel Gardener as Mrs. Gamage, while the other parts are all excellently sustained.

NEW HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—This week there is a welcome return visit of our old friend Aladdin, who, in the person of Miss Marie Wall, presents a very charming appearance, and fills the rôle most excellently; while Mr. Bob Stevenson as Widow Twankey is delightful. Miss Emmie Cozens as Princess Badroulbadour is very clever, and Little Babs Lloyd is a charming Fairy Queen; Staffo, the Grand Vizier, is excellent in a juggling act; Tom and Neil as Wishee and Washee give some smart boxing and wrestling turns; while Harry Rose as the Emperor and Mr. Geo. Helen as Abanazar do much to make the pantomime a great success.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—Mr. Morton Powell's production of When It Was Dark is proving successful here. Mr. Wilfred Lyndon undertakes the rôle of the Rev. Basil Gortre, and capitally discharges his responsibility; Constantine Schwabe has an impressive rendering at the hands of Mr. Haldane Dalton; in the part of Gertrude Hunt Miss Marguerite Trevosper has some difficult work, which she does in an able manner; Helena Byers has a good representative in Miss Marie Barrett, and the rôle of the Rev. Mr. Byers is creditably presented by Mr. William Burton.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—Fred Karno's Dandy Thieves has been witnessed in West Hartlepool on previous occasions, but never has it gone so well as on Monday evening, when two packed houses were kept in continuous laughter by the comedy play of George Heston, who in inimitable style essays the rôle of Sergeant Lightning. In A Tramp's Holiday the Betsons introduce some really clever comedy cycling; Captain Devereux, Emmie Ames, and Ray Royal are old favourites here who go as well as ever, "Emmie's Christmas tree" especially so; Carlotta Levey's chorus songs are much enjoyed, and Harry Bancroft contributes two taking songs. Raymond's Bioscope concludes.

WIDNES. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie; Secretary, Mr. Tom Swinton.—This week Miss Frances Glossop Harris is here with her company in the Drury Lane drama The Royal Oak. Mr. Frank Cellier is delightfully debonair as Charles II.; Mr. Percival Madgewick is a sympathetic Darien Cholmondeley; the scheming Colonel Ancketell is finely played by Mr. Arthur Goodsall; one of the successes of the evening is Mr. E. Stuart Kindens's quaint Walk-in-the-way Dearlove; Mr. Harold Haigh, in a fine make-up as the Rev. Melchezideck, does well; Miss Florence Glossop Harris acts feelingly and with artistic restraint as Mildred Clavering; Miss Mary Goulden does sound work as Bevis Cholmondeley; Miss Gertrude Tate is a winning Patty Woodroofe. The historical costumes are very picturesque, and the play is finely staged.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—The pantomime Dick Whittington is being repeated here to crowded audiences.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—La Milo, the celebrated exponent of "living statuary," is the chief centre of attraction for large audiences; George Prince causes quite an ovation with his comic songs; and the Merrions, vocal and instrumental entertainers, have a capital reception. Botello and Virginia give a sensational gymnastic performance, while the Vasilescu Troupe are exceptionally clever comedy bar artists. Frank Leon is loudly applauded for his clog-dancing; Ernest Hildred contributes some baritone vocal selections in fine style; and Tom Parker causes much merriment with his songs. Lizzie Kirk is a comedienne entirely above the ordinary, and Mlle. Ameda is a skilful equilibrist.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—Animated pictures are shown here in a style which leaves nothing to be desired, and the hall is rapidly rising in popularity. The chief pictures are The Patriot; or, the Horrors of War, The Legend of the Ghost, The Little Magician, A Jealous Fiancée, Bobby on the Spree, and Levitsky's Insurance Policy. James Conroy is a clever comedian, and is much applauded for his performance. Crowded house nightly.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinton, Travis Green, and Ruth Zillwood's company opened here on Monday in Her Fatal Marriage. Mr. Arthur Hinton is thoroughly at home as Zaco Maletto, alias Captain Vigo; Mr. Victor Millard as Wilfred Gray makes a manly young cleric; Mr. Percy Morton Wright is good as Colonel Crichton; Mr. Fred Hewitson does what little he has to do as Jim Rogers well; Mr. Gerald Byrne scores heavily as the half-witted Paul; and Mr. Henry Emerson makes a good detective as Smart. The comedy element is in the hands of Mr. Frank Brunell (Peter Pimple), Mr. Laurence Grove (Sergeant Wiggins), and Miss Laura Wright (Dolly Dimple); the latter lady simply convulses the house. Miss Ruth Zillwood displays no small amount of artistic ability as Myra Maletto, and Miss Lydia Andre plays with sympathy and charm as Lily.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Dec. 24.—Le Lys is a bold and elegantly-written work on a theme that is being discussed all over the world. The title of the play is synonymous with Odette, the eldest daughter of Comte de Magny, a ruined nobleman living on his estate in the country. De Many has a son and two daughters—Odette, aged thirty-five, and Christiane, ten years her junior. Gérard, the son, is about to marry a girl, neither young nor intelligent, but with a large dowry, the daughter of a manufacturer in the neighbourhood. Congratulations are pouring in on the family, when the fiancée's father suddenly comes upon the scene and declares that the marriage cannot take place. The de Magnys are dumbfounded, and wonder what can be the reason. No explanation is given, but Gérard discovers that his sister Christiane is supposed to have a liaison with Georges Arnaud, the proprietor of a historical manor. Arnaud is an honourable man, in love with Christiane, and separated from his wife, who refuses to divorce him because her principles as a Catholic forbid. When Christiane acknowledges the truth of the accusation, the indignation in the family circle is acute. But Odette now comes boldly forward, and in most pathetic and sincere accents covers Christiane with her sisterly wing by describing the wretched existence of a woman forced to lead a single life without love or being beloved. She, Odette, has passed from joyful youth to austere middle age, a victim to social observances. Her father having squandered his fortune in gambling and on women, she did not marry for want of a dowry, and she will not allow her younger sister to be sacrificed. In the last act Arnaud and Christiane are living in Italy. According to French law, when husband and wife have been separated for three years the consent of only one of the parties is necessary to obtain a divorce. Arnaud and his young companion, therefore, resolve to wait quietly for the moment that they can be united, when Odette unexpectedly calls upon them, accompanied by Chabreloche, an old friend of the Magny family. Odette's mission is to induce her sister to return home, but when she discovers that Christiane and Arnaud are intensely happy, she does not broach the subject, and departs, leaving them to their happiness. Mme. Suzanne Desprès gave a splendid rendering of the difficult rôle of Odette, a rôle of concentration and earnestness. Mlle. Madeleine Lély was a charming and impassionate Christiane, and those talented actors MM. Lérand, Rousselle, and Joffre rendered excellent service.

PARIS, THURSDAY, Dec. 31.—The year finishes badly. Heavy thunderclouds have gathered over our heads, charged with lawsuits and disputes that will soon burst over the theatrical world. The house that is faring worst in this respect is the Opéra, managed, as you know, by MM. Messager and Broussan, who by this time no doubt regret they ever accepted the lucrative but difficult post of directors of our first lyric stage. One of their great annoyances at the present moment is the Monna-Vanna affair. Here—as in most troubles—it is a case of "Cherchez la femme," although you need not look for her very far, for she is no other than Mme. Georgette Leblanc, the wife of M. Maurice Maeterlinck, who supplied the libretto for the before-mentioned opera. It certainly is quite natural that the great Belgian author should like to have the title-rôle sung by Mme. Leblanc; but he commits an unpardonable mistake in trying to compel MM. Messager and Broussan to entrust the part to her. Mme. Leblanc is a great, a very great actress. As a tragedienne she is unrivalled, as has been proved by the triumphs she has scored on the stage at different times. But, for some curious psychological reason, she prefers to appear in opera, for which she is less suited. Thus, when M. Maeterlinck's Ariane et Barbe-bleue was brought out at the Opéra Comique, M. Carré allowed her to create the chief rôle, with the result that the work had but a short run. On the other hand, when Pelléas et Mélisande was accepted at the same house we witnessed the same storms that are now raging at the Opéra. Mme. Georgette insisted on being specially engaged for the work, but she met with such strong opposition on the part of M. Debussy, the composer, backed by M. Carré and M. Messager, then chef d'orchestre at that house, that the gifted artist did not push things further. It was Mlle. Mary Garden who appeared as Mélisande, and the work enjoyed a tremendous run. This time, however, both M. Maeterlinck and Mme. Georgette are obdurate, and although M. Février—who wrote the music for Monna-Vanna—sides with the Opéra management, M. Maeterlinck has given MM. Messager and Broussan legal notice that he will claim £400 damages for every performance of the work produced without his sanction. The Opéra management, on the other hand, consider they have the right to give the rôle to whoever they like, and have fixed the première of Monna-Vanna for Jan. 13 with Mlle. Bréval in the leading part. This is how the matter stands at present.

UNFORTUNATELY, this is not the only trouble that has befallen our Opéra. Wanton attacks have been made on M. Broussan by a certain section of the Paris Press with the deliberate object of ousting him from his post—attacks chiefly in connection with the artists he engaged when he took over the management. Nor can it be denied that at the first glance it seemed perhaps strange that several vocalists were engaged at a respectable salary with little talent and less voice. For all that, M. Broussan's detractors know perfectly well that at the time he made these engagements he could not do otherwise. He had what we call here "la main forçée," the direct result of State intervention and State subsidy, which you in England consider a wonderful blessing, ignoring the fact that it opens the door to underhand dealings. You will understand this better when I tell you that in all subsidised houses the appointment of the manager rests with the Minister of Public Instruction and Fine Arts. Nor need I lay stress on the fact that the moment the post of director of a subsidised theatre becomes vacant candidates come forward in shoals. Each candidate, of course, has his backers, invariably political men—mostly Deputies or influential financiers—and the applicants, in order to keep their friends' zeal at boiling point, make promises which they afterwards find not easy to keep. And thus, in order to please a Deputy or a Senator, the poor candidate, once raised to power, is compelled to engage Mlle. X. or M. Y. because he or she happens to be a protégé of one of these gentlemen. There can be no doubt that similar pressure was brought to bear on M. Broussan, who, smarting under these attacks, is now dismissing artists right and left. The list of victims is a long one, and comprises Mmes. Mérentié, Borgo, Paquot d'Assy, Miranda, Augussol, Passama, Mastio, d'Elty, de Buck, Samara, Vinci, and Durif; MM. d'Assy, Boulogne, Vilmos Beck, Garbelly, Corpail, Paty, and Nuibo, who goes over to the Opéra Comique. This wholesale massacre, which includes several really distinguished singers, has come upon the public in the way of a surprise; but when we heard that M. Alvarez had also been dismissed we were really astounded. M. Alvarez has been the "star" tenor at our Opéra since 1892, and he made his last appearance in Tannhäuser, which he has sung some hundreds of times.

AT the Théâtre Réjane Raffles has been revived with much success. That clever actor M. Tréville is now appearing in the name-rôle.

PARIS, THURSDAY, Jan. 7.—The only novelty this week has been the new revue at Olympia. It bears the title 1909—Des femmes, rien que des femmes! and, in fact, the only man among this phalanx of ladies is our old friend Footit, the "compère," who has but little to say, but says it funnily. The work is splendidly mounted, and of the ten tableaux The Palace of Hats, Snob Hotel, The Dinner at the Opéra, and En route for America had the most success. The strong cast comprised Mlle. Anne Dancrey, the graceful dancer; Mlle. Allems, of music-hall renown; Mlle. Gina Palerme, Mlle. Mathilde, Gomez, and many other well-known artists. Altogether a very pretty show.

LET us begin the New Year with a laugh, and may I be allowed to supply it by divulging to the readers of The Era a queer little industry, profitable to those who practise it, but reprehensible from a moral point of view? This industry consists in exploiting the foibles of the guileless stranger and provincial; and, like most diabolical inventions, alas! it succeeds only too well, especially if it is borne in mind that many strangers and provincials—I mean the raw article—are so dazzled by the fascinations of the Gay City that they lose the little brains they brought with them from their native town. These good people come with the notion that the Paris actress is the most enchanting woman in creation, and their one ambition is to be allowed to approach these divine creatures. It occasionally happens that, by a lucky chance, one of these innocents is introduced to the great Sarah, or to Mme. Réjane, or to some other celebrity, who, in return for his respectful bow, rewards him with a sweet smile. From that moment he is a lost man. He dreams of that smile, he pesters his friends with his raptures about the great artist until Fate, in the shape of some scheming individual, conducts him to the "salons" of Mme. de X——, where, he is told, the great men and women of France congregate. Paris abounds in "salons" of that kind. Farce writers have described them, and now and then they are visited by the police, when some of these great men and women of France are entertained for a few months at the expense of the Republic. Our innocent is introduced into that milieu, where he meets generals, countesses, scientists—the celluloid article that passes for ivory. Mme. de X——, the charming hostess, then takes her guest in hand. Having graciously allowed him to lose a few pounds to her at écarté—where she showed a playful knack at turning up the king—she deflects her conversation to the drama, and, having listened with apparent interest to the man's effusions about his theatrical goddess, she whispers to him to call on her the next day. The conversation between the Paris lady-spider and the country-fly is typical, but never varies. The latter hears to his joy that he has made a deep impression on his goddess, who is anxious to meet him, but in secret, as she is closely watched by jealous adorers. Mme. de X—— says she will be only too happy to assist him in that little adventure, but, unfortunately, precautions will have to be taken that will cost money. Our innocent consents to everything. He squeezes a handful of banknotes into the kind lady's hand, and a few days later he departs from Paris in the happy belief that he has been the "amant de cœur" of a great Paris theatrical star. He will continue to believe it, even if someone tells him that the whole thing was a "fake," that the actress he met was "faked" so as to resemble his goddess, and that this "faking" process, for identical purposes, is practised in Pairs on a large scale.

ALTOGETHER, in the theatrical world, France is overrun with fakes. Many a time whilst travelling in the provinces have I entered a dingy music hall with a flaring announcement over the door that M. Paulus or some other great star would appear in his répertoire. And I always was amused to see the audience applaud the out-at-elbows artists who unblushingly passed themselves off as the genuine article. Dranem, the famous comedian, has a tremendous amount of imitators, calling themselves Dranomm, Drannem, Drahnem, &c. Pseudo Mounets and pseudo Le Bargys are also plentiful, and, if I am not mistaken, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, whilst in Chili, was compelled to call in judicial aid to prevent a lady from impersonating her. As a rule, however, the members of the Paris stage refrain from taking action against these impostors, for whom they feel more pity than anger. Apropos of this, an amusing story is told of M. Galipeaux, the well-known comic actor, famous for his practical jokes. One afternoon, whilst driving through a small watering place, he saw to his astonishment a huge poster outside the local Casino announcing that the "Great Galipeaux" was to give a recitation. Carefully muffled, Galipeaux took his seat among the audience, and rewarded his imitator with tremendous applause. After the recitation, however, he went up to that gentleman, and, shaking him by both hands, said, "I am delighted, sir, to make 'my' acquaintance."

I AM sorry to announce the death of M. Joseph Renot, who for many years was connected with the Ambigu, where during the late Grisier management he held the post of stage-manager. As an actor he was much liked and appreciated by the public. It was he who created the rôle of Lord Beverley in Les Nuits du Boulevard, and that of Garibaldi in the play of Général Bordone. His wife, Mme. Marcelle Renot, is a distinguished actress. M. Renot will be deeply regretted by all who knew him and had occasion to appreciate his qualities.

A VERY painful impression was also created in the theatrical world by the news that Mlle. Biaxa Duhamel was actually dying from want. The news came like a shock to us all. She created the name-rôle in Miss Hellyett, when she astounded all Paris by her charm and skill. It was her début on the regular stage, and she took the world by storm. The work, it will be remembered, had a phenomenal run, but, curiously enough, Mlle. Duhamel's success came to an end when the piece was withdrawn. One of our leading morning papers at once set a subscription on foot, and I am happy to state that the members of the Paris stage are responding splendidly to the appeal.

EVER since the entente with England the Germans do not lose an opportunity of showing their hatred towards France. This time they have gone very far indeed. A French periodical in Alsace-Lorraine intended to give a matinée in aid of the victims of the earthquake in Italy. Les Plaideurs by Racine, and M. Tristan Bernard's L'Anglais tel qu'on le parle were to be given. But the Ministers of H.I.M. Guillaume Touche-à-Tout refused their consent, and the matinée will not be held. This attitude in the face of a great national calamity deserves the censure of the civilised world.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Dec. 24.—In happy contrast to the modern blood-and-thunder musical drama comes this merry little opera of the Austrian composer, Karl Weiss, well known here not only by his compositions, but as a first-rate pianist. He has drawn his new work—as have others before him—from Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, and has produced a fascinating and delightful comic opera that will not readily be forgotten. The music is thoroughly in keeping with its subject—obviously its first duty. There are solos and concerted numbers which charm all hearers, and the instrumentation is very fine, without any exaggerations. One scene in the second act (which is the best) is especially effective. Andreas and his friends entice, by their singing, Maria and Malvolio out of the house. The Jester (Narr) sings a serenade, which is followed by a finely-written trio in canon form; this develops into a quartette with the assistance of Maria, and then—as Malvolio comes—into a quintet; finally, the chorus appear and join in, a splendid volume of sound closing the scene. The interpretation was a good one on the whole, if we except the rôle of Viola, which was not satisfactorily rendered. Herr Mautler carried off the laurels as Malvolio; and Fräulein Körber as Maria assisted him ably. Orchestra and chorus, under Kapellmeister Waghalter's excellent conductorship, went faultlessly, and Herr Moris staged the work with customary good taste. The composer was called repeatedly before the curtain and enthusiastically applauded.

THE clever Viennese comedian, Herr Alexander Girady, who is still giving a successful season at the Thalia, made a great hit on Saturday in L'Arronge's immortal volks-play, Mein Leopold. Herr Girady was as good in the rôle of Weigelt as were his famous predecessors, Georg Engels and Emil Thomas (both, unhappily, with us no longer), and that is praise sufficient. To say he had the large audience with him in every phase of the doting old father is quite superfluous. It was a rôle that suited him to perfection. The local company supported the guest admirably, and the good old play will assuredly draw throughout the holidays.

DR. PAUL LINDAU, the eminent author and manager, has been engaged by the Royal Schauspielhaus authorities to fill the posts of dramatic adviser and stage-manager. These positions in our State playhouse are capital things in the way of salary and pension, as well as honour, and Dr. Lindau is heartily congratulated by his many friends and admirers.

ONE of the principal actors of the Royal Schauspielhaus, Herr Adalbert Matkowsky, is seriously ill with nervous troubles in a sanatorium in a Berlin suburb. The clever artist has been ailing for some months past, but managed to keep at his post until comparatively recently. Only a week or two ago Herr Matkowsky was the recipient of many honours on the occasion of his fiftieth birthday.

DR. RICHARD STRAUSS'S new opera, Elektra, which is to be produced for the first time on any stage, at the Royal Opera, Dresden, very soon, excels its predecessor, Salome, a hundredfold in the way of difficulties of all kinds, which is saying a good deal. Frau Schumann-Heinck sings the part of Klytemnestra. In connection with the production—which the composer conducts—there is to be a Strauss week at the Dresden Royal Opera, including Salome, Feuersnot, and the Sinfonia Domestica.

"DER GRAF VON GLEICHEN,"

Play, in Three Acts and a Prologue, by Wilhelm Schmidtbonn, Produced at the Deutsches Chamber-Plays, Dec. 23.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Dec. 31.—The latest work of Herr Schmidtbonn was an unqualified success, and a well-deserved one. It is in the style of the old-time drama, the language pathetic and powerful by turns, but always superior, as is the author's characterisation. Out of the legend of Count Gleichen, the hero of the Holy Wars, Herr Schmidtbonn has formed his effective play, taking and adding to the original as his fancy prompted him. In an allegorical prologue, with which we could dispense, we see the Count Engelbrecht—who has been a captive of the Turks many years—resisting the overtures of a mysterious visitor, who is no other than the arch-enemy Death. The King of Terrors finally renounces his intended victim, on condition that the young Turkish woman who shall rescue Engelbrecht, fall to his scythe. After over a dozen years passed in his dungeon, the Count is secretly liberated by the Turkish girl, Naémi, who is as gentle as she is beautiful and virtuous. Gleichen, in his overwhelming gratitude, sets her on his waiting steed, and carries off the willing girl to his home, where his wife welcomes him as one returned from the grave. Here the conflict begins which forms the main theme of the play. In the first great joy at seeing her husband again, the Countess agrees to the wishes of the liberated man that Naémi shall have equal rank and privileges with herself. That such a state of things could continue, however, is naturally impossible, and the elder woman finally orders her young rival out of the house. Count Engelbrecht insists on her remaining, and poor Notburg—the rightful mistress—becomes desperate. She entices Naémi to the brink of a precipice, and pushes her over. She then confesses her crime to her husband, trusting he will pardon it for her great love's sake. But the Count thrusts his wife from him, and sets out on his wanderings through the world, with a firm conviction that he will never know happiness again. His one companion is the same uncanny customer we saw in the first scene, so we may conclude Count Gleichen is not long for this world. The interpretation of the piece was remarkably good, Fräulein Durieux giving a magnificent rendering of the rôle of the much-tried Countess. The author was repeatedly called in response to hearty applause, in which the Crown Prince—who was present with a number of officers—joined.

ANOTHER of the waltz operettas with which we have been deluged of late years was produced at the Theatre Des Westens last week, making a very favourable impression. The composer is again Oscar Strauss, the title is Der tapfere Soldat, and the joint authors of the amusing text are Herren Bernauer and Jacobson. The plot is drawn from Mr. Shaw's comedy, Heroes, but a good deal of liberty has been taken with the original, to fit it into the frame of an operetta. The music is bright and melodious, but the work will hardly prove a dangerous rival to its predecessor, Der Walzstraum, and certainly not to the immortal Merry Widow. It was very well performed and the composer was enthusiastically applauded.

THE Lessing Theatre made a faux pas for perhaps the first time in its life on the evening of Christmas Day. This most classical of all theatres (and famous as the best Ibsen stage throughout Germany) tried its hand at a farce, and a very poor one into the bargain. It was a three-act piece, entitled Bretzenburg, by MM. Skowronnek and Richard Wilde. The main idea is the very old one of a stray infant. In this particular case the baby is dropped into the lap of a young lady in a railway carriage, who is on her way to the little town where her fiancé lives. The "situations" which arise may be readily imagined, and details will be superfluous. The Lessing company were quite out of their element, and though they gave themselves visible pains, the result was anything but a success. A cordial reception was accorded, the popularity of Herr Skowronnek being evidently sufficient to carry him safely over a poor play poorly acted.

"DER SATYR," a three-act piece, translated by Herr Schönau from the French of MM. Berr and Guillemand, has made a decided hit at the Trianon. It is very cleverly acted and admirably mounted, and has every prospect of a long run.

AT the Gastspiel Theatre—formerly known as the Wolzogen—a new farce entitled Drahtlose Telegraphie, by Herren Friedmann and Lunzer, was produced in time for the holidays. It is not in the least original, but is sufficiently amusing to create hearty laughter—provided the audience is not blasé. The acting was good and the applause loud and genuine.

HERR SKOWRONNEK'S ever-popular comedy Husarenfieber—which ran nearly three hundred nights at the Lustspielhaus—was put in the bill at the Friedrich-Wilhelm Städtisches for the holidays, making a tremendous success. As a matter of course merriment reigned each night of the holidays, not a serious play being given. I am glad to be in a position to state that excellent business has been the rule, almost without exception.

A NEW German operetta in three acts, by Martin Knopf, text by Max Nowack, was produced at the Residenz Theatre, Dresden, last week, and achieved a very great success. The title is Das Heiratsbad.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Jan. 7.—New Year's Eve always brings a rush of novelties, the theatres on that night, as a rule, being crowded. Perhaps the best of the new pieces last Thursday was Dr. Bernstein's comedy; it was, at least, the most successful. There is a conspicuous absence of all plot, but the wit is undeniable, and there is almost a superabundance of it, the audience hardly having time to breathe for laughter. The fun is better appreciated by a German audience, it is true, the Public Prosecutor playing a leading part. The author is—as will no doubt be remembered—the famous Munich barrister who defended, with such consummate skill, Herr Maximilian Harden, in the notorious Moltke and Eulenburg cases. As is perhaps only natural, Herr Bernstein frequently enjoys poking fun in his plays at the Public Prosecutors, and in this piece, too, it is the "Staatsanwalt" Wetting who is made the scapegoat. Wetting is a narrow-minded pedant, who is in love—as much as his selfish nature permits—with a pretty and well-endowed maiden named Charlotte. Presently, however, there comes along one of those smart young journalists of the immortal type of Konrad Bolz, who promptly falls in love with Charlotte. She cannot resist Paul Voss, whom she knew as a child before he set out on the travels which have helped to make him such a delightful companion, and she compares him with her dry-as-dust Staatsanwalt to the latter's great disadvantage. It is not an easy thing to break a betrothal in the Fatherland, but the lovers, of course, succeed in the end. There are various incidental episodes, several other official functionaries being held up to ridicule in the author's customary clever manner, and the audience thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The capital acting considerably aided the success of the piece, which will doubtless enjoy a lengthy run.

A GOOD old Berlin burlesque made a hit at the Berliner Theatre on New Year's Eve. The author, David Kalisch, has long been gathered to his fathers, but his numerous farce-burlesques will live in the theatres of his native city. This particular one—Einer von unsere Leut—is as sentimental in parts as it is funny in others, partaking more of the nature of a volks-play, while some up-to-date couplets have been added with good effect. Fräulein Dora, one of our most fascinating soubrettes, created a perfect furore with the singing of several of these songs.

"DER SCHLAGBAUM," a three-act comedy by Heinrich Lee, has been revived at the Royal Schauspielhaus after an interval of many years. It was produced—if my memory fail me not—at the Berliner Theatre, under the management of the late Intendant Prasch, and was at that time fully described in your columns. The reception accorded to it last week was such as to justify the prediction of a considerable run.

THE Luisen Theatre produced a new farce on Saturday last with every appearance of success. Herr Duchow is the author—a writer who has already made his mark in similar pieces—and the title is the somewhat unmeaning one of Der fliegender Berliner. It is the story of a master shoemaker, who becomes wealthy by the winning of a lottery prize, but who is the victim for years of his manager—a smart villain who robs his employer at every turn. That all comes right in the end, and that the thief meets with his deserts is a matter of course. The acting was very vivacious, making up for the tediousness of several of the scenes.

BERNARD SHAW'S quaint comedy The Doctor's Dilemma reached on Saturday its twenty-fifth performance at the Deutsches Chamber Plays. It still attracts fairly good audiences, for which fact the very good acting is chiefly responsible.

I REGRET to record the untimely death of Fräulein Grete Müller, a member, for the last year or two, of the Friedrich Wilhelm Städtisches Theatre. Grete Müller was only just turned twenty-two when she was called away, but she had been before the Berlin public for fifteen years, being one of a large and well-known family of actors. Her first important part was that of the child-king in Herr von Wildenbruch's fine play König Heinrich, which was produced under Herr Prasch's management at the Berliner Theatre some twelve years ago—a part in which she aroused the admiration of all critics. Since that time she has played at many leading theatres, always with distinct success. The cause of the talented young artist's death was heart disease.

MR. EDITOR,—SIR,—Would you kindly correct in your report the following mistake? In your notice of the Shakespeare, Clapham, Mr. Will Harris is singing his latest success, "I planted it in the garden," and not "Cos he was smarter than me.' Thanking you in anticipation.—Yours faithfully ASHLEY BEALE."

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, DEC. 16.—Miss Annie Russell, who is appearing at Weber's Theatre in The Stronger Sex, a three-act comedy, by John Valentine, received a cordial welcome on her return to the local stage after a year's absence. Miss Russell acts with her usual skill and personal charm the part of Mary Barrington, the American heiress and husband-tamer, and is ably supported by Mr. Oswald Yorke, Mr. Robert Drouet, Miss Helen Tracy, and Miss Alma Kruger, minor parts being well played by Messrs. Doré Davidson, William Wadsworth, and Elwyn Eaton.

Mme. Mimi Aguglia and her company of Sicilian players are fulfilling an engagement at the Broadway Theatre that has proved fairly successful. Their performances are remarkable for their realism and power, but as very few Americans understand their language, their audiences are chiefly composed of their fellow-countrymen.

The Mollusc, when its New York engagement ended, was sent "on the road." Miss May Irwin succeeded Miss Alexandra Carlisle in the title-rôle, and continued to appear also in the curtain-raiser, Mrs. Peckham's Carouse. In St. Louis a few days ago Miss Irwin was taken seriously ill with tonsilitis, and her engagements for the next few weeks have been cancelled.

The corner-stone of the New Theatre was laid yesterday afternoon with appropriate ceremonies in the presence of a representative gathering of several hundred people. A choral song, composed by Mr. Percy Mackaye, was sung by a chorus of 120 voices, after which Mayor McClellan addressed the assemblage. President Roosevelt sent his good wishes, and Mr. Richard Watson Gilder composed a piece of verse for the occasion entitled "Shakespeare's New Home." The New Theatre will begin its first season next November, under the direction of Mr. Winthrop Ames, and Mr. Lee Shubert will be the business manager. There will be a permanent stock company, composed of eminent players, and financial success is to be a secondary consideration. The theatre is advantageously situated at the corner of Sixty-second-street and Central Park West.

NEW YORK, DEC. 23.—The most important event at the theatres during Christmas week will be the appearance this evening at the Empire Theatre of Miss Maude Adams in the four-act comedy, by James M. Barrie, entitled What Every Woman Knows. The house is sold out, and for once the ticket speculators have been defeated, thanks to the strenuous efforts of Mr. Charles Frohman. Mr. Joseph O'Mara in Peggy Machree opened at the Broadway Theatre on Monday, after a prosperous tour of the principal cities, and was accorded a most enthusiastic reception. Mr. Wilton Lackaye in Cleveland Moffett's new drama The Battle began an engagement at the Savoy Theatre on the same evening, and scored a success. At the Casino to-night the favourite comedian, Mr. Eddie Foy, will appear in a two-act musical comedy, entitled Mr. Hamlet of Broadway.

"SKYSCRAPERS" is the novel title of a comedy, in three acts, that was recently produced at the New German Theatre in this city. Written by two Austrians, Messrs. Carl Roessler and Ludwig Heller, the play gave the Americans another opportunity of seeing themselves as others see them. The plot deals with the family affairs and matrimonial complications of a millionaire New Yorker, Francis Cormack, and his four daughters. Ethel Santley, the eldest, has been three times married and three times divorced, and ere the play ends she plans to take her fourth plunge into the troubled sea of matrimony. Florence, Countess Taxenbach, is her father's business associate, and the other daughters, Grace and Violet, are unmarried. The family are staying at the Hotel Astor, where Count Taxenbach introduces Baron Zeissl, an impecunious young Austrian whom the Count has met abroad. The Baron is at first supposed to be a guest, but he is really employed as a waiter. Violet, the youngest daughter, a self-willed girl, is attracted to the Baron at once. Herold, a director in Cormack's Bank, is a suitor for Ethel's hand, but she tells him he must do something daring in order to win her love, and Ethel's father has promised his consent to the union if Herold can make a million dollars in twenty-four hours. How he complies with this condition and does the daring deed at the same time is by abstracting a large sum of money from Cormack's safe. He speculates during the day, and wins a large amount. Cormack sends out detectives to catch the thief, whose identity is, of course, unknown to him. In the meantime, Violet has obtained a cheque for a goodly sum from her father, and engaged the Baron to accompany her to Europe as her courier. They are arrested as they are about to go on board the steamer, and during their detention by the police they become engaged to each other. Herold's purpose being accomplished, he restores the money to Cormack, and Ethel consents to marry him. Violet's engagement displeases her father, but he has to grin and bear it. So much for the story; and now for the incidentals. The former husbands of Ethel, three in number, assemble to see "our wife" so that she may ask their advice regarding her fourth venture. She remarks that it is "so nice for them to have a comfortable little chat together." Another "typical American girl" falls in love with an operatic tenor, an Indian Rajah, a French Prince, and a minister in the brief space of three days. Yet another is an athletic schoolgirl, who parades the parental home in gymnasium bloomers, swinging Indian clubs. On her return from school this striking young person demands to see her millionaire father, of whom she has heard so much but never seen, until she has come to the conclusion that he is a myth. When he appears she immediately "strikes him" for a trip to Europe. The millionaire's wife has a leaning towards theosophy. The Indian Rajah, who has come to America to arrange for the building of a railway in his domain, is convinced that the happiness of his people depends on his keeping out the skyscrapers. The journalistic enterprise of the Americans is illustrated by a reporter who wears a frock coat decorated with a nosegay, and grey kid gloves. Around his neck is strung a camera and in his hand he carries a red leather memorandum book.

MISS ADELINE GENEE, during her engagement in Washington with The Soul Kiss, was received by President Roosevelt, by special appointment, at the White House. Miss Genée is at present winning the applause of the multitude at Ford's Opera House in Baltimore.

IN the course of the hearing in Paris last week of a charge against a man who bought a pair of opera-glasses which had been stolen from a theatre, it was stated that 1,400 pairs of glasses are purloined from the theatres of Paris in the course of a year.

Antony and Cleopatra, Mr. Richard Flanagan's fourteenth annual Shakespearean revival, was put on at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, on Saturday, Dec. 26, with every promise of success. Antony and Cleopatra stands somewhat outside the range of the dramatist's best work; neither the one character nor the other is limned with that profound intuition and sharp outline which distinguish many better-known tragic figures in his works; nor does the sense of tragedy accompany to any very marked degree the slow and laboured movement of the plot. Consequently, unless the two central parts are in the hands of an actor and actress of transcendent individuality the purport is apt to seem less impressive than it is, and to be obscured by the mere spectacular interest. The latter element, however, it must be admitted, is a great consideration of the many patrons of the Queen's Theatre, and if they have magnificence of setting they are not too critical of the rest, though they are never lacking in their appreciation of great drama and good acting. Good acting—admitting, of course, that the staging is up to the very high standard which has contributed so much to the success of these revivals—will account to a large degree for the success of the present production. In the hands of Miss Darragh and Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw the chief parts are expounded with due sense of their tragic import, so that, to some degree at least, the apprehension of a tremendous issue is created in the audience, and tends to pervade the whole surface of the play. The passion of Antony for Cleopatra was a glorious but ignoble thing; it presents the spectacle of a well-beloved and heroic conqueror sacrificing honour and power to the allurements of a woman—a splendid temptress—comparable only with Helen of Troy, whose love was the last attainment, the highest reach, of mortal happiness. Antony's abandonment to this, with its attendant tortures of the mind, form an excellent trial of Mr. Robertshaw's ability. He essays it in the manly but variable temper of the original; he is clear, direct, and strenuous as required; and on the opening night his efforts met with their due reward of praise. His whole performance was, in fact, finely subordinated to the dominating thought of Cleopatra. The influence of the beautiful Greek, in the person of Miss Darragh, is curiously penetrating, though it would be as idle to assert that she realises one's idea of Cleopatra as a woman as to undertake to produce Cleopatra from the dead. Miss Darragh invests the part with the personality of a purely emotional actress. She has natural charms, and is therefore pleasing to the eye; her movements are supple, sinuous, and suggestively characteristic; and her voice sounds along her lines like a beautiful musical instrument. Cleopatra was perhaps more voluptuous than Miss Darragh would endeavour to suggest, both in temperament and costume. It is, nevertheless, as fine an impersonation as playgoers were led to expect from an actress who has had ample experience in high-class drama, and who can convey much in a look or a tone. Mr. Hamilton Deane as Cæsar fills the part with dignity, delivering his lines with studious care and manly effect. Mr. Frank Woolfe as Enobarbus has more plastic opportunities, and he uses them with the skill and resource of an actor who has previously made his mark in these productions. Mr. Leonard Robson as Eros, Miss Phyllis Relph as Charmian, and Miss Ella Thornton as Iras were also very good in an unassuming way. One must not forget, also, the Agrippa of Mr. W. F. Stirling, Mr. John Wainwright's Sextus Pompeius, and the Lepidus of Mr. J. H. Atkinson, whose gift of humour, by the way, has less chance this year than heretofore. Of the scenery, much praise in detail might be written, but every set is beautiful, dignified, and worthy of the theme they illustrate. Mr. William Palmer may be congratulated especially upon The Landing-stage of Cleopatra's Palace, Near Misenum, The Banks of the Nile, and the brilliantly-effective tableau of the Sea Fight near Actium. There is also a very brave show of costumes, Egyptian and Roman, red cloaks and plumes, brass helmets and shining armour, and other gorgeous trappings of pomp and circumstance. Some incidental singing by the Queen's Theatre choir is enjoyed, and an Oriental dance by Miss Eva Moore is gracefully and effectively done. The music which accompanies the action has been composed by Dr. Henry Watson (Cantab.), and though it is sometimes intrusive and monotonous, it is agreeable on the whole. An elaborate tinted souvenir of the production, supplied within the theatre, is from the press of Mr. Geo. Hargreaves, and contains, beside Mr. Palmer's drawings, an illuminating exposition of the play by Mr. J. Cuming Walters, editor of the Manchester City News.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Jan. 4, the Drama, in Four Acts, by H. R. Sylva, entitled "GREED OF GOLD."

Mr. T. Morton Powell's company, in Greed of Gold, is drawing excellent business this week. The character of Tom Wolstead, the dumb man, is capitally impersonated by Mr. James Jarrett, who works with untiring energy, and makes an emphatic success. Mr. Henry Parr gives an excellent performance of Harry Hood. Mr. Alf. Stretton plays well as Arthur Erroll; Mr. Arthur Benfort gives a clever rendering of Cully Snig; Mr. Charles E. Wood is very amusing as Conn Creamer; Mr. Brightside has an excellent representative in Mr. Victor C. Rolfe; Mr. J. Field is good as Mee Chow; Mr. D. Carr is smart and incisive as Markham Keene; Mr. C. Williams is good as John Hagley, as is Mr. C. Osborne as Police-constable Head; Mr. C. R. Eglinton is well placed as Counsel for the Prosecution; and other parts are well acted by Messrs. Ernest W. Launder and J. Wilkie. Miss Maud M. Powell gives an attractive rendering of Dora Hood, whose little son is well represented by Miss Beatrice Maud Hughes; Patty Marfield is brightly and pleasingly acted by Miss Florrie Hayes; and the ill-fated Mrs. Maxwell is played with ease and dignity by Miss Jennie Douglas Hicks. The scenery is good, and the Engine House at Glynn Mills is especially realistic.

Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty could scarcely have wished for a more enthusiastic reception than was accorded the first performance of their new venture, The Eyes of the World, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, on Monday evening last week. The first act concluded to the accompaniment of a perfect furore of applause, and the subsequent acts were received with equally emphatic expressions of approbation on the part of the audience.

The author has laid his plot in an influential circle of modern French society, displays a singularly intimate knowledge of his subject, and essays a tilt at the essentially French matrimonial custom of family-arranged marriages. In powerful fashion he emphasises the dangers of domestic infelicity which may attend upon loveless unions, but whilst this is a prominent feature of the play, it is not the prime motive. The fundamental subject of the play is the ancient law which decrees that the sins of the fathers shall recoil upon their children.

Hélène de l'Orme is a high-minded, warm-hearted woman, allied to an unworthy husband, who is incapable of appreciating her true qualities. She bears the indignities that are thrust upon her with as much patience as her refined temperament will admit, until a chance circumstance reveals to her the guilty intrigue that exists between her husband and Esmé de Carnac, the wife of a close friend. Her high sense of honour is so outraged by the discovery that she determines to unmask the whole hideous business, but to avoid the scandal which would thus be divulged to the eyes of the world she is prevailed upon to maintain secrecy. Not even the deceived husband, Gaston de Carnac, is enlightened, but though Hélène consents to secrecy she refuses to remain further with her unfaithful husband, and goes into voluntary exile with her child.

The second act (the date of which is definitely fixed as June 21, 1908) finds Hélène, after a lapse of ten years, still separated from her husband, and as no reason for this matrimonial estrangement has been made public, it is inevitable that, in the eyes of the world, the sole blame is attached to the woman. Thus Hélène finds herself socially ostracised, whilst the really guilty woman remains a leader of influential society, and continues the liaison with Hélène's husband. This act provides the finest scenes of the play. There is a touching scene in which Hélène discovers that her daughter, Avice, has formed an attachment for Octave de Carnac, the son of Esmé de Carnac. The possible consanguinity between the young couple renders it imperative that the desired betrothal should be abandoned, and in order to convince Octave of this, Hélène is compelled to reveal to him the story of his mother's shame.

Afterwards it is conclusively proved to Hélène that her fears are groundless, and she then hopes to secure the happiness of her child by bringing about a marriage with Octave. But a new difficulty presents itself. Octave's father will not consent to a marriage unless Hélène will conform to convention by returning to her husband, or, as another resource, yield her own life to remove the barrier. Hélène is now placed between the alternatives of wrecking her daughter's life or suffering bitter self-martyrdom. She fights hard to soften the heart of Octave's father, but her pleas fall upon deaf ears, until (this in the third act) she is driven in desperation to break silence and justify her separation from her husband by revealing to Gaston de Carnac (Octave's father) the perfidy of his own wife.

Gaston is incredulous, but Hélène's husband, in whom remorse has been gradually but surely awakening, unexpectedly corroborates her by confessing his guilt and that of his paramour. Although in this brief synopsis of the plot this dénouement may seems abrupt, it is not so in reality, but is artistically and naturally effected. Gaston de Carnac, although stunned by the revelation of his wife's infidelity, removes his objection to the marriage, the happiness of the young couple is assured, and a reconciliation is effected between Hélène and her husband.

As may be imagined, the play called for much deeply emotional acting, and the greatest share of this fell upon Miss Ethel Van Praagh, as Helene de l'Orme. She represented the tender devotion of the mother with sincerity, and displayed dramatic fervour in the intensely emotional scenes that occur at the conclusion of each act. Mr. George D. Daiper acted with distinction as Hector de l'Orme, and Mr. Will Casey was equally good as Gaston de Carnac. The interesting character of Octave found a sympathetic exponent in Mr. Charles Stirling. Mr. W. Rowe portrayed Paul Roqueville with suitable dignity. Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh admirably realised the overbearing conduct of Esmé de Carnac; and Miss Irene Stanhope was charmingly ingennous as Avice. The light-comedy relief was capably provided by Mr. J. Edward Whitty as Achille Fanfarade and Miss Nellie Garside as Susanne Pomfleure.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Jan. 4, the Drama entitled
"DRIVEN FROM HOME."

Mr. Andrew Melville's large and talented company is presenting this week a really interesting play, and in Driven from Home are found numerous scenes abounding in strong situations and stirring incidents, interspersed with plenty of humour, the latter being received by the audience with every manifestation of approval. The drama is well mounted, the scene depicting the Interior of the Saw Mills, with the machinery in motion, being noteworthy. Mr. Felix Pitt undertakes the character of Anthony Raybrook with excellent effect, and although an unsympathetic part, he gives a clever impersonation, using his powerful voice with much ability. Miss Violet Ennis Lawson essays the dual rôles of Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh the younger. In the former character she offers a pathetic rendering of the daughter driven from home, and acts in a painstaking style; in the latter part as the boy she makes an excellent impression. Mr. P. George Beresford as Walter Hatherleigh instils considerable feeling into the part, and scores highly. Mr. C. Burdon as Geoffrey Waring gives a good delineation of the character, and supplies a clever study. Mr. Percy Dawson puts a good deal of dramatic power into his representation of Willie, the outcast, and succeeds to the utmost. Mr. Fred C. Imbert is thoroughly diverting, and imparts much humour to the part of John Anderson, for which he is heartily recompensed; Miss Susie Bevan as Margaret Bailey also assists to keep the ball of fun rolling, in which effort she is quite successful. Dick Saunders is in the very capable hands of Mr. E. Finlay, who does ample justice to the part. Mr. Harry Cornwall makes a most suitable Jabez Thomas. The remaining members of a long cast lend adequate assistance.

DEATH OF GEORGE LAURI.

In circumstances of the saddest character the death has taken place in Sydney, New South Wales, of the comedian George Lauri, a member of the famous family bearing that name, who was found dead with his throat cut in the early part of this week. About nine months ago Mr. Lauri suffered a breakdown in health due to overwork, and his doctors ordered him a sea voyage. He accordingly set out for New Zealand and the Blue Mountains, and finally went to America, returning by way of San Francisco. His efforts to secure a restoration to health were unhappily unavailing, and he went back without having benefited in any way.

The deceased comedian was the son of John Lauri, the famous ballet master, who was associated in that capacity with the terpsichorean triumphs at Her Majesty's, the Gaiety, and Lyceum Theatres. He was brother to Mrs. Walter Slaughter and the late Mrs. Harry Ulph, and cousin to Mr. Edward Lauri, the well-known London actor. George Lauri went to America some twenty years ago, and appeared there with the late Willie Edouin, playing his parts and helping to make a fortune for his manager. He then went to Australia under the management of Williamson and Musgrove, where he speedily took the place of the late William Elton, who was acknowledged to be the greatest favourite who ever went out to that country. Mr. Lauri commenced with Gilbert and Sullivan opera, following on with Gaiety and Daly's successes, in which he played principal comedian, a rôle which he retained to the time of his death. The Musgrove-Williamson company eventually developed into the Royal Comic Opera company, under the sole direction of Mr. Williamson. Mr. Lauri's most notable successes were as Jack Point in The Yeoman of the Guard and Tweedlepunch in Florodora.

One of the quickest studies in existence, Mr. Lauri had a répertoire second to none, and it may be said of him that he could play in any comedy opera at a night's notice. He had a wonderful voice, and was an accomplished dancer. He was a unique personality among playgoers, and it is a remarkable fact that his admirers would not allow him to appear in any make-up beyond that of wig and grease-paint. If he put on a beard or any other disguise the audience would demand that they should be removed. They wanted the comedian himself, and it was confidently predicted that unless George could be readily recognised the piece could never hope for success.

Mr. Lauri was an ardent sportsman, and owned several racehorses. His influence in the promotion of charity was phenomenal, and it was generally admitted that he could collect more money for philanthropic purposes than anybody in the Commonwealth, not even excepting the Governor-General himself. He had only to walk about among the merchants and plead his cause, and money would roll in to whatever extent he desired. When any charitable object was mooted he was always first in the field, and he presided over practically every charity in the city. His efforts in respect to the companies with which he was connected were equally admirable. He established a fund by which the minor members of the companies, the chorus, and auxiliaries were for a nominal subscription assured of their salary and medical attendance during illness, and were often sent away to a sanatorium at the expense of the Fund, which grew to such an extent that money could be devoted to outside charities. Truly George will be sadly missed by the poorer members of the profession in Australia! We offer our sincere condolences to the bereaved relatives. By the death of George Lauri, his cousin, Mr. Edward Lauri, becomes the only remaining male member of the family appearing before the public.

"Ticey," a comedy, in four acts, by William Gillette, was performed for the first time in New York at the Liberty Theatre on the 18th ult. The play was originally entitled That Little Affair at the Boyd's, The scenes are laid in England, and the chief characters are Kitty Cameron, a famous actress, and an ambitious playwright named Stephen Boyd. The latter is an idealist, and his plays have just missed being successful. Kitty and he have grown up together, but have drifted apart. Although they are in love with each other, love has been subordinated to ambition and has remained unexpressed. Boyd has tried to sell his latest play, but without success. Unknown to Kitty, he has followed her from town to town, and at last they meet by accident in a restaurant. She has seen the manuscript of his play, as it has been submitted to her manager, and as the result of their conversation she realises the situation and perceives the obstacle to Boyd's success. Knowing that he is too proud to accept assistance, she has recourse to a subterfuge. In the second and third acts she appears as Ticey, a clumsy, ignorant "slavey," in the household of the playwright's mother. With consummate tact she contrives to point out the mistakes in Boyd's play. He revises the manuscript, and submits it to a manager, and it is accepted at once. On the night of the first performance Ticey disappears from the household and assumes the leading rôle in the play, which proves a big success. Boyd is now in a position to propose to Kitty, and she accepts him. He fails to discover that she and Ticey are one and the same person, but as the curtain falls she remarks, "Some day I may tell you something." Miss Mary Ryan as Kitty Cameron was charming, and as the smudge-faced kitchen drudge, Ticey, she brought out the humour and sentiment of the situation delightfully. Mr. Winchell Smith was very good as Stephen Boyd, and Mr. Dallas Welford gave an amusing impersonation of a Cockney bounder named Wedgeley. The play was performed in the afternoon for the benefit of a local charity.

It may be at once conceded that A Repentant Sinner is a drama decidedly above the average, both in strength and consistency of story. It has a theme which is never lost sight of from beginning to end, and with really funny comedy naturally introduced the play should be one to please every class. It speaks volumes for its engrossing power that, though the curtain did not finally fall till a very late hour, the whole of the audience, which occupied every inch of the theatre, remained till the end. The story opens in the living room of Mulberry Farm on Christmas Eve (a charmingly picturesque and homely set). Dora, the daughter of a farmer named Daniel Debenham, although engaged to John Merryweather, a young doctor, who is expected, has been for the time blinded by her infatuation for Stephen Lorridale, a stranger from town, who has been staying in the village. When John tells her of his appointment as house surgeon at a London hospital, which will hasten their marriage, he is decidedly hurt at Dora's coldness. Her Aunt Ariminta suspects the conditions, and confides her suspicions to the farmer, who is much upset when they are confirmed by a blind old farm hand, who has overheard a conversation between Lorridale and Dora. Daniel, feeling uneasy, confides to Dora in a most natural and touching scene that the mother she has always mourned as dead really deserted him many years ago, and for all he knows may yet be alive. Hoping her mother's story may be a warning, he retires, leaving Dora torn with anxiety 'twixt love and duty. Stephen Lorraine appears at the window, and after a powerful scene Dora has bidden her home good-bye. As the bells proclaim that Christmas has dawned, the farmer is seen stricken with grief, realising that his daughter has fled from her home as her mother, his wife, did eighteen years before.

A month passes, and we are at the Doctor's, in London, whither the farmer has come, having fallen on hard times. To John he shows an old case containing jewellery, which had belonged to his runaway wife, and which he proposes to sell in order to find Dora. La Belle Estelle, a wealthy patient (who suffers from a peculiar heart trouble), is announced, and, being left alone, recognises the jewellery left on the table by Dan as her own. Eventually these two meet, and though Dan recognises his lost wife, Estelle disclaims all remembrance of having seen him before. In Act III. we find Estelle at home in a gorgeous establishment in Kensington, which is, in reality, little better than a gambling hell. Lorridale, who is the head of a secret society, announces to Estelle his intention of introducing into their circle a young girl, who is to answer the purpose of a decoy. The girl is, of course, Dora, whom Lorridale has kept in hiding since the night she fled. She asks Lorridale to delay their marriage no longer, and he makes arrangements to leave for Paris that night. John calls to see Estelle, and is horrified to meet Dora, who disclaims all knowledge of the character of the house. Little dreaming it is her own daughter, Estelle decides to save this girl from a fate similar to her own. Lorridale enters to find Dora gone. Later the house is surrounded by the police, but Lorridale escapes. On learning that she has saved her own child, Estelle falls, apparently dead. It is really one of her old heart attacks, and she thus escapes the law. In the next act search is being made for Dora, who has escaped in the night from Estelle's house. Eventually in a garret on Tower Hill Dora learns that Estelle is her mother. Lorridale is confronted by John and a fight ensues, Lorridale being shot by Mark Witherley. It is harvest time, when we are once again back at Mulberry Farm. Dora and John are about to marry, and Dora pleads with her father not to cloud her happiness by leaving her mother unforgiven. Estelle enters, and after a very pathetic scene she and Daniel are once more united.

Mr. Archie Chappell gave an excellent performance of Dan, supplying light and shade to a complex character. Mr. Aidan Lovett was a virile Lorridale, and received excellent support from Mr. Quartermayne as Mark Witherley. Mr. Herbert Robinson was the Doctor to the life. The comedy, which is a strong point, received excellent treatment at the hands of Messrs. Charles Howarth and Willie H. Vernon, Miss Beatrice Reynolds, and Miss Jenny Bostock. Miss Marie de Roos was good as Estelle, and Miss Amy Dalby was a natural and interesting Dora. The other numerous characters were excellently played. The scenery, painted by Mr. John Cunningham, was on a lavish scale, and the special overture and incidental music by Mr. Harry L. Gibson were much admired. The whole production was under the direction of Mr. Douglas C. Phelps, who was cast for the part of Dan for Thursday and Friday, Dec. 31 and Jan. 1.

A new modern comedy in three acts, entitled Betty's Engagement, by G. E. Jennings, will be produced at the Kinton Theatre, Henley-on-Thames, on Thursday. The cast will include Miss Gertrude Henriques and Miss Hilda Thorpe.

An interesting ceremony was performed in the lounge of the Opera House, Crewe, on Saturday evening, when a party of friends and well-wishers met together for the purpose of presenting a cheque, subscribed by themselves, to Mr. Charles Howard, the resident manager for Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett, on the occasion of his leaving Crewe to join Mr. Bennett at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham. During the short time he has been at the Opera House Mr. Howard has made himself very popular, and he carries with him the best wishes of all. Mr. Alfred Cuthbert will co-operate with Mr. Bennett in the management of his Crewe theatre.

One of the principal features in the successful pantomime at the Dalston Theatre is the revival of a good old-fashioned harlequinade, invented and produced by that well-known pantomimist and clown Mr. Tom Green. During the past few years this important item has disappeared from the Christmas productions, but a few of the London managers find that the harlequinade is a source of amusement for the youngsters, and, for that matter, of some of the elders, who remember the days when they revelled in the antics of Dick Stilt, Harry Boleno, Huline, Harry Payne, Fred Evans, Chas. Laurie, Alf Griovenella, and many Evans, Chas. Lauri, Alf Giovenella, and many others. It is a fact worthy of note that at the Dalston Theatre the audience remain in their seats to the end to see Mr. Green's harlequinade.

This is a well-constructed melodrama, and the fact that it contains a great many villains proved an element of success. The villain-in-chief is Nathalie, a widow. Her husband having left her and her little boy, Laurent, penniless, she is compelled to accept the hospitality of her brother-in-law, Philippe de Croix-Vitré, the husband of the beautiful Suzanne. Nathalie is anxious that her son should inherit enormous property of the Croix-Vitré family. As Suzanne expects to become soon a mother, the treacherous Nathalie arouses in Philippe a suspicion that his wife is not faithful to him, adding that she has secret rendezvous with a certain Marberoux. This Marberoux has for a long time past pestered Suzanne with his declarations, to which the lady refused to listen. In the opening act—a kind of prologue—happening to meet Suzanne in a lonely spot in the park, he tries to assault her, whereupon the terrified woman draws a small dagger and stabs him. Attracted by her screams, Philippe and Nathalie rush to the rescue, when, to Suzanne's horror, Marberoux informs Philippe that he, Marberoux, has been Suzanne's lover. With that lie on his lips he dies. Suzanne's protestations are of no avail. Philippe believes her to be guilty. He will not even see Rose, the little girl to whom she has given birth, and who, under an assumed name, is handed to the care of a farmer's family. Sixteen years are supposed to have elapsed. Suzanne, in order to have Rose near her, tells Philippe that the child died from an accident, and she cleverly manages to get Rose engaged in her service as laundry-maid. The wily Nathalie, however, watches. She compels Suzanne to confess that Rose is her daughter, but despite her entreaties Philippe continues to doubt her word. When Suzanne sees that Marberoux's supposed dying confession has made an ineffaceable impression on him, she resolves to sacrifice her life to save her child. She throws herself off the rocks, and in a dying shriek proclaims her innocence. Philippe at last is convinced, but too late; and he is struck with an apoplectic fit, that leaves him paralysed. Nathalie and her unworthy son, Laurent, then want to lay their hands on the fortune that seems within their grasp. But after a series of thrilling scenes their efforts are frustrated. Laurent tries to kill Rose, but he is strangled by Philippe, who recovers sufficient strength to punish the miscreant. The wicked Nathalie goes mad when she sees the dead body of her son; but Rose, heiress to the immense Croix-Vitré property, becomes the wife of Henriot, an honest young farmer, who helped her in all her troubles. The Ambigu evidently took much trouble over the work. It is well mounted, and no fault can be found with the acting. Mme. Tessandier's rôle as the sombre Nathalie was particularly unpleasant, but the gifted actress made the most of it. Mlle. Emmy Lynn made a triumphal début as Rose. Mlle. Cécile Barré was a sprightly Claudine; M. Camille Bert cleverly impersonated the disbelieving husband; and MM. Bélières, Villé, Morgan, and Liézer completed a first-class ensemble.

COLONEL MAPLESON ON BOOK-KISSING.

To the Editor of The Era.

Sir,—A very eminent prima donna (who is at present under engagement to me, but whose name I purposely withhold for fear that this letter might be regarded as an advertisement) was recently subpœnaed as a witness in a law case. The Book which was handed her to kiss was dirty and ill-smelling. Some days after the lady in question was troubled with a rash on her mouth and chin, which finally affected her throat. The doctor pronounced it a malignant itch, and he felt no hesitancy in declaring it to have been transmitted to his patient through the foul Testament she had been compelled to kiss at the Court. It took two months to cure this ailment, and during this time the prima donna lost a considerable sum through inability to fulfil professional engagements. Ever since the science of preventing disease became a serious study attention has been drawn to the danger and risks which witnesses run in kissing Court Testaments. Even a casual inspection of these books is sufficient to show their horribly grimy condition, and a microscopical examination would undoubtedly reveal a state of things too disgusting to contemplate. The late Judge Pitt-Taylor is reported to have stated that he considered the practice of kissing the Book as insanitary, repulsive, and absolutely unnecessary; and he advocated in language not less emphatic that the older ceremony of laying the hand on the Testament should be reverted to.

Not long ago it was proved that a witness suffering from a virulent contagious disease of the lips was allowed by a High Court judge to kiss the Book, and although there was a talk of drawing the attention of Parliament to the matter, nothing has been done to remedy the evil.

Why not adopt in this country the Scottish system, whereby the oath is administered by the witness holding up the right hand when taking the ordinary oath.

I remember about five years ago, during an epidemic of small-pox in London, that the High Court judges had notices issued informing witnesses of their right to be sworn in the Scottish form in accordance with the provisions of the Oaths Act. "Kissing the Book" is unknown in Continental countries, where the old English form is used of laying the hand upon an open Bible whilst repeating the words, "I swear to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth," excepting in France, where the same formula is used, but the witness holds up his right hand instead of touching the Bible.

Witnesses in English Courts should take the law in their own hands, and refuse to kiss "filthy and unclean" books, rather than run the risk of catching a cutaneous disease or something worse.—Yours faithfully,

HENRY MAPLESON (Colonel),
President of the International Society of Music.

47, Charing Cross-road.

Mr. Mayor-Cooke will open on Monday as the Demon at the Empire, Southend, in Messrs. Conquest and Bateman's revival of the dramatic success The Crimes of Paris. It is interesting to recall that in the production of this drama at the Pavilion, Mile End, in the 'eighties Miss Ada Reeve played the part of the child.

Miss Chrissie Ralland, a popular member of the Wheeler-Edwardes company now touring in the Far East, was married quietly recently to Mr. C. H. Rodwell, Imperial Secretary to Lord Selborne, High Commissioner of South Africa. We offer the clever young actress and vocalist our sincerest congratulations.

PROVINCIAL PANTOMIMES.

"THE FORTY THIEVES" AT CHELTENHAM.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard's pantomime The Forty Thieves was produced at the Cheltenham Opera House on Boxing Day by Mr. Charles A. East, under Mr. Bannister Howard's personal direction, and has proved an immense success. Mr. Redford is to be congratulated on his arrangement to revivify the Crystal Palace success of last Christmas, with the original scenery, dresses, armour, &c., and the result has more than justified his venture. The book, by Mr. Fred Bowyer, adheres with rather more than usual fidelity to the familiar story from the "Arabian Nights," and is plentifully interspersed with tuneful ditties, popular items being introduced from The Merry Widow, Girls of Gottenberg, and Miss Hook of Holland. The result is a combination of story and song which, with admirable staging, acting, and dressing, makes up as bright and sparkling an entertainment as has been seen on the local boards. Nine scenes are presented. Bagdad is a picturesque city indeed; and Outside the Robbers' Cave is a charming stage picture, especially when the richly-caparisoned forty are assembled, glowing and scintillating in the limelight; but the greatest triumph of effect is reached in the scene depicting the Interior of the Cave, when the Fairy Queen calls down the golden rain. The closing scene, Verandah and Terrace Gardens, in which a pretty ballet is introduced, forms a gorgeous climax. The number of speaking parts is unusually small, hardly a dozen in all. Of these the most notable are the two smart comedians who appear as Ali Baba and his better and larger half. Mr. A. G. Spry's Ali is a really comical creation, with plenty of quaint by-play and patter, and he makes a great hit with his parody song, "You, you, you." Mr. Paddy Dupres puts an enormous amount of "go" into the part of Mrs. Ali Baba; he is quite the very latest thing in dames, and contributes the lion's share of the fun. His song, "My old man's gone football mad," caught on wonderfully. There are two boys, Ganem (Miss Josie Farrington) and Abdallah, the Captain of the Robbers (Miss Olive Astor). Ganem is the hero, but Abdullah is the more striking and picturesque figure, and sings the patriotic song "A White Man" in the very best style, so we conclude that "he" is the principal boy; but Miss Farrington is a graceful "boy," who dances well and sings pleasingly "Carolina Brown" and "If I had a pal like you." The part of Morgiana is prettily and daintily played by Miss Nellie Barnwell, who sings charmingly two of the greatest successes, "Oh, oh, Antonio!" and "Have you any more at home like Mary?" The Sisters Elsie and Mabelle May (Hassan and Zobedia) are refined and clever duettists and dancers, their prettiest turn being "My own Dutch maid." Mr. Charles A. East plays with spirit the rôle of the villainous Cassim in addition to the arduous rôle of stage-manager. As Horace, the donkey, Mr. Len Loan does remarkably well; and as Hassarac and Bassanac Messrs. Walker and Lucerne do the knockabout business with abundant and energetic humour. Miss Rosina Effingham sings nicely in the part of the Fairy Queen. The music is the work of collaborators, Messrs. Joseph Samlon and Herbert Bogetti, and the latter directs the chorus and augmented orchestra.

"JACK THE GIANT KILLER" AT MOTHERWELL.

Messrs. R. C. Buchanan and Ernest Stevens's comic pantomime Jack the Giant Killer is doing well here. The book is by Stanley Rogers, and abounds in comic situations. The scenery is excellent, there being nine scenes, The Village of Daisynook, Courtyard of Blunderbore's Castle, and King Fad's Palace calling for special mention. Miss Madge Allan is a sprightly and gallant exponent of the title-part; and sings her songs in a very pleasing manner, "I don't care if there's a girl there," "Sue, Sue, Sue," and "Antonio" being especial favourites. Miss Lilian Errol is a charmingly sweet Marjory Daw, and renders her numbers (of which "Come and be my little Teddy Bear" and "Anywhere with you" prove most popular) very prettily. Miss Madge O'Neill is a dashing and debonair Mephisto, and is already an established favourite. Her fine voice is heard to advantage in a couple of tuneful melodies, "On the hills of Donegal" and "Far away in Australia." Mlle. Telka as the Spirit of Love scores a big success in her singing of "A tiny seed of love." Mr. Harry Farrow is one of the quaintest Dames seen here for a long time; he bubbles over with fun, and his business is funny in the extreme. Mr. Johnny M'Elroy is decidedly good as Simple Simon, his songs "Afraid to come home in the dark" and "Salomé" calling for special mention. Mr. Charles Sandford as King Fad is quaintly funny. One of the drollest things of the pantomime is Mr. Bob Anderson's singing of "Put me on an island," in which he has the assistance of a bevy of enthusiastic Suffragettes. Mr. Fred Fulton makes the most of his limited opportunities as Spareribs and scores highly. Mr. Bert Hilderesley does well as Sammy; Daisy is prettily played by Miss Lily Holland, who dances daintily; Queen Caressa is aptly embodied by Miss Evelyn Robson; and Mr. W. S. Stevenson admirably sustains the rôle of Giant Blunderbore. A popular feature of the production is the dancing of the Duquesne Trio, and mention should also be made of little Sadora Ornum in her song and dance. Praise is due to Mr. Stanley Lupino for his clever work as the Family Cow and his quaint dancing as the dog Towzer. Mr. W. S. Stevenson is responsible for the admirable stage-management, and a word of praise is due to Mr. Frederick Ganz, the musical-director.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

THE Fulham Football Club will meet West Bromwich Albion at Fulham to-day at 2.30. The home team will comprise Fryer, Charlton or Lindsay, Sharp, Collins, Parsonage, Suart, Harrison, Dalrymple, Freeman, Millington, and Lipsham or Mouncher.

THE Rev. H. D. Hinde, vicar of Old Southgate, figured as a playwright on Wednesday evening, when his comic opera, Thorstein Abbey, was produced in the village hall. The piece is in a prologue and two acts, and deals with metaphysics, the spirits of ancient Norsemen being "reincarnated" in the persons of modern individuals. The piece was performed by local amateurs.

MR. AND MRS. J. H. SAVILE entertained the whole of the pantomime company of Puss in Boots at Paisley after the performance on New Year's Eve, and wine and wit flowed freely until the New Year. The same evening all the principals, both ladies and gentlemen, had received handsome presents during the performance from notable Paisley residents who have visited the pantomime. On Saturday last Mr. and Mrs. Coates engaged the whole of the boxes and dress circle, and presented the principal ladies with boxes of chocolates and the gentlemen with boxes of cigars. The pantomime, it is pleasing to learn, has broken all records of attendance.

THE MUSICAL YEAR.

The past year commenced with operatic performances by the Carl Rosa Opera Company, who began their short season at Covent Garden in December, 1907, giving a memorable performance of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro on Jan. 1, 1908. Another interesting feature of the Carl Rosa season was the revival of Goring Thomas's delightful opera Esmeralda, not heard in London for many years. Shortly after this season came the production of Wagner's Ring of the Nibelung in English by the Royal Opera Syndicate, given under the direction of Dr. Hans Richter, with an admirable translation of the text by Mr. Frederick Jameson. So unanimous and enthusiastic were the musical critics and opera-goers in praise of these performances that the second cycle was attended by huge audiences. A large number of the vocalists were English, and included Mme. Agnes Nicholls, Miss Perceval Allen, and Mr. Walter Hyde, who created a most favourable impression by his performance of Siegmund; while an excellent Wotan was found in Mr. Clarence Whitehill. So great, indeed, was the success of the initial performance of the Ring in English that a second season has been arranged for this year under the same great conductor, in which a still larger percentage of English singers have been engaged. Students from our great Schools of Music will be well represented, Miss Dilys Jones, from the Royal College of Music, and no fewer than four vocalists trained at the Guildhall School of Music—Miss Marie Alexander, Miss Edith Clegg, Miss Maria Yelland, and Mr. D. Brydon-Ayres—have been engaged for the Ring performances.

On April 30 the Grand Season opened, and lasted for thirteen weeks, being particularly brilliant throughout. The conductors were Dr. Richter, Messrs. Campanini, Panizza, and Percy Pitt. The special novelty of the season was Bizet's Pescatori de Perle; while revivals of Gluck's Armida, Meyerbeer's Gli Ugonotti, and Verdi's Otello were given. For the rest the repertory consisted mainly of standard and familiar works, such as Traviata, Lucia, The Barber of Seville, and Faust, in which those great operatic stars Mme. Melba and Mme. Tetrazzini shone with equal lustre. Although no entire Ring performances were given, splendid representations of Walküre, Meistersinger, Tristan, and Gotterdämmerung under Dr. Richter aroused great enthusiasm. Manon Lescaut and Fedora also proved attractive revivals. Mme. Melba, to commemorate her twentieth year at Covent Garden, gave a most successful matinée in aid of the London Hospital, with the result that £2,000 was given to that excellent institution. In May a grand gala performance in honour of the President of the French Republic took place, the first act of Pescatori de Perle and the Garden scene from Faust being given, Mesdames Melba and Tetrazzini appearing. Excellent results were achieved by Mlle. Destinn and Messrs. Zenatello, Bonci, Van Rooy, and other well-known vocalists, while a large number of native singers in the cast proved a welcome and important feature. In August the Moody-Manners Opera Company again gave a most successful season of opera in English at the Lyric Theatre, and the Royal Academy of Music gave admirable student performances of Un Ballo in Muschera, The Magic Flute, and Carmen; while the students of the Royal College of Music were heard in Verdi's Falstaff and Goetz's last opera, Francesca. Capital also was the Guildhall School of Music students' performance of Gluck's Iphigenia in Tauris. In the autumn the Popular Promenade Concerts at Queen's Hall, under Mr. Henry J. Wood, took place. Among a large number of novelties, perhaps the most important was a pianoforte Concerto in G minor by Mr. York Bowen, and a Symphony in E by Mr. Balfour Gardiner. Also an interesting feature in the programme was the performance of Haydn's six early symphonies. In Mr. Wood's absence at the Festival at Sheffield, M. Edouard Colonne conducted. At the Norwich Festival Mr. Henry Wood conducted for the first time. Performances were given of Brahms's "Requiem," Dvorák's "Stabat Mater," and Beethoven's "Choral Symphony"; also Mr. Julius Harrison's "Cleopatra." The most important event of the last autumn season was the first production in London of Sir Edward Elgar's fine Symphony in A flat, which, admirably played by the London Symphony Orchestra under Dr. Richter, had a most enthusiastic reception from the musical public. The Patrons' Fund concert given at Bechstein Hall on Dec. 7 did not prove particularly inspiriting, the best items being a Pianoforte Trio in E flat by Mr. Edward Isaacs and a Concertstück by Mr. George Dyson. At Queen's Hall in January a most curious concert was given, Mr. Joseph Holbrooke's symphonic work, "Apolla and the Seaman," being performed in darkness as regards the audience, only a very subdued light being allowed the orchestra, who played behind a thin curtain. In the middle of the platform was erected a large screen on which, from time to time, a few lines of Mr. Herbert Trench's poem, set to music by Mr. Holbrooke, were thrown from a powerful magic lantern. The experiment, however, did not prove an entire success. Some portions of the poem are undeniably powerful, while at times Mr. Holbrooke's music contains much beauty, particularly a fine "Dead March." Of concerts there has been a perfect host, and the new St. James's Hall opened in Great Portland-street will no doubt prove a great boon to concert-givers. Among the deaths of the past year are included the famous violinist Sarasate, Edward Macdowell, Jacques Blumenthal, Clara Novello, Pauline Lucca, Denis O'Sullivan, Wilhelmj, and Edward Chadfield.

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

JOHANNESBURG, DEC. 9.—EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Empire Theatres, S.A., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Sydney Hyman.—Here we have an interesting bill. Ruby Norton is a chic comedienne; Marguerite Arnoldi is the possessor of a well-cultured voice; much merriment is caused by Syd Sylvester, comedian; the classical dances of Amylla are a draw, the graceful movements of the lady being watched with keenest interest. Others are Blake and Granby, Edward Clarke and Winning Widows, Charles Mildare (whistler), Dot Stephens, Syd Burns, and Gladys Huxley.

MR. FRANK WHEELER arrived this week from England, bringing with him the principals for his new South African Juvenile Opera Company. Blue Bell in Fairyland and Alice in Wonderland are announced to be the first productions.

STANDARD THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Leonard Rayne; Manager, Mr. Grant Fallowes.—Yet another success has been presented by the Leonard Rayne company in Mrs. Dot, a charming comedy. Miss Gertrude Godart as Mrs. Dot acquitted herself admirably; the James Blenkinsop of Mr. Chas. Howitt was a realistic representation; Mr. A. Brough Pierce as Gerald Halstane is deserving of high praise; Mr. Malcolm Tearle as Freddy Perkins acted with good judgment and discretion; as the valet, Charles, Mr. Harry Paine lent able support; Miss Eva Speight (Lady Selinger) scored a distinct success. All the minor parts were well accounted for, and the staging left nothing to be desired.

MR. FRANK MUNDILL has secured the rights of the successful drama, The Woman from Scotland Yard, by Geo. Edwin Clive, and will shortly send it on tour with new scenery and a strong cast.

MR. W. H. ARMSTRONG, the well-known professionals' solicitor, has been away from business for eight weeks, having been for six weeks of that time confined to his bed. He is now quite well again.

PRESENTATION TO MR. YATES-GREGORY.

By thoughtfully providing an excellent dinner at the George Hotel, Shrewsbury, to which the entire staff of the Shrewsbury Theatre Royal and Hippodrome and a few personal friends were invited, Mr. W. Yates Gregory, the new lessee and director of that old-time place of amusement, marked the commencement of the New Year and of his latest enterprise—seasonable liberality which was thoroughly appreciated; while the guests, not behindhand on their part, sprung upon their host a pleasant surprise by presenting him on the occasion with a handsome tantalus, having a label attached engraved as follows:—"Presented to W. Yates Gregory by the management, staff, and friends of the Theatre Royal, Shrewsbury, Jan. 1, 1909." The presentation was made by Mr. Thos. Baugh, Mr. Gregory's general-manager, who, in the course of a capital speech, alluded to his chief's high personal attributes and straightforwardness of character. He had, he said, known Mr. Gregory for many years, and it was the proudest moment in his life to ask his kind acceptance of the gift as a tribute of the respect of the theatre staff towards him and of the sincere goodwill of those friends who had joined them in thus showing their appreciation of his estimable qualities. On behalf of the company present he wished Mr. Gregory long life and prosperity.

Mr. Chas. Kerry, a well-known Salopian of the county town, heartily endorsed the sentiments of Mr. Baugh, and expressed the sincere hope that the Shrewsbury public might for many years have the privilege and pleasure of seeing Mr. Gregory among them. Their historic theatre, he remarked, had for some time been languishing, but under Mr. Gregory's enterprising, tactful, and up-to-date management there were very promising signs of a new era of prosperity. Their host was devoting his energy, ability, and long experience on behalf of this his new enterprise, and he trusted that "proud Salopians" would respond as they ought, and give him every help and encouragement.

Prolonged cheering punctuated the eulogiums of the speakers, and Mr. Gregory was greatly touched by their cordiality and by the sincerity of his guests. Speaking with some little emotion, he returned heartfelt thanks to those who had contributed to the handsome gift which he had received. With reference to Mr. Baugh, he said he had in that gentleman a general-manager whom he had known for upwards of fourteen years, and one whom he could trust implicitly. When engaged in business elsewhere he could always leave Shrewsbury with the satisfactory knowledge that when he returned he would find everything in order. The gift which his guests had so liberally made to him would be a link which he hoped would bind him to Shrewsbury for years to come. During the short period he had sojourned in the historic old town he had made a number of friends, and already he felt quite at home among them. Although his other enterprises demanded his personal attention week by week in various parts of the country, he was always quite glad to return to the quiet pleasures and comfort of Shrewsbury.

After the hearty cheering following Mr. Gregory's speech had subsided, several toasts proposed from the chair were drunk with enthusiasm. "The King" having first been loyally done justice to, "The Staff" appropriately came next, and to this Mr. Baugh, Mr. Parkinson, and Mr. Montague in turn responded in a manner which left nothing to be desired. Mr. Page, the local leader of "The Band," suitably acknowledged this toast, and Mr. Gregory then gave "The Visitors." In a humorous speech, Professor Hubbard, of Birmingham, a relative of Mr. Gregory, replied, and he was ably supported by Mr. Geo. Finch, of Shrewsbury. The harmonious and cordial character of the gathering will, it is trusted, prove a happy augury for the future success of this theatre under its new management.

BRITISH EMPIRE SHAKESPEARE.

One of those agreeable entertainments which do so much to promote the study of Shakespeare and at the same time serve to display the devotion of our leading actors to the memory of the Bard, was given at the Bijou Theatre, Bayswater, on Tuesday afternoon, when King John was recited under the auspices of the British Empire Shakespeare Society. The play is one of the most picturesque of the works of the poet, and, read as it was by practised elocutionists, afforded a most enjoyable afternoon. Well-known names were, as is usual, included in the cast. Mr. Acton Bond, under whose direction the tragedy was given, recited the title-rôle with well-judged emphasis throughout. The constant changes of tone were cleverly contrived, and the beauties as well as the subtleties of the verse were skilfully brought out. The tragic gifts of Miss Esmé Beringer were well employed in the character of Constance, whose stirring speeches were declaimed with telling effect. The grief-stricken accents of the bereaved mother were also artistically affected, and the admiration of the audience was expressed in enthusiastic cheers. Mr. Robert Loraine, who was the Bastard Philip Faulconbridge, delivered his lines with admirable expression and clearness, his finished style being invaluable in an exacting part. Mr. Walter Ringham spoke with rugged eloquence and force as Hubert De Burgh, and the great success of the affecting scene where Arthur's life is threatened was shared by Miss Felicia Roche, who should make an ideal Prince Arthur in appearance, and spoke with pleasing distinctness, though with hardly sufficient power to make herself audible throughout the auditorium. Miss Sybil Ruskin was heard to every advantage in the rôle of Elinor, widow of Henry II., whose lines she invested with much pathos. Cardinal Pandulph was effectively sustained by Mr. A. Harding Steerman; Mr. Arthur Burne used a fine voice skilfully in the thrilling deliverances of the Earl of Salisbury; and Mr. Frederick James as the Earl of Norfolk and as Robert Faulconbridge acquitted himself ably. Mr. Arthur Trantom did excellent service as the Earl of Essex and as a messenger, and Mr. Lewis Willoughby's delivery of the dialogue that falls to the Dauphin was admired. A representative of the Academy of Dramatic Art was found in Mr. George Owen, who doubled the parts of the Earl of Pembroke and a French herald; Mr. Lane Crauford and Mr. A. V. Bramble also did double duty in minor parts. Mr. Howard Rose as Prince Henry was efficient, and the cast was completed by Miss Eve Tame and Miss Marion Grey. Miss Enid Rose again read the stage directions with her accustomed clearness.

THE first annual meeting of Morton's (Limited), Hull, since its reconstruction, by which the Hull Grand Theatre was included in the scope of its operations, was held recently in the Alexandra Theatre, Mr. William Morton presiding. A dividend of 7 per cent., free of income-tax, was declared on the Ordinary Shares, and £708 carried forward. The shareholders congratulated the directors on the very satisfactory result of the year's working. Messrs. W. F. and George Morton (directors) and Mr. G. A. Gale (auditor) were re-elected.

SIR CHARLES SANTLEY is finishing his "Reminiscences of My Life," which will be published by the firm of Pitman in the course of the next month or so. A career so crowded with brilliant associations should prove of absorbing interest, and the work will no doubt be eagerly sought after.

AMUSEMENTS IN BARCELONA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BARCELONA, DEC. 24.—There is nothing produced in Spain that corresponds with the English pantomime, so the festive season makes not the slightest alteration in the usual programmes. Sherlock Holmes and Old Heidelberg continue to be the attractions at the Teatro Principal, and as this theatre is the most important in Barcelona, all the pieces are written in Catalan, and not Spanish. This is to be regretted with such a piece as Old Heidleburg, which would lend itself much better to an adaption in Spanish.

AT the Circo Barcelonas the Curzon Sisters, direct from the London Hippodrome, brought a successful engagement to a close. Their act caused quite a sensation here, but it was a cause of regret to both Mr. Curzon and the management that the construction of the theatre did not permit them to work their act in the body of the hall, and therefore they had to perform on the stage. Maxim and D'Elb are doing very well here. This talented couple are quite a feature of the programme, and are still as much applauded as during their first week here. The Trio Marnos are comedy acrobats of undoubted ability, and introduce several new tricks, which in itself is worthy of much recommendation. Equally successful are the Sisters Naldy in a well-staged pot-pourri act, in which they appear to advantage as acrobats, illusionists, and sharp-shooters. A feature of this number is a cinematograph film depicting the departure of these two young ladies from the house, their arrival at the theatre and dressing-room, and concludes with their appearance upon the stage. It is quite an interesting opening to a pleasing number. Coming direct from a month's engagement at the Soriano, Drawe, Frisco, and Hambo repeat their previous success. There is, of course, no "barring act" here, and on account of the great scarcity of speciality turns artists frequently appear at an opposition hall after fulfilling a successful engagement. The Trio Goltz are well applauded; whilst Tubby and Madd render songs equally well in French and English, their dancing being also much admired. A word of praise is due to the Trio Delmontes for their characteristic Spanish dances.

THE Teatro Soriano has a capital company for Christmas, and amongst the most successful artists are the Six British Girls, a troupe of admirably-trained acrobatic dancers. La Renée was an instantaneous success, and was recalled no fewer than ten times. Her act consists of classical poses, but relies more upon the very beautiful lighting effects, which are as near perfect as it is possible to me. Still appearing here are the Zuresky Troupe of Russian singers and dancers, who have quite taken the Catalans by storm. Brosa exhibits his well-trained troupe of dogs, which are distinctly above the average; whilst the Davis Troupe are acrobats of more than average ability. Also appearing are the Trio Claris and the Deux Bernethes. The midget Tom Thumb has arrived at the Polliarma, and is astonishing the natives with his amusing songs and dances. Also on the bill are Frank D'Ort and Leonard, acrobats; the Four Imperial Girls, acrobatic singers and dancers, should have opened at the Circo Barcelonas the other day, but upon their arrival they found that one of their trunks was missing, which placed them in a difficult position.

BARCELONA, JAN. 2.—At the Teatro Principal, the last representations of Old Heidelberg has had a successful run.

AT the Circo Barcelonas several artists bring their engagements to a close, including Maxim and D'Elbe, who appear in a comedy act that has provided much amusement, and the Sisters Naldy. This latter number is entirely new, and is extremely well mounted. Also leaving are Drawee, Frisco, and Hambo, who although two months in Barcelona still seem as fresh as in their first week. The Four Imperial Girls opened on Wednesday, and had a hearty reception. The Stewart Family do a lively knockabout act. Liane d'Eve, a Parisian "star," has a fine voice, and appears in a beautifully staged act. Another newcomer is Miss Bow and her funny assistant, the latter being greatly responsible for the success of the act. The success of this theatre is due to the untiring efforts of the genial and courteous manager, Mr. Fernando Bayes.

THE principal attraction at the Soriano is Miss Juillette's Sea Lions. They juggle and balance articles in a wonderful manner. Still appearing at this hall is Mlle. Renée in her artistic poses.

AT the Palacio de Ilusion Mlle. Rose d'Avon presents her trained birds, and the Trio Lucerito, acrobats, are well received.

ON January 1 the subscription list for the new music-hall was presented to the public. The building is to be called the Kurzaal de Barcelona, and the capital is fixed at a million pesetas (about £35,000). The theatre is to be commenced on January 15 upon the site of the Teatro Tivoli, and is contracted to open the first week in May with a gala to the poor of Barcelona. The entertainments to be given will include comic opera, ballets, and variety shows.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting, held on Jan. 5 at 353, Strand. Present: Mr. F. J. Arlton, in the chair; Messrs. Clarence Derwent, Richard Greene, C. Walker, F. Morland, J. Poole Kirkwood, Robson Paige, C. F. Collings, Miss Rose Mathews, and Mr. Hubert Blount, secretary.

A letter was read from one of the members of a French company recently playing in London, to whom the courtesy of the Association was extended, expressing his thanks and appreciation of the kindness he had received in the following terms:—"Your souvenir [the A.A.] is the best I and the others keep in our inmost hearts among all the pleasant remembrances of London."

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The Secretary read a letter from a member calling attention to the bad ventilation in one of the dressing-rooms of a provincial theatre, and received instructions to take the usual course in the matter. It was proposed that another dance should be held on the 28th inst., and the Secretary received instructions to put a notice on the board to the effect, and asking any lady or gentleman who wished to take a ticket to give in her or his name to Mr. Bowen.

A letter was read from a member complaining of the loss of an engagement, owing to the fact that a communication had not been re-addressed to him. The Secretary was instructed to inform the applicant that every investigation had been made, but that no trace of any post-card addressed to him had been discovered. A letter was read from the Cabins, Ltd., asking for a cheque in payment of the rent, which the Secretary was instructed to draw. A letter was also read from Miss Agnes Imlay expressing her regret at her inability to attend either the finance committee or the council meeting.

The Hon. Solicitor reported that he had interviewed a member, and advised her.

The Secretary was instructed to put up a notice in the office to the effect that subscriptions are now due.

Mr. Arlton read the finance report, which the council adopted.

It was decided to establish a standing order book, and a committee consisting of Mr. Morland, Mr. Greene, Mr. Kirkwood, and Mr. Arlton was formed to inspect the minutes for the last three years, and extract any by-laws that had been passed.

The Secretary informed the council that the managing director of the Cabins would allow them to use the rooms on Sunday evening for the purpose of holding the meeting of members. The council, however, decided to postpone the meeting until Sunday week, and gave the Secretary instructions to put up a notice to the effect that a meeting of members would be held on Sunday, the 17th inst., at 8 o'clock, at which Mr. Morland would make some suggestions as to the £2 minimum. Miss Rose Mathews would occupy the chair.

Miss Mathews handed to the chairman a letter she had received from the Secretary of the Play-Actors, to the effect that the Play-Actors were extremely grateful to the Actors' Association council for the kind and helpful suggestion made in their proposition, but that in view of the fact that the present season, and with it the term of office of the Play-Actors' council, was drawing to a close, it was thought wise to defer a definite answer till after the general meeting on Jan. 18.

The council decided to start a book of complaints of theatres, in which the following were to be entered:—The date of the complaint, the name of the manager and complainant, the nature of the complaint, what action was taken, and the result.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Certain false statements having been industriously circulated in the Press to the effect that our little society, The Playactors, intends to "throw the Playactors' performances open to the whole London stage, and to put the provincials back into obscurity," may I ask you to be kind enough to permit me, as a member of the Actors' Association and councillor of the Playactors' Society, to deny the truth of this assertion through the valuable medium of your columns, as such false statement is likely to give rise to misunderstanding in the minds of a large number of the profession and public?—Yours faithfully,

ARTHUR APPLIN.

353, Strand, W.C.

MR. EDITOR,—SIR.—In your notice of last Saturday of the Shakespeare, Clapham, production of Babes in the Wood you say that Will Harris sang "Cos he was smarter than me." The above song was sung by me—the author and composer. I am only doing my speciality in the pantomime in conjunction with my wife May, and "Smarter than me" is my opening number. Thanking you in anticipation.—I am, yours faithfully, MARK MILTON, Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, Jan. 6.

WHAT EVERY ARTISTE KNOWS!

Hoarseness.
Sore Throat.
Loss of Voice.

That either of these troubles may lead to loss of engagement, and must be avoided at all cost.

Very many members of the Profession have, for years past, used, and been loud in their praise of Owbridge's Lung Tonic.

for the cure of COUGHS and COLDS.

At the first sign of chill or huskiness take a dose of "Owbridge," and you will be surprised and delighted at the result. Actors, Singers, Elocutionists, Preachers, &c., have written us in high terms of our famous remedy. Some time back we received the following:—

"The famous prima donna and operatic soprano, Mme. Ella Russell, told me the other day, in the course of conversation, that she never attempted to travel anywhere without a bottle of OWBRIDGE'S LUNG TONIC. She so firmly believes in it, and has derived such invaluable benefit from its use, that she strongly recommends it to all her friends."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER made some informing comparisons between music and the drama at the Conference of Teachers which he attended in his capacity of member of the London County Council at the Holborn Restaurant on Thursday. Important as music was, the eminent actor said, it was limited in its scope. They knew very well that there were thousands of people who did not know the difference between "God save the King" and "Rule Britannia," but there was not a single child born in the gutter and a single child born in the purple which had not within it the dramatic instinct. Nobody would suggest that a person could play the piano without lessons, yet there were thousands of people who would gladly play Hamlet without experience.

WITHIN the last few years, continued Mr. Alexander, actor-managers had shown their great sympathy with and their great respect for music. When he contemplated the production of Paolo and Francesca he approached his old friend Sir Arthur Sullivan, and asked him to write the music. Sir Arthur replied: "My dear Alexander,—The theatre is not the place for music. When the curtain is up the music interrupts the actors, and when the curtain is down the music interrupts the audience."

MRS. D'OYLY CARTE will revive The Gondoliers at the Savoy for a limited number of performances on Monday, Jan. 18. Mr. Rutland Barrington, who played Giuseppe Palmieri in the original production in 1889, will now be seen in a new character, that of Don Alhambra, formerly sustained by Mr. Denny. Mr. Henry A. Lytton will undertake Giuseppe. Mr. C. H. Workman will again be the Duke of Plaza Toro, Miss Louie René will resume her old part of the Duchess, and Miss Jessie Rose that of Tessa, and Miss Elsie Spain will figure as Gianetta. Others in the cast will be Mr. Leo Sheffield, Mr. Henry Herbert, and Miss Dorothy Court.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER spent Christmas on the Continent, and has now returned to London to engage in rehearsals of Henry Bernstein's play Samson, which will be produced at the Garrick on Wednesday, Feb. 3. A trial run will be given at the Grand, Swansea, the week previous, with Mr. Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh in the two leading rôles. The strong cast will include Miss Marie Illington, Miss Edyth Latimer, Miss Pamela Gaythorne, Mr. Kenneth Douglas, Mr. Arthur Whitby, Mr. Leon Quartermaine, Mr. William Burchill, Mr. Bertram Forsyth, Mr. Alfred Bristowe, and Mr. Charles Bryant.

THE brief holiday which Mr. Bourchier permitted himself allowed him to take a trip to Austria and Hungary. At the invitation of the management of the Bourg Theatre, the eminent actor witnessed a performance of an interesting play, entitled Tantris der Narr, which he describes as a very beautiful poetic drama, founded on the story of "Tristran and Isolde," which received the Emperor's prize. In Buda Pesth he was fêted by Director Beothy, and enjoyed a delightful representation of a musical comedy based on Zangwill's Merely Mary Ann. Another musical comedy which Mr. Bourchier saw, and for which he predicted a great success in this country, was Der Tapfer Soldat, a version of Bernard Shaw's Arms and the Man.

MISS LENA ASHWELL has been fortunate in securing practically the whole of the original cast for her revival of Diana of Dobson's at the Kingsway on Monday. Miss Ashwell as Diana, Mr. C. M. Hallard as Captain Bretherton, and Mr. Norman McKinnell as P.C. Fellowes will be supported by Miss Nannie Bennett, Miss Mary Barton, Miss Muriel Vox, Miss Doris Lytton, Miss Ada Palmer, Miss Frances Ivor, Mr. Lemmon Warde, Miss Gertrude Scott, Mr. Dennis Eadie, and Miss Beryl Mercer.

THAT Miss Ashwell does not intend to allow the musical morceau to oust the dramatic playlet from her programme is proved by the fact that, although the string quartette will be included in the bill, Miss Cicely Hamilton's comedy will be preceded by Charlotte on Bigamy, by Edward A. Parry, which formed one of the quartette of playlets produced at the Kingsway in May last. Miss Gertrude Scott, Mr. Dennis Eadie, and Mr. C. M. Hallard will resume the parts they then played, but Mr. Michael Sherbrooke will be replaced by Mr. Maitland Dicker.

COLONEL MAPLESON, managing-director of Mapleson and Co., Ltd., has returned to London from the Continent, where he made numerous engagements with important operatic, dramatic, concert, and variety artists. Mr. J. D. McLaren, for many years manager of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, Concert Direction Daniel Mayer, and of Mitchell's Royal Agency, has been appointed acting manager of Mapleson and Co., Ltd.

MR. CECIL RALEIGH betook himself to Lisbon for the holidays, and has now returned to work at a new drama for Old Drury. He and Mr. Henry Hamilton have submitted the rough scenario of a play to Mr. Arthur Collins, by whom it was immediately accepted for production in due course at the National Theatre. The story of the new work is thoroughly English in character.

MR. JOHN COLLINS, who was for sixteen years manager of the Theatre Royal for the Waterford Corporation, has now taken the establishment over on a long lease. Many improvements have been made. The dress circle has been remodelled and refurnished, a second circle has been added and equipped with tip-up chairs, and the stalls have also been renovated and made as comfortable as possible. Behind the scenes improvements are also going on. The dressing-rooms are well fitted and well lighted, the stage has now admirable limelight projectors, and nothing has been left undone for the comfort of both audience and artists. Mr. Collins's son, Mr. Maurice Collins, officiates in the capacity of acting-manager

"THE GAY GORDONS" have just finished an engagement, and, large as the theatre is, it was totally inadequate to accommodate the crowds who turned up nightly. The early doors were besieged at each performance, and standing-room only was the order. Mr. Stanley Brett as Angus Graeme made many friends in Waterford (of which city he is a native); Miss Maie Ash won all hearts with her delightful interpretation of Peggy, and the rest of the company gained honours.

MISS MABEL LOVE has concluded her very successful engagement as Lady Frederick under the management of Miss Emma and Mr. Hutchison, but at their special request has consented to play the part again, for one week only, at Torquay, from Monday next. From Jan. 18 onwards Miss Love will be at liberty to accept other engagements.

MISS JULIA NEILSON and Mr. Fred Terry, having collected a considerable sum by means of the sale of their autographs, have devoted the whole of it to charities, and the secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund asks us to acknowledge with grateful thanks the receipt of £10 which has been sent to him by Mr. Garrett, their manager. Mr. Weedon Grossmith has also sent a further sum of £1 and Mr. Allan Aynsworth 15s., both amounts having been collected for the fund by means of their autographs.

MISS JULIA NEILSON was rapturously received on her reappearance, after a long indisposition, at the New Theatre on Thursday. Her success and that of Mr. Fred Terry in the new play, Henry of Navarre, was very pronounced, the course of the performance being marked by no fewer than thirty-eight curtains. There were five after the first act, ten after the second, and six after the third, while at the end of the play the enthusiasm of the audience expressed itself in seventeen recalls.

A VETERAN actor passed away on Monday, when Richard Walton died at 4, Regent-road, Bedminster, Bristol, his death having been hastened by poverty. Mr. Walton began his professional career in the company run by his elder brother Fred, the father of Alfred Hemming, Witty Watty, John W. Retta, George, William, and Fred Walton. Afterwards he and his wife played leading business in various stock companies in the old circuit theatres. A little over thirteen years ago he had the misfortune to have a paralytic stroke, and since that time he has been paralysed, and his wife has become a great sufferer from rheumatism, a double disaster that ended their stage career. After a long illness Mr. Walton tried to earn a few shillings by making small matchwood boxes, and his wife went out as charwoman, but afterwards they were compelled to seek parish relief.

WHEN the Old Age Pension Bill passed Mr. Walton's hopes were raised, and he felt that he would no longer be dependent on others; but when told he could make no claim, the disappointment was so great that he took to his bed, and the end soon came. His widow, who is of the same age as her late husband, is without means, and any donations, however small, will be thankfully received by her at the above address.

THE Baddeley Cake was cut for the 115th time at Drury Lane on Twelfth Night, when Mr. Harry Nicholls, the Master of the fund, officiated for the fifth year in succession, and in a short speech referred to the historical character of the ceremony. Baddeley's Cake, it will be remembered, was first provided in 1794, through a fund left by the actor, consisting of £100 invested in Consols. Everyone present on Wednesday drank to the memory of the old actor, who, it should be added, accompanied the bequest of the yearly cake with more substantial charities to his future comrades in art.

A MEETING of the committee of the Managers' Club was held on the 1st inst. Present: Mr. M. V. Leveaux (in the chair), Mr. F. Weathersby, Mr. A. Bertram, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon, and Mr. M. Martin (secretary). The following gentlemen were elected members of the club: Mr. H. Armitage, Mr. B. M. Meyer, Mr. George Conquest, Mr. W. A. Seymour, Mr. S. Horncastle, Mr. Bertie Shelton, Mr. Stanley Ashworth, and Mr. Cyril Vernon.

THE committee of the Touring Managers' Association, Ltd., met at the Managers' Club, Savoy-mansions, Strand, on the same day. Present: Mr. E. Graham-Falcon (in the chair), Mr. M. V. Leveaux, Mr. F. Weathersby, Mr. A. Bertram, and Mr. M. Martin (secretary). Arising out of the business of the previous meeting the secretary was directed to ask the railway companies for a reply in reference to touring managers travelling at three-quarter fare when visiting their companies.

A LETTER was received from the Lord Chamberlain stating that the new clause in his regulations refers to public entertainments other than stage plays. It was reported that performances were given of a pantomime stage play in an upstairs room attached to a public-house in Southend, and the secretary having notified the Mayor of Southend, received a reply that the letter was read to the justices at their sessions on the 29th ult. The secretary was requested to find out what action had been taken in the matter, and further to notify the justices' clerk that the committee intend to oppose the licence of the public-house in question at the next sessions. The following gentlemen were duly elected members of the Association: Mr. H. Armitage, Mr. B. M. Meyer, Mr. George Conquest, Mr. W. A. Seymour, and Mr. Stanley Ashworth.

THE Actors' Day Advisory Board has been strengthened by the addition of Mr. J. Forbes-Robertson. The subscriptions on account of 1908 amount to £258 14s. 7d., which, up to corresponding date, is considerably in excess of the previous year's contribution for the same purpose. The organising committee will be greatly obliged if all intending contributors who have not yet sent in their donations will do so as early as possible. Cheques and money orders should be made payable to the Trustees, Actors' Day Fund, and posted to them at Dudley House, 37, Southampton-street, Strand.

RICHNESS and splendour characterise the costumes worn by Miss Julia Neilson in Henry of Navarre at the New Theatre. In the first scene Miss Neilson is seen in a charming dress of rich rose-coloured brocade, opening over a satin petticoat embroidered with jewels of a kind of dull olive tone that produce strange iridescent effects in the shifting light, and add greatly to the beauty of the dress. For her first reception of Henry of Navarre Marguerite is arrayed in a gown of green tinsel veiled with a darker net, and jewelled in gold and green The falling sleeves of cloth of gold are jewelled with emeralds. The satin petticoat in a deep shade of green is also enriched with gold embroidery, and gold and emeralds and other jewels combine to form the antique headdress, half coronet, half cap.

IN the second act she appears in a wonderful creation, in which silver and gold and jewels are lavishly displayed. It is composed entirely of silver tissue, covered with glittering lines of golden sequins in a cheque pattern, and enriched with sprays of flowers worked in silver and gold. It opens over a white satin petticoat, also elaborately jewelled and embroidered. The pointed bodice is also jewelled, large emeralds being used to give needful touches of colour; the long drooping sleeves of silver tissue catch the light as they sway to and fro with every movement of the speaker; and the high Italian ruff and the elaborat headdress are marvels of the designer's art. In the last act Miss Neilson supplies an agreeable contrast in a simple loose white gown veiled with transparent crêpe de chine, with fringes and tassels of silver.

MISS TITA BRAND as Queen Catherine includes in her costumes a gorgeous gown of black and gold brocade opening over a petticoat covered with a chessboard pattern entirely formed by different jewels, each square being picked out with pearls. Round the waist and falling down to the hem of the skirt is a chain of huge topazes linked with gold.

THE special matinée of Charles I. in aid of the School for Mothers, St. Pancras, to be given by Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird and company, under the patronage of H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, will take place on Thursday, Feb. 11, at the Shaftesbury Theatre.

AN interesting experiment is to be made in Clifford's Inn Hall on Wednesday next, when a private performance of Molière's last play Le Malade Imaginaire is to be given in costume under the direction of Mr. Kenelm Foss. Tickets are being sold at the uniform price of half-a-crown, and can be obtained prior to the date of the performance on application to Mr. Foss at 15, Clifford's Inn, E.C.

MR. H. B. IRVING will celebrate the 100th performance of The Lyons Mail on Saturday next, when the piece will attain its longest run. Such excellent business is being done at the Shaftesbury that it is very unlikely that any fresh production will be required before the time arrives for Mr. Irving to start on his provincial tour.

A MEETING of the members of the Actors' Association will be held at the offices, 353, Strand, on Sunday, the 17th inst., at 8 o'clock, when Mr. Morland will make a few suggestions as to the £2 minimum. Miss Rose Mathews will take the chair.

MISS EVELYN MILLARD dresses Lady Ursula at the Garrick in costumes that have equal claims to admiration. In the first act she is arrayed in a rich dress of brocaded silk, flowered pink in the old-fashioned style. The very full polonaise is lined with pink silk, and opens over a white satin petticoat ornamented with a deep pink ruching. Five graduated bows of black velvet ornament the chemisette, and give character to the corsage, while the hat worn with this costume is of pale brown straw lined and trimmed with black velvet and finished with a bunch of baby roses under the brim.

THE two next acts find Lady Ursula in a masculine costume of pale blue satin with white ruffles and silver ornaments. In the fourth act she returns to feminine attire, in the shape of a beautiful costume of white satin. The pointed bodice is embroidered with pearls, and the white-brocaded polonaise, which is made with a Watteau pleat at the back, opens over a petticoat of white satin partially veiled with a deep lace flounce.

MISS DOLORES DRUMMOND as Mrs. Fenton wears with becoming stateliness in the first act a gown of cinnamon brocade and satin; while Miss Dora Barton wears a pretty frock in pale blue brocade.

ENTHUSIASTIC scenes were witnessed at the Broadway Theatre, New Cross, on New Year's Eve. At the conclusion of the pantomime, in the magnificent Assembly of Nations scene, Mr. Bertram Iles, the manager, went on the stage, and on behalf of Messrs. Moss' Empires thanked Broadway patrons for their support during the past half-year. He was pleased to announce that the exceptional spring bookings made their patronage assured in the near future. As to the pantomime, he had only to look at their faces and listen to their plaudits to feel sure that its tremendous success would continue during its six weeks' run.

MR. ILES concluded by inviting all to join in the time-honoured custom of singing "Auld Lang Syne." The packed house immediately rose to its feet and sang the refrain with great gusto, strangers gripping each other by the hand and joining the chorus of the assembled company on the stage. A banner was then lowered from the flies with the season's greetings, and the evening concluded with ringing cheers and mutual good wishes.

THE secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund wishes us to acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt of three small parcels of hats and clothing which he has received from an anonymous giver, and which have proved most useful.

MESSRS. GARSIDE AND KNOWLES have paid eight visits to Greater Birmingham in sixteen months, six with Her Marriage Vow and two with The London Fireman and Saved from the Sea. The whole three plays have been done by them at the Palace Theatre, Bordesley, and Mr. Forbes Knowles, under whose direction they were presented, had several letters last week from patrons of the Bordesley Theatre expressing their pleasure and appreciation of Mr. Knowles's acting, and wishing him and Mr. Garside every success. One lady wrote that if all plays were like Messrs. Garside and Knowles's the drama would be more popular with the intelligent classes.

SIGNOR QUINZI, a well-known operatic baritone, who was singing in Verdi's Aïda at the Vittorio Emanuele Theatre, Messina, a few hours prior to the earthquake, arrived at Naples on Saturday. He says: "Thanks to the hour at which the catastrophe occurred, I was decidedly en déshabille. I decided to make an effort to secure some kind of covering, and, groping among the ruins, found a chest with some of the theatrical costumes in it. So I arrayed myself as Radames, and then made my way to the Marina, where the soldiers—small blame to them—took me for a madman."

MR. GEORGE LESTOCQ intends to produce a new one-act musical play in conjunction with The Sportsman. Mr. Lestocq is also arranging with a well-known quartette to appear in this new musical play.

MR. EDWARD CHESTER, the general-manager of Mr. James Kiddie's Aladdin company, was called upon on the 30th ult. to play the Emperor, and continued in the part for the remainder of the week.

MR. LEONARD PAGDEN has been engaged by Mr. George Alexander to play Edward Thursfield, the leading part, in the forthcoming first tour of The Builder of Bridges.

AN interesting theatrical football match for the League Cup was decided last Sunday at Blackhorse-lane, Walthamstow, between the Gaiety Theatre and Walthamstow Palace. The former won easily by ten goals to nil, their forward line being particularly prominent throughout. It should be mentioned that the match was Walthamstow's first, but they are by no means novices at the game, and when the team has practised more it should certainly do well. Both teams were well supported by their friends, many of whom travelled long distances to be present.

MR. E. W. MAULE COLE has been engaged to play the Dean in Dandy Dick and Sir George Sylvester in The Adventure of Lady Ursula for the Tenby Amateurs in Hunt week on Monday and Thursday next.

OWING to the sudden illness of Mr. Charles Benson last week at Scarborough, Mr. Algernon W. Lee was called upon to play the part of the Dame in Puss-in-Boots at a few hours' notice, and was complimented by his manager. We are sure all friends of Mr. Benson will be sorry to hear of his illness and will hope for a speedy recovery.

THE enthusiasm over Brewster's Millions this week at the Lyceum Theatre, Ipswich, has been tremendous, people flocking from all the outside districts. Although the piece was in Yarmouth at the end of August last, trains are bringing people in who wish to get another sight of the marvellous yacht scene.

"TODDLES," produced in the country by Messrs. Murray King and Clark, has opened at the Theatre Royal, Hull, this week and the reception accorded it has exceeded expectations. Some doubts were expressed as to whether its fun would be sufficiently strong for the provinces, but any visitor to the Royal this week would have those fears allayed by the screams of laughter which continue the whole evening. Mr. Murray King, hitherto known principally as a low comedian, carries the whole piece on his shoulders, and has scored a pronounced success. Toddles looks like being one of the biggest money-makers on the road.

MR. CHARLES MANNERS has brought up the total of members of the National English Opera Union, which he founded, to the number of 3,000. A proposal has now been put before them which has for its object the carrying-out of a short season at Drury Lane Theatre in May next. It is proposed to produce three new English grand operas, namely, Thelma, by Mr. Coleridge-Taylor; Duke or Devil, by Mr. Nicholas Gatty; and Ingomar, by Mr. Colin McAlpin.

DURING the first week of the season operas from the répertoire of the Moody-Manners Company, which includes Wagner's The Mastersingers, Lohengrin, and Tannhäuser, and Tchaikovsky's Eugene Onegin, will be mounted. During the second two of the new operas will be given, and the last week's programme will be made up of the third opera and of repetitions of such of the other new works as the public may decide by plebiscite. The prices for seats have been fixed to suit the slenderest purses, and range from 6d. to 6s. Whether the season is held or not depends on the response received from the members of the Union.

MISS CONNIE LEON, who was so long associated with The Prince of Pilsen, playing the French maid, and was afterwards engaged by Mr. George Edwardes as walking understudy to Happy Fanny Fields in The Girls of Gottenberg, is a most versatile little lady. She is playing Cinderella at Portsmouth, and is meeting with every success.

THE Messrs. Maundy-Gregory have arranged to give a benefit matinée of their revival of Dorothy at the Waldorf Theatre, on a date shortly to be announced, for the Lord Mayor's Mansion House Fund in aid of the sufferers in the recent earthquake in Italy. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs will attend in state, and much influential patronage has already been obtained. All the principals and chorus have unanimously decided to support Mr. Maundy-Gregory in his efforts in such a beneficent cause.

MR. ARTHUR VEZIN, who has just finished a two years' engagement with Mr. Gaston Mayer's company of Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, has been engaged for his provincial company of The Builder of Bridges.

THE popular young actor Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu, a member of the late Herbert Flemming's company in Australia, has been engaged by Mr. J. C. Williamson, the veteran manager of the Commonwealth.

MR. ALFRED NORTHWAY and Mr. W. V. Garrod's record tour of 152 consecutive weeks with The Prodigal Parson will end to-night. After a short rest the piece will be sent out again, equipped with new scenery and printing. Messrs. Northway and Garrod's other production, A Country Girl in London, has proved a great success, and is fully booked to 1910. Their next venture, bearing the striking title Are You the Man? is by the same author, Mr. Frank Price.

MISS ROSE MONCRIEFF will commence her spring tour of The Bells of Old York, by Rass Challis, at Abertillery at the beginning of February.

MISS DOROTHY GRASDORFF, who is playing Cinderella at the County Theatre, Kingston, is scoring a big success, and is quite an established favourite.

MR. LEIGH LOVEL, who with Miss Octavia Kenmore has been touring in Ibsen's plays almost continuously during the past two years, has now five works in his répertoire. In addition to these, Mr. Lovel will shortly produce at Miss Horniman's theatre in Manchester the translation in verse by Professor Herford of Love's Comedy, which charming play has never been acted in England. Mr. Lovel will also do Brand at a later date, and has in hand a slightly abridged version of Peer Gynt.

MR. E. HILL MITCHELSON leaves England on Tuesday for a holiday. In the course of his travels he will visit France, Italy, Turkey, Greece, the Holy Land, and Egypt, taking a long journey up the Nile.

"THE BABES IN THE WOOD" at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, is a decided success, the "House Full" boards being the rule rather than the exception. Mr. George Mozart, Miss Marie Dainton, Miss Winnie Browne, and Mr. James A. Watts have firmly established themselves as favourites with the numerous patrons of the King's. The whole of the magnificent scenery, with the exception of one or two small pieces is from the brush of Mr. Alfred Drayton, one of the youngest of our scene painters and a pupil of the famous Walter Hann.

"OLIVE LATIMER'S HUSBAND" is the title which has been bestowed upon Mr. Rudolf Besier's new play, which Messrs. A. and S. Gatti will produce at the Vaudeville Theatre. In addition to Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Mr. Lyn Harding the engagements so far include those of Mr. James Hearn, Miss Helen Ferrers, Miss Dagmar Wiehe, Miss Elsie Chester, Mr. Wilfred Draycott, and Mr. Charles Troode.

MISS EDYTH GOODALL, who has so successfully played Nellie Denver in The Silver King for the past year, has been specially engaged by Mr. Percy Hutchison to sustain Miss Evelyn Millard's part in Idols on tour.

MR. WENTWORTH CROKE and Mr. G Brydon Phillips' pantomime at the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, has caught on with great tenacity, having grown in favour since Boxing Night. Accordingly, it is with great regret that the management are obliged to take it off next Saturday on account of previous arrangements. Judging by the present state of business it could have enjoyed a very long run.

MR. FRANK HOWARD, who has just concluded his sixth engagement as manager, together with the part of Bertie, in Lester Collingwood's When London Sleeps company, has been engaged by Mr. Walter Melville as general-manager for The Beggar Girl's Wedding tour.

MISS ETHEL IRVING, suffering from a cold, was out of the cast of Dolly Reforming Herself at the Haymarket last week, but took up her rôle on Monday. During her absence the part was played by Miss Ada Webster. Another victim to the inclement weather was Mr. Dan Rolyat, who had temporarily to relinquish his character owing to loss of voice, but returned to the Adelphi on Wednesday.

MR. BERNARD ELLIS, late of the Adelphi Theatre, has been most unfortunate, having met with a serious accident which permanently disfigured him. Mr. Ellis was an original member of the Compton Comedy Company, and also for thirteen years a member of the Adelphi Theatre orchestra, where his father, the late Edwin Ellis, was for seventeen years musical director. An appeal, supported by Mr. William Rose, F.R.C.S., in his capacity as senior surgeon to the Actors' Association, has been made, with a view to give Mr. Ellis a fresh start in life, and to enable him to return to his profession, his present means of subsistence being precarious. Reference may be made and subscriptions sent to Professor William Rose, F.R.C.S., senior hon. consulting surgeon to the Actors' Association, Union Club, Trafalgar-square, and 10, Queen's-gardens, Lancaster Gate, Hyde Park, W. On the list of subscribers are Mr. William Rose, £5 5s., and Mr. H. B. Irving, £1 1s.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY begins his provincial tour on Monday, starting at Bournemouth. Portsmouth, Sheffield, Hull, Cardiff, Preston, Bradford, Liverpool, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Birmingham, Leeds, and Swansea will be among the towns visited. His répertoire will consist of The Corsican Brothers, The Breed of the Treshams, The Only Way, The Cigarette-Maker's Romance, The Conspiracy, and The Last Heir.

A MATINEE in aid of the League of Mercy is being organised by Lady Paget to take place on Jan. 19, Miss Evelyn Millard having kindly lent the Garrick Theatre for the occasion. Several very clever artists are to take part in the programme, and Princess Christian and a number of distinguished ladies have given their immediate patronage.

THE season of grand opera in English at Covent Garden begins on Saturday. Meanwhile, rehearsals are proceeding with the utmost vigour, forty principals, a chorus of ninety, an orchestra of one hundred, and a ballet of twenty-four being concerned in the production. For the rôle of Siegfried Herr Peter Cornelius, of the Royal Opera, Copenhagen, has again been engaged. Three complete cycles of "The Ring" will be given, commencing with The Rhinegold, on Saturday evening. The other works to be performed are Madame Butterfly, Faust, and the prize opera, The Angelus.

THE name of Mr. Francis H. Bull should not be overlooked in the credit given to the revival of Dorothy in marvellously quick time at the New Theatre last week. Mr. Bull painted the scenery, and the work of the clever young artist was universally admired.

THE matinée hat has come under the ban of the municipal authorities at Rio de Janeiro, who have prohibited the wearing of any form of headgear in theatres. Managers have been warned that they will be held responsible for every infraction of the rule, under a fine of £25 for each "crowned head."

SINCE Boxing Day there has been a considerable amount of cutting in the Kennington pantomime of Red Riding Hood, and it has been reduced to its accustomed limits. There has been, too, a slight alteration in the cast, Mr. Robert Howard taking up the part of the Squire of Vaux this week with considerable success. The enterprising acting-manager at Kennington (Mr. H. B. Brandreth) is inventing fresh methods of booming, and one of the most notable of these is the offer of a "fiver" and a season ticket to anyone who can detect Miss Lulu Valli, the clever and dainty Boy Blue, going into the theatre. Miss Valli has thoroughly entered into the spirit of the thing, and has successfully evaded the vigilance of the watchers at various doors by arriving as a cabman, as goods in a crate, and concealed among coal bags.

THE members of Mr. Wentworth Croke's The Prodigal Son company were entertained by Mr. Croke to a dinner at the Swan Hotel, Crewe, on Sunday. After an excellent repast a merry and jovial evening was spent, the company amusing themselves with songs, recitations, music, and various games. Mr. Croke's health and prosperity was proposed by Mr. Charles Herrick, the business-manager of the company, and was duly toasted with musical honours, everyone present joining heartily in the chorus.

MISS HOPE TREVELYAN, Mr. Claude Trevelyan's niece and favourite pupil, a little actress-vocalist of sixteen summers, who has earned our commendation several times during the past year in London, is winning all hearts in Sunderland by her sympathetic rendering of Mr. Trevelyan's song-scena "Buy my primroses." Both on Saturday and Monday an encore and two recalls rewarded the sweet singer at the King's Theatre.

MR. BRYDON PHILLIPS'S Chester pantomime has proved very successful, and the advance booking is remarkably good. At the matinée on Wednesday Lady Arthur Grosvenor and party occupied two private boxes.

WE regret to learn that Mr. F. Warden-Reed has had a slight nervous breakdown, due to overwork, and, by doctor's orders, has been compelled to give up the management of the Gaiety Theatre, Chatham, in order to take a few weeks' rest in the country. Mr. Warden-Reed, however, is progressing very favourably, and hopes to resume work shortly. Meanwhile, Mrs. Warden-Reed will undertake the duties of management.

THE Afternoon Theatre is extending its operations to Bernard Shaw, whose Admirable Bashville will be given at His Majesty's on Tuesday, Jan. 26 and Feb. 2, Thursday, Jan. 28, and Feb. 4, and Friday, Jan. 29, and Feb. 5. The drama, which is in two tableaux, was produced by the Stage Society at the Imperial in the June of 1903. For the present revival the strong cast will consist of Miss Marie Lohr, Mr. Ben Webster, Mr. Lennox Pawle, Mr. Charles Quartermaine, Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Courtenay Foote, Mr. James Hearn, Mr. Edward Sass, Mr. Halliwell Hobbes, and Miss Rosina Filippi. Tilda's New Hat, the comedietta by George Paston which was recently produced by the Play Actors, will follow Mr. Shaw's piece, Miss Agnes Thomas, Miss Florence Lloyd, and Mr. Denis Eadie being included in the cast.

MR. F. R. BENSON'S company played an interesting hockey match with a local team, the Malone, at Stranmills, Belfast, on Saturday. It was greatly regretted that Mr. Benson was unfortunately unable at the eleventh hour to turn out, and his absence told much against the company's team. Mr. Benson's company consisted of—Goal, J. Moffatt Johnston; backs, Guy B. Rathbone and Murray-Carrington; half-backs, J. H. Howell, S. Hanman Clark, and R. Gregson; forwards, F. G. Worlock, J. Moore, J. P. Wilson (captain), R. H. Mannox, and R. Lucas.

THE ground was in capital order, and play was very fast. The exchanges were of an even nature for the first quarter of an hour, but gradually the Malone attack wore down the company's defence, and at the interval the homesters led by 3 goals to 1. In the second half capital half-back and forward play enabled the Malone to add four more scores, and the company, being unable to reply, a rather one-sided game ended as follows:—Malone, 7 goals; Mr. Benson's company, 1 goal. At the conclusion of the game the teams were entertained to tea by the Malone club.

MISS MARY MOORE dresses with exquisite elegance as Mrs. Gorringe at the Criterion. In the first act she wears a silk frock made in the corselet style and enriched by deep encrustations of écru lace, with a deep hem of pale mauve velvet. The bodice is entirely composed of écru lace and net with close-fitting, transparent sleeves, touches of blue being introduced in the form of cretelles and pipings. Miss Moore's evening gown is of pale blue silk. It opens at the side over an under-skirt of cream net embroidered with sequins, and folds of the swathed bodice are carried up to the shoulder, whence they are continued in a falling drapery reaching the train of the skirt and richly embroidered.

MISS MARIE ILLINGTON, who plays Mrs. Jardine, is also tastefully gowned. Her beautiful evening frock of white crêpe de chine with its wide black lace border and deep black velvet hem was greatly admired.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Lashwood Among Lunatics.

IN the course of an interview with a pressman the other day Mr. George Lashwood related an exciting experience he once had in Liverpool. "It is just three years ago," said Mr. Lashwood, "and I was assisting to entertain the inmates of one of the workhouse asylums. When I had finished my portion I went into the bathroom to have a wash. There were two other persons in the room at the time, and I commenced to chat with them, knowing, of course, that they were inmates. I asked them in a breezy fashion 'how they liked the show,' when, to my complete amazement, one said:

"'I think some of you might have changed places with the audience!'

"I had some doubts then about their insanity. The other said:

"'Are you one of us?'

"'Yes,' I replied to humour him.

"'He lies!' cried the first. 'He is the evil genius of Napoleon, and has a glass body! Break him! Break him!'

"Immediately they, and another who had in the meantime entered, pounced upon me, seized my hands and legs, and bounced me on the floor, thinking, no doubt, I would shiver into a thousand pieces. As I did not, they knelt upon me and tried to drag my clothes off. All this time I was shouting 'Help, help!' and now a couple of attendants arrived on the scene. They dragged the lunatics from me, ordered them out, and apologised for my unpleasant experience."

Gymnasts and "Go."

"YEARS ago," writes Mr. Butler Stanhope, "there was an eccentric and erratic manager in the North of England, who had the greatest horror of any play falling flat or going, as he thought, slowly. He was no great lover of 'Macready pauses,' and was all for bustle and go—a 'cut-the-cackle-and-come-to-the-hosses' sort of man. If he saw any scene going tamely he would rush on the stage (whether sustaining a part or not) and 'stir them up a bit.' He always had a stock of properties, such as a hot poker, clams, a frying pan with a false bottom, a sweeping brush, a pair of bellows, a policeman's rattle, and a bell, stored in the wings for cases of emergency. If the comedy-man, character-man, or responsible lacked energy he would rush on with a stuffed stick or one of his special props and 'make things hum.' If it was the villain he would dart on with a pair of combat swords, demand satisfaction for some imaginary wrong, throw down one of the swords, and bid him pick it up and fight to the death, to the no small delight of the 'gods.' On Saturday night there would be three dramas and variety people doing turns between them. One Saturday the climax was reached. There were a couple of gymnasts engaged, and it was getting late. The last drama was on, and the gymnasts were getting impatient for their turn, and were bothering the manager to know when to appear. The drama was in full swing, and the manager was flustered a little. He exclaimed, 'Go on now!' The front scene was set, and, greatly to the amazement of the actors, they saw the two trapeze artists clamber up the ropes and begin to swing through the air. The excitement was intense. The audience shouted, and the dramatic people soon finished their performance and left the gymnasts to conclude the entertainment.

Putting Him Out.

"One of my most trying experiences in the Western States," writes Mr. Richard Golden in Ideas, "happened in the mining district of Nevada. I was the villain in a lurid melodrama, called The Edge of the Cliff; in fact, the character was such a thorough-paced blackguard that the simple souls of the miners were much perturbed. During the first act a man called out, when I was hatching a plot for the death of the heroine, 'That —— cuss had better go slow!' and they hissed me right heartily, which I took as a compliment to my acting. In the next scene I had to sit at a candle-lit table to write a note to a confederate so as to ensure the kidnapping of the girl and the capture of papers which would cause her property to fall into my hands. As I pretended to write I spoke the words and had got to 'Remember, the documents are near the old oak-tree,' when a shot rang out and a bullet put the candle out! I felt distinctly uncomfortable, but I re-lit the candle, and as I took up the pen again a fellow in the audience jumped up, crying excitedly: 'I put that candle out so you couldn't write to your crook pal. You write another word and I'll put you out!' I turned to him and looked along the barrel of a six-shooter. I felt mighty queer until the sheriff took the gentleman in hand and convinced him that it was all nothing but play-acting. After the performance I met the person with the gun, and he was good enough to express him sorrow by saying that he was glad he shot the candle and not me. I was rather glad, too."

Miss Terry's Double.

MISS EDITH CRAIG, who is taking Miss Ellen Terry's place in Pinkie and the Fairies, is her mother's double. "We are so alike," Miss Craig said to an Express representative, "that when I was playing in Getting Married a lady wrote to my mother and warned her that some one was imitating her in appearance and voice. Very often when my mother had to appear in a vision in one play, she was too tired to stand still all the time, and I used to take her place. Not one of the audience knew the difference." Miss Craig smiled. "Even the stage carpenter," she added, "touched his hat and said, 'Yes, Miss,' and was quite polite to me, thinking I was Ellen Terry. My singing voice," concludes Miss Craig, "is just as bad as mother's."

How to Become an Actress.

THE editor of the Ladies' Home Paper, having received letters from readers asking for information as to the best way to obtain a footing on the stage, has secured the services of a well-known member of the theatrical profession, who will reply to all communications sent in. He deals with his first fair querist as follows:—"'Young Actress' is a professional reader who writes to me for advice. She is starting her career, and is full of enthusiasm for the life she has adopted. There is one thing that oppresses her. She tells me that she is not pretty, and this she thinks may be a drawback, as an actress needs to be pretty, she says, nowadays. Would it not be possible, she asks, for her to make-up so that she would look pretty from the front? And would it not be better for her to dye her black hair a golden colour? (1) Make-up, of course, will do a very great deal to remedy the defect you complain about, and you should study the art. Let the grease-paint be very evenly applied, the rouge not too pronounced on the cheeks or lips; let the line of the eyebrows be improved, and the flesh tint merge quite naturally into the real flesh colour at the neck. Be careful to carry the artificial colour well beneath the chin, as nothing looks worse than a distinct margin between the paint and the natural flesh at the neck. If you use liquid white for the arms, hands, bust and neck, do not use it too thickly. (2) I should certainly not dye the hair. Why should you? The colouring Nature has given you must surely be the best. (3) Prettiness is decidedly an extra attraction to the naturally gifted actress, but at the same time it is a far more valuable asset to possess a magnetic personality."

Mr. William Devereux and Mr. Fred Terry deserve pæans of praise for having written and produced such a fine play as Henry of Navarre. It contains enough historical truth to create an illusion of reality, but no pedantic scruples are allowed to prevent it being a very powerful and thrilling drama. The difficulty of combining the two requisites is immense. Honour in the highest, then, to the dramatist who dares to attempt the almost impossible, and to the manager who has the wit to appreciate such a piece when he reads it, and the culture and enthusiasm to cast, mount, and present it as it deserves.

The keynote of the play is struck at the beginning. We listen to the plottings of Catherine de Medici; we are shown the timorous scruples of Charles IX.; and the characters of Henry de Bourbon and Marguerite de Valois are drawn in a very diverting scene, in which he piques his future wife by assuming a rustic and boorish air, and then making love to her in the most ardent, poetic, and romantic manner. Henry knows that he is surrounded by enemies, Catherine especially being anxious to get rid of him; but he remains at Court, partly for the sake of the Huguenot cause, partly for the love of Marguerite. He cannot quite make up his mind whether she is in the plot against his life; and his final words in the first act are, "Does Marguerite know?"

The Court astrologer and purveyor of poisons, Cosmo Ruggieri, thinking that Henry is certain to become King, gives him a ring the stone of which will change colour if placed near poison. In doubt as to his wife's complicity, he neglects her to such an extent that, in a moment of bitter resentment, she makes an assignation with Henry's deadliest enemy, the Duc de Guise. Then comes an explanation between her and her husband. Henry convinces her of his affection, and she tries to cancel the appointment with De Guise. The end of this second act is irresistibly effective. The Queen-Mother has given Marguerite some deadly poison, and has told her that it is a love-philtre. Marguerite, at a ball at the Louvre, drops this into a goblet of wine and hands it to Henry. The magic ring turns green; Henry's suspicion is aroused, and he asks her to drink first, which she joyously prepares to do, when he dashes the cup down, as if by accident, snatches up another, and drains it to her health.

In the third act Henry's jealousy is excited by rumours that his wife has made an assignation with De Guise; and the King of Navarre at first prepares to kill the Duc. Then he perceives that the Queen-Mother is using the situation for her purposes. Whichever is the victor in the duel, she will have one enemy the less. He resolves not to fall into the error of slaying De Guise, which would raise the population of Paris, to his ruin; and when Marguerite, on De Guise's arrival in her apartment, cries for help, Henry arrives, masked and disguised, assists the Duc to escape by a rope ladder, and presents himself to the King and courtiers, who come expecting to find De Guise. "Where should a husband be," says Henry, "but in his wife's bedroom?"

The last act is very strong indeed. Charles's consent to "St. Bartholomew" is obtained; the massacre begins, and Henry dashes into the fray to save De Mouhy, bringing him in wounded. De Guise and his men enter, and the Duc turns from Henry with scorn when he sees the white band which Marguerite—like the lady in Millais' picture—unknown to Henry, has bound to his arm to save him. Henry tears the false badge off indignantly, and is hard pressed, but he is saved by the King for Marguerite and future greatness.

The acting was remarkable, not only for the energy and dramatic power displayed, but for the care and finish with which the characters were delineated. Mr. Fred Terry's features lent themselves admirably to the representation of the alert and subtle Henry de Bourbon, and with the aid of a delicately skilful make-up he managed to give the idea of the personage exactly. The part is one of the strongest that have been written for a leading actor for a long time, being full of effective contrasts, and Mr. Terry took full advantage of all his opportunities. He was equally excellent throughout the progress of the play; and whether Henry de Bourbon was joking gaily in the teeth of imminent danger, making love with true Gascon ardour, or cleverly eluding the snares of his enemies, Mr. Terry was always equal to the demands made upon him. The result was a creation of distinguished merit, immensely successful, and exciting the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Miss Julia Neilson is such a mistress of the art of depicting characters like that of Marguerite de Valois—queenly, impulsive, and just a trifle coquettish—that her success in the character was certain. In the first act she took her share capitally of the scene in which Henry piques the vanity of Marguerite by his bluntness; and in all the more serious passages, in the depiction of indignation, love, and agonised interest, Miss Neilson showed the value of her ripe training and liberal resources. The part suited her splendidly, and she filled it with a strength and skill which made it one of her most triumphant achievements, her appearance in the gorgeous attire of the period being not the least agreeable factor of her very fine performance. An important personage in the play is Catherine de Medici, and it was well that so able an actress as Miss Tita Brand was secured to sustain it. Miss Brand looked the terrible Queen-Mother very effectively, and carried an imposing costume with ease and dignity. She did not fall into the error of making the remorseless Catherine too old and ugly, and her exultant smile at the prospect of each new deed of darkness was very natural and significant. An impersonation which made a great impression on the audience was the Cosmo Ruggieri of Mr. Horace Hodges—a grim, solemn, and mysterious embodiment which had a great deal to do with the success of the play. There was a calm superiority about Mr. Hodges's reading of the rôle which, combined with a judicious make-up, riveted the attention of the house whenever the crafty astrologer was on the stage. A performance of remarkable merit was Mr. Malcolm Cherry's Charles IX. The part is cleverly drawn, and Mr. Cherry's development of it was always telling and expressive, and at times powerfully intense, notably in the scene in which Charles, enraged at the prophecy of his coming death and the succession of the Duc d'Anjou, springs upon the latter and tries to murder him. Here Mr. Cherry rose to a height of almost tragic passion. Another strong and tense rendering was Mr. A. E. Anson's Duc de Guise—villainous but not exaggerated, emphatic but never melodramatic, and replete with aristocratic audacity and cruel pride. Mr. Harry F. Wright as the Duc d'Anjou might have stepped out of an old portrait of the period, so exactly did he realise one of the sleek and scented exquisites of the sixteenth century. He had little to say, but his pantomime and facial expression were excellent. A sound and sterling performance of the part of Arthur de Mouhy was given by Mr. Walter Edwin, who supplied an agreeable portraiture of the commonsense, matter-of-fact, faithful adherent of the versatile Henry of Navarre. Miss Kathleen Doyle as the merry lady-in-waiting, Marie Belleforet, contributed some acceptable comedy, and was as bright and vivacious as could be desired in her scenes with Mr. Edwin, which were very amusing; and Miss Gladys Gardner enacted Charlotte de Sauve very smoothly and carefully, and looked the character well. Mr. J. Carter-Edwards's ripe experience made him a most desirable representative of Marshal de Tavannes; Mr. George Dudley did good work as Chancellor de Birague; Mr. Maurice Tosh was very commendable as the Duc de Retz; Mr. C. R. Gibbon merits mention as the Duc de la Rochefoucauld; Mr. Maurice Elvey contributed a neat rendering of the rôle of M. des Valles; Mr. Philip Merivale was excellent as M. de Besme; and Mr. Sydney Porter was entirely efficient as Nancey, Mr. R. Easten Pickering playing a page neatly. The Court ladies had handsome and intelligent representatives in Miss Kitty Carteret, Miss Gwen Thomas, and Miss Beatrice Manning. Mr. R. C. McCleery's scenery was enthusiastically admired; it was very artistic and picturesque, and the details had evidently been carefully studied. The play, produced under Mr. Terry's direction, enlisted the interest and sympathy of the audience early in the evening, and the performance culminated in a demonstration the like of which has not been heard in a London theatre for a long time.

THE CRITERION.

On Wednesday, Jan. 6, Revival of the Play, in Four Acts, by Hubert Henry Davies, entitled "MRS. GORRINGE'S NECKLACE."

Captain Mowbray .....MR. YORKE STEPHENS
Colonel Jardine .....MR. FRED LEWIS
Lieutenant David Cairn ....MR. LESLIE FABER
Mr. Jernigan .....MR. REGINALD WALTER
Charles .....MR. LAWRENCE WHITE
Mrs. Jardine .....MISS MARIE ILLINGTON
Isabel Kirke .....MISS DOROTHY THOMAS
Vicky Jardine .....MISS ELFRIDA CLEMENT
Miss Potts .....MISS ETHEL MARRYATT
Mrs. Gorringe .....MISS MARY MOORE

Miss Mary Moore has added another leaf to her laurels as a manageress by reviving Mr. Hubert Henry Davies's play, which is one of the best that clever dramatist has written. The combination of a domestic tragedy with an abundance of amusing comedy relief makes a most agreeable and interesting evening's entertainment. Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace was produced at Wyndham's Theatre in the May of 1903, with Sir Charles Wyndham as Captain Mowbray, Mr. Alfred Bishop as Colonel Jardine, Miss Mabel Terry-Lewis as Isabel Kirke, and Miss Mary Moore as Mrs. Gorringe. The love interest of the play is by no means conventional. Captain Mowbray, a man past his first youth, who has made a fortune in South Africa, is secretly enamoured of Isabel Kirke, step-daughter of Colonel Jardine, in whose house the action of the piece occurs. Isabel has given her heart to a weak and worthless but prepossessing young man, David Cairn, and is doing her best to cure him of his various vices—gambling included. Cairn loses heavily, and, being in want of money, yields to temptation and appropriates a necklace belonging to Mrs. Gorringe, a silly and affected person, who is staying with the Jardines much to the irritation of Mrs. Jardine, who is equally absurd but in a different way. Mrs. Gorringe misses her necklace, and sends to London for a detective. Stung by remorse, Cairn resolves to return the ornament, and hides it pro tem. in a vase which stands on a side table. Mowbray finds out that Isabel loves Cairn, and is so much distressed that he tries to leave the house quietly and at once. This excites the suspicion of the detective, which is increased when the necklace is found wrapped up in Mowbray's handkerchief, which he had lent to Cairns, who goes off on foreign service, letting suspicion rest upon Mowbray, who screens him for the sake of Isabel. She, it is now disclosed, has been secretly married to Cairn, who eventually returns and offers to confess to the theft. Coming, however, to the conclusion that he is incorrigible, he goes out into the garden and commits suicide, leaving Isabel free to marry Mowbray, whose merits she has learned to appreciate.

Miss Mary Moore's Mrs. Gorringe is one of those masterpieces of unconcious satire in which Miss Moore revels. The make-up is a marvel of subtle observation, and the voice, attitude, and minauderies of the ridiculous lady are irresistibly comic. There is a realism about the embodiment which raises it to the level of high art. Mrs. Gorringe's conceit, her idea of her own irresistible attractiveness, her insistence on detail in her description of the way in which she discovered her loss, and her utter ignorance of the light in which she is regarded by others are shown by Miss Moore in a manner for which all lovers of humorous acting should be grateful. Mr. Yorke Stephens, an artist who is always safe, sound, and successful, depicts Captain Mowbray in a firm and finished style, and deserves very warm praise for his strong, steady, and skilful performance. He makes Mowbray acute as well as affectionate; and the slight gauntness of the African adventurer is cleverly suggested. The ease and aplomb of the rendering are excellent. A delightful contribution to the evening's amusement is made by Miss Marie Illington in her original character of Mrs. Jardine. As the typical British matron endowed with manner and position, Miss Illington sends the house into ecstasies of mirth by her exquisitely droll impersonation, the effect of which is greatly increased by Miss Illington's imposing appearance in some striking costumes. The difficult and exacting rôle of Lieutenant David Cairn has a judicious and suitable exponent in Mr. Leslie Faber, who played it at Wyndham's in 1903, and whose admirable rendering was keenly appreciated at the Criterion on Wednesday. Mr. Reginald Walter, another member of the original cast, again endows Mr. Jernigan with all the stern and solid seriousness of the typical detective; and Mr. Lawrence White speaks his lines well and bears himself creditably as Charles. Miss Dorothy Thomas is a very winning representative of Isabel Kirke. She has a fine appearance, a soft, mellow, and distinct delivery, delicate grace, and much gentle earnestness; and she acts with ease, feeling, force, and judgment. Miss Elfrida Clement is duly pert and pretty as Vicky Jardine; and Miss Ethel Marryatt is once more happily available for the little part of Miss Potts, which she sustains carefully and well.

Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace is preceded by Miss Rosina Filippi's bright and smart duologue The American Widow, in which Mr. John Toke enacts the Earl of Somerville very pleasantly, and Miss Frances Vine, with an excellent American accent, plays Mrs. Vanbright with all the necessary quaintness and vivacity

THE GARRICK.

On Tuesday, Jan. 5, revival of the Play, in Four Acts, by Anthony Hope, entitled "THE ADVENTURE OF LADY URSULA."

Lady Ursula Barrington ..MISS EVELYN MILLARD
Dorothy Fenton .....MISS DORA BARTON
Mrs. Fenton .....MISS DOLORES DRUMMOND
Sir George Sylvester .....MR. HERBERT WARING
Mr. Dent .....MR. CHARLES FULTON
The Earl of Hassenden .....MR. J. L. MCKAY
The Rev. Mr. Blimboe .....MR. LYTTON GREY
Mr. Castleton .....MR. OWEN ROUGHWOOD
Quilton .....MR. EVELYN VERNON
Sir Robert Clifford .....MR. HEATH HAVILAND
Mr. Devereux .....MR. GERALD JEROME
Mr. Ward .....MR. A. E. BENEDICT
Mills .....MR. JOHN W. LAURENCE
Servant .....MR. FRANK H. DANBY

The Lady Ursula Barrington is one of Miss Evelyn Millard's best parts, and The Adventure of Lady Ursula is one of Mr. Anthony Hope's best plays. There is a distinct literary flavour about the dialogue; and the whole work is conceived and carried out in a very pleasant and happy vein. Mr. Hope has indeed caught very cleverly the polished, slightly formal spirit of eighteenth-century society, and has handled his theme with the ease which comes of intimate acquaintance with the literature of the "period." Some of the epigrams thrown in by him are excellent; and the artificial parts of the piece are as good as the ingenuous ones. There is a great deal of unsophisticated gaiety in The Adventure of Lady Ursula, which was produced at the Duke of York's Theatre on Oct. 11, 1898, with Miss Millard in the leading female character, Mr. Herbert Waring as Sir George Sylvester, Mr. George Raiemond as the Rev. Dr. Blimboe, Mr. Charles Fulton as Mr. Dent, Mr. Sam Sothern as Lieutenant Ward, Miss Agnes Miller as the sedate Mrs. Fenton, and Miss Florence Haydon as Miss Dorothy. As our readers may remember, the whole complications of the plot are caused by the rash vow of Sir George Sylvester, who, having killed a friend in a duel about a woman, resolves that he will never meet one again. This, of course, involves the exclusion of petticoats from his house, and so, when the Lady Ursula Barrington, in a mischievous mood, pretends to faint on his doorstep, he merely places the porter's lodge at her disposal. Her hot-headed brother, the Earl of Hassenden, happens to pass by, is enraged at the insult offered to his sister, and insults Sir George grossly. A duel is inevitable unless something is done to stop it. So Ursula dresses up in her brother's clothes, and presents herself to Sir George as her younger brother, who is really in Paris. After some amusing scenes between them, in which Sir George becomes more and more interested in Ursula—whom he thinks he has not seen—she escapes, still in disguise, to London. Here she appears at Sir George's lodgings in St. James's, and a bully named Dent nearly succeeds in picking a quarrel with her. This is prevented by the arrival of Sir George, who begins to suspect the trick that has been played upon him, and, in order to force an acknowledgment from Lady Ursula, challenges the supposed Sir Walter for his insulting conduct in suddenly leaving the house at Edgware. Lady Ursula offers to fight him with pistols across a table; and the jest is carried nearly up to firing point when Sir George stops. The pair are now deep in love with each other. The last act is brisk and exciting, Lord Hassenden turning up at the Edgware mansion to seek his sister, and finding instead his sweetheart Dorothy Fenton, who has come there for the same purpose. This almost leads to another challenge; but Lady Ursula arrives in female attire, and reconciliations and explanations end in her betrothal to Sir George.

Miss Evelyn Millard is perfectly at ease and at home in the part of the Lady Ursula Barrington, and she plays it with all the vivacity and accomplishment required. The slightly hoydenish spirit of the character is cleverly tempered with good breeding, and the spontaneous gaiety of the girl is always allowed to break through the formality of the fine lady. Miss Millard is completely mistress of the rôle, and the ease and smoothness with which she renders it make her performance truly delightful. She makes a handsome appearance in the male attire of the period, which, by the bye, lends itself better than some would to the concealment of sex. The variety of emotions with which the author has supplied his heroine are depicted by the actress with consummate skill and striking power of expression. Mr. Herbert Waring's Sir George Sylvester has all the necessary "style" and weight; and he gives a remarkably good idea of the slightly saddened, cynically humorous, but still young nobleman. He is much assisted by the sumptuous costumes which he wears. They are dazzling and becoming, and Mr. Waring carries them with all the required largeness and freedom of spirit. The air of calm predominance is assumed by him with ease; and the embodiment, altogether, is a fine example of high comedy acting. Miss Dora Barton is really bewitching as the gay, careless, impulsive Dorothy, acting with a crisp alertness that is very effective, and looking remarkably pretty in the dainty dresses of the time. Miss Dolores Drummond's Mrs. Fenton is one of those unimpeachable renderings of middle-aged ladies which she knows so well how to supply, and combines dignity and deportment with a pleasant tinge of humour. The minor characters are most of them important, and are all admirably sustained. We must particularly praise Mr. Charles Fulton for his bold and vigorous performance as Mr. Dent; and Mr. J. L. MacKay ably emphasises the combative instincts of the Earl of Hassenden. Mr. Lytton Grey is commendably solid and benign as the Rev. Mr. Blimboe, the combination of dignified courtesy and respect for "betters" being delicately indicated; and Mr. Owen Roughwood gives a careful and creditable representation of Mr. Castleton, Mr. Evelyn Vernon's Quilton being quite the old-fashioned family retainer. Mr. Heath Haviland shows ability as Sir Robert Clifford; Mr. Gerald Jerome does good work as Mr. Devereux; and Mr. A. E. Benedict is efficient as Mr. Ward, Mr. John W. Lawrence giving an intelligent performance as Mills, and Mr. Frank H. Danby being assiduous as the servant. Mr. W. Hemsley's scenery, especially the picturesque Edgware interior, greatly assists the illusion; the dresses could hardly have been improved upon; and a word of praise is well deserved by Mr. Edmond Ricketts's orchestra, the Mustel Celesta-Organ, an agreeable instrument, being used with effect.

Worse than the Goodwins.

A GOOD story is told of a certain theatre-proprietor's farewell. His little wooden theatre had existed a season, but the box-office had not been overworked. The final night came, and the broken-hearted owner made his speech. "I must thank you," he said, "for the way you have rallied round this temple of Thespis. It is not a great theatre, I admit, but it is the best I could afford. I thank you, people of Blankham, for the way you have patronised me: but, Heaven help me, if I had built this place on the Goodwin Sands, I should have had more support from the shipwrecked sailors!"

"THE TEST."

Play, in Three Acts, by T. W. Eastwood, produced for the first time at the Court Theatre on Sunday, Jan. 3.

Mr. Dalton .....MR. DENNIS CLEUGH
Grace .....MISS EDYTH OLIVE
Mr. Curry .....MR. HUBERT WILLIS
Mrs. Curry .....MISS GWYNNE HERBERT
Dorothy .....MISS DOROTHY FANE
Miss Appleby .....MISS ALICE MANSFIELD
Footman .....MR. A. DOUGLAS NEWMAN

The degree of excellence which was reached by the first essay of the Dramatic Productions Club a month ago was but ill maintained by their latest selection, which was given at the Court Theatre on Sunday and reproduced the following afternoon. The subject of "free love" has never been regarded with sufficient seriousness to warrant its discussion on the stage, and in dealing with the theme the author of The Test has provided a play of meagre proportions filled out by high-flown language which the keenest perception might fail to follow. The principals are Aubrey Dalton, an artist, and Grace, an "idealist." The latter refuses an offer of marriage by Aubrey, having come to the conclusion that love is of too soulful a character to be contracted by the marriage tie, so the couple set aside that formality and begin housekeeping forthwith. After a few months Grace, who writes books to propagate her theory, gives way when she contemplates the future in store for a probable offspring, and asks Aubrey to marry her. Her demand is not altogether uninfluenced by the fact that he has developed signs of interest in a young girl named Dorothy, who is staying with her uncle and aunt at a hydro. in North Wales, where the whole of the action takes place. For the sake of convention Aubrey and Grace pass as Mr. and Mrs. Dalton; but Dorothy, with all the innocence—and perhaps a little more—of girlhood, accompanies Aubrey on his sketching trips among the hills. The latter is indeed deeply in love with Dorothy, and answers Grace's request by declaring that he cannot live without Dorothy, and intends to offer her marriage. He does so at the first opportunity, explaining his position with regard to Grace; but Dorothy, in the only scene which has any dramatic worth, repels him with scorn. Grace's exalted ideas of womanhood forbid her marriage with Aubrey now that he has ceased to love her, and, awakened to a sense of his loneliness, Aubrey takes refuge in suicide.

The opportunities for effect given to the artists were scant. Aubrey Dalton is an unprincipled cad and an insufferable bore, who is continually adjourning the action of the play while he indulges in rantings about nervous force, in the course of which he is fain to liken himself to a burst of thunder. Mr. Dennis Cleugh made the part as possible as might be, and did his best to give colour to his utterances. Miss Edyth Olive was little more fortunate as the "idealist," Grace, but she invested the part with feeling. There was little chance for the display of passion, but the hard, dry accents necessary to indicate the depths of despair were admirably assumed. Dorothy was interpreted with delightful freshness and animation by Miss Dorthy Fane, who contributed skilfully to the scene in which she disposes of the pretensions of Aubrey. An accept-member of the dramatis personæ was an old maid, who is constantly expounding the virtues of the Christian spirit. Miss Alice Mansfield gave a droll exposition of the part, her method of delivery being responsible for much of the mirth aroused. Mr. Hubert Willis was painstaking as ever in his rendering of the rôle of Mr. Curry, Dorothy's uncle, and as Mrs. Curry the artistic excellence and refinement of Miss Gwynne Herbert were again conspicuous.

Some compensation for the disappointment of the earlier part of the afternoon was found in the following piece, which was a comedietta, by Clotilde Graves, entitled

"THE GENERAL'S PAST."

Major-General E. D. Sassnidge
MR. MICHAEL SHERBROOKE
Sir Chas. Belphin, J.P.....MR. SCOTT BUIST
Colonel W. de Pegg Cholmondeley
MR. WALLETT WALLER
Giovanni Gioacca .....MR. LEON M. LION
Mrs. Cholmondeley ..MISS GERTRUDE HEINRICH
Mrs. Caddisbrooke .....MISS LUCY ASHWORTH

Setting aside the improbability of the episodes presented, Miss Graves may be said to have fashioned a merry farce brightened by amusing dialogue. Sir Charles Belphin, a justice of the peace, goes in fear of the discovery of his courtship with a young widow, whose first husband has been only a few months dead. In order to escape observation the pair arrange to have a dinner at a London restaurant, but scarcely has the meal begun when they are joined by the widow's neighbour, a Major-General Sassnidge, who is an inveterate scandal-lover and the dread of the lovers. The Major-General is abnormally short-sighted, and having broken his spectacles, mistakes Belphin and the widow for two old friends who had invited him to dinner. In the course of the meal the Major-General, who passes as a bachelor, grows reminiscent, and dilates upon an escapade of his married life which involved his appearance in the Divorce Court. The widow and her wooer thus secure a formidable weapon, and are able to dictate terms to enforce the General's silence. The little piece was merrily played. Mr. Michael Sherbrooke gave a diverting sketch of the meddling Major-General; Miss Lucy Ashworth made a comely and charming widow; and Mr. Scott Buist sustained the rôle of Sir Charles Belphin with buoyancy and spirit. Mr. Leon M. Lion played comically as an Italian waiter, whose constatnly reiterated "If you pleese!" always obtained a laugh.

The Masher Amazed.

"EVER had any 'scenes' outside?" said the stage-door-keeper at the Gaiety Theatre to a Daily Mail man the other day. "Now and then. Nothing to equal the night poor Bill Terriss was stabbed to death as he was going into the Adelphi. But one thing I did see once as I never shall forget. A young feller had been fair persecuting a pretty young actress for weeks and weeks. One night she brings her brother down to the theatre. Like her he was; small, too, but as wiry as they make 'em, and a rare light-weight boxer for all his slim figure. Well, after the show that night there was the young feller waiting as usual, and presently he sees what he thinks is the girl coming out in a big cloak what she usually wore. As usual, he sidles up to her, and this time she doesn't pass him by as usual, but takes his arm and walks a few paces with him. Then all of a sudden she kicks off her cloak, throws her hat o' one side, and sets about him. It was the brother dressed up, and the hiding that young feller got he'll remember till his dying day. But that sort of thing don't happen nowadays. Times is changed."

MISS WINIFRED MAUD and her company have been appearing at the Theatre Royal, Margate, in The Convict for the first three nights of the week. As Dora Miss Maud has played with conspicuous success, and has been capably supported by Mr. Leonard S. Harrison as Charles Renshawe; Mr. Gordon Ingram as Jack Britton; Mr. Max Carson as Capt. Harley; Mr. Victor Du Cane in the rôle of Freddy Freckles; Miss Amy Waitland as Jennie Freckles; Mrs. Wingold Lawrence as Olga Brandon; and other members of an all-round capable company. For the remainder of the week The Stowaway was played by special request.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE EMPIRE.

Among the variety attractions presented by Mr. Harry Hitchins at the Empire is Miss Lalla Selbini, whose name suggests that she comes from Italy, though we happen to know that she is quite English. At one time she was associated with the celebrated cycling troupe pioneered by her father; but a year or two since she began to engineer a show of her own, which improves in its conception and execution every time we see it, until it has developed into a triumph of versatility. As at the Alhambra, the beautiful Lalla comes on to the stage in full walking costume—a pretty dress that entirely suits her charm as a brunette. But after a few juggling feats, she discards skirts for the simplicity of a kind of bathing costume, close-fitting to the contour of a perfect figure, and accomplishes cycling feats of considerable variety and difficulty. On one wheel she is decidedly clever, and her tandem feats are also cleverly done. She has a younger brother, who is a born comedian. Dressed in Chinese costume, he does many diverting tricks, and joins his sister in a really clever parody of the Italian singing girl (from Saffron-hill), accompanying her as an organ-grinder, with a property monkey. The turn is a great success, the artists being recalled several times.

The Perezoffs have a novel setting to their smart juggling turn. It is the dining-room of a restaurant, and the waiters throw to each other all the requisites for laying a table, which is accomplished in less time than it takes us to record the fact. The guests enter, and after expressing surprise and astonishment at the original methods by which they are served with viands, join in the fun themselves. The final feat of a shower of plates, which are thrown at lightning speed, and caught by one of the troupe with both the left and the right hands, is loudly applauded, and the performance throughout is exhilarating and smart.

The great feature of the ballet A Day in Paris is undoubtedly the Apache dance of Mr. Fred Farren and Miss Beatrice Collier; but a new feature are two new dance creations of M. Alexander Genée, the teacher of his niece, Mlle. Adeline Genée, which are exploited by Miss Lydia Kyasht. The first is a flag dance in the Champs Elysées scene, and the second an elaborate polka fantasie—lasting five minutes—in the final scene. Mlle. Kyasht is nightly received with enthusiasm.

Miss Josephine La Barte, the entertainer at the piano, has a song quite in the humorous vein when she sings "Nicholas, don't be ridiculous." Miss Evelyn D'Alroy and Mr. Charles E. France win hearty applause for Mr. Alfred J. Locke's duologue A Blank Cheque, which is admirably played; the pictures of the riding of Italian Cavalry are most interesting; and other turns in a fine bill are the Four Amaranths, capital dancers; Hayes and Merritt, in a trampolin act; and Pewitt, the human head.

THE PALACE.

The programme of the Palace Theatre was augmented on Monday by a distinctly clever turn in McMahon and Chappelle, who appeared for the first time in this country. The entertainment is an "illustrated duologue," called Why Hubby Missed the Train. Outside an American railway station arrives a young lady, who is presently followed by a young man. He is the cause of the train being missed, but excuses himself with the remark that "he did not miss it by very much in minutes." The wife argues, and the man talks back, and the epigrams which ensue do not fail to thoroughly amuse the audience. The moving scenery used in the act is distinctly novel to the English variety stage, and there is no doubt that Mr. Butt, in exploiting new American "turns," has scored in his latest selection. During the recent wintry weather one of the songs rendered by the Palace Girls at the popular house in Cambridge-circus proved unexpectedly topical. Its title is "Little Snowstorm, go away, and come again another day." We do not quite desire this, nor are these very charming young ladies really sincere in their wish, as they bask in front of an Alpine scene in full summer foliage. They are very fascinating, too, in their "Teddy Bear" song and final dance. Mr. Herman Finck's cleverly arranged musical pot-pourri, "Now and Then," is already a popular feature of the programme. About eighty popular airs are included. We have "Get your hair cut" served up with the "Pilgrims' Chorus" of Tannhäuser; and Lassen's beautiful "All Souls' Day" becomes mixed up with rag-time. What matters? It is all quite inspiriting and tuneful.

In the list of Mr. Butt's artists we come across "Hicks and Terriss," a new turn in variety, and do not for the moment realise that the manager of the Palace is having his little joke, and that he is referring to the popular Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hicks, who have caught on by the delightful irresponsibility and breeziness of their acting, singing, dancing, and—may we say?—gagging, in Fly-by-Night, the aeroplane sketch, recently noticed at length in these columns. The house laughs heartily at "Seymour's" topical hits, and are immensely tickled when he says his motto is "Nil Dorando."

Les Fleury duo are very popular in their representations of Parisian types, and repeat their success of last year; the Bogannys, lunatic bakers, are among the funniest of acrobats, and present a very smart show; Nelson Jackson's stories and songs are exceedingly popular; and Lyster and Cooke, Jack Lorimer, Aimée de Leska, and Max Laube are other turns in an excellent bill.

THE CANTERBURY.

The Callan and Ardel company are presenting a new singing, dancing, comedy, and acrobatic scena, entitled Scenes on the Mississippi, at the Canterbury this week, and the trifle has been received with marks of approval. The scene is the bankside of the famous American river, and the characters all appear with blackened faces. There does not seem to be any continued story, but a series of incidents. The scena opens showing a group of natives singing "The Swanee River," after which there are some appropriate larking and jesting. Then a boy, with a nice soprano voice, steps forward and renders the lines of "Star of the night" in beautiful style. This is followed by the singing of "Happy as can be" by a talented quartette of harmony singers. There are some really funny comedians in Messrs. Callan and Ardel's party, and these engage in highly diverting frolics and acrobatics until and even after a smart corps of infantry march forward. The voices of these are heard to great advantage in "The Mississippi Brigade," and their drill exercises are neatly and precisely performed. Altogether Scenes on the Mississippi furnishes a pleasing music hall entertainment.

Little Tich, pertinently described as "the one and only," is delighting folks on "the other side of the river" with his wondrous comicalities, and his numbers, "A sergeant of the police," "The King of Ko-Ki-Ko," and "Little Miss Turpentine," are fruitful in the matter of the raising of laughter. Miss May Moore Duprez is surely as jolly as ever a Dutch lassie was, and her medley of Dutch songs and patter and her vivacious interpretation of the song "Gretchen" prove our statement to the hilt. Devon and Earle appear in an exceedingly clever clog-dancing act; and Mr. Frank H. Fox, a comedian with a bright style, offers a tuneful number in "When the women get the vote." Mr. Sam Williams, the popular chorus comedian, has a taking song in "Back to Ceylon"; and Miss Edie Coolville, a comedienne with a most attractive personality, offers pleasing vocal items in "The Isle of Wight" and "Can you see any green in my eye?"

Tee and Tee, the creative musical eccentrics, introduce some novel ideas in their act. To begin with, we see a tramp, seated at the foot of a signpost, perched on a milestone. He is enjoying his lunch, and is rudely interrupted by an eccentric motorist in a fearful and wonderful car. However, the combination proves most agreeable, for the two men extract melody out of the motor-car, the signpost, and other things. The "turn" wins the unstinted approval of the audience. Mr. L. B. Athol, too, wins favour with his singing of "Never tell your troubles to your friends"; Miss Clara Beck gives expressive rendering to the song "All I want is a man," and dances extremely well. Barclay and Netta's Jockeys appear in an amusing racecourse scene; and Miss Kitty Collier distinguishes herself as a comedienne, her dancing being particularly commendable. Hampton and Bauman, the Darktown entertainers, present their character scena, Down in Kentucky, in which they submit a selection of "Southern" airs; and Mr. Joe Elvin and company create roars of laughter in the sketch The Wrong House. Ruffell's Bioscope projects a number of interesting films. Manager Charles W. Adams is, as usual, to the forefront in the matter of attending to the convenience of his patrons and the requirements of the house.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

At this popular house for the holiday week Joe Elvin was at the top of the bill in a revival of The Wrong House. The popular comedian is in great form, and constant laughter greets the progress of the sketch. He is capitally supported, and the scenery and effects are very complete. Eugenie Fougere appears in a somewhat cosmopolitan turn, the whole of which is essentially Parisian. Arthur Melrose, a whistling word comedian, gives a clever show, and meets with a good reception. The Athlones, athletes, give a neat turn that serves to display both their strength and ability, which gains well-earnt applause.

Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls submit a most entertaining series of songs and dances with capital effect, their reception being an enviable one. Herbert la Martine displays his well-known skill as a dancer. To every sign of admiration and approval Billie Burford sings a descriptive song very commendably. Bert Brantford has a cleverly written song which he sings with good effect. Leah Arden has a powerful voice, which is used to great advantage in a ballad. Annie Braddan does very well in a humorous song. Kurkamp, the singing conductor, makes a hit in the well-known excerpt from Il Trovatore, and is equally successful in his song, "Two Eyes of Grey," which was most artistically rendered.

Horace and Olga's great troupe of performing cats and dogs gave a wonderfully clever turn, which was very fully recognised by the house. The appointments for this act are on a singularly complete scale. Spencer and Marks, in a speciality act, do fairly well, one of the duo being a good dancer. The Bioscope is good as usual; and Mr. Adams, the manager, is very courteous in the front of the house. Mr. Petersen's orchestra is a great feature of the evening.

THE CHELSEA PALACE.

Seasonable entertainment is provided at the cosy Chelsea Palace this week, and audiences of holiday proportions are loud in appreciation of the various performers who fill Mr. Henri Gros' judiciously selected bill. The festive period is represented in Goody Two Shoes, in which all the glories of pantomime are reflected. The production is that of Mr. Andie Caine, who put it on at Chelsea in the summer. It has been received this week with every sign of satisfaction, the smart costumes and elaborate scenery combining to furnish a pretty show. Fun is the chief ingredient of the production, and the laughter that begins with the arrival of Mr. Caine, who plays the dame, continues unabated throughout the piece. Mr. George Lester also supplies a diverting performance as Baron Graball, and Harry and Edwin do some clever acrobatic dancing as Biffem and Basham. Miss V. Macintyre plays and sings prettily in the title-rôle, and Miss H. Thwaites makes a typical principal boy, rendering the popular "Sue" in excellent style. An old familiar friend is found in the Brothers Horne's boxing sketch, The Biter Bit, which still has the power to arouse laughter. The comely young lady who acts the barmaid sings well and dances expertly.

Caricatures of the lady coon have been brought almost to a fine art by Miss Florence Yaymen, whose vocal eccentricities find general favour. She has discovered the existence of an hitherto unknown species in that of a Chinese coon maiden, and her antics and singing in that character are so broadly comical that many recalls are bestowed. Miss Lillie Langtry maintains the high pressure of activity with which she has so long been associated, and her movements on the stage are characterised by even greater rapidity than ever. As "The girl who can't keep still" her high spirits are very exhilarating, and the audience are quite fascinated by her flittings across the stage at express speed in illustration of her song. Later she returns in raiment of ruddy hue to tell in tuneful rhyme of a lamb who was lost at Shepherd's Bush Exhibition, when her wonderful agility is again exhibited. Miss Langtry supplements her song with a swiftly executed dance in which her twinkling feet seem to attain a record speed, all the while preserving symmetry of motion. Miss Langtry's success at Chelsea is great and well-deserved. Le Café Chantant is presented by Mr. Henri Cazman, whose talents are utilised in a variety of imitations and illusions.

As an eccentric musician Bi-Bo-Bi scores, as he might be expected to; Miss Katie Marsh is a dainty comedienne, and Mr. Sid Bandon, comedian, and Mr. A. T. Bute, eccentric comedian and dancer, also contribute to the bill. A special attraction is provided by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, in which the Morning Leader £100 prize picture was presented for the first time to the public eye on Monday. The film consists of a series of sensational snapshots of the most recent happenings in all parts of the world. Some dozen or so incidents are thus illustrated, and the series is completed with views of the preparation in every department for the issue of a great daily paper. It is a brilliant collection, which has the added zest of carrying the chance of a £100 prize for anyone who furnishes the best title. The show at Chelsea is smartly worked under the direction of the competent young manager, Mr. J. Norman Berlin, who has an able acting-manager in Mr. George B. Andrews. The new musical director at Chelsea is Mr. Charles Aves, who on the occasion of our visit was absent from his post owing to indisposition, which we trust is only of a temporary character.

ROTHERHITHE HIPPODROME.

Negro artists were in strong evidence at this popular house last week, and whatever may be the faults of the coloured race, they are without question most capable performers. Tiger Lily is a really wonderful dancer. With the concertina in hand, she punctuated every note of the instrument with the fall of her feet in a truly artistic manner. Matthews and Brown rendered in a vivacious and taking way a comedy entitled That's All, and gained the hearty applause of a large audience. Texas Hattie is equal to most of her white sisters on the tight-rope. It would be hard to believe that such gymnastics, practically in the air, could be accomplished unless one had personally seen them.

Parker, P.C., presented by that clever and versatile actor Mr. Chas. Austin, once more threw the house into convulsions. He was ably supported by Messrs. Chas. Neville, Harry Lennox, and Fred Murray. Webb and Branston delighted the audience with airs from the operas. Both are possessors of really nice voices, and the only fault with their turns is that they were all too short. Rosie Archer is an accomplished mimic. All her imitations were good, though perhaps the best was her realisation of Kate Carney. Chas. Harvey scored, as he always does here, with his amusing and original songs. Walter Stanley presents good songs with taking and popular melodies. The Bioscope, always good at this house, maintained its reputation for novelty; whilst the orchestra, in the absence of Mr. Fisher, rendered most attractive music under the able guidance of his deputy. It is a pleasure to get out of the fog and frost into this comfortable house. The genial manager, Mr. A. F. Vernal, and his courteous assistant, Mr. Murray, are ever to the front in assisting their patrons to spend a pleasant evening.

THE FORESTERS'.

Crowds are attracted this week by the excellent programme submitted at this cosy establishment, which has recently been thoroughly redecorated throughout. Top honours in the holiday bill were given to the Six Brothers Luck, in their latest absurdity, Lift-ems Ltd., by Chris Davis. The scene is a completely fitted grocery stores, where the assistants are holding a meeting. Suddenly the master enters and dismisses the lot. A young swell then takes charge of the establishment, being soon reinforced by several of his friends, who indulge in some good fun which keeps the audience in continual mirth, some clever tumbling being witnessed. The arrival of a bevy of lady friends adds to the joy of the new assistants, and the wrecking of the premises by an explosion is a sufficiently sensational finale.

Miss Florence Yaymen, coon caricaturist, provides an interesting item with her novel songs, "Waiting" and "Ching a Ling," concluding with a neatly executed dance and some shrilling war-whoops. Mr. E., with the assistance of pictures thrown on the screen, and a beautiful vocabulary, tells many an interesting story, humorous and pathetic. Miss Lily Kirton, an attractive young lady with good style and clear enunciation, receives an ovation for "What you've not got, you can always do without," and a bright and tuneful little Irish song. Boden and Bell, juvenile vocalists and dancers, are a clever pair who work extremely well together in their songs, concluding with a neat dance. The Olaves, in juggling and gymnastics, are enjoyable, the lady performing many difficult feats, and being ably assisted by the gentleman in his juggling.

The Bouncing Dillons, comedy gymnasts, are excellent, the lady's beautiful figure making a pretty picture while posing on the loose rope. Bouncing Willie is quite at home on the springs, performing, among other feats, a double somersault.

Miss Edith Lewis and company, in a sensational episode, Avenged, provides a dramatic scene which is always enjoyed when well played, as it is by Mr. Bert Morley as Capt. Pierpont, Mr. T. Templeton as Capt. Richter, and Miss Lewis as Vera. Charles Raynor, character comedian, amuses with "The girl with the angel face" and "Putting it down." The Temeraires, in a farcical protean absurdity, Home Comforts, supply an interesting ten minutes. Raymond's Biograph presents many interesting films.

SHOREDITCH OLYMPIA.

The way in which this hall is quickly gaining great popularity is really remarkable. At every performance the house is packed to the extreme, and the entertainment provided is always up to a high standard of excellence. The programme for the holidays contains many novelties, all of which meet with distinct approval. The principal attraction is undoubtedly the appearance of Mrs. Lewis Waller, in The Admiral's Lady, a delightful comedy of much interest. Mrs. Waller capably handles the rôle of the very uneducated Lady Rumblow, and plays with vigour throughout. She makes a careful and clever contrast between the lighter portions of the part and those of a more serious nature, and the manner in which she changes from one mood to the other shows considerable skill and ability. Mr. Edmund Waller supplies a notable and praiseworthy delineation of Admiral Rumblow, and discharges his duties with marked success. As Harry Rumblow, the son, Mr. G. Heathcote is well placed, as also is Mr. H. Coreney as the Duke de Villaflors. Mr. C. Sykes does well as Ille de Fonso; and Mr. E. Beer is all that could be desired as Captain Braddon. Isabel, the daughter of the Duke, is sweetly portrayed by Miss Dorothy Ripley; whilst Miss K. Vise plays with the necessary stiffness and reserve as the Duchess. Miss Colli does all that is possible with the small part of Betty. The staging and mounting of this interesting playlet are carried out in a manner worthy of special comment.

Leslie's Five Merry Maids appear in an act which comprises several songs capably rendered, some neatly executed dances, and also what might be termed an acrobatic exhibition on a revolving windmill. The special scene carried is wonderfully pretty, and with the numerous different coloured electric lights the effect is very elegant. Mr. Will Musgrave proves particularly amusing in his jovial rendering of "It's a good job I had my mother with me," and later, in a song of a somewhat similar type, "It's a good job the Sergeant came along." The Seven Wulfrunas show considerable acrobatic ability in their comedy creation, Fun in a Café. Some extremely difficult feats are performed by the party, and fun rages fast and furious during their occupation of the stage.

Miss Nora Stockelle gives much pleasure with her rendering of "I'm going back to London," and quickly dances herself into favour. Mr. Monte Walker scores a decided hit with his song "By the seaside," and is deservedly applauded. The old favourite Miss Marie Blythe engages the rapt attention of the audience with her chorus song, "Don't put your umbrella up," and proves equally successful in her second contribution, "The old love is the best." Her efforts are much appreciated, and her choruses are quickly taken up by the audience. Celest proves himself to be a clever gymnast, and in his sensational and remarkable wire act holds the audience in a state of breathless excitement. Bowden and Stol, a quaint couple, perform many humorous, though clever, antics. Their difficult feats are carried through with a coolness which makes their performance all the more amusing. Their efforts meet with applause which is well deserved. The Stowe Bros. also add to the success of the evening with their extremely clever and wonderful gymnastic display. Mr. Morny Cash sings his old favourites, "Do whatever you like with me," and "Bed." Although both contributions have had considerable wear, they still appear to give delight and amusement, and Mr. Morny Cash is deserving of praise for his hilarious drollery. Some excellent and interesting pictures are shown by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. Mr. H. H. Ketteman and his able lieutenant Mr. Albert Victor Adams adequately attend to the comforts of the audiences in front of the house, and discharge their duties with courtesy and tact.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR.

A strong company draws exceptionally large audiences here, and great gratification in the business done is felt by Messrs. F. and M. Abrahams. Tom Leamore, the incarnation of mirth, heads the humorous element, and recounts in his own peculiarly droll style his peregrinations as an itinerant insurance agent, after which he gives a characteristic study of the down-at-heel swell—an exceedingly clever piece of acting. Irene Meldon, the rapidly rising serio, brings the house down with a couple of finely-rendered songs. Indeed, at the hands of a critical audience this young artist's reception is nothing short of a triumph. Possessed of a rich and extremely clear voice, her numbers, couched in the usual light sentimental strain, draw forth a tremendous round of cheering, renewed at the conclusion of a smart skirt dance. Another favourite, though of a slightly different type, was Yolande Noble, whose piquancy and charm quite catch on with the occupants of both stalls and gallery. Miss Noble is gifted with comedy, and is daintiness personified. Henry Hilton provides a very entertaining interlude with a smart exhibition of legerdemain of the new order. Some of his tricks are unsually neat, and quite baffle the audience. The Camplins seem to exercise quite a powerful hold on the audience; their duologue, besides being original, is invested with a humour of its own.

Powerfully dramatic, and appealing strongly to the sentiments of an audience at all times sympathetic with the toiler, Ring Up 735 East can claim to be a brilliant success. This sketch was produced for the first time at Willesden recently, and a full report was then given. It is only therefore necessary to say that repetition has given the players a better opportunity of realising to the fullest extent the great opportunities provided for strong emotional acting. New to the cast is Mr. Cruikshanks, who fills the part of Jack Stapleford. The sketch is undoubtedly one of the finest in point of dramatic force that has been staged for some time. The staging is first-rate and the acting good.

Phil Bransby makes one of the chief hits of the evening; the Barton Franklyn Trio also add to the pleasure of audiences.

"SCOTCH MIXED."

A Musical Sketch by Frank Price, produced at the Hackney Empire on Monday evening, Jan. 4.

Jeremiah Johnson .....MR. DALEY COOPER
Jack Ainsley .....MR. CLIFTON YATES
The McPlhail .....MR. NAPIER BARRY
Alexander Dougal ....MR. REGINALD CROMPTON
Lady McTavish .....MISS VIOLET CLAIRE
Flora McTavish .....MISS EILEEN GILBERT

The bill at the Hackney Empire contains an attraction in the shape of a new musical sketch by Frank Price entitled Scotch Mixed, in which Mr. Daley Cooper and company appear. The rising of the curtain discloses the great hall of Lanchile Castle with a group of guests dancing. A bioscope man named Johnson is trying to get in to secure a good film, and Jack Ainsley, a guest, has promised to do his best to secure him admission. Lady McTavish, the hostess, is anxiously awaiting the arrival of The McPhail, a highland chieftain, whom she has not apparently met before, but whom she desires to see wedded to her daughter. The idea suggests itself to Ainsley, who has his own particular plan with regard to the daughter, to pass off Johnson as the noted Highland chief, and accordingly the operator finds the door opened and himself greeted with every sign of respect. The action now begins to develop, for Johnson, unable to understand the references that the hostess addresses to him, is informed by Ainsley that the lady is demented and must be humoured. The bogus chieftain begins to enjoy himself in his new position, and is succeeding very well when the real possessor of the title is announced, and after having had his claim laughed at by the company, he engages in a fight with a retainer of the hostess, and his impersonator, who has gone to secure the incident on a film, falls through the wall.

Mr. Daley Cooper works very hard as Johnson, his song and dance being particularly good. Mr. Clifton Yates as Ainsley did what little he had to do very well, and was associated with Miss Eileen Gilbert in "The Gay Gordons," which went capitally. Mr. Napier Barry as The McPhail was characteristic, and the same remark applies to Mr. Reginald Crompton, who displayed ability with the bagpipes. Miss Violet Claire as Lady McTavish was satisfactory, and Miss Eileen Gilbert as her daughter was commendable. The scene, by Mr. Julian Hicks, was very effective, and the mounting by Mr. Clarkson was on a very complete scale.

Another big feature in the programme is Goldin, the illusionist, assisted by Jeanne Fransioli and company. Cline and Clark, black and white comedy artists, in a couple of songs and dances, made a good impression, their dancing being distinctly good; Two Anartos in an act consisting of music and cross-talk made themselves great favourites; a turn of great artistic merit is Arthur Aldridge, the tenor, who sang two songs, the last, "In Manus Tuas, Domine," bringing the house down. This artist, who has both a good voice and style, made one of the hits of the night. The Three Lloyds in a double-bounding cable act displayed great agility and cleverness, and deservedly gained a cordial reception; May Brilliant in "Mandy's wedding," followed by a dance, went very well; Austin Rudd, in his policeman song and a parody on "Love me, and the world is mine," caused a great deal of amusement, the first song being by far the better. Mr. Greco's fine orchestra are giving German's "Three dances from Nell Gwynn" as an overture, and Mr. Percival, the acting-manager, and Mr. Trussell, his assistant, are both very attentive in the front of the house.

THE Gallimore Trio leave England for America on Oct. 13, 1909, and return in March, 1910.

BILLY ROSS AND CO. are going big at Peterboro', Maidstone, and Exeter with their Irish comedy boxing act. The competitions are a great draw.

MR. EDITOR,—SIR,—Will you kindly correct an error in your report of my Crusoe at the Pier Pavilion, Hastings. It should have been Miss Cynthia Lupino, not Luping.—Yours faithfully, (Miss) CYNTHIA LUPINO, Pier Pavilion, Hastings, Jan. 4."

THE Musical Palmers have been most successful this week at the Empire, Portsmouth, with their animated Bioscopic novelty The Village Blacksmith, the euphonium solo with organ obbligato being much admired.

MISS EVA COLTON is making a big hit as the Fairy Queen in The Babes in the Wood at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham. Her rendering of the pretty song "The Beautiful Land of Nod" is vociferously applauded by the audience.

E. V. BARR, a local comedian, has been creating quite a furore at the Hippodrome, Great Yarmouth, with his funny songs and stories. He recently secured at a trial performance at the Assembly Rooms, Wood Green, a gold medal offered for the best amateur comedian, and this success resulted in his securing offers from several managers. Mr. Barr has evidently a future.

MISS CARLOTTA ZERBINI is mourning the loss of her husband, Mr. John Harvey, who died on the 26th ult at the age of sixty-two. Mr. Harvey was a clever musician, and was formerly trombone soloist at the promenade concerts at Covent Garden. During the latter years of his life he was afflicted by paralysis, and was tended with loving care and devotion by his wife.

MR. TOM DIACOFF'S long-promised treat to the poor children of Pontefract on New Year's Day was a great success. At one o'clock nearly 700 children were accommodated in the pit and the gallery of the Alexandra Theatre and served with pork pie, mince pie, and cake. The children were waited upon by several ladies in the town. At the close of the repast the inmates from the Workhouse, the old people from the Almshouses, and the children from the Cottage Homes were admitted to the theatre, which was also thrown open to the public at large. It is estimated that nearly 1,400 people were present.

"'TWIXT DUSK AND DAWN.'

An Original Drama Petite, in Three Scenes, by Wilfred H. Benson, presented at the Battersea Palace on Monday, Jan. 4.

Baron Leon Murtoni ....MR. BERNARD MERVYN
Lieut. Jack Desmond .....MR. PAUL LOVETT
Nathan Jacobs .....MR. WALTER CAMERON
Chief Warder Hardy .....MR. W. G. BLAU
Mabel Desmond .....MISS MAMIE RENDLE
Countess Delia Redaire .....MISS B. DOYLE

'Twixt Dusk and Dawn, an admirably-written petite drama by W. H. Benson, and recently produced at Sadler's Wells, duly arrived at the Battersea Palace this week, and to judge by the reception that greeted its interpretation an unqualified success is assured. The plot which is unfolded is, briefly: Baron Leon Murtoni has had for his mistress a woman of mystery named Countess Delia Redaire, who, apparently tiring of him, confesses that ten years ago she murdered his two friends. In escaping she injured her arm, on which she still carries the scar. He informs her that he will hand her over to justice; she, in her fury, stabs him, and thinks him dead. Lieut. Jack Desmond, who enters immediately the deed was committed, is accused of the crime by the Countess, and is sent to prison. Incidentally the Countess loves Desmond and the Baron his wife, and they have enticed Jack to their rooms in order to ruin him, but are frustrated by the arrival of his friend Nathan Jacobs, who wins back the money he has lost, and persuades him to leave. Mrs. Desmond comes in seeking her husband, and the Baron attempting to molest her is knocked down by the infuriated husband, who unexpectedly returns and threatens to kill him, which statement is used to assist in obtaining his conviction. In the second scene we find the convict has escaped, and is being searched for by the warders. Ultimately he is captured by the chief warder, Hardy, whose life he had recently saved, and who in return assists him to escape. The third scene is again the Countess's apartments. She intends to leave the country, but the supposed dead Count presents himself, much to her discomfiture, and really now being in love with her wishes to make her his wife. This is not to her liking, but to get him out of the way for a few moments she consents, and persuades him to go and arrange for a boat to take them away, in the meantime putting a deadly drug in a glass of wine which she intends him to drink; but he, watching her movements, changes the glasses during her absence. They both partake of the wine, and after they have drained their glasses she taunts him with the fact of his having only a few minutes to live; but he tells her that he has changed the glasses, and that she has been poisoned. She cries for mercy, but too late, and in a few moments drops dead at his feet; and the curtain falls leaving the Baron prostrate with grief.

This highly dramatic sketch was skilfully and artistically played by Mr. Bernard Mervyn and his talented company, including Miss B. Doyle, a really fine actress, who plays the part of the Countess with consummate skill. Her acting in the last scene, where she is in the throes of the deadly drug and striving to live, is vividly depicted, and merited all the applause received for her most realistic performance, which shows her to be an artist of no mean pretentions. Mr. Mervyn is no less successful as Baron Murtoni, a character that suits him admirably, giving him ample opportunities of displaying his histrionic abilities. Every point is made to tell, and Mr. Mervyn's performance is a very fine character study. We must heartily congratulate Mr. Walter Cameron for his most humorous interpretation of Nathan Jacobs, a part which is brought into prominence by the clever performance of the artist, and no doubt his phrase "Isn't it warm?" will be heard in the streets of Battersea at an early date. Mr. Paul Lovett is well placed as Jack Desmond; Miss Mamie Rendle obtains all that is possible out of the part of Mabel Desmond; and Mr. W. G. Blan scores as the representative of the kind-hearted warder Hardy. The sketch was produced under the personal direction of Mr. Fred Baugh.

"THE BELLE OF THE ORIENT," presented by Joe Peterman's company, is the leading attraction at the Hippodrome, Margate, this week. There are also in the programme Frank Jester, Mamie Iris, the Almos, and Nellie Nestle. Some very amusing pictures are also shown.

AT the Empire Palace Theatre, South Shields, the head of the bill is the Colonial Septette, a troupe of excellent artists, who contribute a fine musical performance, and introduce old-world dancing with excellent lighting, scenic, and dramatic effects to an admiring audience. The Tennessee Guards exhibit wonderful evolutions with marvellous precision; the Dardinis contribute a good comedy juggling act; Cliff Ryland as a storyteller is well received. The remaining good items are Fanny Robina, comedienne; Florrie Cooper, ballad singer; Alf Holt, mimic and whistler; Ernest Clifford, comedian and dancer; and the Bioscope.

THIS week's bill at the Royal Hippodrome, Eastbourne, is headed by the Frantz Comedy Five in a smart display of amusing acrobatic feats, presented in a most entertaining manner; Elsie Ward contributes a song and dance item; Jack Hamilton's songs, anecdotes, and dance combine to furnish a very enjoyable turn; the Two Pems are popular with their humorous cross-talk; Shrillo's operatic whistling brings down the house; Mlle. Ollino is a smart and particularly fascinating lady conjurer. A pathetic musical episode, Truth in Absence, is most artistically played by Mr. Harry J. Crane, Miss Annie Milburn, and Miss Edna Payne. The Hippodrome pictures conclude

AT the Pier Pavilion Theatre, Eastbourne, a vaudeville company is headed by Les Rallis, in their very clever and highly-amusing absurdity, The Artist and His Monkey; Lilian Rigby submits an entertaining turn of instrumentation and dancing; La Belle Margo is a successful trapeze and rope gymnast; Harry Bent's mimicry of well-known variety stars receives the approbation it merits; Charles Leighton's tramp at the piano act is immensely popular; Mitchell and Mace prove themselves simultaneous dancers of exceptional cleverness; the Katos are old local favourites, and their living marionette entertainment is as popular as ever. Miss Carlotta Lunn (chorus comedienne), Ena Richards (chic comedienne and dancer), and a capital display of Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

MESSRS. BEANLAND AND EMERSON displayed much forethought when they entertained 800 of the little folk at the Queen's Theatre, Castleford, on the 29th ult, each one being given a bag containing a pork pie, a slice of cake, a piece of Christmas cake, and a Bath bun. After justice had been done to these dainties, the children were taken back into the hall to see the animated pictures, of which there was some 25,000ft. of film. They were presented on leaving the theatre with an apple, an orange, and a bag of sweets. A number of teachers from the various schools very efficiently helped to organise the happy party.

WOOLWICH HIPPODROME.

The various "turns" for the current week are being highly appreciated by large audiences. At the top of the bill is Colonel Gaston Bordeverry, the rifle and pistol expert, his disrobing of a lady with rifle shots and playing an accompaniment on the piano by the same method meeting with enthusiastic applause, as also does his playing of selections on the musical chimes. A noteworthy feature in the evening' entertainment is Frank Maura, described as the Mexican wonder, who supplies a foot-juggling act of extreme neatness which ranks with the finest of its kind, and is accorded a flattering reception. Mr. George Gilbey is, as usual, the source of much merriment; his Dame song puts him on very good terms with the audience, and again, as the "New constable on the beat," he provokes roars of laughter for his genuinely funny expressions.

Mr. Fred Curran imparts much humour to his songs, and scores considerably in his rendering of "In the twi-twilight." Baby Vi Davis, a very engaging and talented little mite, wins all hearts. She is the possessor of quite a powerful voice, and displays much ability in one so young, and is accorded a hearty welcome. Mr. Will Probyn's Brooklyn Comedy Four are heard to advantage in what may be described as a double duet where the two tenors sing "You'll remember me" while the other two render "Rocked in the cradle of the deep." Their other part-songs and diverting contributions prove very acceptable. Miss Cissie Thompson is happily suited in the song "Riding round on a roundabout," and is successful; Miss Eugènie Fougère contributes a lively turn after the French fashion; Lew Lake's vocalists are again paying a visit here, where they are always sure of a warm welcome, and in their song-scena Stick it, Jerry maintain their hold. The Bioscope, depicting Yachting on the Solent and The Paris Fire Brigade, still proves itself very popular.

THE NEW THEATRES BILL.

The very interesting letter from Mr. C. JESSON, L.C.C., which we printed last week, draws attention to certain points in Mr. ROBERT HARCOURT'S Theatres Bill which are well worthy of consideration. As our readers are aware, by the second clause of the Bill it is proposed to enact that the powers of the Lord Chamberlain under the Theatres Act, 1843, in respect of the licensing and closing of theatres within the ancient Parliamentary boundaries of the cities of London and Westminster, and of the boroughs of Finsbury and Marylebone, the Tower Hamlets, Lambeth, and Southwark, shall be transferred to the London County Council. Also that the licence of the London County Council shall be required in respect of a theatre within the said ancient Parliamentary boundaries authorised by virtue of letters patent from His Majesty or his predecessors in the same manner as if no letters patent had been granted in respect thereof; but that nothing in the Act shall affect the powers of the Lord Chamberlain under the Theatres Act, 1843, in respect of the licensing and closing of theatres in those places outside the Administrative County of London in which His Majesty, his heirs and successors, shall in their Royal persons occasionally reside. Of the first clause in the Bill—which proposes that it shall not be necessary to submit any stage play to the Lord Chamberlain before the first acting or presenting thereof, whether for hire or otherwise, and it shall not be lawful for the Lord Chamberlain to forbid the acting or presenting in Great Britain of any stage play—it need only be said that it has met with almost unanimous disapproval from every manager and dramatist who has been approached on the subject. Mr. FORBES ROBERTSON says, "I am not in favour of the Bill." Miss LENA ASHWELL, judging from conditions in countries without censors, considers our present conditions preferable. Mr. SYDNEY GRUNDY can imagine no greater disaster than the passing of this clause. Mr. LEWIS WALLER can "see no reason for changing the existing order," and Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER hopes the censorship will be retained. And the prevailing feeling about this part of the Bill is well expressed by Mr. HENRY R. SMITH, who asks, very pertinently, "What has arisen recently, or, indeed, at any time, in the conduct of theatres which should cause anyone to bring forward a Bill on these lines? I really see no necessity for it. I know of no London manager who has expressed any feeling antagonistic to the Lord Chamberlain or to the way in which the duties of his office are carried out. Mr. ERNEST CARPENTER and myself have always found him perfectly reasonable in regard to the censorship of plays, and I cannot see that he has treated anybody badly. We have no desire," Mr. SMITH goes on, "to introduce anything that might be objectionable into our plays; we want to present what is popular. We are perfectly satisfied with the reader of plays, who is a man of wide experience, and have no desire to change a system which has lasted long and worked well. But if there are any London managers who are dissatisfied with the Lord Chamberlain's department let them speak out now and say why they are dissatisfied. Some dramatic authors, I dare say, may desire a change; but the managers, so far as I know, are quite content to let well alone. The Lord Chamberlain has the power to grant or to refuse licences, and if a licence were abused it would very quickly be revoked."

But while these and similar opinions are expressed concerning the Censorship section of the Bill, it is by no means the same concerning the rest of it. Mr. ALEXANDER, while he prefers to be under the Lord Chamberlain, thinks at the same time that the present Act is obsolete; and his wish is to have Free Trade in amusements, and the opinions of most practical persons on the subject are well summed up by Mr. JESSON in the admirable letter to which we have alluded. Says Mr. JESSON: "If a proprietor of a place of amusement were allowed to provide either a music-hall or a dramatic entertainment in accordance with the changes in taste of his patrons, it would free the whole business from harassing restrictions, and give scope to proprietors, playwriters, composers, actors, musicians, variety artists, stage hands, and all concerned in theatrical and music-hall work, and allow the best of all kinds of entertainments to rise. It is certainly a ridiculous restriction that the proprietor of a theatre who finds that his patrons are leaving him for the variety halls should be compelled to give up his dramatic licence and take out a music and dancing licence to meet the new demand. On the other hand, it is equally absurd that the proprietor of a music-hall who finds his patrons want dramatic fare in the form of short plays should have to confine such plays to a duration of thirty minutes, with a limited number of characters. This restriction presses also very hardly upon the actor and actress who find themselves thrown out of employment by such restriction. There can be no doubt that if Mr. HARCOURT'S Bill were amended so as to establish a uniform system in these matters for the whole of the country it would be a most desirable thing. There is also the question of entertainments being given in places that are not licensed by any public authority, and are, therefore, under no such obligations as are imposed upon proprietors of theatres and music-halls, although they charge prices for admission just the same. This is a glaring injustice, and one that affects the safety and protection of the public."

The dramatic theatre and the variety theatre are now so interpenetrated with each other that there can be no question of opposing interests. Many of our theatres are offering entertainments which make no greater demands upon the intellect and the attention than are made at our leading variety theatres; and at these latter some of our best actors, actresses, and singers are earning handsome salaries in sketches. At the same time, there are hundreds of entertainments given for profit in unlicensed buildings which are subject to no inspection, and are often mere death-traps. Against these all whose interests are affected should certainly combine. Questionable as it is in parts, Mr. HARCOURT'S Bill may supply the nucleus of a really useful Act of Parliament; and Mr. JESSON'S suggestion of a "round-table conference" of representatives of the various interests involved is an excellent one, and one which we hope to see carried into effect.

MISS MARJORY CARPENTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I find that there is a widespread impression in the minds of the public that my little daughter, Marjory, is only permitted by the authorities to play her part in our pantomime for a few days.

I should therefore be greatly obliged if you would allow me the opportunity of explaining that this idea is quite erroneous, the decision of the magistrate being that she may appear up to 10.30 for the run of the pantomime, and this only means that, at the evening performances she will not be able to appear in the last scene.

Most of the other children engaged in West End productions are licensed until the fall of the curtain, and the somewhat extraordinary limitation in the case of my own daughter has surprised us all very much. The Act of Parliament is, in my opinion, a most necessary and proper one, but I am sure that the framers of the Act never meant it to apply to such a case as this, where there can be no question as to the education, or the adequate safeguarding of the interests of the child.

At all events, for the children employed at other theatres, who are strangers to the managements, to be fully licensed, whilst my daughter at the Lyceum is restricted, does seem to me to reveal a very curious and unfair operation of the law.—Yours faithfully,

ERNEST CARPENTER.

Lyceum Theatre, W.C., Jan. 1.

AT Bayreuth last week Fräulein Eva Wagner, daughter of the great composer, was married to Mr. Houston Stewart Chamberlain. The bridegroom is the son of the late Rear-Admiral Chamberlain, and a well-known authority on Wagner.

SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE will give a course of lectures, with musical illustrations, at the Royal Institution next month, the first being fixed for Feb. 6, when he will deal with Mendelssohn. The popular principal of the Royal Academy has lately completed an important choral work, founded upon the Scandinavian legend of Baldur, the Sungod.

THEATRICAL and music hall managers and orchestral conductors will do well to refer to an announcement in our advertisement columns in which an important notice affecting the copying of band parts is published by Messrs. Chappell and Co. The famous musical firm give notice that the copying of the band parts or any of the music of any copyright operas published by them either for the use of theatres or for any other purpose is an infringement of their musical copyright; that on and after this date no such unauthorised copying can be permitted, and that all manuscript copies not bearing Messrs. Chappell's stamp are illegal, and are liable to confiscation. A list of the operas the sole publishing rights of which for Great Britain and the Colonies are vested in Messrs. Chappell and Co., Ltd., is also given.

AT the Theatre Royal, South Shields, Mr. Charles Elderton's Christmas pantomime Robinson Crusoe is being performed this week to large audiences. The piece is bright, the music is of a sparkling and sprightly character, catchy songs and clever dances are introduced, and the costumes, mounting, and scenic effects are of an excellent description. Miss Ida Bell in the title-rôle is very effective; Miss Gertie Garagan makes a charming Polly Perkins; another dashing part is Captain Kettle by Miss Lena Lewis, who sings well; Mr. James Grant as Mrs. Crusoe gets a good deal of fun out of the part; the Princess Popsy of Miss Nellie Stuart is very praiseworthy; much merriment is caused by Mr. Teddy Worth, Mr. Percy Wright, Mr. Carson Hicks, and Messrs. Will and Fred Elton as Billy Crusoe, King Ki-Koko, Friday, Dick Dogknot, and Peter Porthole respectively. A clever comedy bar act is introduced by the Three Eltons; the Marblesque Trio contribute good white living pictures; Miss Bartinelli as a contortionist excels; Miss Olive Sara introduces a musical speciality and Indian club exhibition.

ACADEMY OF DRAMATIC ART.

The Council of the Academy of Dramatic Art, comprising Sir Squire Bancroft (president), Sir John Hare, Mr. Tree, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Forbes-Robertson, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. E. S. Willard, Mr. Pinero, Mr. J. M. Barrie, and Sir William S. Gilbert, announce the conclusion of a highly satisfactory autumn term's work.

The recent formation of the Body of Associates, who have the right of voting as occasion may require for the filling up of vacancies on the Board of the Council, has been further developed by the election of many ladies distinguished in the theatrical profession. The list of Associates who up to the present have accepted the Council's invitation consists of Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. William Archer, Mr. Oscar Asche, Miss Lena Ashwell, Mr. Allan Aynesworth, Lady Bancroft, Mr. George P. Bancroft, Mr. Granville Barker, Mr. E. A. Bendall, Mr. F. R. Benson, Mr. Alfred Bishop, Mr. Dion Boucicault, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Lily Brayton, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Mr. J. Comyns Carr, Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, Mr. R. C. Carton, Mr. C. Haddon Chambers, Mr. Harold Child, Miss Constance Collier, Mr. W. L. Courtney, Mr. Hubert Henry Davies, Mr. Gerald du Maurier, Miss Gertrude Elliott, Miss Winifred Emery, Mr. Frederick Fenn, Mr. Norman Forbes, Mr. Basil Gill, Mr. J. T. Grein, Mr. Sydney Grundy, Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. William Haviland, Mr. Anthony Hope, Mr. H. B. Irving, Miss Ellis Jeffreys, Mr. Jerome K. Jerome, Mr. Frederick Kerr, Miss Gertrude Kingston, Mr. W. J. Locke, Mr. Percy Macquoid, Captain Robert Marshall, Mr. W. Somerset Maugham, Miss Evelyn Millard, Miss Eva Moore, Miss Mary Moore, Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Louis N. Parker, Miss Kate Rorke, Mr. Bernard Shaw, Mr. Alfred Sutro, Mr. E. Lyall Swete, Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Frederick Terry, Mrs. Tree, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Mr. A. B. Walkley, Mr. Herbert Waring, Mr. Ben Webster, and Mr. J. Fisher White.

Many of the above ladies and gentlemen have kindly expressed their willingness to lend their valuable assistance upon occasions by way of reinforcing the regular staff, and, together with members of the Council, voluntarily to superintend certain rehearsals of specially-selected senior students. During the past term this purely honorary work has been conducted by Sir William S. Gilbert, Mr. Forbes-Robertson, Mr. E. S. Willard, Mr. Martin Harvey (who also lectured upon "Character and the Actor"), Mr. Gerald du Maurier, Mr. Henry Ainley, and Mr. H. B. Irving. In the coming session it will be undertaken by Sir Squire Bancroft, Sir John Hare, Mr. Pinero, Lady Bancroft, Mr. Oscar Asche, Mr. Allan Aynesworth, Mr. Dion Boucicault, and Mr. Lyn Harding. Also addresses will be delivered by Mr. H. B. Irving upon "The Actor's Calling," by Mr. J. T. Grein upon "The Drama of 1908," and by Mr. J. Fisher White upon "The Actor's Art."

A theatrical library, for the use of all connected with the Academy, has been inaugurated, and presentations to it have been made by Sir Squire Bancroft, Sir John Hare, Sir William S. Gilbert, Mr. Forbes-Robertson, Mr. Pinero, Mr. E. S. Willard, Mr. William Archer, Mr. George P. Bancroft, Mr. E. Lyall Swete, and Mr. J. Fisher White. A wardrobe has also been started, Mr. E. S. Willard having given a collection of valuable costumes, and a considerable number having been purchased by the Academy from the Dover Pageant.

The object of the Academy is to provide, as is done in other countries, a thorough general training for the dramatic stage in England, and to be the equivalent here of the Paris Conservatoire. It also aims to take the place of the old stock company system, and in this regard its Council is able to state that in the past term of eleven weeks some of the advanced students rehearsed and acted upon the Gower-street stage at least twenty character of widely different types.

The term, which was attended by eighty-five pupils, closed with the presentation by Lady Bancroft of prizes, an additional one being now given annually by Mr. Gerald du Maurier, to the following successful students:—Mr. Coats Bush, Mr. Lane Crauford, Miss Winifred Fairweather, Mr. Charles Graham, Mr. Clifford Heatherley, Mr. Valentine Penna, Miss Violet Roberts, Miss Enid Rose, Miss Athene Seyler, Miss Pearl Timberlake, and Mr. Geoffrey Wilkinson. The next entrance examination will be on Tuesday next, the Lent term beginning on the following Saturday. Candidates are informed that all applications should be addressed to the Administrator, Academy of Dramatic Art, 62, Gower-street, W.C.

AMUSEMENTS IN NAPLES.

NAPLES, DEC. 15.—TEATRO SAN CARLO.—The grand season at this principal theatre opened on the 8th inst. with Wagner's Il Crepuscolo degli Dei (Die Götterdammerung). The audience was a brilliant one, being composed of all the representatives of the Neapolitan aristocracy. One and all who could get admission in the grand auditorium showed the greatest appreciation during the memorable performance by applauding for some minutes and cheering all the artists, and recalling again and again the conductor, Signor G. Martucci after the fall of the curtain on each act. The performance has been magnificent, and the management's mise-en-scène perfection under the direction of Prof. A. Fuchs, who has been specially engaged from the Monaco Theatre. Mme. F. Litwinne (Brunhilde) exercised all her fascinating powers both vocally and histrionically; Signor Borgatti (Sigfrid) was all that could be desired, confirming the impression that he is the only tenor on the Italian stage who can competently sustain such a rôle. Gutruna was impersonated by Miss White, an American, and a very promising pupil of a Neapolitan maestro, and she proved herself well worthy to take part in such an excellent performance. The young baritone, Cesare Formichi, as Ghunter acquitted himself nobly. Signor O. Luppi (Hagen) and Misses Lollini, Wheeler, and Powers completed the cast.

R. TEATRO MERCANDANTE.—A very successful season has just closed at this theatre with Puccini's Tosca, Leoncavallo's Bohême and Pagliacci, Cilea's Adriana Lecouvreur, Fedora, Cavalleria Rusticana, and others.

TEATRO BELLINI.—This popular theatre has just inaugurated a very promising season of opera with Verdi's La Forza del Destino and Traviata. In the first-named opera the artists are Signora Massaceni-Riga, Signora Castellano, Cav. Procacci, Signor V. Morghen, and others. In La Traviata Signora Trezzi and Signori Folco and V. Morghen emerged well. Both operas have been a great success both artistically and financially. Of the artists named Signor V. Morghen, the popular baritone, had a flattering success, especially considering that, owing to the unavoidable absence of his chef-colleague, he had to come to the rescue of the management by appearing in both operas in succession.

THE Mendelssohn Centenary will be commemorated on Feb. 3 at Queen's Hall by a special concert, at which the "Hymn of Praise" will be interpreted by the Sheffield Amateur Musical Society, conducted by Mr. Henry Wood. The programme will include solos by Mme. Lillian Blauvelt, Miss Edith Miller, and Mr. Gervase Elwes. In the evening, in the same building, the London Choral Society will give a performance of Elijah, the vocalists engaged being Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Gwladys Roberts, Mr. Cynlais Gibbs, and Sir Charles Santley.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

AMERICAN VAUDEVILLE.

NEW YORK, DEC. 23.—Mr. William Hawtrey and his company are appearing at the vaudeville houses in a dramatic sketch, called Compromised. Mr. Hawtrey impersonates a worthless husband, who deserts his wife, and returns to invade her home after she has happily remarried. He threatens to compromise her, but a burglar's bullet kills him just in time to save the wife from an unpleasant explanation to her second husband. Mr. Hawtrey's tour has taken him across the continent, a distance of three thousand miles, and success has everywhere attended him. The American public want tragedy in their vaudeville nowadays.

MR. WILLIAM H. THOMPSON has acquired a dramatic offering that the late Sir Henry Irving made famous, namely, Waterloo, and is portraying brave old Corporal Brewster in a lifelike manner at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre. Mr. Thompson is a native of Scotland, and one of the cleverest character actors on the American stage. One never forgets his impersonation of Thomas Whamond, the chief elder, in The Little Minister.

MISS JESSIE PRESTON, "the Glasgow lassie," has crossed the bridge to Brooklyn, and is singing at the Orpheum. Miss Ruth Allen and her Six London Johnnies are at the same house. Mr. Percy Williams runs the Orpheum, and always has a splendid bill there. Miss Maude Odell is also entertaining the Brooklynites at the Fulton Theatre.

MISS LUCY WESTON is the "head-liner" at Keith and Proctor's Fifth-avenue Theatre, where her songs suit the taste of the audience to a nicety. Among the other entertainers are Harry Gilfoil, who imitates birds and beasts, and Annette Kellermann, in swimming and diving feats.

MISS VESTA VICTORIA is singing "Now I have to call him father," at the American Music Hall, and the other songs in her budget that have made her such a "tip-top" favourite, including the one in which the appearance of her ballet skirt provokes loud guffaws. Miss Josephine Sabel, the popular songstress, and Miss Francesca Redding and her company are also in the bill.

SEVERIN, a French pantomimist, made his American début at the Lincoln-square Theatre last Monday. His tricks of facial expression are clever and amusing. Mr. R. G. Knowles remains here for a second week. His monologue has a diverting effect, and the best of good humour prevails during his confidential chats with the audience.

"THE SQUAW GIRL," described as a "pretentious scenic offering," is one of the present attractions at Keith and Proctor's 125th-street Theatre. It is a story of the West, the heroine being a white girl, who was captured by Indians in her infancy, and reared as one of their own. A young Indian brave, the son of a chief, claims her for his bride, but a young Army officer proves his successful rival. Rock and Fulton, the popular dancers, are among the other attractions.

MR. ROBERT HILLIARD, in a dramatic sketch, called Number 73, heads the programme at the Colonial. He plays a convict in ragged clothes, and is the central figure of some very interesting happenings. Karno's comedians are appearing here in The Slums of London, and winning much applause. Mr. Hymack, the "chameleon comedian," is very successful in his lightning change act, and the Avolos, xylophonists, are also in the bill.

THE Elinore Sisters, with songs and repartee; John C. Rice and Sally Cohen, in their funny sketch, The Kleptomaniacs; Selma Braatz, lady juggler; and Jesse Lasky's Viennese operetta, The Love Waltz, are the leading attractions at the Alhambra.

"WHITTINGTON" AT WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

Dick Whittington	MISS DAISIE YATES
Alderman Fitzwarren	MR. HARRY D. LYNDON
Alice	MISS CONSTANCE MORI
Idle Jack	MR. J. HARRIS
Captain Kettle	MR. H. MADDISON
Bill Blower	MR. R. MORRIS
Dolly Dimple	MISS LILY PARKER
Hon. Bertie	MISS ETHEL ROBERTSON
Emperor of Morocco	MR. ARTHUR WADE
Princess	MISS GRACIE WOODLEIGH
Choppem	MR. HARRY PASTOR
Cat	MR. PETE ALMONTE
King Rat	MASTER W. FRANKLIN
Fairy	MLLE. LILIAN
Betsy	MR. DAN THOMAS

Far and away the best pantomime ever seen at the Walthamstow Palace is Dick Whittington, and Mr. Arthur J. Barclay's chief occupation during the week has been absolutely limited to turning money away from the doors. When one has seen the show, wonderment at this state of affairs ceases—is stifled. The pantomime is a surfeit of beauty and laughter from beginning to end, and if it were a race between the two, perhaps the laughter colt would come in an easy winner. Beautifully staged, exquisitely dressed, and played with rollicking spirit from beginning to end, Dick Whittington should be a popular favourite wherever he appears.

First and foremost, Mr. Dan Thomas is simply irresistible as Betsy, the cook. His spontaneous and unforced flow of humour holds the house every moment he is on the stage, and that is practically during the whole performance. The term "rich and abundant humour" is the only language in which Mr. Dan Thomas's performance can be properly described. The house simply "rises" to him. The hero is charmingly impersonated by Miss Daisie Yates, a captivating figure, pleasant actress, and charming singer. Another of the best is the Idle Jack of Mr. J. Harris, a performance replete with humour. Alice has a charming repesentative in Miss Constance Mori, and Dolly Dimple is prettily played by Miss Lily Parker. Mr. Harry D. Lyndon is immensely funny as Alderman Fitzwarren, although some of his "dealings" as a "universal provider" might not meet with the approbation of a Radical Government. Miss Gracie Woodleigh is a pretty and gracious Princess. Choppem, the head man to the Emperor, is played very funnily by Mr. Harry Pastor. A big hit is made by Mr. Pete Almonte as the Cat—a capital piece of pantomime. Mr. Arthur Wade is a good Emperor of Morocco, and sings with refreshing richness. Captain Kettle has a good representative in Mr. H. Maddison, while Mr. R. Morris as his mate, Bill Blower, is not far behind. The Flip Flap Girls' Quartette give a fine high-kicking dance. The whole production reflects the highest credit on the stage-management and supervising energies of Mr. Dan Thomas.

SEYMOUR HICKS'S production of The Gay Gordons, under the sole direction of Mr. W. A. Seymour, is at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne. Mr. Frank Lincoln's Angus Graeme is sufficiently volatile, and he scores an indisputable triumph; Mr. Tom Graves causes an immensity of laughter as Nervy Nat, an effective contrast being provided by Mr. Edward Nainby as Edmund Siddons; Mr. Ernest Ruston fits the part of Andrew Quainton exactly, and Mr. Norman Forrest adds to the general merriment in the rôle of Corporal John Smith. Miss Emily Mellon is a quite delightful representative of Janet McLeod; Miss Mabel Dent is a charmingly dainty representative of Victoria Siddons, making a big hit with her organ-grinder song; and Miss Ida Laurie presents a most laughable characterisation of Charlotte Siddons. Miss Nell Carter's Peggy Quainton is scarcely capable of improvement, so altogether pleasing is it in every particular. The minor parts are most ably filled, and Mr. Arthur Spittle has his large chorus and orchestra well under control.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY, Nov. 24.—Miss Margaret Anglin has returned to the metropolis for a Shakespearean season at Mr. J. C. Williamson's Theatre Royal, appearing in The Taming of the Shrew. Her success was genuine and instantaneous, and the vast audience cheered and clamoured for a speech at curtain fall. Much as such actresses condemn this modern nuisance, this was so decided a compliment that the clever Thespienne said a few words. In addition to Petruchio's determination to subdue the virago, there was such added charm about this latest Katharine that the winning of her was a glorious incentive. Mr. Henry Kolker made Petruchio sufficiently masterful without being brutal, and through all his boisterous noise and bluster there was always the motive, i.e., to better the woman for her own sweet sake. Miss Anglin and Mr. Kolker acted to, for, and with each other to complete realisation of the author's intention. The great speeches were splendidly delivered and loudly cheered, and every Petruchial whip-crack sent the women into paroxysyms of laughter. Mr. Myles Clifton was Grumio, and a most excellent Grumio; Mr. Johnson Weir did all that was necessary with the part of Baptista; the fair Bianca had a competent impersonator in Miss Alina Vaughan; and Mr. Cyril Mackay gave us a delectable Lucentio. The mounting of this play was lavish, and Mr. Williamson is to be thanked for letting us see Miss Anglin in a legitimate rôle.

THE National Opera Co. (John Wren's), at the Criterion, played Les Cloches de Corneville all the week. On one night a very clever local amateur, Mr. R. B. Orchard, undertook the rôle of Gaspard with distinct success. Now The Lilly of Killarney is the bill, with Miss Rosina Buckmann as Ann Chute; Miss Ailleen Hodgson, Eily O'Connor; Mr. Wilson Pembroke, Hardress Cregan; Mr. Jay Ryan (a newly-arrived baritone), Danny Mann; Mr. Edward Wynn, Miles-na-Coppaleen; Mr. G. H. Snazelle, Father Tom; and Mr. McNaughton Duncan, Corrigan. The most successful items are intruded ones—"The Kerry dance" and "The wearing of the green." One wonders if spirits can hear, and, if so, what the wraith of Jules Benedict thinks about it.

"THE MERRY WIDOW" keeps on her merry and lucrative way with the new attraction, Miss Betty Ohls, in the lead. Miss Florence Young, Mr. Reginald Roberts, Mr. Higginson, Mr. Gouriet, and Mr. W. S. Percy are all prodigious favourites, and Mr. G. H. Smith, once of Wilson-Barrett connection, manages in Mr. Goodman's absence.

"THE PRINCE CHAP" ceases to charm at the Palace after this week, and A Message from Mars will be delivered on the 28th to Mr. H. R. Roberts as the embodiment of human selfishness.

THE Tivoli has Miss Hulo Hodgson and Mr. Harry Lowther as its latest arrivals, and they play well a very clever sketch called Barmaids. The wonderful dogs trained by Professor Duncan do a new turn as firemen at a conflagration.

KEMBLE AND THE APPLE.

A writer who saw Kemble in the winter, in Coriolanus, in the year 1806, says: "Had he only acted in that character he would have been deemed the very greatest male actor ever seen; it was in all points of conception, look, and utterance, equal to the Lady Macbeth of Mrs. Siddons. In no other part whatever, did he, or could he attain equal eminence. In every other, as compared with his masterful energy in this noble creation of the poet, he was only secondary.

"I frequently saw him in Coriolaus, but I happened not to be present when the apple fell on the stage between him and Volumnia, a part which Mrs. Siddons sustained with all her wonted dignity." This incident of the apple gave rise to one of those occasional scenes, in which Kemble displayed his overcharged self-possession, and rendered the occurence so important, to those who witnessed it, as to give it the impression of an event. At the moment when Volumnia is supplicating her son, the conqueror, to spare her country, the apple fell between them; taking up the missle with all the dignity of the character, he advanced, Coriolanus-like, to the front of the stage, and addressed the audience as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen,

"I have been many years acquainted with the benevolence and liberality of a London audience; but we cannot proceed this evening with the performance, unless we are protected, especially when ladies are thus exposed to insult."

A person in the gallery called out "We can't hear."

Kemble replied indignantly,

"I will raise my voice, and the galleries shall hear me."

"This protection is what the audience owe it to themselves to grant; what the performers, for the credit of their profession, have a right to demand, and what I will venture so far to assert, that, on the part of the proprietors, I here offer a hundred guineas to any man who will disclose the ruffian who has been guilty of this act.

"I throw myself, ladies and gentlemen, upon the high sense of breeding that distinguishes a London audience; and I hope I shall never be wanting in my duty to the public; but nothing shall induce me to suffer insult."

In this little affair, says Galt, the true spirit of Kemble was fully illustrated. There was that skinless sensibility which rendered him on all occasions so acute to the very shadow of affront. For the scene was always listened to with silence and awe, such as ever attended the united efforts of Kemble and Mrs. Siddons, and certainly it might have occurred to him that the sudden appearance of the apple was not intended as a personal insult to either, and did not justify so much ado about nothing. It was indeed an accident; for the apple was not thrown at the performers, but at some disorderly females in the boxes, and only by chance fell upon the stage.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

WHEN Foote was sitting with Lord H—— (who was much addicted to the bottle) previously to a masquerade night, he asked Foote "what new character he ought to appear in?" "New character!" said the other, pausing for some time, "suppose you go sober, my lord!"

FOOTE, who was ever in the extremes of fortune, now at the top and now at the bottom of her wheel, once happened to be in the latter condition, when Macklin had an opportunity of retorting on him. They were both at the Bedford coffee-house together; when Foote, perhaps to keep up the appearance of prosperity, was every now and then showing off a fine gold repeating watch, which he kept either dangling in his hand or up to his ear. At last he suddenly exclaimed, "Zounds! my watch is stopt!" "Poh! Poh!" said Macklin, never mind that, Sam; you may depend upon it, it will soon go."

VARIETY GOSSIP.

MR. WALTER DE FREECE will add several more houses to his ever-growing circuit. The first, the New Hippodrome, Southend, for which the architect's (Mr. Bertie Crowe's) plans have already been passed, will open about Whitsun week, and will be followed by the New Hippodrome, Northampton, a spacious building, to accommodate an audience of close on 4,000.

As a result of the recently-arranged combination for booking purposes between Moss' Empires, Ltd., and the De Frece Circuit, the Palace, Stoke Newington, will be taken over by the former company as from Feb. 1 next. We understand that it is not Mr. Stoll's intention to run the house as a music hall.

THE Ilford Hippodrome, under Mr. Frank Matcham's guiding hand, is growing apace, and should be ready for opening early in June. The theatre is being erected by a syndicate, in which Mr. Walter de Frece and Mr. George Dance are the principal movers, and will be purchased by the London Theatres of Variety, Ltd

IT has been decided to hold the London mass meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation tomorrow (Sunday) evening at 6 o'clock at Terry's. The V.A.F. executive have received numbers of messages from members all over the country promising to stand by the Federation whatever decision is arrived at. The Sunday Manchester meeting will be held at the Salisbury Hotel, Oxford-street, at 6.30. The dispute is referred to fully in another column.

MISS VESTA TILLEY will appear again in America this spring. By the kindness of Moss' Empires, Ltd., the Portsmouth Hippodrome, Ltd., and Oldham Empire, Ltd., who have postponed Miss Tilley's engagements with them, the famous male impersonator will play six weeks in New York under Mr. Percy G. Williams's management on the conclusion of her annual visit to the Palace Theatre, where she opens at the end of January.

MR. FRANK ALLEN, assisting-director of the Moss, Stoll, Thornton, and Allen combination, has had a marvellous escape from serious injury. On Tuesday, at 8 a.m., whilst taking his customary morning ride in Richmond Park, his horse took fright and bolted, throwing him rather badly. Fortunately no bones were broken, Mr. Allen escaping with a few bruises and a severe shaking. After a few days' rest it is expected that the popular director will be all right again.

MR. GEORGE LAURI, the comedian, whose sad death in Australia is reported in another column, under circumstances which point to suicide, was a cousin of the late Charles Lauri, the well-known animal impersonator, and a brother of Mrs. Slaughter, the widow of Walter Slaughter, the musical-director, and uncle of Mr. Harry Ulph. Mr. George Lauri was exceedingly well known as a comedian in Australia. He leaves a widow and grown-up son.

MR. FRED KARNO writes: "With reference to your notice in Jan. 2 issue, under the heading 'Variety Gossip,' mentioning Exeter as being no exception to the rule of cathedral towns being bad for stage business, I would like to point out that since the opening of the New Hippodrome at Exeter, the most renowned and salient stars have appeared there, and with regard to the enormous business done I can refer you to Miss Evie Greene, Laurence Irving, Miss Esther Palliser, Master Max Darewski, &c. We also have all the big stars booked to appear there during coming weeks."

MISS MAUD ALLAN is gradually recovering from the sprained ankle which stopped her performances at the Palace in October last, the injury proving more serious than was at first suspected. So satisfactory has been Miss Allan's recent progress, however, that she has now been enabled to start for Switzerland on a short holiday, and will probably make her reappearance at the Palace towards the end of the month. Meanwhile, it may not be uninteresting to state that Mr. Alfred Butt, having had the foresight to insure Miss Allan against disablement, the Palace directors have received from the company interested a sum running well into four figures.

MISS HENRIQUETTE MAUDE, "the little New Nealand girl," who has appeared in more of the world's theatres and places of amusement than any other artist, will open at the London Pavilion on Monday. New slides have been prepared for the illustration of her short and interesting lecture on her journey across the hemispheres.

MISS VESTA VICTORIA, now on a twenty weeks' tour on the William Morris circuit in the States, is hoping that her London engagements may be put back so that she will be able to stay longer. Just before she sailed from England she signed for a solid three years for the West End halls, and was offered a five-year one at the same terms. Miss Victoria has five new songs, and three of them have been great successes in London.

THEATRICAL and music hall managers and orchestral conductors will do well to refer to an announcement in our advertisement columns in which Messrs. Chappell and Co. give notice that the copying of the band parts or any of the music of any copyright operas published by them either for the use of theatres or for any other purpose is an infringement of their musical copyright; that on and after this date no such unauthorised copying can be permitted, and that all manuscript copies not bearing Messrs. Chappell's stamp are illegal, and are liable to confiscation.

"LA DANSE DES APACHES," which is so important an attraction in the ballet A Day in Paris at the Empire Theatre, and which has become as great a "classic" as "The Merry Widow Waltz," may now fairly be described as the talk of the United Kingdom. There is scarcely a pantomime throughout the country but has its imitation based upon the remarkable performances of Mr. Fred Farren and Miss Beatrice Collier.

MR. HARRY HART, who is now in his eighty-first year, is lying seriously ill at his residence in Kentish Town. Mr. Hart claims to have given numerous "stars" their first chance on the stage. He was the first manager of the old Argyll Rooms, when they were transformed by Mr. Bignell into the Trocadero, and during his career he has owned the Raglan, the Montpelier, the Marylebone, Sun, Bedford, and other halls. His last enterprise was at Ramsgate.

MR. MARK MELFORD'S American engagement is likely to be postponed in favour of renewed London engagements, notably the house in which he is an established feature—the London Pavilion.

MISS DAPHNE DE ROHAN, who died on Nov. 10 last, was for a short time on the halls, wherein she acted with her own company in a sketch of which she was part author. Earlier in her career she had appeared at the Trocadero under the name of Lorraine as a mandolinist, an instrument which she played with considerable skill. She wrote a duologue entitled My Wife, which was successfully produced at both theatres and halls, and also appeared as a reciter at the Metropolitan in a descriptive monologue specially written round an interesting military case, in which a subaltern at Shorncliffe Camp was honourably acquitted of a charge of theft.

DR. BODIE has taken over the new Pavilion, Kirkcaldy, which he has closed for two weeks for further structural alterations and improvements at a cost of over £2,000. The new Pavilion will be one of the finest up-to-date theatres in Scotland.

HE is also making arrangements to take over the Hippodrome, late King's Theatre, and several other halls and theatres in Scotland. All contracts held by the late proprietors are cancelled, but artists are requested to write to Dr. Bodie for future dates.

THE picketing still continues outside the Palace Theatre, Cork. The strike is unsettled. The proprietor of the theatre (Sir Alfred Dobbin, Kt., J.P.) has not taken back the two men into his service at his warehouse.

THE United County Theatres, Ltd., ceased to be in occupation and possession of the Palace Theatre, Sunderland, on Saturday last, and all contracts with artists for subsequent dates are cancelled.

THE Palace Theatre, Belfast, will close as a variety house on Saturday, Feb. 20, and Mr. Fred W. Warden, managing-director, asks artists to accept eight weeks' notice of cancellation, as per Arbitrator's Award.

THE Town Council of Forfar is open to receive offers from managers of al fresco entertainments, to be given in the Recreation Park, Forfar, during the summer months of 1909, from the beginning of May to the end of September. Offers to be lodged with William Gordon, solicitor, Forfar, on or before Saturday, Jan. 16.

MESSRS. BROADHEAD AND SON are arranging to build two new theatres in Liverpool. It is to be hoped that the enterprise will meet with the success which has fallen to their Manchester houses, due to careful catering and a judicious selection of managers. The Royal Osborne Theatre in particular, standing, as it does, in a rather trying district, has attained to the reputation of an especially well-ordered house under the easy and tactful management of Mr. J. Mason, who has youth as well as ability on his side, and who is typical of his compeers. Messrs. Broadhead believe in a combination of popular fare and youthful but practised energy at the helm.

MR. OSWALD STOLL kindly granted permission on Sunday last for two concerts to take place at the Leicester Palace Theatre on behalf of the Leicester Poor Boys' and Girls' Summer Camp and Institute, when the famous Grenadier Guards' Band was the principal attraction. The vocalists were Mr. Alexander Tucker and Master Harry Smith, the accompanist being Miss Louie Taylor. The concerts were in all respects most successful, the beautiful building being filled on both occasions. The Mayor of Leicester (Alderman Lakin) proposed, and Mr. Tyler seconded, a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Stoll, on whose behalf Mr. C. Finch-Hatton, the acting-manager of the Palace, responded.

MR. HORACE LIVERMORE informs us that the management of the Palace Theatre, Baldwin-street, Bristol, have arranged for a special matinée in aid of the sufferers in the earthquake in Calabria, to be held on Wednesday, the 27th. A very comprehensive programme has been arranged.

THE many friends of Mr. G. D. Bradbury, manager of the Warrington Palace and Hippodrome, will be glad to hear that he has now been dismissed from the Warrington Infectious Diseases Hospital, where he has been lying with a serious attack of diphtheria. He is now recuperating, and hopes in the course of a fortnight to resume active duties.

A PLEASANT little ceremony took place behind the scenes of the King's Theatre, Edinburgh, on Christmas Night, when Mr. Jules Guitton, the musical director, was presented with a solid silver cigarette case from the members of the orchestra. Mr. Guitton, who began his duties in September last, has not only made the orchestral selections a feature of the programme, but has endeared himself to all by his forceful and sympathetic personality.

MESSRS. STEWART AND CHALKEN, a well-known firm of Wakefield solicitors, have arranged the purchase on behalf of Messrs. Sherwood and Co., proprietors of the Wakefield Opera House, of extensive premises and land situate in Kirkgate, Wakefield, and known as Murgatroyd Yard, covering an area of 1,075 square yards, upon which an up-to-date Empire is to be erected. Mr. Frank Matcham, of London, the eminent theatre and music-hall architect, is engaged upon the plans.

THE Corporation of Scarborough invite tenders from entertainers for the occupation from May 1 to Sept. 30, 1909, of spaces on the North and South Sands, the stage and arena of the Alexandra Gardens (evenings only), and the Clarence Gardens. Further particulars may be obtained on application to D. Arthur Nicholl, Town Clerk, Town Hall, Scarborough, before the 15th inst.

THE first official reference to the scheme foreshadowed in the proposed Bill for a casino and marine palace on a new pier to be constructed at Brighton occurred at Tuesday's meeting of the Brighton and Hove Intercepting Outfall Sewers Board. Mr. Hugo Talbot (the clerk) announced that a meeting of the General Purposes Committee had been held earlier in the day to consider the effect of the proposed structure upon the main intercepting sewer of the two towns, which at the spot in question was directly under the crown of the beach.

THE surveyor had directed special attention to the fact that, according to the plans submitted, the scheme, if passed by Parliament, would enable the company to purchase or acquire by agreement or compulsion all rights and interests of the foreshore and the beach in or upon which the proposed pier might be constructed, and to stop up or divert roads, sewer, and other works.

No mention was made of the town sewer in the Bill or upon the plans, but it was absolutely necessary for the Board to safeguard their property and to prevent any interference with it. A sea-wall might be necessary for the protection of the sewer. The committee recommended that the Bill should be opposed, and the board unanimously instructed the clerk to take the steps necessary for that purpose.

THAT enterprise pays in the variety world has been strikingly demonstrated at the Birmingham Hippodrome this week. Madame Albani has always been a big favourite in Birmingham, and this week she has made her first appearance on a music-hll stage in Birmingham at the Hurst-street house. She had been "boomed" in a thorough manner by the local manager, with the result that there have been crowded houses twice every evening during the week. The scene on Monday was a remarkable one, every seat in the huge hall being occupied and all available standing room utilised. Outside, people waiting for the second performance gazed upon a huge poster announcing "House Full."

MR. HARRY LYONS, of the Hippodrome, Birmingham, was on New Year's night presented with a choice hammered-silver cigarette-case by Madame Albani in commemoration of her more than successful visit to Birmingham's popular Hippodrome, and her first engagement under the Barrasford directorate.

MR. TOM LEAMORE has once more resumed business after his illness. He is working five turns this week, and on Monday next will be doing the same. Mr. Leamore has but few halls booked in the provinces, and we shall therefore expect to see a great deal more of him in London.

MR. HARRY BAWN was presented with an inscribed wallett by the artists working on his opening bill on the Saturday evening of last week at the Empire, Edmonton. All the artists engaged that week were Brothers of the Chelsea Lodge or their wives.

MR. MICHAEL NOLAN, his many friends will be sorry to learn, is lying ill at his South London home. Mr. Nolan's engagements of late have been sadly interfered with by bronchial attacks. We hope to hear soon of a great improvement in his condition.

MISS DORA LYRIC is singing, by special request, at the Oxford, "If I should plant a tiny love-seed in the garden of your heart," that popular pantomime chorus song, published by Feldmans, which is being sung in all the pantomimes. Miss Lyric has the whole house with her, and the unanimity of the chorus is simply wonderful.

MISS GLADYS HOOLEY scored a great success at Cardiff on Monday with her new violin scena, Fiddle and I, for which a very effective set has been specially painted by Leolyn Hart and Co. Miss Hooley is booked with Mr. Stoll for a twenty-eight weeks' tour.

MR. GILBERT LAYE produced a farcical act entitled The Airship, introducing an aeroplane, at the Empire, Shepherd's Bush, as far back as Dec. 10, thus preceding Mr. Seymour Hicks's production at the Palace Theatre. In justice to himself, Mr. Laye desires to mention this fact with a view to future business.

MR. HARRY PLEON, who has been evoking the laughter of Stockton audiences as Widow Twankey, has had to take to his bed in consequence of a severe chill. He has been ordered rest.

AT the third annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation to be held on Sunday, Jan. 17, with Mr. Joe O'Gorman in the chair, will be submitted a new rule, which provides that no member of the Federation expelled during the past, present, or any future dispute, shall be reinstated.

THE monthly meeting of the management committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road, on Wednesday next, at 4 p.m. The principal business on the agenda is to formally confirm the election of Mr. Pat Carey as hon. treasurer to the Fund, in place of the late Mr. Frank Heath.

MR. FRED MILLER, in his letter acknowledging the cheque for the amount subscribed by some of his friends to his testimonial on leaving the Canterbury, takes the opportunity of warmly thanking them and his good friend Mr. W. H. Armstrong, solicitor, of Renfrew-road, Lambeth, for their united and able efforts on his behalf.

MR. HUBERT BARTLETT (the author of the famous Collar Stud sketch), whose two little comedies, The Courage of Charlie and The Lady and the Lunatic, have been played with such success by the German Society of the Regent-street Polytechnic during Christmas week, has just completed a new musical monologue for Miss Mabel Johnson, late of the Serenaders. Miss Johnson will open with this at the Palace, Cork, on Monday.

MR. CHARLES FISHER will present his pocket-opera company in Il Trovatore on Monday at the Hackney Empire, where popular audiences are particularly fond of the lilting melodies of Verdi. Tabloid opera is much in demand at the variety theatres, and Mr. Charles Fisher supplies a particularly attractive representation of some of the chief scenes of the famous work.

MR. CHARLES S. KITTS (Kitts and Windrum) met with a somewhat serious accident last Sunday evening while extinguishing a fire at a friend's house. He was treated in a most courteous and prompt manner at King's College Hospital, also by Dr. Black-Noble, who has now the case in hand. It will be some weeks before Mr. Kitts recovers the use of his right arm.

MUSIC-HALL aspirants are to have a chance of showing their ability at the Fun City, Olympia Annexe, where a competition for valuable prizes has been fixed by Mr. C. B. Cochran, the manager, for Friday, Jan. 22, at 7 p.m. Entries are to be sent to that gentleman at the above address, the word "Amateur" to be written on the left-hand corner of the envelope.

MISS MARIE REEVE, who has recently returned from South Africa, is playing with conspicuous success the part of Sinbad in Mr. Fred J. Little's Christmas production at the Grand Theatre, Huddersfield. After pantomime she will open at the principal London halls with new songs from the pens of A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott.

THE third Bohemian smoking concert of the Vaudeville Club will be held at the club premises on Sunday, Jan. 31, when Mr. Fred Ginnett, the King Rat for 1909, will take the chair. Already a number of well-known artists have given in their names, and everything points to a fine programme.

MRS. BARRASFORD has most successfully initiated Ethiopian minstrelsy at the Court Theatre, Brighton, which is being run on the twice-nightly plan. The burnt-cork business includes smart patter and jokes on the part of the corner men, comic songs, dances, and sketches, and as it is intended to give stock minstrel shows, suitable vocalists and cornermen of experience are required. Applications marked "Minstrel" should be sent to T. Barrasford, 11, Leicester-place, W.C.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD H. LUCAS sail on Sunday, Jan. 17, per s.s. Kaiserin Auguste Victoria for America, and will leave Waterloo at 10.35 a.m. on that date. They open at the Lincoln-square Theatre, New York, under the management of William Morris, on Feb. 1. They are taking with them the whole of their scenery, furniture, costumes, and effects.

"THE CRYSTAL GAZER" is the title of an amusing sketch produced for the first time on Monday at the Battersea Palace, the author being Mr. Leopold Montague. There are only two characters—a young lady and a professional fortune-teller. The latter is expecting the arrival of a client who has written to say that she has lost her pet dog and she desires that he should discover its whereabouts. So that when a young lady enters his consulting-room he at once concludes that she is the owner of the missing canine. Instead, she is quite another person who wishes to know where her sweetheart is. A very amusing situation is thus evolved, epecially as the fortune-teller looks into the crystal and tells his fair visitor that "he" whom she seeks is in a dogs' home! Miss Doris Foote acted with naturalness as the visitor and Mr. E. C. Lilly submitted an admirable interpretation of the crystal-gazer.

THE Holborn Empire on Friday next will have a special night. The exact date of the completion of the third year of the new house's existence is Jan. 29.

DR. WALFORD BODIE will make his entry again into London on Monday at the Palace, East Ham, where he broke all records on his last visit. He has been engaged at the biggest salary ever paid to any artist in London. He will introduce his new act, including his latest sensation, The Cage of Death, which has created a furore in all the large provincial towns.

AN interesting series of "Urbanora" animated pictures of India—all taken within the past two months—will be presented at the Palace Theatre on and after next Monday, Jan. 11. The imposing State visit of Lord Minto to Lucknow, typical street scenes, fakirs, jugglers, religious fanatics, stragglers from the forces of disorder—these and many other illustrations of native character and customs are among the subjects which contribute to a display which is peculiarly appropriate at the present time.

A STRIKING scene was witnessed at the Cardiff Empire on Friday night, the 1st, at the close of the song-scena given by Mr. George Leyton, when the Lord Mayor of Cardiff (Alderman Lewis Morgan) presented to the eight local Crimean and Indian Mutiny veterans who had during the week taken part in the performance a portion of the money obtained by the sale of Mr. Leyton's songs. The house had been effectively decorated for the occasion, the stage boxes being covered with Union Jacks.

AT the end of the turn the Lord Mayor, accompanied by Miss Morgan, Colonel J. J. David, and Mr. C. H. S. Dring (manager of the Empire), came to the footlights. Mr. Dring, in welcoming the Lord and Lady Mayoress, said it was the former's first public appearance in the New Year, while the Lady Mayoress was also making her first public appearance after her illness. The Lord Mayor hoped one result of the function would be the creation of a local fund for the assistance of the Crimean and Indian Mutiny veterans.

MESSRS. RICHARDS, BURNEY, AND CO., of High-street, Shoreditch, proprietors of the London Music Hall and Collins's Music Hall, sued Austin Rudd, in the Shoreditch County Court on Thursday, to recover £9 10s., damages for breach of contract. Mr. Whetton, instructed by Messrs. Strong, Mercer, and Co., was counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. Parkes appeared for the defence. The defendant signed a contract to appear on Jan. 6, 1908, at Collins's for a week, but on that date he telegraphed that he could not "do four turns" as he had a relaxed throat.

MR. RUDD said that, acting under instructions from his medical adviser, he decided only to do two turns a night, and as his Walham Green engagement was the easiest he did that. He had an attack of rheumatic fever three years ago, which had left him with a weak heart and a constantly-recurring relaxed throat.

JUDGE SMILY said that if an artist booked himself up for half a dozen halls at which he could not possibly perform, it did not rest with him to pick and choose which contract he would fulfil. If he performed at one place the plaintiffs were entitled to think that he ought to have performed for them. There would have to be a verdict for the plaintiffs for the £9 10s. claimed and costs.

ON behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (secretary) wishes to thank the following:—Mrs. Herbert Shelley, for collecting 8s. 1d. (donation 2s. 6d.); Miss Lottie Albert, donation 3s.; Mr. Joe O'Gorman, gentlemen's clothing (through the Sisters Macarte). Miss May omitted to thank the deputation from the Grand Order of the Water Rats, namely, Mr. Fred Ginnett, Mr. Eugene Stratton, Mr. Wal Pink, and Mr. Johnnie Alexander, who attended the Horns, Kennington, on Dec. 23, the evening of the Christmas Tree and treat.

THE clergymen who were present on that occasion were the Revs. Stephen Barrass, Donald Hole, Gordon, and Humphries. Miss A. C. Clarke, A.C.U., was also present, and did her best to assist and make the children happy. The committee also wish Miss Melinda May to be thanked for the numerous packets of tea she gave to the many pensioners. Also a vote of thanks to Mr. Joseph Sams, proprietor, Horns, Kennington, for the splendid dinner and tea he provided. Friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and receptions held every Wednesday, four to five o'clock.

FRED KARNO'S company appears in The Bailiff at the Hackney Empire next week. It might be said that Mr. Karno's idea of sending out various companies arose by accident. He was playing at Dublin, and on the Monday morning at rehearsal he heard from the resident-manager that Belfast wanted a "top of the bill" by hook or by crook for that night, as the "star" attraction had suddenly fallen ill. Someone said jokingly to Mr. Karno, "Why not split our company for to-night, or until they get another turn; half of us can go to Belfast, and it will save the situation." He said nothing, but got a trunk call to the Belfast manager, who jumped at the offer. Since then Mr. Karno's companies have been numerous.

AT St. Werburgh's Church, Dublin, there was a scene of unusual excitement on Dec. 29 when Bella, the daughter of Mr. Jack White, the popular stage-manager of the Empire, Dublin, and captain of the tug-of-war team who won The Era Shield right out, was married. The lucky bridegroom was Corporal Paul Hall, of the 11th Hussars, who was in his dress parade regimentals.

THE wedding was attended by several military and naval comrades of the bridegroom, and the guests also included the bride's father and mother, Mr. Harry J. Baynton, musical director, Mr. George H. Marsh, manager, and most of the Empire staff; also several of the artists, including Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mayville. The wedding was very picturesque, and the bride and bridegroom left the church to the strains of the "Wedding March," played by Mr. F. Harmen, a local celebrity. The party then adjourned to the Dolphin Hotel and held a reception breakfast, the wedding cake being cut by the bridegroom's sword. Amongst the numerous presents stood prominent a breakfast silver tea and coffee service, with a suitable inscription, from the staff of the Empire. In the evening the wedding party occupied a box at the Empire, and at the conclusion of the show the orchestra, under Mr. Baynton, played the famous "Wedding March" to the cheers and applause of all present.

AFTER the performance a concert and dance took place on the stage, when a most enjoyable and happy time was spent, and congratulations too numerous to mention were showered upon the happy pair. Among those present were Mr. A. S. Findlater (managing-director), Mr. and Mrs. George H. Marsh, Mr. H. J. Baynton, Mr. F. Baynton, Mr. W. Laidler (assistant-manager), Mr. Joseph White (electrician), Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mayville, of liliputian fame, several of the H.M.S. Victory sketch company, Mr. F. Ockindon, the bridegroom's late band-sergeant, Mr. T. Groves, and most of the Empire staff.

MR. LINDSAY SUTTON (of the firm of Messrs. Andrew, Wood, Purves, and Sutton, solicitors), Great James Street, Bedford-row, has been elected Junior Warden of the Coach Makers and Coach Harness Makers' Company. Mr. Lindsay Sutton is a son of Mr. Henry Sutton, who was formerly chairman and managing director of the Alhambra Company, and is now associated with the syndicate halls.

THE Terriers held a grand ladies' concert on Sunday at the Three Stags Hotel, Kennington. W. H. Atlas was in the chair, and there was a record attendance. Amongst the artists who appeared were the following:—Andie Caine, Curtis Leo, Gus Harris, Barney Hyams, James Traynor, Baby Atlas, Eddie Comet, Ernest Powell, Bert Marsden, Albert Mason, Mrs. Traynor, Charlie Cornish, and others.

THE annual dinner of the Terriers' Association (for Terriers only) will take place to-morrow (Sunday) at the Hôtel Boulogne at 7 p.m. Mr. Jesse Sparrow, the president of the fraternity, will be in the chair.

MR. LEONARD MORTIMER'S Bubbles, produced this week at the Bedford, includes in the cast Mrs. Brown (a hearty lady of seventy-five years) as the mother. When Bubbles next appears it will be known as The Golden Ace.

A WELL-KNOWN manager sends us some interesting information regarding the amount of admission money he has controlled during his engagements in the past twelve months, these engagements having been entirely in the provinces, and divided between theatre and variety business. From Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1908, the gross amount reaches the substantial sum of £27,792 10s. 8d. These figures are the record of a single manager only, and seem to contradict the impression that the year 1908 was a bad one from the show business point of view.

MR. JOHN CLEMPERT, the famous Russian wrestler, who has been scoring an extraordinary success in Aberdeen, is a splendidly built young man, and was born in Russia some thirty years ago. He has crammed as much incident into his life as would satisfy half a dozen ordinary men. Joining the Russian army, he, for some trivial political offence, was exiled, along with others, to Siberia. On the way, however, young Clempert escaped, but was recaptured. He was equally unfortunate in a second attempt, but perseverance gained its reward at last.

POSSESSED of great strength, Mr. Clempert accepted the challenge of a famous Russian champion wrestler in a circus one night and defeated him. He was immediately engaged by the proprietor as a weight-lifter and strong man, and soon was made manager of the concern. He first came to England in 1899, and appeared at the Stoke Newington Palace in London in a sensational act, which, owing to an accident, he abandoned. Since 1903 he has made a special show of wrestling, handcuff work, and escapes.

His experience of the torture jacket induced him to take it as a test, and before long he was able to get out of it with ease. Mr. Clempert first tried his sensational act in a padlocked tank without water, and perfectly airtight, but by and by went in for the water as being a better draw. To come out of the tank just takes him from fourteen to sixteen seconds. A more versatile man than Mr. Clempert would be difficult to find. A practised artisan, he is both blacksmith and carpenter; while he has appeared on the stage as skater, dancer, cyclist, weight-lifter, and wrestler.

MR. HERBERT H. LAIDMAN, the popular manager, at the close of the second performance at the Woolwich Hippodrome on New Year's Eve, was made the recipient of a gold watch-chain. The presentation, which took place on the stage, was made by Mr. Chisholm Taylor (manager of the Artillery Theatre), on behalf of the staff of the Hippodrome. Mr. Laidman expressed the pleasure it gave him in accepting so handsome a gift, and thanked the donors in suitable terms.

AT Mr. William Payne's third annual New Year's party at the South London Palace to the Southwark and Lambeth kiddies, the Mayor of Southwark (Mr. John Wylde, J.P.), who was again accompanied by Sir William Henry Dunn, J.P., was present, with several members of the local Council. Tastefully decorated with flags and evergreens, the fine house was packed with a happy and boisterous throng, to whom were handed round tea, fruit, &c. Among the numerous interesting turns was the pantomime Aladdin, presented by Dan Thomas and company.

Now that Mr. Edward Swanborough has passed away, the honour of being the doyen of the music hall managers, says the Daily Chronicle, falls on the shoulders of Mr. Henry J. Hitchins, who has been at the Empire since its opening as a variety theatre on Dec. 29, 1887. He consequently "came of age" last Tuesday, and the event was celebrated in an appropriate manner. Mr. Hitchins is one of the most unassuming men in the profession. Born in Lincoln, he was brought to London when a boy, and studied at University College School. On leaving that institution he was engaged as a clerk in the Lombard-street branch of the London and County Bank, with which company he remained for four years. Finding, however, that promotion was very slow, he became an actor, and made his début at the Gaiety in A Serious Family, Morris Barnett's adaptation of Le Mari à la Campagne.

FOR the year he remained at that theatre his salary was only a guinea a week, but the experience was extremely valuable. One day he read an advertisement for an acting-manager at a West End theatre. He thought he could do no harm in applying, and, to his surprise, obtained the appointment—which was for James Guiver's season at the Princess's in 1873, when Charles Dillon revived Manfred. Three years later he was engaged by Alexander Henderson for the Criterion, and while there many now notable pieces were brought out, including The Great Divorce Case and Pink Dominoes. Subsequently he represented Henderson at the Strand, and there witnessed the production of Madame Favart (in which Florence St. John first secured fame) and Olivette. He also had to look after his interests at the Royalty, and, in addition, had to appear every evening at the Globe in Alfred Murray's Seeing Frou Frou, his part, by a coincidence, being that of Vavasour, the acting-manager.

IT was Mr. Hitchins who suggested the name of the Empire for the establishment in Leicester-square, the original intention of those who opened it as a theatre in 1884 with Hervé's Chilperic being to call it the Queen's. Here is his reminiscence of that famous opéra-bouffe: "The company included Herbert Standing, Harry Wardroper, Paulus [who made a second appearance at the Empire when it was a music hall, and died last year], Felix Bury [one of the famous gendarmes in Geneviève de Brabant], James Powers, Harry Paulton, Camille d'Arville, Agnes Consuelo, Sallie Turner, and Madge Shirley. A memorable feature in this spectacle was the procession of fifty 'amazons,' each of whom carried three little electric lamps, which produced, as the programme described it, 'the most startling and gorgeous effect.' Each lady had to carry on her back a battery weighing no less than seven pounds."

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE pantomimes, both London and provincial, have settled down into their stride, and from all quarters come repeated managerial eulogiums of Messrs. Francis and Day's numerous "winners" in the song line, and the staff at both the Charing Cross-road and Denmark-street establishments have been kept working at high pressure to keep pace with the large orders for copies of the various numbers that have taken town and country by storm.

ALL Derby is now humming and whistling one of Messrs. Francis and Day's latest additions to their series of sixpenny popular editions—to wit, "Every fellow's in love with a girl," which Mr. Harry Simms so ably sings in the pantomime there.

AMONG the new songs and dances just acquired for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day are: "Hooch, Sandy!" (sung by Alick Lauder), by T. F. Robson and Donovan Meher; "When the Territorials parade," by A. Bagley and John Neat; "The whiskers round the bottom of your trousers" (Joe Archer), by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford; "You toast the muffins and crumpets" (Miss Kate Carney), by Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule; "Don't go out without your sunshade," by Frank Leo; "They won't know oi coom from the country" (George Bastow), by F. W. Leigh; "When Mister Coventry comes knocking at the door" (Miss Evelyn Tayler), by Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule; "Queen of a hundred isles," by Charles Hilbury; "Man, man, you think you're cock o' the walk!" by Frank W. Carter; "When Mr. Wren married Miss Nightingale" (Miss Rose Elliott), by H. Staunton and H. Carlton; "Twinkling star" (Miss Gipsy Woolf), by A. Bagley and Donovan Meher; "The little pub we use just round the corner" (George French), by Harry Wincott and G. W. Foster; "The vision of Salome," dance, by Archibald Joyce; "Maggie frae Dundee" (sung by George French), by the late Albert Hall; "For months and months, and months" (Jack Smiles), by Joseph Tabrar; "If you were a star in the sky," by Scott Mackenzie and H. E. Pether; "I want to be introduced if it's a girly girl!" (Phil Parsons), by Fred Godfrey and Terry Sullivan; "When is my birthday, daddy?" by Chas. Collins and Fred E. Terry; "I'll be glad when the daisies are growing," by Chas. Collins and Chas. Ridgwell; "Don't go worrying your pals" (Miss Gladys Mavius), by G. A. Stevens; "My Indiana Queen" (Gordon Stretton), by Tom Mellor and Harry Gifford; "A rose from Cupid's garden," by J. P. Long; and "I do make a hit with the ladies" (Miss Hetty King), by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford.

MISS KITTIE RAYBURN'S songs, "Won't you come to me in Canada?" and "It seems to make the sun shine brighter," both of which are published by Messrs. Francis and Day, are "booming" considerably, thanks to the fair artist's magnificent rendering of both numbers in pantomime at the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith.

MESSRS. FULLAGER AND CO. are preparing slides for the following songs: "Jennie don't swing on the gate," "I'm wearing my heart away for you," "Don't break your loving heart for me," "Little silver moonbeam," "When the primrose comes again," and "Hold me tighter, Mr. Lighter."

MESSRS. MELLOR, LAWRANCE, AND GIFFORD, individually and collectively, are responsible for some big pantomime hits. Three songs particularly are being sung and applauded all over the universe, namely, "She sells sea-shells" (the tongue-twister), "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" and "I want to go to Idaho."

MESSRS. FRANCIS, DAY, AND HUNTER have secured a new song from the pens of Tom Mellor and Harry Gifford, entitled "My Indiana Queen," sung by Gordon Stretton, the new coon singer, who is making rapid strides in the profession.

WILKIE BARD'S great suffragette song, "Put me upon an island where the girls are few," grows more popular every day, it being the undisputed hit of the Drury Lane pantomime. The entire Press have acclaimed this number as the Drury Lane gem, and the National Music Publishing Co. are receiving applications for permission to sing it by every post in all the principal pantomimes in Great Britain. It is reserved exclusively for Wilkie Bard for London.

THE two fine chorus songs, "I wish I had a pal" and "Call round any old time," are being sung with the greatest possible success by principal boys and girls all over the country, "I wish I had a pal" being another Drury Lane winner, sung by Miss Queenie Leighton, and published by the National Music Publishing Co.

HARRY CONLIN wires the National Music Publishing Co. to the effect that he introduced their dame song, "You all want something to cuddle," for the first time in the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on Saturday night, and it met with instantaneous success.

WILL GODWIN'S great success, "When I've a hundred pounds," is being sung by Tom Foy at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham. He writes the National Music Publishing Co. that this is his greatest pantomime success, and it is already being sung and whistled all over Birmingham.

"KATE, WON'T YOU ROLLER SKATE?" has turned out to be a tremendous success, as anticipated by the National Music Publishing Co. It is being made free to all music-hall artists, and is a certain encore winner

THE National Music Publishing Co. have received at least 80 to 100 telegrams informing them of the sensational success of the catchy chorus song "My little Eva."

MR. ALBERT CHEVALIER, who has been secured for the States by Mr. William Morris, returns to the Coliseum next week with Behind the Scenes. Apropos to his reappearance at the London house, it is interesting to recall the names of those on the programme of the old Prince of Wales's Theatre, Tottenham-street, where Mr. Chevalier got his first small speaking part. They were Mr. and Mrs. (now Sir Squire and Lady) Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kendal, Charles Coghlan, John Clayton, Kate Phillips, Arthur Cecil, H. Kemble, Charles Sugden, and Marie Litton. Six of these players have joined the great majority. After this engagement Mr. Chevalier toured with Mr. and Mrs. Kendal in Diplomacy, and then, under John Hare's management, appeared at the Court in A Scrap of Paper.

MR. CHEVALIER tells a rather amusing experience he once had during an Irish tour. "I was playing," he says, "in a small town in the West of Ireland, the name of which I forget. I went into the hall in the afternoon, where I was to give my entertainment, and was amazed to see that there was not a single seat in it. 'Good gracious,' I said to the caretaker, 'where are the seats?' 'Oh,' replied the easy-going personage, 'I'll bring in some benches, if ye like, but I didn't know ye'd want any.' He departed for the benches, and I remarked to him, as he placed them in position, that they were thick with dust. 'An' won't the people dust them soon enough when they sits on them?' he replied, cheerfully."

V.A.F. AND THE AGENTS.

STRIKE THREATENED.

VIEWS OF AGENTS AND MANAGERS.

What seems, at the time of writing, to be something like a crisis in the dispute between the Variety Artists' Federation and the general body of music hall agents has been brought about by the refusal of the artists' executive to accept Clause 5 in the terms of reference (for arbitration purposes). That clause provides that no person shall be allowed to be agent and artist at the same time. This stipulation has the support of the General Federation of Trade Unions.

The question from the point of view of the agents may be summed up in the words of one of their number as follows:—

"The agents were asked to send in a list of the terms of reference upon which they would be willing to arbitrate, and these were drawn up and decided upon thus:

"1. Amount of commission for engagements booked in the United Kingdom.

"2. Amount of commission for engagements booked abroad.

"3. Deduction of proprietors' commission.

"4. Re-engagement clause.

"5. That no person shall be allowed to be agent and artist at the same time.

"These terms of reference were sent to the General Secretary of the Federation of Trades Unions, and he approved of them. They were then sent to the Variety Artists' Federation, the executive of which absolutely refused to allow Clause 5 (which they deleted) to go before the Arbitrator in any fashion whatever.

"The position at the moment, therefore, is that the V.A.F. have refused to permit Clause 5 to go before the Arbitrator, and the agents strictly adhere to that clause. Matters are therefore at a standstill, and a strike has been threatened. At meetings held on Friday (yesterday) throughout the country, members of the Variety Artists' Federation were asked to vote upon a resolution drawn up by th eexecutive committee of that organisation. The result of these meetings will be submitted to general meetings to be held in London and Manchester on Sunday, when the course of action to be followed will be decided. A direct ballot of all the members of the federation would be impracticable, as they are continually travelling from town to town, but the meetings are expected to form an equally effective means of testing the feeling of the profession

"The agents are now advertising a notice as follows:

"NOTICE TO ARTISTS:

"The Executive Committee of the V.A.F. object to the following clause being submitted to the Arbitrator:

"'That no person shall be allowed to be an agent and an artist at the same time.'

"WHY?

"A report has appeared in the Press of a statement said to have been made by Mr. W. H. Clemart to the effect that the V.A.F. had severed its connection with the trades unions. The truth of this statement has yet to be proved, as we understand that six months' notice has to be given in writing to the Federation of Trades Unions, and up to the present we have not heard that such notice has been given.

"The agents do not seem in the least perturbed at the report that the members of the V.A.F. are going on strike. The artists are saying that the managers are helping the agents by refusing to book artists direct; but the statement of Mr. Tozer set out below seems to suggest that managers are holding aloof. It will be remembered that the V.A.F. recently rescinded their rule as to prohibiting an artist being an agent and an artist at one and the same time. Mr. Joe O'Gorman, who is the head of the Water Rats' Agency, is also a performer, and has a year's dates in hand. The object of the clause in dispute is to prevent an artist from 'running a book' at the same time that he is fulfilling an engagement. This doubling of artist and agent is considered unjust to established agencies, in that the latter are unfairly handicapped in the matter of expenses. Moreover, the combination of two occupations by one person is distinctly against trade union principles."

MANAGERS' VIEWS.

Speaking to a Press representative on the same subject and on the possibility of a strike, Mr. Henry Tozer, chairman of the Tivoli, Oxford, and Associated Halls, said: "As far as the managers are concerned we are quite quiescent. We regard it as a storm in a teacup. It is easy enough to assert that the managers have supported the agents, but how? There is nothing whatever to strike for. All the causes were removed by the arbitration award in the last strike. Moreover, it would be an illegal strike surely, for under that award no strike or cessation of work must take place till 1912 without six months' notice.

"The managers have not held and are not holding any meeting, as they do not regard it as a matter concerning them. If there is a strike the managers will regard it with equanimity. We shall be able to get on very well, and, besides, so many of the best artists are leaving the Federation. We are a hundred times better off than we were at the time of the last strike, and even if all the members of the Federation went out we could give good shows. There are so many other turns."

TRADE UNION ATTITUDE.

The view of the General Federation of Trade Unions on the V.A.F.'s refusal to submit Clause 5 to arbitration may be gathered from the annexed extract from the letter to Mr. W. H. Clemart appearing in the Performer from Mr. W. A. Appleton, secretary of the first-mentioned organisation. Under date Jan. 4 Mr. Appleton, after noting that the V.A.F. committee refuses to submit Clause 5 with the other clauses to the Arbitrator, goes on to say: "The agents are just as firm in demanding that this question shall be submitted to the Arbitrator. I have submitted this phase of the situation to a specially-convened meeting of my emergency committee, and I am instructed to say that in their opinion your request that all matters in dispute should be decided involves the consideration of this point, and if the negotiations fail through your refusal to submit this point with the others, they will be unable to guarantee any support in the event of an open conflict between the parties directly concerned."

Mr. Clemart considers "the attitude of the General Federation of Trade Unions perplexing and inexplicable; and their refusal to give the Variety Artists' Federation any further support or assistance in the matter, because the agents are just as firm makes us wonder who is affiliated to them—ourselves or the agents. We are under the impression that we were contributing to their funds something like £100 per annum for protection and assistance when being oppressed by outside conditions."

Mr. W. H. Clemart, on behalf of the executive, has written as follows to Mr. Appleton:—"In reply to yours of Jan. 4, I am instructed to inform the General Federation of Trade Unions that no further advice or assistance in reference to the agency dispute is asked for, or required. In the previous dispute such advice and assistance was not necessary to the success of the artists' cause, and the Variety Artists' Federation feels quite capable and is willing to fight the present situation unaided. Twice in the same week, when the V.A.F. representatives have not agreed with the General Federation of Trade Unions' Committee, threats have been made that, if they did not do as dictated, the General Federation of Trade Unions would wash its hands of the whole matter. Such treatment was not expected from a society to which the Variety Artists' Federation was supposed to be affiliated. It is now understood that a communication from the General Federation of Trade Unions has been sent to the Agents' Association, agreeing that the agents' demands are just and reasonable, when, in such circumstances, it would have been at least decent to have maintained silence and neutrality by refraining from voicing opinions calculated to be detrimental to the interests of the Variety Artists' Federation."

A DRASTIC RESOLUTION.

Members of the Variety Artists' Federation were called upon yesterday to decide their course of action. Meetings held in seventy towns in the country at noon were asked to vote upon the following resolution:—

"That this meeting empowers the Executive Committee to take such steps as may be deemed necessary, however drastic, to bring to an immediate termination the dispute which has now lasted sixteen weeks between the Variety Artists' Federation and the Agents' Association, who are being unwarrantably supported by certain managers, whose sole intention is to inflict permanent injury on the V.A.F."

At a meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation, held yesterday at the Bedford Head Hotel, Mr. Joe O'Gorman presiding, a motion was carried, with only four dissentients, recommending that the above resolution be submitted to the mass meetings of the V. A. F. convened for Sunday at Terry's Theatre and at Manchester.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As one who has been held responsible for the late music hall strike, may I be allowed to say a few words on the strike now threatened by the executive of the V.A.F.?

In the first place, then, is the point at issue of any real importance to the profession generally, or is it merely a matter that would benefit individuals rather than the Federation as a body? Surely it is the latter. The rule qualifying membership, which kept the Federation closed to any but those who were solely bond-fide artists was rescinded a litle while ago for the express purpose of benefiting certain individuals who desired to be agents as well as artists for certain reasons. Had the V.A.F. officials even a superficial knowledge of the first principles of trade unionism they would have known that "one man one job" is a maxim ever to be firmly held to. Their ignorance has made it apparent to the trade union authorities that really the agents are more entitled to be a trade union than they are themselves.

So much for the point at issue. Now, what about their prospects of success should a strike be called? To put the matter bluntly: their fighting leaders are gone; their ranks are decimated by discontent, dissension, and empty date-books; their funds are depleted by law costs; and there are at least two artists ready to take the place of every one who comes out on strike. As for the support of the general body of trade unionists, let anyone go round, as I have done, and sound the opinions of the secretaries of the many organisations, and he will find that any practical aid, or even sympathy, will be wanting.

I put the situation thus plainly because I want to prevent the present rulers of the V.A.F. from rushing the Federation upon certain destruction, and, indeed, annihilation.

It is to be hoped that the rank-and-file will think for themselves and vote on Sunday for wiser and more moderate courses to be followed. It is also to be hoped that the result of the election for committee now taking place and subsequent election of office bearers will bring about many "changes in the Cabinet." Should this happen, then the V.A.F. may be reformed, and recover the support and allegiance of hundreds who have left it. The action of the Artists' Protection League (not a trade union) will depend upon the result of the V.A.F. meeting on Sunday. If a strike is decided on, then we shall call a mass meeting for the following Sunday, at which it will be open to all connected with the entertainment world to protest against the action of the V.A.F officials as being damaging to the best interests of every section of the music hall world. With that object, and that object alone, in view I ask for the assistance and co-operation of all who desire to bring about a time of peace and prosperity after the strife and depression of the past eighteen months.—Yours faithfully,

FRANK GERALD.

Jan. 7.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In view of such an alarming rumour that the greatest disruption ever known is about to take place, I beg the insertion of this humble epistle to prevent it. With all due deference to those who are engineering the Federation fight, I think there are hundreds of artists who disagree with their arbitrary methods. There is plain proof of it in the resignations that have been tendered not only by the rank and file, but also by some of its leading advocates.

I may be wrong, but I am of the opinion that had a little more tact and discretion been used by the "heads" of the Federation in their negotiations with those on whom the artists depend for their living, matters would have never reached the present crisis.

I don't hold a brief for either proprietors or agents, but I certainly think "the labourer worthy of his hire." I am quite aware there are good and bad agents, yet why in the name of conscience need there be all this rumpus? If an artist doesn't want the agent he need not have him—whether he charges 5, 10, 15, or 20 per cent. If the artist accepts the agent's contracts and signs them, let him be a man and abide by them. What Federation is necessary to either make or mar such negotiations?

No words of mine are necessary to prove that many artists have to thank their agents for receiving greater salaries than they ever expected. Any agent who can get me work at the salary I receive is welcome to his 10 per cent. as long as I live, and I am certain this assertion will be endorsed by thousands who get their living behind the footlights.

If the V.A.F. thinks it can wipe out the agent, or ride the high horse over the proprietor, it is labouring under a great delusion. Even if a strike be ordered, and all artists obeyed the command, they (the artists) would get such a beating that their position in future would be "confusion worse confounded." Let the executive think over the fact that it cost the Engineers during their strike £9,000,000, and they had to go back for less than they came out for. The North-Eastern strike cost £2,000,000, and they had to go back for a shilling a week less than they came out for. What funds have the V.A.F. got in comparison with the millions of money that supported these two great lost battles against the masters? I have heard it asserted that the shareholders will have "something to say" if the halls close down. Had they anything to say—or have they anything to say when any great fight is waged between capital and labour? They know full well if labour wins they lose. If labour organises, so do the masters; if artists combine, so do the proprietors. If either of the two former arrogate to themselves the superiority of their own strength or position, well, it only remains for them to try the tug-of-war. There has been too much of the one-man opinion dominating the Federation in its drastic ukases.

No one dare oppose the ruling spirit. What is wanted is a strong man to show the weaknesses, madness, and insuperable folly of a strike. The combine and the agents, although they may not shout so loud, have quite as much brains and capital behind them as the Federation, and if it comes to a fight, God help the poor deluded artists led into it.—Yours faithfully,

FREDERICK CHARCOT.

In a communication to his agent Mr. Ian Colquhoun writes:—

"I have to-day written to the V.A.F. and informed them that, after reading the result of the test case in Mr. Justice Darling's Court, I had come to the conclusion that there could be no longer any honourable objection to members of the Variety Artists' Federation paying their commission if they wished to do so, and that I had hastened to my agent's office and paid all commission due up to Sept. 26, as I was only too desirous of paying my debt freely incurred and justly due. Since that date all my commission has been held by the various managers, and I am quite willing to do anything you may direct to enable you to obtain the monies so held."

"LA PETITE BOHEMIENNE."

An Episode, Music by Francis Thomé, produced at the Alhambra on Monday, Jan. 4.

Carita ..... MLLE. LEONORA
Manuel ..... MISS JULIA SEALE
Count Lagrange ..... M. VOLBERT
The Countess ..... MLLE. SALANDRI

La Petite Bohémienne, a pantomimic episode, in which Mlle. Leonora finds a medium for her gifts as a mime, a dancer, and a singer, was produced at the Alhambra on Monday. It will be remembered that this charming girl was pleasingly prominent in the burlesque Sal-oh-My! in which her ability and beauty created a most favourable impression. The newer trifle which she illuminates by her versatility and charm reminds one in its story of La Cigale, and it is prettily illustrated. We are on the borders of the Austrian Alps in mid-winter; and as the curtain rises the villagers are seen leaving the church after vespers. Manuel and Carita, two strolling minstrels, representatives of picturesque stage vagabondage, are feeling the pinch of poverty and the chilling blight of the frost. Carita, though evidently suffering from exhaustion, sings and attempts to dance, but collapses before the brightly-lit mansion of Count Lagrange, a wealthy artist. Moved with pity for the plight of the young singer and also struck by her beauty, he has her carried into the house, after applying restoratives. Manuel is, however, left outside.

In the second scene, the artist's studio, Carita has been installed as model, and her beauty holds her benefactor in thrall. His protestations of love, however, do not meet with a favourable response. The Countess, too, has watched the growing infatuation of her husband for the dancer. Entering the studio in a rage she destroys some studies, and her attitude determines the fate of Carita, who, on re-entering in her tatters, is handed over to Manuel, after that faithful minstrel has expressed very strong opinions of the Count's conduct.

M. Francis Thomé has written the music, and his well-known melodious grace and power of delicate expression are to be recognised in a most pleasing score, which is beautifully played by the the fine orchestra under Mr. George Byng. Mlle. Leonora interests us all the time in the thorny career of "the little Bohemian," and Miss Julia Seale's art enables her to realise the devotion and chivalry of Manuel. M. Volbert and Mlle. Salandri as the Count and Countess are quite adequate, and the little piece, of which the author remains anonymous, creates a most favourable impression.

Another view of Paquita enables one to enjoy in a fuller sense the art of Mlle. Britta, who is surely gaining the hearts of Alhambra patrons by her beauty and grace. Her miming in the prison scene of this beautiful Mauresque ballet shows considerable power, and her dancing, besides its technical excellence, is distinguished by both joyousness and abandon. Miss Julia Seale plays with a distinguished air and considerable significance the part of the love-lorn prince; Signor Rosi is also agreeably prominent; and Miss G. Cormani shares the success of a pas de deux with Mlle. Britta.

The Cattaneos contribute to the varieties one of the smartest and funniest acrobatic acts that it has been our pleasure to witness for years. The member of the troupe dressed as a waiter, in addition to being a remarkably fine performer, is a humorist of the first rank. The Max Wessely Troupe have a very pretty set for their juggling act, and the lady of the crowd is not only particularly smart but decidedly handsome, looking particularly neat in her riding habit and very attractive in a second gown of shaded pink satin. Charlene and Charlene, on a return visit, repeat their success.

The powerful mimodrama The Red Hand is shown on the screen in a series of fine films, for which the enterprising Messrs. Pathé Frères are responsible. The drama is acted by such artists as M. Severin, undoubtedly the finest pantomimist in the universe, the creator of "'Chand d'Habits"; M. Max Dearly, Mlle. Mistinguette, and Mlle. Napierkowska. The drama is in eleven tableaux, exhibiting the purlieus of Modern Paris, the taverns and supper-rooms of Montmartre, the resorts of the Apaches, and the fashionable restaurants. The music of The Red Hand—a shortened version of which, by the way, was seen last year at the Palace Theatre—is by M. Fernand Le Borne, and it is finely played by the orchestra under Mr. George Byng, whose score of Paquita is full of suave melody.

THE directors of the new Tivoli, Ltd., have declared an interim dividend for the six months ending Dec. 31, 1908, at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum.

MR. WILL MAY is the merry Buttons in the production of Cinderella at the West London, and is playing the part with considerable success, causing much laughter by his funny business.

MISS ROSALINE THORNE has just returned from Folkestone, where she caused quite a furore with her song "Little brown eyes" and her dramatic song "Under the Red Cross." This popular artist is now in town for the season.

DUNNING and Kahn and Kahn return to town on Monday, opening for an eight weeks' run on the Gibbons Circuit and at the Syndicate halls. The tour in the country has been a pronounced success, the new features produced making a decided impression everywhere.

MR. H. A. SIMMONS, the famous roller-skater, finishes the tour of the Crawford Rinks on the 16th, and is open for engagements on the halls. His work at Olympia, Kensington, on the opening week was very much admired. In an attractive act he shows what is possible on rollers.

A VARIETY entertainment will take place at the Queen's Hotel, Leicester-square, at three o'clock p.m., on Tuesday next, for the benefit of the Messina Earthquake Fund. Among those who will contribute to the programme are Miss Elsie Craven, the Fairy Queen from His Majesty's Theatre, supported by her teacher, Mlle. Elise Clerc; Mlle. Leonora, from the Alhambra; Miss Carrie Moore, Mr. Maurice Farkoa, Mr. Arthur Playfair, Mr. John McCormack, and others. Tickets, 1 guinea each, may be had from the Queen's Hotel. The Italian Ambassador will be present.

THE PRIMROSES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Would you kindly permit me to appeal through The Era columns to my ever good-hearted brother and sister artists to subscribe just as much as they can afford towards the most distressing case of the Primroses, otherwise known as the Sisters Worth? The details of the recent lawsuit will be fresh in the minds of your readers. Edith Worth will probably never be able to walk again—certainly she will never be able to perform on the stage—while her sister is recovering from an attack of brain fever. To be given £700 one day, and have it taken away a couple of days later—think what that means! Boys and girls, when I have asked you before to aid me in helping those in need and in suffering, right royally have you rallied round and handed over cheques, gold, and silver. I feel justified in asking you now for a case so thoroughly deserving of your sympathy and your subscriptions. I herewith enclose a donation. Thanking you in anticipation,

Yours faithfully,

JOE ELVIN.

[Subscriptions sent to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, Hon. Treasurer, at The Era Offices, will be duly acknowledged in these columns.]

Mr. Frank Macnaghten and his directors, recognising the hardship of the above case, have very kindly promised to head the appeal with a generous donation of £100. They also promise a benefit at the Surrey, which should yield another hundred pounds. It is intended that the amount collected for the appeal shall be doled out weekly for the sole benefit of Lily Worth.

HILDA AND BEATRICE, in their refined musical scena, are this week topping the bill at the Brighton Alhambra, where they have won great enthusiasm for their singing and harp selections.

MUCH topical humour has been introduced in Mr. Bolossy Kiralfy's production, To-Morrow, at the London Hippodrome, and, together with the beautiful setting of the dances, that fine production continues to be as popular as ever.

MR. JAMES HARE, who recently made such a success with his dramatic episode The Guilty Man, has, on the advice of many variety managers, decided to change the title. The sketch will in future be known as No. 30, Bedwood-square. The bookings are in the hands of Mr. Will Sley.

MISS MABEL MAVIS

IN CARDIFF.

Miss Mabel Mavis, who is this week a popular attraction at the Cardiff Empire, where her unique genius is enthusiastically appreciated by huge audiences, goes to Swansea Empire next week. Miss Mavis's work belongs to the highest class, for which the Stoll Empires are famous above all others, and it is significant of the success of the educative forces that have been at work in these Empires that artists whose speciality is musical, such as Miss Mavis's act, are accorded the most vociferous applause. Miss Mavis, who is a trained and cultured artist, is a pianist of remarkable ability, and her work on the "glassophone," a musical contrivance new to most audiences, gives evidence of her versatile powers. There is no solcist on the musical glasses who can be compared with her; and all her work is marked by genuine training. Among the various items in her répertoire, she plays the piano with right hand alone, left hand alone, with left hand and sketching with right, playing with the elbows, playing piano, covered, with back to instrument, playing mandoline behind the head, &c. But her glassophone solos are even more remarkable, and in her own sphere she is the finest artist of the day. Personality counts for much on the stage; and Miss Mavis dominates and charms through the indefinable attribute of personality—the gift, if it may so be called, that also so distinguishes Mr. Harry Lauder. The reception accorded Miss Mavis at Cardiff Empire this week shows that the trained musical artist is always popular when he or she knows what the public demand and gives the public his or her best. At Swansea next week, and at Newport on the week following, Miss Mavis will doubtless repeat her remarkable success at Cardiff Empire.—South Wales Daily News, Dec. 26, 1908.

PIRATED MUSIC.

AT the Woolwich Police Court on Tuesday Jack Cole, of Anglesea-road, Woolwich, was summoned for having sold and offered for sale a copy of pirated music at a stall in Beresford-square, Woolwich.

Mr. Mulligan prosecuted for the Music Publishers' Association; and Mr. Walton defended.

The facts on which the prosecution relied were that on Nov. 28 a man, acting under instructions from Arthur Preston, chief agent to the association, saw the defendant. On Nov. 30 this man paid to the defendant 10d. (6d. for the "Merry Widow Waltz" and 4d. for "Love me, and the world is mine"). This music (it was said) the defendant promised to have in readiness for delivery on Dec. 5, and, as it was not handed over, the man (Ambrose) addressed a wrapper to himself, in which, on Dec. 8, he received through the post a copy of the latter piece of music.

The summons, as originally drawn, alleged that the offence was committed on Nov. 30, the date of the payment to the defendant, but, on the application of Mr. Mulligan, the magistrate permitted its amendment, the date of the offence being made Dec. 8.

Mr. Walton now submitted that the facts did not disclose a sale, as required by the Act.

The Magistrate: If this music had been legitimate, and the copies were not paid for, would you, if asked to issue a writ, say there was no sale?

Mr. Walton said his view was that to render himself liable the defendant must have the music in his possession.

The Magistrate said there was no doubt that a sale was completed on Dec. 8.

The defendant (who had been fined for a similar offence) was fined £5, with 23s. cost, or one month, the Magistrate observing: "I look upon this as sheer robbery; stealing the brains of another man, and in a very mean way."

THE LORD & LADY MAYORESS OF CARDIFF AT GEORGE LEYTON'S MILITARY NIGHT AT THE CARDIFF EMPIRE.

MILITARY NIGHT AT CARDIFF EMPIRE.

Lord Mayor and the Veterans.

A striking scene was witnessed at the Cardiff Empire last night at the close of the song-scena given by Mr. George Leyton, when the Lord Mayor of Cardiff (Alderman Lewis Morgan) presented to the eight local Crimean and Indian Mutiny veterans who have during the week taken part in the performance a portion of the money obtained by the sale of Mr. Leyton's songs, Mr. Leyton giving the whole of the money thus realised in the various towns he visits to the veterans who assist him in giving a touching and realistic background to his songs. The house had been effectively decorated for the occasion, the stage boxes being covered with Union Jacks, and red, white, and blue streamers overhanging the valiance in the proscenium. The decorations were kindly supplied by Messrs. James Howell and Co. When the Lord and Lady Mayoress arrived, accompanied by the Misses Morgan and the Deputy Lord Mayor (Councillor J. W. Courtis), they were saluted by the eight veterans, who were drawn up in line. The old soldiers, in red tunics and wearing their medals, were vociferously applauded when they came on the stage. Their ages ranged from 70 to 80. At the end of the turn the Lord Mayor, accompanied by Miss Morgan, Colonel J. J. David, and Mr. C. H. S. Dring (manager of the Empire), went before the footlights. Mr. Dring, in welcoming the Lord and Lady Mayoress, said it was the former's first public appearance in the New Year—(applause)—while the Lady Mayoress was also making her first public appearance after her illness. (Renewed applause.) The Lord Mayor hoped one result of the function would be the creation of a local fund for the assistance of the Crimean and Indian Mutiny veterans. (Applause). The Lord Mayor, who had a splendid reception, remarked, amid laughter, that it was the first time he had appeared before the footlights. He made handsome acknowledgment of the kindly thought of Mr. Leyton, and of the splendid work he had done in assisting the veterans, his efforts having produced a sum of no less than £3,400 for the relief of these old heroes in various parts of the country. (Applause.) He then spoke of the splendid services the latter had rendered to their country and of the claims they had upon the sympathy and help of those who were more fortunately circumstanced. A great deal of injustice under which the veterans suffered was due to thoughtlessness, and not to any disinclination to help them. The movement inaugurated by Mr. Leyton deserved every support and sympathy. (Applause.) The Lord Mayor presented a five-shilling piece to each veteran as "an earnest of what he had received at the second performance on Saturday night, when the week's programme ended." Another pleasing ceremony was then witnessed, Miss Morgan handing to each veteran a quarter of a pound tin of tobacco and a churchwarden pipe, the gift of Mr. George Chamberlain, of the Victoria Hotel. Mr. Leyton having briefly thanked the Lord and Lady Mayoress and the audience, the veterans marched off the stage amid ringing cheers.—South Wales Daily News, Jan. 2.

CARDIFF EMPIRE AND THE VETERANS.

A "MILITARY NIGHT" IN AID TO-NIGHT.

There are still among us many Crimean and Indian Mutiny veterans, and at this festive season of the year it is pleasing to note that some thing is being done to comfort them in the fast-fleeting days of their life by providing them with money beyond their well-earned pensions, by which they will be able to obtain very many little necessaries now beyond their reach. In aid of such funds there will be a "military night" at the second performance of the Cardiff Empire to-night (Friday), to which the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress (Alderman Lewis Morgan and Mrs. Morgan), Colonel Gaskell, Colonel J. J. David, Major Prothero, Major William Sheen, Major Caple, and officers of the local Territorials have given their patronage. At this performance Mr. George Leyton will present his military scena, "The Last Muster," in which nine of Cardiff's veterans will appear, and then the artist's collection of songs will be sold—as at all other Empire performances during the week—and the proceeds handed over to the Veterans' Fund. In all Mr. Leyton has collected in this way £3,418 odd, and has been thanked for his efforts by Lord Roberts, Lieut.-General Sir James Hills-Johnes, and other famous military officers.

The veterans to appear will be:—

R. Butler (aged 76), 1st Battalion Royal Welsh Fusiliers.
W. Wade (73), Wiltshire Regiment.
N. Randall (72), 23rd Royal Welsh Fusiliers.
C. Giles (76), Royal Marines.
T. Vaughan (72), 1st Battalion Welsh Fusiliers.
James Newbury (76), 16th Lancers.
E. Price (78), 10th Hussars.
D. Howells (75), 1st Bengal Fusiliers.
James O'Brien (73), Royal Welsh Fusiliers.

CARDIFF VETERANS.

SPECIAL PERFORMANCE AT THE EMPIRE.

With the view of assisting the fund promoted in aid of local Crimean and Indian Mutiny veterans, a special military performance was given at the Cardiff Empire on Friday evening by Mr. George Leyton, under the patronage of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Cardiff, Major Protheroe, Colonel Gaskell, Colonel J. J. David, Major William Sheen, and Major Caple. The house was crowded, and the gathering was a huge success. On the arrival of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress the veterans formed a guard of honour in front of the Empire, and Mr. George Leyton presented to the Lady Mayoress a bouquet of violets and red and white tulips, forming the national colours, red, white, and blue. At the close of the performance there was a scene of great enthusiasm, eight of the veterans being lined up with the Lord Mayor and his daughter, Miss Morgan, Colonel David, the deputy-mayor (Mr. J. W. Courtis), Mr. Leyton, and Mr. C. H. S. Dring. The Lord Mayor, after being introduced by Mr. Dring, said that it was a pleasure to him to give whatever help he could to such a deserving cause, and he hoped that Mr. Leyton would carry on the good work he had inaugurated. They were all gratified to know that Mr. Leyton had contributed no less a sum than £3,418 to the Veterans' Fund, exclusively of what had been collected during the present week. Mr. Leyton made an acknowledgment of the kind remarks of the Lord Mayor, and said that what he had undertaken was a duty of honour which he meant to continue. It was an encouragement to him to know that his efforts had received the recognition of men like Lord Roberts and Sir James Hills-Johnes. The Lord Mayor afterwards presented to each of the veterans a sum of money, and his daughter (Miss Morgan) handed to each a tin of tobacco and a pipe, the gift of Mr. George Chamberlain.—Western Mail, Jan. 2.

Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

27,716.—George W. Russell, of Eastbourne. Improvements in roller skates.

27,717.—Francis Alexander Thomassin, of London. New improved indicating device for establishing synchronous running of cinematographs and gramophones or the like.

27,765.—John Henry Faulkner, of London. Improvements in or relating to target-practice apparatus.

27,766.—Cecil Milton Hepworth, of London. Improvements in or relating to apparatus for use in synchronously operating combined cinematographs and gramophones or the like.

27,790.—Société Anonyme La Photographie des Couleurs, of London. Photographic objective allowing several images of the same object to be produced.

27,793.—Société Anonyme La Photographie des Couleurs, Joseph Sury, and Edmond Bastyns, of London. A photographic objective of triangular prismatic form, allowing several images of the same object to be produced simultaneously.

27,884.—Frederic Denham and the Advertising Concessions (Parent) Company, of London. Game and means of playing the same.

28,039.—John Edward Cooper, of Stockton-on-Tees. Improved stairway for the purposes of recreation and amusement.

28,111.—Henry Ansel Hannum and Ralph Charles Hannum, of London. Emergency exit door locks.

28,118.—George Herbert Ward and John Roger Ward, of Liverpool. Improved method of, and means for, operating theatrical curtains, cloths, and the like.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATIONS ACCEPTED.

6983.—Robson. Optical lanterns used in connection with cinematographic displays.

11,446.—De Bernochi. Method of, and means for, transmitting pictures and the like from a distance.

22,333.—Jirotka. Game apparatus.

22,415.—De Proszynski. Pneumatic apparatus for effecting the synchronisation of a cinematograph and a phonograph.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

17,873—Roundabouts. Winnett, J. S., and Boerth, H. J., both of Detroit, Michigan, U.S.A.

A hollow post (3) has its lower end formed as a disc (4), and its upper end formed as a bracket

(8), which provides bearings for shafts (11). To the inner ends of the shafts are secured bevel-wheels, which gear with a bevel-wheel (13) secured to the top of a fixed post (14). Cars (17) are pivoted to bifurcations at the end of arms (10), which are secured to the outer ends of the shafts (11). When the post (3) is rotated by the driving-gear (6), the arms (10) are caused to revolve, the neighbouring arm having opposite motions about the horizontal arms.

17,874.—Roundabouts. Winnett, J. S., and Boerth, H. J., both of Detroit, Michigan, U.S.A.

An amusement device consisting of a tubular column (5), which serves as a support for a revolving frame (11) keyed to a driving-shaft (6). The frame is provided with bearings for shafts 16, 17, 18, which are secured at their outer ends to revolving frames (20) carrying cars (21). The inner ends of the shafts are keyed to bevel-wheels (23, 24, 25, respectively), which gear with bevel-wheels (13, 14) bolted to the tubular support. The shaft (6), when driven from a shaft (2) by means of bevel-wheels (7, 8), imparts to the cars a motion which is the resultant of a rotation about the column and a revolution about the shafts.

17,925.—Games. Martin, E., of Southend-on-Sea, Essex.

A game for several persons is played on a revolving disc or table (A), which is operated by hand or other means. Upon the table are placed weighted cones, which are rounded off at the base and are provided with rings secured to the vertices. The object of the game is to pass a rod through the ring attached to a cone. In consequence of the rounded base, a cone at once erects itself when knocked over by a fruitless stab. A prize may be placed in a division of the revolving table.

17,955.—Stereoscopic optical projection apparatus. Topp, M. M., of Odense, Denmark.

A hand appliance for the observation of the pairs of images necessary for stereoscopic vision thrown in quick succession upon the same screen, as by a cinematograph, consists of a rotating shutter driven synchronously with the projection apparatus to expose the eyes momentarily and in succession for the purpose of limiting the vision of each one to the appropriate series of alternate views. The device consists of a frame (a) provided with a handle (b), eye-openings (d, e), and a screen (c), rotated in front of these openings synchronously with the shutter of the projector by means of an electro-motor carried in the device. The dull, almost opaque screen (c) increases in thickness towards the periphery, and is directly connected to the shaft of the motor. The armature and the field winding are fed through wires placed in the handle (b). Perfect synchronism may be obtained by turning the whole motor on its bearings in the rear wall of the casing (h) by means of a spring (s), which slides upon the back wall of the casing. Friction is minimised by having a tapering pivot of conducting material (o), rotating on a bearing in the spring (n), which is connected to one of the wires, the rotary pin being connected to one end of the armature winding.

MR. CHARLES COBORN, who is this week delighting large audiences at the Empire, Dublin, has been obliged to forgo several important concert engagements in London owing to extended bookings in the provinces. His numerous Irish admirers are complaining of the infrequency of his visits to the Sister Isle, and the Press, as usual, are loud in their praises of his performances.

SACCO, whose full name is Guiseppe Sacco-Homann, the fasting man, on Monday commenced a forty-five days' fast in the King Edward Hall, Hanley, under the management of Messrs. Moore and Kennedy. He is an Austrian, forty-two years of age, and for sixteen years has undertaken fasting exhibitions in all the European countries. His record is 52 days at the King's Hall, Birmingham.

SOME excitement was caused late on Tuesday night, during the second performance at the Woolwich Hippodrome, by the sudden failure of the electric light, owing to the earthing of the current. The hall was plunged in darkness, but the orchestra at once struck up a lively air, which had a calming effect on the audience, and when the large central gas burner was turned on confidence was restored.

NEW YEAR'S COLLECTION FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

In again directing the attention of our readers to The Era New Year's Shilling Fund on behalf of the Music Hall Home we are in the happy position of being able to associate with the appeal thus being made the name of the foremost music hall comedienne—Miss Marie Lloyd. It seems scarcely necessary to remind our readers of the deep interest Miss Lloyd has ever taken in matters affecting the welfare of her brothers and sisters of the variety profession. It is her desire that her "year" will be marked by a considerable increase in the subscriptions of previous years, and she therefore, through The Era, commends the Music Hall Home to the charitably-minded. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, the President of the Fund, is again this year exerting himself in its behalf, and this fact is sufficient indication that he is satisfied as to the way in which the institution is being conducted, and that he considers it worthy of support.

MISS MARIE LLOYD,
The Fair Worker for the Home.

Mr. Ben Woodger, the secretary of the Music Hall Home, tells us that in 1907 the inmates averaged ten, but that in 1908 there have been as many as twelve. The address of the Home is 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, and there the matron (Mrs. Fruin) busies herself for the comfort and convenience of her "family." At present there are eleven of these, and the desire is to increase the number, which can only be done when sufficient funds for the purpose are collected. During the past twelve months three or four of the inmates have recovered their health and strength sufficiently to enable them to look for engagements. These secured, they left the Home, and the vacancies thereby created were immediately filled up. Now, this Home requires keeping up, and it cannot be kept up on air. There is no need for us to refer to all the good work which has been performed by the institution in the past, as that must for the most part be within the recollection of our readers. The ages of the inmates range from fifty to seventy-six. In all probability these men will be maintained in the Home until the day of their death, and their funeral expenses paid for out of the funds of the Home.

The Era New Year's Shilling Fund is the main source of income to the Home, and this means of sustenance is added to by the donations of artists, either given directly, or through the collecting boxes through which many managers of variety theatres collect pennies from "dead-heads" and from artists who desire free admission.

Anyone can be supplied with a collecting-card by sending a postcard to Mr. Woodger.

Briefly, we may once more repeat that the objects of the Music Hall Home Fund are to provide shelter for deserving members of the variety profession who have been stricken with poverty or illness in their declining years, or who have in other ways fallen on evil times. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the hon. treasurer, will be pleased to receive filled-up collecting cards addressed to him at The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., and to acknowledge them in these columns.

MR. THOMAS BARRASFORD,
President of the Home.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

The looked-for pantomime in the theatre has given place this year to an exhibition of living pictures, entitled Cinderella, including a harlequinade, with other films, by that noted firm Pathé Frères. In addition, a variety entertainment, consisting of Arthur Thomas, musical clown; A. J. Hill, the living Lilliputian; Kenneth Hardy, ventriloquist; and Mlle. Neville, with illustrated songs. There were two shows on Boxing Day.

The Central Hall was transformed into a well-arranged circus, under the direction of Mr. Austin Fryers, of Hengler's Circus fame. The equestrian acts were all that could be desired, the evolutions of Little Reggie and his pony calling for special commendation. Messrs. Tom and Robert Fossett were met with well-earnt approval for their daring and intrepid performances. Charleroi, the juggler, Henry Spink, gymnast, and Mlle. Emme were each and all successful in their particular lines of business. The comic element was well sustained by Comical Cooke and Garfold, whose untiring efforts to amuse were never lacking. A huge elephant, rejoicing in the name of Punka, was one whose education had been by no means neglected. The Three Flying Arenuses on bar and trapeze were also flatteringly received; whilst Mme. Otto on a rolling globe and serpentine dance, with Mlle. Neville and her donkey, Vesuvius, made up a well-arranged programme. The last-named caused considerable amusement through the inability of anyone riding it, and earning the promised reward of ten golden sovereigns.

The circus gave four shows on Boxing Day, and with fresh features in its bill of fare will probably gain even greater notoriety.

MR. M. V. LEVEAUX has been appointed by the directors of the Empire the Press representative for that house.

CLAUDE DUVAL.

Sketch, in Three Scenes, by Fred Ginnett and Wal Pink, produced at the Opera House, Tunbridge Wells, on Monday, Jan. 4.

Claude Duval ..... MR. ARTHUR MAX
Lord Leicester ..... MR. HARRY CALVER
Silas Dedgold ..... MR. GEORGE HAMMOND
Fritz Van Blickenhausen ..... MR. JACK COLLINSON
Polly ..... MISS VICTORIA DOUGLAS
Lady Doris ..... MISS RAY HEYDEN

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Claude Duval has several times been the hero of stage entertainment, notably in the libretto of the late Edward Solomon's opera of that name; and Messrs. Ginnett and Pink have made picturesque use of the highwayman's memory. The first scene is an old-fashioned wayside inn. The Windsor coach arrives, and Duval robs a Dutch passenger while paying compliments to his wife. On Hounslow Heath Duval stops the coach, and robs my Lord Leicester, and returns his valuables on learning that he is the King's Messenger. The highwayman also dances a minuet with Lady Doris. In the third scene Duval is betrayed by a treacherous innkeeper, but Lady Doris arrives with the King's pardon, and the highwayman is saved from the gallows. The part of Claude Duval had a strong and spirited exponent in Mr. Arthur Max, who gave a graceful and gallant rendering of the rôle. Mr. Harry Calver was capital as Lord Leicester. Mr. George Hammond contributes a good character study as the Innkeeper, and Mr. Jack Collinson's Fritz Van Blickenhausen was very funny. Miss Victoria Douglas as Polly was pretty and lively, and Miss Ray Heyden dances very nicely, and was a charming Lady Doris. The sketch had every advantage in the way of scenery and accessories, and a trained horse did some clever tricks, which were ingeniously introduced.

A STRONG attraction at the Bedford this week is Buster Brown, the roller-skate expert, in his trick and comedy skating. A competition among amateurs has been initiated, and prizes were to be presented to the winners last evening.

MR. ARCHIE GOODALL, the well-known International football player, has been secured by Mr. Oswald Stoll for the Empire, Birmingham, in his feat of "walking the hoop," an acrobatic display without the aid of hands. The act will be at the Grand Theatre, Derby, next week.

LA MILO triumphs are becoming daily occurrences, as was evidenced at Coventry recently. Setting out from London in a luxurious white car gaily decorated with flowers and festive with ribbons, she made for Birmingham, where, after successive enthusiastic welcomes en route, she was the centre of most expressive appreciation. On her way to the Grand Hotel she became the centre of enthusiastic excitement, and crowds soon gathered to give her a real English welcome.

LA MILO then motored to Coventry, and made straight for the King's Head Hotel. Here Coventry proved its loyalty to its Lady Godiva, cheer after cheer greeting her, and ere she had the opportunity to alight from her car she was surrounded by enthusiastic admirers, who, having commandeered a two-horse brougham which stood near, requested her to step into it. On her having done so, the horses were at once taken out, and La Milo found herself being drawn through the city, again its idol and again in triumph.

MR. ELI HUDSON and Madame Olga and Mlle. Elgar, who are accomplished musicians, came to the Coliseum on Monday. Mr. Hudson is A.R.C.M. and late professor Royal Military School of Music. He commenced the study of the flute and piccolo at the age of five under his father, and appeared in public at the age of seven, causing a great sensation as a prodigy. He gained an open free scholarship at the Royal College of Music, distinguishing himself greatly during his three years there. At the end he won the Associateship and secured for himself the reputation of the premier English flautist.

MADAME OLGA is a lady with a remarkable and well-trained soprano voice. She gained the same scholarship at the Royal College of Music as Madame Clara Butt, and was chosen by the College to take principal part in the three operas publicly produced while she was there. She has a répertoire of fourteen operas. Mlle. Elgar is a young lady of fifteen years, and is acknowledged to be the finest girl piccolo player in the world.

THE principal attraction at the Peckham Hippodrome this week is Mr. John F. Preston's popular racing sketch, A Ride to Win, in which Mr. Preston and Miss Mabel Barlow appear with great success, supported by an excellent company. The mounting is very effective, and three thoroughbred racehorses appear upon the stage in the final scene at Sandown Park. William Lee and company appear with success in an emotional sketch, King's Counsel; the Borghetti Troupe are loudly applauded for their wonderful head-balancing act; the Ansonia Trio of acrobats are much appreciated in their clever entertainment; while Cyrus Dare scores well with his unique imitations of childlife in various phases. Other turns are the Brothers Werda (eccentric acrobats), Fraser and French, Rudge Whitworth, Beattie Rennie, Will Probyns, Brooklyn Comedy Four, and Ruffell's Bioscope.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Oldham Seeks a Monopoly of Fairs.

MR. T. HURST, hon. secretary Showmen's Guild, has obtained a copy of a new Improvement Bill promoted by the Corporation of Oldham. The Bill contains additional powers clauses of a most drastic character. One object sought is of the utmost importance to showmen. It proposes to make it an offence to hold a fair within the borough without the consent and licence of the Council. The penalty for infringement is put at £50 for the first offence, and £10 a day for continuing the offence. This is a matter of serious moment to the whole body of Lancashire showmen. Oldham, like most populous towns, is fast absorbing the surrounding villages; in fact, the villages form part of the borough for local government purposes. Inside the wide borough boundaries there are ten local or suburban wakes. These local wakes are as ancient in origin and as popular in their hold on the public as the great Oldham Wakes itself.

THE executive of the Showmen's Guild is taking immediate steps to bring before the Mayor and Corporation of Oldham the far-reaching character of the additional powers they are seeking. If friendly overtures fail, the Guild will oppose the Bill in Parliament. The Guild spent £500 ten years ago to defeat similar proposals by the Corporation of Halifax, and two years later prevailed upon the Corporation of Rotherham to drop similar clauses from the Rotherham Bill.

Free Trade in Fairs.

EXCEPT and only where monopoly rights in fairs exist by ancient Royal grant or charter, the organised showmen have been successful in maintaining the important principle of free trade in fairs. Whilst the showmen are compelled to submit to monopoly covered by charter, they have opposed (and have invariably been successful in their opposition) all attempts to obtain such exclusive and restrictive powers by Private Bill legislation

The Local Showmen at Work.

INSTRUCTED by Mr. Hurst, Messrs. J. H. Geoghegan and J. Platt, Oldham showmen, attended the town's meeting, and protested against the clauses penalising show business. The Bill, despite vigorous opposition by the allied local interests threatened, was approved by the statutory majority, and now goes to Parliament. The Guild executive will have this extremely grave matter before them at the Manchester meeting next Wednesday.

Guild Services at the World's Fair.

WITH the co-operation of the lessee, Mr. T. E. Read, the Guild Chaplain is holding services for showpeople at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, every Sunday of the World's Fair. The long committee-room, in the Barford-street entrance-hall, next to the children's school, has been fitted up as a chapel for the showfolk and their friends. The Guild Chaplain began his work last Sunday, and although the service was not widely announced, the opening night was fairly successful as to numbers, and very encouraging in its promise of growth and popularity.

THE Chaplain was assisted by Miss Turner, who kindly accompanied the service at the harmonium, and also sang with great acceptance Liddle's beautiful setting of "Abide with me," and Messrs. Frank Turner and Plinston Brothers acted as churchwardens.

The Guild Chaplain's "At Home."

EVERY Sunday night, from 7 to 9.30 p.m., the Rev. T. Horne will be "at home" in the Guild Chapel to welcome all showpeople. He hopes that his many London friends will pay him a friendly call. The Guild service will begin at 8, and last about 40 minutes. Those visitors who do not wish to join in the Guild service may visit their friends in the caravans, and if so disposed may return for the last three-quarters of an hour, and resume their friendly intercourse with the Chaplain and fellow Guild members. Coffee and cigarettes at 9.

Why Not a Showmen's Club?

HERE'S the idea, and it only needs working out. Why not meet for mutual benefit every Sunday night at the World's Fair? The showman and the showwoman will be all the better men and women for such comradeship. Then accept the Chaplain's advice, and fraternise at the oldest and the greatest centre of showlife in winter quarters in the world, the World's Fair at Islington. Olympia and Earl's Court should join in this common centre of neighbouring on the Sunday nights. So come, come every Sunday, and visit the Chaplain and his World's Fair flock at home. Outside friends interested in show business, whether traders or patrons of showland, will be welcome. Mothers and fathers, bring your children. Do not stay away on their account. Next Sunday and every Sunday night the Chaplain's "at home," 7 to 9.30. Do not forget it. Tubes to the Angel. You can reach Barford-street, behind the great hall, viâ Liverpool-road, in five minutes.

Trade Societies at Manchester.

THE annual business committee of the Showmen's Guild will be held at the Black Lion Hotel, Salford, on Wednesday, Jan. 13, at 11 o'clock a.m., and the public meeting at 4 p.m. the same day; evening committee at 6 p.m. The Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union will meet for a two-days' session on Tuesday, Jan. 12. See advertisement.

Carmarthen.

MR. HARRY COWELL, the proprietor-manager of the Phœnix Theatre at the Carmarthen Fairground, has this week again an attractive bill, and as a result good houses have assembled. On Monday evening The King was presented; on Tuesday evening, In the Streets of London; on Wednesday evening, Poor Jo, the Crossing Sweeper, concluding with the laughable farce, Mother-in-Law; and on Friday evening, Black-eyed Susan. For Saturday afternoon a children's pantomime, Bluebeard was announced, and for the evening Sweeney Todd, followed by the well-known farce, Joey in the Wash-tub. The company continue to give very good interpretations to the plays presented nightly.

World's Fair.

NOTWITHSTANDING the severity of the weather, the World's Fair at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, has been drawing exceptionally big crowds of the amusement-seeking public. There is certainly a greatly-increased and varied programme of amusements this season, and a vast number of entirely new attractions. The great free circus is entirely up-to-date and exceptionally good this season, and running a great change of programme weekly, while the marvellous Flying Banvards are the most daring and marvellous troupe of aerialists possible to see in any part of the world. This, and the intrepid performance of the novel act by the man up the pole, is also included in the great list of free attractions. Likewise Bostock's and Wombwell's Menagerie. There are a number of other amusing and interesting shows, games, &c.; also Hagenbeck's great Indian Jungle and herd of colossal elephants. In fact, the World's Fair is a marvellous show for the million, at the popular admission of 6d., of which the lessee, Mr. T. E. Read, is the pioneer.

REVIEW OF EVENTS IN 1908.

1909 has the promise of great things for all sorts and conditions of showmen. We are almost at the end of the serious trade depression that has so impoverished the workers of our country. We, therefore, anticipate more spending money will be brought to the fairs in the New Year.

In our last year's pilgrimage of the great fairs of England, Scotland, and Wales we saw how wonderfully the industry of the fairground is appreciated by the people; every class and every section of society now visits and enjoys the fun of the fair.

The Scanty Means of the People.

There were crowds of people, but amongst the most numerous body of the people but little margin of spending money. Men and women had to be content with patronising one or two shows; the money would not permit of more. Had there been good trade, or full time with the workers, every show would have had a chance, for your worker is no niggard. It was quite significant to see the poor response to the most attractive outside efforts of really clever paraders to draw the crowd. We often looked from the showfront upon the crowd, and we saw that it was not lack of desire, but poverty of means, that prevented the people rushing inside.

Good Trade a Supreme Interest.

We have often deplored the want of interest shown by the average showman in national matters. The fluctuations of trade and business, the rise and progress of the national sources of trade and enterprise are vital things to showland. Yet how few there are who give any time or thought to these matters. How few who endeavour to be abreast of the times we live in with regard to the commercial side of national life. Yet showmen are the first to suffer when the dark days come. People at once economise on their spending funds. This is true at all times of national poverty.

The Big Things of the Past Year.

First of all we must put the Movable Dwellings Bill. The proposals of its promoters dealt a killing blow at the show and fairground industry. The way in which the attack was countered, and for the moment defeated, is a demonstration of the unity and solidarity of all sections of the showman world. The matter was of universal importance. Every interest was threatened. There was no need to discriminate between one class of amusement caterers and another—all alike were bound to suffer if the Bill became law. The various trade societies, with one consent, fell into line, and with one consent recognised that the mother society, "the old Van-dwellers' Association," with its magnificent fighting record, was the one to do battle again with the massed forces of fanaticism and rancour.

The Showmen's Guild to the Rescue.

The admirable machinery of the Guild was strengthened in its work of defence; the Round about Proprietors' and Showmen's Union and the Stallholders' Society co-operated with the old society, and the Parliamentary agitation began. This Parliamentary work was followed by mass meetings against the Bill at all our important fairs. East, West, North, and South with one voice denounced it, and at every meeting, whether confined to showmen only, or those to which the public were admitted, resolutions condemning the measure were passed. Meetings at London, Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds, Hull, Gloucester, Darlington, Lincoln, Leicester, Boston, Oldham, Greenock, Porth, Redruth, Rotherham, Huddersfield, Hawick, Keighley, and Dartford were unanimous in their reprobation of the Movable Dwellings Bill. Petitions (extensively signed) were sent up to Parliament, and others are now in preparation for the same goal. Influential noblemen and gentlemen were approached, and the showmen's brief against the obnoxious Bill was printed and is now ready to bombard Parliament at the first moment of approaching danger.

The Response to the Call for More Money.

The response has been eminently satisfactory. The Yorkshiremen gave a big lead at Eastertide at Huddersfield and Keighley; the Midlands at Leicester and Birmingham; Wales at Wrexham and Porth; the Western showmen at Redruth and Penzance; the Scotchmen at Greenock and Ayr; in fact, the Scotch showmen top the list in their assistance sent to their English brethren and in defence of the common cause. This generous response is remarkable for the fact that it includes the humblest and the smallest traders, as well as the great ones of the showman world.

Mitcham and Penzance Fairs.

As showing the far-reaching influence of the Guild, the developments at Mitcham are most significant. There is a prospect (even yet) of the trouble with the abolitionists being settled and the old fair being endowed with a long lease of vigorous life and progress. The Guild has constantly kept the people of Mitcham alive to the serious danger before them of losing their fair, and success is extremely likely. There are two proposals from the London showmen now before the conservators—(1) to remove the fair by consent to a better and larger site on the common; (2) failing that, to buy the fair rights back again and continue the fair on its present restricted ground. How this will be met and dealt with 1909 will show us. Penzance is an entirely local matter (and in that sense is like Mitcham). The questions at issue do not concern the whole body of showmen. At Penzance public opinion is entirely with the maintenance of the fair, and the grant of just and proper terms of tenancy to the showpeople. The strike made by the showmen has, unfortunately, raised other questions with regard to the tenure of the markets, and, in consequence, the matter is now to be tested in the High Court. the Corporation seeking an injunction to restrain anyone infringing their charter, whereby they claim a monopoly of fairs and markets within a radius of seven miles of the centre of Penzance.

The Rev. T. Horne as Mediator.

When the strike against excessive tolls took place, the Guild Chaplain was asked to go down and to offer his services to both sides as mediator. This work of mediation is still proceeding, and there are strong hopes of a settlement that will be acceptable to both sides. The Guild Chaplain has also usefully intervened at Johnstone, near Dumfries, at Brecon, Reading, Ripon, Ludlow, and Buxton. His expert advice has been sought by numerous public bodies when dealing with the fairground business. In this and in many other ways the Guild has touched with success the life of the country, and it is recognised to-day as the official society of showland.

Twenty Years Ago and Now.

When the Van-dwellers' Society sent forth its first book of membership, the Guild Chaplain was asked to write the preface. He wrote, amongst other things, these pregnant words: "We stand for advance as well as defence." This year the nineteenth annual report tells a story of advancement all along the line that reads like a romance of success. Showmen are strong with the vigour and strength of well-organised corporate life. It is no longer, as it used to be in showland, "every man for himself, and let the weak go to the wall." There is beginning to blossom in our midst the fine flowers of brotherly care and regard for the wider interests of the whole body of entertainers.

The Public and the Work of the Guild.

1908 saw the high tide of public opinion flowing in favour of justice to the travelling showmen. At Gloucester, with the Mayor presiding, and the City Sheriff speaking in support, resolutions against special legislation to penalise showlife were passed. The same thing took place at King's Lynn, Hull, and Rotherham—open meetings of the sympathetic public to see justice done to showpeople. We have, indeed, advanced since 1889.

The Rev. T. Horne's Book of Stories.

The Guild Chaplain recognised many, many years ago the poisonous effect on public opinion of stories dealing with the (supposed) life of showland that presented false views of it. He determined to present true views of showland, and to fix these on the public mind in the best manner. He wrote his now well-read series of stories in our pages under the title "Stories of Showman Life." He gave true pictures as the antidote to the poisonous and libellous trash that had universally been taken as truth. These stories, in their collected form, are now before the public, and we anticipate that their influence will be wide and far-reaching, and that the people he loves to speak about will be all the better understood and appreciated.

Lord George Sanger's Farewell.

The one sad note in a triumphant year's record is the retirement from the Guild presidency of the world's most famous showman, George Sanger.

LORD GEORGE SANGER.

Yet who can blame him? He has earned his time of absolute repose. Yet partings are ever sad, and the passing of the veteran president from the old society is indeed cause for the sad note in 1908.

THE PRESIDENT-ELECT OF THE GUILD.

Here and now is neither the place nor the time to tell the life-story of Patrick Collins. He looms too largely in the front of things—things as they actually are, here and now—to be put into proper perspective; he is too great a force in showland to be dealt with or adequately estimated for the purposes of biography.

Were we asked to say at once what is the most striking characteristic of the man we would define it as "directness." He knows what he wants and goes straight for it—and nearly always gets it. Other men have the same genius of business ability, the same capacity for arduous work, yet lack the direct enterprise and the immediate decision of Patrick Collins. They see all the possibilities of some novelty that springs at a bound into public favour; but whilst the others hesitate Patrick Collins goes straight for it—and at once. In this promptitude of decision lies his abounding success. We heard at Hull Fair an apt illustration of this. A new machine—a French notion—the "rollicking porkers," had taken the public fancy at Nottingham and at most of the big fairs in showland. Collins, in the short interval of four or five days, changed a set of racing birds into a weird composite set of fabulous animals, half bird, half pig. Of course, in order to secure this metamorphosis, the quick, deciding mind of the man had to calculate the time it would require to place the contract for the carved and modelled heads and the engineering difficulties with the machine itself. All this had to be provided for in advance. Like a general massing his forces, the modern showman must leave nothing to chance or so-called "good luck." The really lucky man in showland is the man who considers every little detail of his business and leaves nothing to good luck. He succeeds because he has taken care to provide for success.

Another example of the organising ability of the man came under our notice at the same fair. A business rival had a breakdown with his machine. He went the whole town over and could not get the necessary crank or part of the machine he needed. In our hearing he was lamenting his ill-luck, when Mr. Collins promptly said, "Why, man you should have come to us; we always have a spare one or two with us ready for any emergency."

This, again, is characteristic of the man. As a business rival he fights fair, and never allows the wellsprings of brotherly kindness to become choked up with the accretions of the competitive strife of varying interests. He is a good fighter, but always a true friend. One other characteristic is of especial interest. Patrick Collins has the supreme genius of enlisting and retaining the best ability in showland. He is a brainy man and knows the value of brains, and he believes in paying brains its true value. Hence—one other great element in his success—he has at every one of his shows and machines a capable lieutenant, who is not merely a trusted servant, but is that infinitely more valuable coadjutor, an original and dependable worker. There is one directing mind at the head of the whole organisation, "the governor," as he is affectionately termed by his working staff. Yet the managers and the agents-in-advance of all his numerous shows and machines have full scope to exercise their original ability and to develop individual character and talents.

We must not dare to really finish this character sketch of the President-elect of the Guild—and, indeed, we never meant to do so—without a special tribute of esteem and admiration for Mrs. Collins, who has been all through his career "his right-hand man and helpmeet."

Gifted with equal charm of personality, directness of aim, and genuineness of character, together they have worked, together they have met all that life's varying fortunes mean to the sons and daughters of showland. I venture to give Mr. Collins's own tribute to his wife's good worth: "I am what I am to-day because she has stood by me in the dark days and in the sunshine. God bless her!"

There is joy in the house of Collins, for there is the third generation in the direct line to carry on its noble traditions. Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Ross Collins have been blessed by the birth of a daughter—a genuine show girl, to the manner born. We have already tendered our congratulations to the loving parents and grandparents.

The coming meeting of the Showmen's Guild at Manchester will witness the conferring of the Blue Riband of Showland on Mr. Patrick Collins, the titular head of his house and the real monarch of modern showmen. From the early days of the Guild's struggle and strife for public acceptation and recognition as a force in public life down to the present moment Patrick Collins and his gracious wife have never wavered in their support and in their work for its success. The honour that will be theirs has been arduously won, and it is well deserved. We therefore congratulate the whole showman world that its new president has so wisely and so courageously come to the front. It is no light task to follow so great, so good, and so famous a man as George Sanger; it is, in very truth, an enterprise demanding just such qualities of heart and mind that we know Mr. Collins to possess.

A GOOD FRENCH SHOWWOMAN.

"The education of the children of travelling showmen is still an unsolved problem in England, but there is an old showwoman, now dying in Paris, who has worked out a solution single-handed for many such children in France. She was born in a showman's caravan nearly eighty years ago. She grew up making and helping her father to exhibit marionettes, and knew nothing of reading or writing till she was near middle life. She had learnt to count by taking the sous of the people who flocked to the show as it went about from fair to fair all over the country. When her father died she set up a show of her own, and she then set herself to learn reading and writing, and succeeded without any teaching. When the Franco-German War broke out Mlle. Bonnefois volunteered as a nurse, and rendered valuable service on the Paris ramparts. And then she conceived the idea of setting up a little school round the steps of her roulotte (caravan) for the children of showmen and hawkers who went about, as she did herself, from one place to another in the fairs. 'These poor children cannot be sent off to school; we must take the school with us,' she decided.

She engaged a regular teacher, and wherever her show and 'the fair' went, there went also her school and her teacher. Two teachers were soon needed. The school was a striking success. For twenty-five years the children of this itinerant population—a numerous one in France, the land of fairs—have been regularly 'going to school' in the midst of the fair, wherever it might be stationed. And some of these pupils have presented themselves for the regular school examinations and have passed with honour; some have even gained scholarships at the Lycées. The French Academy recognised the showwoman's work and rewarded it. The other day the old lady was taken ill in her roulotte. The news soon spread, and the nuns of one of the few convents now left in Paris went to the fair, which was at the east end of the city, and took the sick woman and her house on wheels to the nunnery. The roulotte was left in the courtyard, where, to the sufferer's great joy, it was allowed to remain, while she herself was laid in a real bed under a real house-roof for the first time in her long life. Her great grief is giving up the superintendance of her school; but the good work is to be kept up under competent management."

The Manchester Guardian, to whom we are indebted for the above interesting paragraph, does not know, apparently, of the good work of the Showmen's Guild with regard to the education of the showman's child. We can assure our contemporary that the problem is solved in this country—that fewer children escape the educational net amongst showpeople as a class than obtains in other classes. Except and only in that extreme corner of England, Cornwall, there is no need for special machinery to follow the children from fair to fair. In the West of England, particularly in Devon and Cornwall, travelling schools have followed the fair. A reference to the file of The Era will show any inquirer that the number of children actually needing such special schools was too small to justify the expense and toil, and that it is extremely problematical whether, regarding the matter from any practical standpoint, such special educational machinery is anything less than a counsel of perfection, an admirable and blessed counsel of perfection, and we have already wished it God-speed. That true friend of the Western show child—Mr. Geoffrey Norton, hon. agent for the Showmen's Guild in the West of England—spent hundreds of pounds in equipping a school van last year. He carried it on with both acceptance and success, until he was met half-way in his itinerary of the Western fairs with a school van and staff of teachers sent out by the Exeter Diocesan Mission. The consequence of this overlapping was that Mr. Norton, after all his generous expenditure and good effort, had to retire, in order to prevent the anomaly of not enough scholars to go round. What were the conditions of show life in France when the good Mother Bonnefois began, and what they are to-day, we are without accurate information; but there is no problem about the child of the fair in this country of free schools and compulsory attendance.

THE SHOWMEN'S ANNUAL SOCIAL FESTIVAL AT BOLTON FAIR.

From every point of view the annual supper and ball at Bolton is the big social event of the year. Originated by Mr. George Cornwell, and carried through by him and Mr. Robert Pike (markets and fairs superintendent), Mr. William Pike, and the Guild Secretary (Mr. T. Hurst)—himself a Boltonian—it has grown in popularity each year since its happy institution. Bolton possesses a grand ballroom, equal to the best in the world, called the Empress Ballroom. It was at this magnificent Terpsichorean temple that some three hundred guests—the flower of beauty and chivalry in showland—assembled on Wednesday evening last, Jan. 6. Supper was served at ten o'clock, and dancing began at eleven, and was kept up until 4 a.m., Thursday.

The Welcome of the Corporation.

A most pleasing feature of the gathering is the kindly welcome given to the showmen tenants of the Markets and Fairs Committee. Alderman Dickinson (chairman), Alderman Greenwood (vice-chairman), and Councillors Webster, Rimmer, Warburton, Jones, Heywood, and Boardman were the guests of the evening, and with them were Mr. Bradbury (assistant solicitor, Town Clerk's Department), Mr. Robert Pike (market superintendent), and Mr. Wm. Pike. Other guests were Market Superintendent Hardman and Mrs. Hardman, of Preston, and Market Superintendent Farnworth and Mrs. Farnworth.

Interesting Short Speeches.

At a suitable interval between the dances, Mr. P. Collins, president-elect of the Showmen's Guild, took the chair. With him on the bandstand (used as a platform for the short meeting) were the Rev. T. Horne, Mr. T. Hurst (hon. sec.), and Messrs. George Kemp, V.P., G. H. Cornwell, V.P., J. Whiting, V.P., John Collins, V.P., John Green, Wm. Sedgwick, T. Payne, V.P., W. Holmes, S. Braham, S. Mercer, T. Wortley, J. Pattison, T. Burgin, Mark Whatmore, R. Mellor, Frank Mellor, and many others.

Mr. P. COLLINS, in a brief speech, expressed his pleasure at being present for the first time at the Bolton Festival, and assured his friends that it would be the beginning, to him, of many such pleasures. (Applause.) He welcomed the presence of their honoured guests, the Chairman and members of the Markets and Fairs Committee. He heartily desired the most friendly and cordial relations with all Corporations, and hoped that more of such gatherings would mark their business year by year. (Cheers.) He called upon Alderman Dickinson to speak to them.

Alderman DICKINSON (who was received with cheers) said that for many years past his committee and their excellent officer, Mr. Superintendent Pike, had entered into the most harmonious relations with their showmen tenants at the Bolton Fairs. This, he felt sure, was the right policy. (Cheers.) He heartily wished them a prosperous New Year, and that next year would find them gathered together again for another delightful social festival as the one they were now enoying. He asked them to remember that all the committee were ready to consider suggestions for the betterment of the Fair, or to examine into any matters of grievance. (Hear, hear.) Again he wished them all a happy New Year. (Great applause.)

Alderman GREENWOOD, in response to the Chairman's request, also spoke. Let them remember, he said, that so long as the Bolton Fairs were carried on by the showmen in the admirable manner that characterised their present success, that the Corporation would continue to co-operate with the fairground and amusement caterers in providing wholesome amusement for the people. (Applause.)

Councillor WEBSTER, in a warm tribute of praise to the Showmen's Guild and its Chaplain, endorsed the views of the previous speaker. He was delighted year by year, he said, to meet their old and tried friend, the Guild Chaplain. In Mr. Horne the showpeople had a "fighting parson" able and ready to do battle for the showmen's cause. (Great cheering.)

Superintendent PIKE (who was received with great cheering) was "bright, brief, and brotherly" in his short address. Alderman Dickinson had given them, he said, the wisest possible counsel. Where difficulties existed, he asked them to bring their troubles to the real fountain-head of authority—the Markets and Fairs Committee. (Cheers.) He was the executive officer of that committee. His duty lay in obeying its instructions. Without the proper authority he was helpless, so let them always trust the committee to to see justice done, and he would (for his part) continue his endeavours to promote the cordial relations between the showpeople and the Bolton Corporation. Applause.)

The Rev. T. HORNE, who, for the sake of the eager dancers, heartily agreed with the admirable brevity of the previous speeches, proposed the complimentary vote to the guests of the evening and to the Ball Committee. This was seconded by the Chairman, and carried amidst great applause.

The Principal Guests at the Ball.

Messrs. P. and J. Collins and party, Mr. and Mrs. Kemp and party, Mr. and Mrs. John Green and party, Mr. and Mrs. George Cornwell and party, Mr. and Mrs. John Whiting and party, Mr. and Mrs. S. Braham, Miss Braham, and party, Mr. and Mrs. T. Payne and party, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sedgwick and party, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and party, Mr. Holmes, Miss Holmes, and party, Mr. and Mrs. T. Wortley and party, Mr. and Mrs. B. Mitchell and party, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mitchell, jun., and party, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kemp, and over two hundred more guests. The whole festival was a brilliant success. This year, as upon all previous occasions, the proceeds will be given to the funds of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain.

Yorkshire the Football Victors.

The Showmen's football match, Yorkshire v. Lancashire, at Bolton, resulted in a win for Yorkshire.

The Great Yuletide Fair at Crystal Palace.

MR. CHAS. HYATT, the popular amusement caterer, must have had a broad smile when he saw the crowds enjoying to the full the many attractions afforded by his Fair, the gay couples on his galloping horses and cockerels, which were crowded all day. Then the haunted house and home-training bicycles, and aerial flight, the Suffragettes' Chase, park swings, juvenile motor roundabouts, midget swings were well patronised. In Novelty Court racing motors, with all kinds of games, and that great sensation, the houp' la, held crowds all day.

THE Fun City in the Olympia Annexe continues to flourish, and doubtless owing to the exceptionally strong bill provided each week, the free variety entertainment is one of the most popular of its kind ever presented to the public. Next week strong additions to the bill include Clown Caban's famous French Circus, Mlle. Clementine, the rifle expert—during her engagement at the Fun City the William Tell act will be omitted—and Picitt and Lizette, the crazy cooks from the London Coliseum.

THE Shop Assistants' Marathon has been definitely fixed for January 15. Mr. C. B. Cochran, the genius of the Fun City, never sleeps, his whole time being taken up with the hatching of new ideas, and interesting items for the future include the Music Hall Aspirants' Scholarship and a Covent Garden Market porters' basket carrying race.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Pathé Frères.

CARLO'S REVENGE.—Carlo has been tied up to a lamp-post in order the better to look after a basket, full of eatables, left there by cook. A thief approaches, and, thanks to a trick of his own, he secures the basket. Carlo barks madly, and turns round and round the lamp-post without being able to overtake the man. On being released by cook, Carlo runs after the thief as fast as his legs will carry him, and he chases him doggedly. Gendarmes join in, and the thief throws himself into the water. Carlo fetches him out, and causes him to be captured by the gendarmes. Carlo has had his revenge, and he now returns home with the basket and its contents

RIP'S INHERITANCE.—This playlet, by Madame Maxime Villemer, has been acted by M. Desfontaines, M. Chelles, and Mme. Gabrielle Fleury, of the Odéon Theatre. The story is this:—Rip is a well-behaved dog, learned, modest, and faithful to his master, a retired colonel, who, having never married, lives in the sole company of his four-legged friend. Rip, sitting on his hind legs, listens gravely, albeit indifferently, to the reading of his master's will, which makes him the colonel's sole heir. Before answering the last call, the old soldier fastens his will inside Rip's collar, and after his good master's departure Rip is turned out of the house by the butler. Wealth does not always mean happiness, as Rip soon discovers, for not being able to speak and change his inheritance into paid-for food, he steals from the shop windows like a common stray dog. Rip feels so sad and lonely that he lies down at the foot of a tree waiting for the next adventure, when suddenly a little boy takes pity on him, and asks his mother if he may adopt him. Rip is now one of the family. His new masters are humble folk, and the boy's father, being an invalid, spends his days in his armchair. The mother is an ironer. Yet Rip is happy, and he follows the boy whenever he goes to play, but he must be careful not to make a noise on the stairs, for dogs are not allowed in the house. One day one of those individuals who steal dogs for earning about a shilling, chains up our friend Rip and takes him away. Rip escapes, however, and arrives home just as his good masters receive the news that they will be sold up. Rip looks at them all with sorrowful eyes, but the porter's wife, coming in, would show him the door. The little boy clasps the dog's collar with both his hands, and—the collar snaps. The will is found, which will stop the distraint, and the heir, not being of age, his benefactors will enjoy the fortune.

THE CABIN BOY'S SISTER.—This is a touching story of two orphans without a kindly friend to take care of them. In the docks the two are busy writing on a large case "This side up." When their task is ended the boy shuts his sister in the case, and manages to have same carried on board the ship Sea Star, of which he is the cabin boy. He clandestinely goes to his sister's hiding place and shares with her his daily meals. One day the crew discover the secret and adopt the two children.

GOOD FRIENDS.—Mrs. Bond and Mrs. Share meet in a large shop, and exchange their usual greetings and bits of gossip. They have just bought, unknown to each other, the same kind of material for their dresses. They meet again at the dressmaker's, where Mrs. Share chooses the same fashion as that of Mrs. Bond's dress. The dresses are ready, and when Mrs. Bond tries hers on she is delighted, for it is just lovely; but as she sees at the bottom of the very same box from which her gown has been taken another dress just the replica of that "lovely gown," her bad temper is so roused that she sobs loudly, and tramples on the dress. Her old maid picks it up presently, and makes herself a present of it. There is a ring at the bell, and a messenger hands an invitation to tea from Mrs. Share. Mrs. Bond declines; but on second thoughts she sends her maid in her stead, wearing the fateful gown, which produces amongst Mrs. Share's guests a fit of laughter, for the old lady looks like a grotesque copy of the hostess. The latter, however, has no sooner spied the maid than she sinks into an armchair, a prey to hysterics. But Mrs. Bond enjoys herself immensely.
